A new Statute of the Exchequer, called The Statute of Rutland, made 24 Maii, Anno 10 Edw. I. and A. D. 1282.

Touching the recovery of the King's debts.

SECT. MOREOVER we provide, that certain persons assigned VIII. thereunto on our behalf, shall be sent into every shire, which shall have full power to enquire of such manner of debts; (2) and also to call afore them solemnly, as well the sheriffs as their heirs and assigns, and the tenants of their lands, in case they be dead that have received the debts; (3) and also, if need be, to proceed to the taking of such manner of inquests, whether the parties (against whom the foresaid tallies were shewed) do come or not; so that the sheriff do return a reasonable summons made to them therefore; (4) and so the truth being inquired and discussed in presence of the parties (if they will be there) the inquisitors shall make rolls of them that shall be convicted afore them; so that the foresaid debts being confessed and inrolled, the tallies of the same shall be forthwith broken. (5) And the sheriffs shall have in their custody the transcripts of the same rolls, under the seals of the inquisitors; (6) and shall

The penalty for customing goods where by the King loseth his duty.

The intent and cause of the making of the statute of 3.H. 7. c. 7.

WHEREAS at a parliament holden at Westminster, in the third year of the reign of King Henry the Seventh, it was ordained and established by the authority of the same, That no manner of merchant, denizen or stranger, shall take upon him to enter, or cause to be entered in the books of any customer of any port within this realm, any manner of merchandises coming into this his said realm, or going out of the same, in any other merchant's name, saving only the name of the merchant owning the same, upon pain of forfeiture of all such goods and merchandises so entered; (2) and every of the said merchants, which so shall take upon him to cause such untrue entry to be made, to have imprisonment, and make fine thereof at the King's pleasure: (3) it is now by our sovereign lord the King, and his lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, well considering, that the intent and cause of the making of the said statute was only, forasmuch as by the subtile dealing of some Englishmen, colourably entering in their own names the goods of merchant strangers, the King's Highness was deceived in his customs, and that the said statute was made for none other cause; yet forasmuch as the words of the said statute were general, it was extended as well unto the goods of an Englishman entered in the name name of one other Englishman, as to the goods of a stranger entered in the name of an Englishman, to the great hurt, loss, and damage of many and divers of the King's subjects, and contrary to the very intent and meaning of the said statute.

II. It is therefore ordained, established, and enacted by the authority of this present parliament, That the act afore rehearsed, made the said third year, and all things contained in the same, be from henceforth repealed, adnulled, utterly void, and of none effect.

A repeal of the said statute.

III. And furthermore, be it enacted by our sovereign lord the King, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That it shall be lawful from henceforth, that every Englishman, and all other the King's subjects, may in every port or haven within this realm of England, Ireland, and Wales, and the marches of the same, and in the town of Berwick, where it shall happen any merchandise to arrive, or to be charged and carried out, to custom in his name all manner of goods and merchandise of another Englishman, or the King's subjects.

One Englishman may custom goods in another Englishman's name.

IV. And in like form, every merchant stranger to custom in his name any goods or merchandise of any other merchant stranger, so that the said merchant stranger that customs the goods of another merchant stranger, and the very owner or proprietary of the goods so customed, be charged with like custom, subsidy, and other things, so that the King's Grace be not defrauded of his right.

One merchant stranger may custom goods in another's name.

V. And if any merchant stranger or denizen, or any other the King's subject, custom any goods or merchandises of another stranger or denizen, or of any other the King's subject, whereby the King's Grace should lose his custom, subsidy, or other his right or duty, that then the said merchant stranger or denizen, or any other the King's subject that so taketh upon him or them, to forfeit to our said sovereign lord the King the goods or merchandises so customed; and over that to forfeit to the party or parties in this behalf grieved, as much money as the goods or merchandises of the merchant stranger, denizen, or other the King's subjects (so cautiously customed) amounted unto.

The penalty for customing of goods, whereby the King loseth his custom. The penalty enlarged by 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 22.

VI. And that no citizen of London, or other the King's subjects, inhabiting in the cinque-ports, or any other being free of prisage or butlerage of wines, by grant, custom, or otherwise, custom no wines of any person or persons not being free of any prisage or butlerage.

No wines free of prisage, &c. to be customed.

VII. And if any person free of the said prisage or butlerage, so do, that then the said person or persons (that so do) forfeit to our said sovereign lord the double value of the prisage of the said wines so customed.

VIII. And further, That it be lawful to any person or persons grieved contrary to this act, to have an action of debt against every person or persons that so custom the goods or merchandises in his name, and not in the owner's name, of the sum or the value of the said merchandises so customed and forfeited; in which action none esoin nor protection shall lie, nor the defendant to wage his law.

What customs and impositions Englishmen sworn to foreign princes shall pay.

PRAYEN the commons in this present parliament, That where many and divers persons, being the King's subjects naturally born within this his realm, have withdrawn themselves out of the same realm, and transported themselves, with their wives, children, and goods, into Holland, Zealand, Brabant, Flanders, and into other countries of foreign princes, and there be sworn to the obeisance of the princes and lords of the countries where they be now inhabited, making there great buildings, and be contributaries to all manner of charges, as the subjects of those countries be; and thus they maintain, as much as in them is, the cities, boroughs, and towns of those countries, and many more of the King's subjects intend to do the same, if remedy therein be not provided: (2) which subjects born in England, notwithstanding that they thus estrange themselves from the King's obeisance, yet they occupy here in all the ports, havens, and creeks, cities, boroughs, and towns of England, as freely, and as free in custom and subsidy, as the King's subjects do occupy, and not only for themselves, but also colourably for other strangers, their friends and partners, and also make themselves quit and exempt from all charges within this realm, in prejudice and decay of the cities, towns, and boroughs of England; (3) and as for beyond the sea, they will obey to none authority granted to the English nation by the King's Highness and his noble progenitors under the great seal of England, and by authority of parliament, but they give themselves over to the protection and defence of those outward princes, to whom they be sworn subjects; and by these manner of persons much coin is conveyed out of the land:

An Englishman sworn subject to a foreign prince, shall pay such impositions as aliens do.

II. Wherefore be it ordained and enacted by the King our sovereign lord, and the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all and every such subjects born in England, and sworn to be subjects to foreign princes and lords of outward parts, (from henceforth as long as they shall so abide, and be as subjects to foreign princes and lords) that from henceforth so long they and every of them shall pay such customs, subsidies, tolls, and other impositions within this realm of England, as other strangers of those parts where the said Englishmen make their inhabitations, pay or use to pay within this said realm: (2) and that the knowledge of all and every such person or persons inhabitants, and sworn in manner and form as is before rehearsed within the archduke's countries, that is to say, Holland, Zealand, Brabant, and Flanders only, shall be had by certificate thereof made by the governor of the merchant adventurers and the assistants there for the time being; (3) and also for all other realms and countries of foreign princes, to be certified by the King's most noble ambassadors, being at such time there, as they shall happen to be in the said countries upon the King's affairs, shall likewise certify, as is aforesaid, under their seal, into the chancery of our sovereign lord the King; (4) and thereupon out of the said chancery writs to be made, and directed unto the customers, comptrollers, or other officers of the King's custom in every port, haven, or creek within this said realm, to perceive, levy, and take all manner of such customs, subsidies, tolls, and other impositions, as is before specified, of all such goods and merchandises as shall belong unto any such person or persons inhabited and sworn in manner and form above written, as well inward as outward.

III. Provided

III. Provided alway, That if hereafter it shall happen any such person or persons to return into the realm, and here to tarry and inhabit, that then he or they shall be restored to all such liberties and freedoms in paying of customs or subsidies, and other charges, as all other Englishmen do use to pay, and to have a writ out of the chancery for the same, this act, or any thing therein made, to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. Wherefore may it please the King's highness, and the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, to enact, That no person or persons from henceforth shall carry or convey by water or otherwise any brass, copper, latten, bell-metal, pan-metal, gun-metal, ne shroff-metal, whether it be clean clean or mixed (tin and lead only excepted) in any part beyond the sea, or into any outward realm or dominion whatsoever it be, upon pain to forfeit the double value of the same metal so carried and conveyed, the one half thereof to be to the King our sovereign lord, and the other to the party that will sue for the same by writ, bill, plaint, or information, in the which no essoin or protection shall be allowed.

III. And further be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, for the true meaning of this estatute, That the arrival, discharge and delivery of the said metals in any parts beyond the sea, or in any other foreign realm or dominion, shall be tried and determined within this realm, in such county or place where the said metal or metals were shipped, or first carried, with like process and determination as all other informations or actions be tried and adjudged within this realm, or as if the same fact had been done within this realm and dominion.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons at any time hereafter shall ship or carry any of the said metals afore rehearsed, to carry or discharge the same in any part of this realm, unless such person or persons before the shipping thereof do declare and manifest unto the customer of such port or creek where the same metal shall be shipped, the true weight of all such metal as shall be shipped, (2) and also shall make a sufficient obligation in the law, in the which he shall be bounden to the said customer to the King's use, in such sum as shall amount to the double value of the same metal so declared and manifested, with condition that the same shall be discharged at some port or creek within this realm, and in no other place, upon pain to forfeit the same in manner and form above rehearsed; (3) and that every such person or persons that shall ship such metal, and be and shall be bounden as is aforesaid, shall within eight months next after the shipping thereof bring a true certificate from the customer of the port, creek, or place where he or they shall happen to discharge the same metal, testifying that the same metal so shipped, and the true weight thereof, is there discharged; (4) which certificate the customer of such place, where the said metal shall be discharged, shall, upon the discharge thereof, make and deliver to the party so discharging, or to his factor, without any delay.

He that carrieth brasse, &c. in any ship shall be bound to discharge the same within this realm.

V. And be it further enacted, That if any customer or his deputy, by covin, or by any other undue mean, do make any false or untrue certificate concerning the said discharging of such metal, contrary to the true meaning of this act, that then such customer so falsely or untruly certifying as is aforesaid, shall lose his office, and also the value of the goods so concealed out of the said certificate.

The penalty of a customer making a false certificate.

VI. Provided alway, That if the said metal, by tempest of weather be drowned, or by enemies or pirates robbed and spoiled, and that sufficiently proved without fraud or covin, before the customer and comptroller, or their sufficient deputies, in the port where the party or parties so shipped the metals aforesaid, or any of them, by the said party or parties, or their executors, that then he or they so bringing such sufficient proof, shall have his obligation to him delivered, or else he and his executors thereof to be acquitted and clearly discharged; any thing in this act to the contrary contained notwithstanding.

LII. And that all suits to be made after the first day of April next coming, for the recovery of or for any the King's debts, in any of the King's courts mentioned in this act, of or upon any obligation or specialty dated or delivered before the making of this present act, or which shall be dated and delivered to the King, or to his use, afore the second day of May next coming, shall be taken, sued and pursued in the name of the King, and in the name of none other person or persons, to whatsoever person or persons the said obligations or specialties, or any of them be, have been, or shall be made to the King's use.

All suits for the King's debts to be in his own name.

LIII. And that all suits, process, judgments, decrees, and executions, hereafter to be taken, pursued, or given for the King in any of the King's courts mentioned in this act, of or upon any of the same obligations last afore mentioned, shall be of the same or like strength, force, effect and intent in the law to all purposes, only against all and all manner such person and persons as been bound in such obligations or specialties, as well spiritual as temporal, as against their heirs, successors, executors and administrators, and every of them, and against none other, as writings obligatory taken and acknowledged according to the statute of the staple at Westminster, at any time before the making of this present act, have been used to be taken, exercised, and executed against any lay person or persons.

Process, judgment and execution for the King to be in the nature of the statute staple.

LIV. And that the King in all suits hereafter to be taken in or upon any obligation or specialties made or hereafter to be made to the King, or any to his use, shall have and recover his just debts, costs and damages, as other common persons use to do in suits and pursuits for their debts. (2) And that all such suits as now be depending in the name of any common person to his Grace's use, whereof no verdict is, or before the feast of Easter next coming shall be given or passed, or no exigent awarded, shall abate, be void, and of none effect; and nevertheless the King, by the authority aforesaid, shall have his suit and remedy for the said debt so being in action and process, in form as is aforesaid, in any of the courts in this act mentioned; any thing in this act to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

The King in all suits for debt shall recover his costs and damages.

LXXIV. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any suit be commenced or taken, or any process be hereafter awarded for the King, for the recovery of any of the King's debts, that then the same suit and process shall be preferred before the suit of any person or persons: (2) and that our said sovereign lord, his heirs and successors, shall have first execution against any defendant or defendants, of and for his said debts, before any other person or persons, so always that the King's said suit be taken and commenced, or process awarded for the said debt at the suit of our said sovereign lord the King, his heirs or successors, before judgment given for the said other person or persons.

The King shall be preferred in suit and execution

LXXIX. Provided alway, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, of whom any such debt or duty is, or at any time hereafter shall be, demanded or required, alledge, plead, declare or shew, in any of the said courts, good, perfect and sufficient cause and matter in law, reason or good conscience, in bar or discharge of the said debt or duty, or why such person or persons ought not to be charged or chargeable to or with the same: and the same cause or matter so alledged, pleaded, de-statute of 1 H. 8. c. 5.

touching cusgoods in the name of others.

f. 6.

WHERE at the parliament holden at Westminster in the first year of the reign of the noble King of famous memory, Henry the Eighth, it was ordained, established and enacted by the authority of the said parliament, That it should be lawful from thenceforth, that every Englishman, and all other the King's subjects, might in every port or haven within this realm of England, Ireland, and Wales, and the marches of the same, and in the town of Berwick, where it should happen any merchandise to arrive, or to be charged and carried out, out, to custom in his name all manner of goods and merchandise of another Englishman or the King's subject: And in like form every merchant stranger to custom in his name any goods or merchandise of any other merchant stranger, so that the said merchant stranger that customs the goods of another merchant stranger, and the very owner or proprietary of the goods so customed, be charged with like custom, subsidy, and other things, so that the King's grace were not defrauded of his right.

II. And if any merchant stranger or denizen, or any other the King's subject, custom any goods or merchandise of any other stranger or denizen, or of any other the King's subject, whereby the King's grace should lose his custom, subsidy, or other his right or duty; that then the said merchant stranger or denizen, or any other the King's subject, that so taketh upon him or them to do, should forfeit to the King the goods or merchandise so accustomed; (2) and over that, to forfeit to the party or parties in that behalf grieved, as much money as the goods or merchandise of the merchant stranger, denizen, or other the King's subject so cautelously customed, amounted unto.

III. And that no citizen of London, or other the King's subjects inhabiting in the cinque-ports, or any other being free of prisage or butlerage of wines, by grant, custom, or otherwise, should custom no wines of any person or persons, not being free of any prisage or butlerage. (2) And if any person free of the said prisage and butlerage so did, that then the said person or persons that so did, should forfeit to the King the double value of the prisage of the said wines so customed. (3) And further, that it should be lawful to any person and persons grieved contrary to the said act, to have an action of debt against any person or persons that so customed the goods or merchandise in his name, and not in the owner's name, of the sum of the value of the said merchandise so customed and forfeited: in the which action no essoin or protection should lie, nor the defendant to wage his law, as by the said former act more at large doth appear: (4) Sithence the making of which act, divers persons, as well strangers and denizens as the King's subjects, forgetting their bounden duties to the King's highness, and nothing fearing the penalties and forfeitures mentioned in the said former act, do daily deceive the King, as well in his customs and subsidies, by payment of customs and subsidies in the names of such persons, other than such as be the very owners or proprietors of the goods, wares and merchandise, of the prisage or butlerage of wines due to the King.

IV. Wherefore be it ordained and enacted by the King our sovereign lord, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any stranger born, denizen or not denizen, or any the King's subjects, do at any time from or after the last day of March next coming, any thing or act contrary to the true meaning, tenor and purport of the same former act and statute, that then he and they so offending, shall lose and forfeit all his and their own goods and chattels personals for ever; (2) the moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the King, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same by bill, plaint, action of debt, or information, in which bill, plaint, action or information, no wager of law, essoin or protection shall be admitted or allowed.

The penalty for customing of other mens goods whereby the King loseth his duty.

V. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every such bill, plaint, action or information, shall be had and pursued within three years next ensuing any such offence committed or done, or else the offender to be clearly free and discharged thereof; any law or statute to the contrary had or made notwithstanding.

An act against the carrying of white ashes out of the realm.

White ashes

The penalty.

CONSIDERING that white ashes made within the realm, and other the King's dominions and territories, are very necessary and expedient for the making of soap and salt-petre, and for the whitening of linen cloth, dying and scowring of woollen cloth, and for other needful things in the realm; and that the same ashes now of late have been commonly conveyed over the seas, and thereby enhanced in price, and so scarce, that the King's loving subjects cannot have sufficient of the same for any convenient prices: (2) Wherefore be it ordained and enacted by the King's highness, with the assent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no person or persons, after the first day of April next coming, shall ship, lade, carry or convey any white ashes towards the parts beyond the seas, upon pain of forfeiture of vi. s. viii. d. for every bushel of such ashes so to be shipped or laded to be carried or conveyed into the parts beyond the seas; (3) the moiety of which forfeiture shall be to the King, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same in any of the King's courts of record, by action, bill, plaint, or information; in the which action, bill, plaint, or information, no wager of law, essoin or protection shall be admitted or allowed.

An act against the carrying of bell-metal out of the realm.

No person shall carry bell-metal, &c. out of this realm.
33 H. 8. c. 7.
This act is not upon the roll.

WHERE in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the three and thirtieth year of our late sovereign lord of famous memory, King Henry the Eighth, it was enacted, That no person or persons should carry or convey by water or otherwise, any brass, copper, latten, bell-metal, pan-metal or gun-metal or shroff-metal, whether it be clean or mixed, tin and lead only excepted, into any part beyond the sea, or into any outward realm or dominion whatsoever it be, upon pain of forfeiture of double the value thereof: (2) and where also by the said statute it was likewise enacted, That no person or persons should at any time ship or carry any of the said metals, to carry or discharge the same in any part of this realm, unless such person or persons, before the shipping thereof, did declare and manifest unto the customers of such port or creek where the same metal should be shipped, the true weight of all such metal as should be shipped; (3) and should also make a sufficient obligation in the law, in the which he should be bounden to the said customer, to the King's use, in such sum as should amount to the double value of the said metal so declared and manifested, with condition that the same should be discharged at some port or creek within this realm, and in no other place, upon pain to forfeit the same, in manner and form above rehearsed, as by the said act amongst other things more plainly appeareth.

II. Forasmuch as the pains and forfeitures in the said estatute are not great enough, and forasmuch also as divers covetous and greedy persons having no respect or obedience to the laws, have craftily and by all sinister means practised to defraud the said estatute, some by bribing and rewarding the searchers, masters, purfers or other officers of ships, some by secret conveying thereof in small creeks, sugar chests, hogsheds or otherwise: (2) be it therefore ordained and enacted, That from and after the feast of Easter next coming, no person or persons shall carry or convey, or ship to the intent to carry or convey any brass, copper, latten, bell-metal, pan-metal, gun-metal or shroff-metal, whether it be clear or mixed, (tin and lead only excepted) into any part beyond the sea; or into any outward realm or dominion whatsoever it be, (3) upon pain to forfeit the double value thereof and ten pound for every thousand weight of the same metal so carried and conveyed, or shipped to the intent to be carried or conveyed; the trial whereof shall be in like manner and form as in the said former act is expressed:

The penalty for carrying or for shipping to carry any brass, latten, &c. beyond the sea. In part repealed by 5 & 6 W. & M. c. 17.

III. And be it further enacted, That no person or persons after the said feast shall ship or carry any of the said metals prohibited by this statute, to carry or discharge the same in any part of this realm, unless such person or persons before the shipping thereof do declare and manifest to the customer of such port or creek where the same metal shall be shipped, the true weight of all such metals as shall be shipped, and shall also before the shipping thereof make a sufficient obligation in the law, in which he shall be bounden to the said customer to the King's use, in such sum as shall amount to the double value, and x. l. for every M. weight so declared and manifested; with condition as in the said statute is appointed and enacted, and shall make certificate of the discharge thereof, in like manner as in the said statute is further ordained and enacted:

What he must do that ship-peth metals in one port of this realm to carry to another.

IV. And be it further enacted, That if any customer, comptroller, or his or their deputy or deputies, by covin or by any other undue mean, will suffer any person, after that the metal is shipped or carried contrary to the meaning of this act, to make obligation or obligations without dates, for the discharge and certificate of their metal as is aforesaid, that then such customer so suffering or receiving such obligation or obligations, shall lose his office, and the value of the metal so shipped or carried.

The penalty of a customer offending.

V. And be it further enacted, That if any master, owner, purser or boatswain of any ship do willingly permit or suffer any of the metals aforesaid to be shipped contrary to the tenor of this act, or else perceiving any such metals to be shipped, do not disclose the same within three days after knowledge had, to the customer or comptroller of the same port or his or their deputy or deputies where the same is shipped, that then every such owner, master, purser, or boatswain so willingly permitting the same metal to be shipped, or concealing the same when he perceiveth it to be shipped, shall forfeit the double value of the same metal so shipped or carried: (2) and if any customer or searcher do willingly suffer any of the metals aforesaid to be shipped contrary to the meaning of this act, or else having knowledge that it is secretly shipped or carried, do not seise the same to the King's use: then every customer or searcher so offending shall lose his office and the value of the metal so shipped or carried.

The penalty of the master of a ship which carrieth the metal.

VI. And be it further enacted, That no person or persons shall after the said feast lade, ship or carry into any part beyond the sea any of the metals aforesaid, but only out of such port or creek where the customer or his deputy is resident and dwelling, upon pain of forfeiture of the said metal and ten pound for every thousand weight so shipped or carried; (2) the moiety of all which forfeitures shall be to our sovereign lord the King, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same by bill, plaint, information, action of debt or otherwise, in any of the King's courts, in which no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be admitted or allowed.

No metal shall be laden but where there is a customer.

VII. And be it further enacted, That the said estatute made in the said three and thirtieth year of the reign of the said late King Henry the Eighth, and every article and provision, being not altered by this estatute, shall be good and effectual.

Against buying and selling of offices.

The penalty for buying or selling some sort of offices.

FOR the avoiding of corruption which may hereafter happen to be in the officers and ministers in those courts, places or rooms, wherein there is requisite to be had the true administration of justice or services of trust; (2) and to the intent that persons worthy and meet to be advanced to the place where justice is to be ministered, or any service of trust executed, should hereafter be preferred to the same, and no other:

II. Be it therefore enacted by the King our sovereign lord, the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any person or persons at any time hereafter bargain or sell any office or offices, or deputation of any office or offices, or any part or parcel of any of them, (2) or receive, have or take any money, fee, reward, or any other profit directly or indirectly, (3) or take any promise, agreement, covenant, bond, or any assurance to receive or have any money, fee, reward or other profit, directly or indirectly, for any office or offices, or for the deputation of any office or offices or any part of any of them; (4) or to the intent that any person should have, exercise or enjoy any office or offices, or the deputation of any office or offices or any part of any of them; (5) which office or offices, or any part or parcel of them, shall in any wise touch or concern the administration or execution of justice, (6) or the receipt, controlment or payment of any of the King's highness treasure, money, rent, revenue, account, aulnage, auditorship, or surveying of any of the King's majesty's honours, castles, manors, lands, tenements, woods or hereditaments; (7) or any of the King's majesty's customs, or any other administration or necessary attendance to be had, done or executed in any of the King's majesty's custom house or houses; (8) or the keeping of any of the King's majesty's towns, castles, or fortresses, being used, occupied or appointed for a place of strength and defence; (9) or which shall concern or touch any clerkship to be occupied in any manner of court of record, wherein justice is to be ministered; (10) that then all and every such person and persons that shall so bargain or sell any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, or that shall take any money, fee, reward or profit, for any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations of any of the said offices, or any part of any of them, or that shall take any promise, covenant, bond or assurance for any money, reward or profit, to be given for any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations of any of the said office or offices, or any part of any of them, shall not only lose and forfeit all his and their right, interest and estate which such person or persons shall then have, of, in or to any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, or any part of any of them, or of, in or to the gift or nomination of any of the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, for the which office or offices, or for the deputation or deputations of which office or offices, or for any part of any of them, any such person or persons shall so make any bargain or sale, or take or receive any sum of money, fee, reward or profit, or any promise, covenant or assurance to have or receive any fee, reward, money or profit: (11) but also that all and every such person or persons, that shall give or pay any sum of money, reward or fee, or shall make any promise, agreement, bond or assurance for any of the said offices, or for the deputation or deputations of any of the said office or offices, or any part of any of them, shall immediately by and upon the same fee, money and reward given or paid, or upon any such promise, covenant, bond or agreement had or made for any fee, sum of money or reward to be paid as is aforesaid, be judged a disabled person in the law, to all intents and purposes, to have, occupy or enjoy the said office or offices, deputation or deputations, or any part of any of them, for the which such person or persons shall so give or pay any sum of money, fee or reward, or make any promise, covenant, bond or other assurance, to give or pay any sum of money, fee or reward.

III. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every such bargains, sales, promises, bonds, agreements, covenants and assurances as be before specified, shall be void, to and against him and them by whom any such bargain, sale, bond, promise, covenant or assurance, shall be had or made.

The bargains and assurances shall be void.

V. Provided also, That if any person or persons do hereafter offend in any thing contrary to the tenor and effect of this act, yet that notwithstanding all judgments given, and all other act or acts executed or done by any such person or persons so offending by authority or colour of the office or deputation which ought to be forfeited, or not occupied, or not enjoyed by the person so offending as is aforesaid, after the said offence so by such person committed or done, and before such person so offending for the same offence be removed from the exercise, administration and occupation of the said office or deputation, shall be and remain good and sufficient in law to all intents, constructions and purposes, in such like manner and form as the same should or ought to have remained and been if this act had never been had or made.

Acts done by an officer removable shall be good.

An act limiting the time for laying on land merchandizes from beyond the seas, and touching customs for sweet wines.

MOST humbly shewing beseechen your Highness, your lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, That where the sums of money paid in the name of customs and subsidies of wares and merchandizes, transported out, and brought into this your Highness realm of England, by any merchant stranger or denizen, is an ancient revenue annexed and united to your imperial crown; (1) and hath in the time of King Edward the Third, and other your most noble progenitors, amounted to great and notable sums of money, till of late years many greedy and covetous persons, respecting more their private gain and commodity, than their duty and allegiance, or the common profit of the realm, have and do daily, as well by conveying the same their wares or merchandizes out of creeks and places where no custom is resident, as also by or through the negligence or corruption of the customer, searcher or other officer, where they be resident, as by divers other fraudulent, undue and subtle practices and devices, convey their goods and merchandizes as well brought from the parts beyond the sea, as transported out of this your realm of England, without payment or agreeing for the payment of the customs and subsidies therefore due; (2) whereby the yearly revenue aforesaid is very much impaired and diminished, to the great loss and damage of your Highness, and to the great burden and charge of your loving subjects, who by occasion thereof have of late years been more charged with

with subsidies and payment for the supplement of the said loss and damage, than else we should have been :

No goods shall be laden or discharged but in the day-light and in open place.

c. 11. f. 14.

At what times and places only the master of a ship shall receive or discharge his loading.

A master of a ship shall give notice to the customer of his departure.

II. That it may therefore be enacted by the authority of this present parliament, That it shall not be lawful to or for any person or persons whatsoever, from and after the first day of September next coming to lade or put, or cause to be laden or put off or from any wharf, key or other place on the land, into any ship, vessel, crayer, lighter or bottom, any goods, wares or merchandizes whatsoever (fish taken by your Highness subjects only excepted) to be transported into any place of the parts beyond the seas, or into the realm of Scotland; (2) or to take up, discharge and lay on land, or cause or procure to be taken up or discharged out of any lighter, ship, crayer, vessel or bottom, being not in a lake or wreck, and laid on land, any goods, wares or merchandizes whatsoever (fish taken by any of your Highness subjects, and salt only excepted) to be brought from any the parts beyond the sea, or the realm of Scotland, by way of merchandizes, (3) but only in the day-light; that is to say, from the first of March until the last of September, betwixt sun-rising and sun-setting; and from the last of September until the first of March, between the hours of seven in the morning and four at the afternoon; (4) and in and upon some such open place, key or wharf, places, keys or wharfs, as your Highness, your heirs or successors, shall on this side the said first day of September therefore assign and appoint by virtue of your Highness commission or commissions, within your Grace's ports of London, Southampton, Bristol, Westchester, Newcastle, and the suburbs of the same, and every of them; (5) and in some open place, key or wharf, places, keys or wharfs, in all other ports, creeks, havens or roads (Hull only excepted) where a customer, comptroller and searcher of such ports, havens, creeks or roads, and every of them or the servants of any of them, have by the space of ten years last past been accustomably resident, or hereafter shall be resident; (6) upon pain of forfeiture of all such goods, wares or merchandizes so laden or discharged contrary to the true meaning of this act, or the value thereof.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no manner of person or persons after the said day shall receive or take into any ship, crayer or other vessel, any goods, wares or merchandizes (except before excepted) to be transported into any place beyond the sea, or into the realm of Scotland, by way of merchandize; (2) nor shall discharge and lay on land out of any ship, crayer or other vessel, any goods, wares or merchandizes (except before excepted) being brought from any place beyond the sea, or out of the realm of Scotland, by way of merchandize, in any other place or places, or at any other hours or times than is before limited and appointed; (3) upon pain that the owner and owners, master and masters, or other person or persons which shall take charge or guiding of any such ship, crayer or vessel, or of the merchandize and goods, during and for that voyage, shall forfeit and lose for every such offence C. li. of lawful money of England.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no master, shipper or purier, or other person or persons taking charge of the voyage, or of the merchants goods, shall after the said day receive or take into any ship, crayer or other vessel, any goods, wares or merchandize (except before excepted) to be carried or transported into any of the parts beyond the sea, or into the realm of Scotland, before he shall have signified to the customer of the port where he ladeth, and other officers there, in the open custom-house, if any such be there, or else where the said officers, their deputies or servants, or any of them, be or shall be usually resident, that he intendeth to lade, and to what place he intendeth to pass; (2) nor shall after his or their full lading depart out of the port, creek or stream, where he shall so lade, before he do in like manner signify nify unto the customer and other officers, as is aforesaid, of his lading, and what merchants and other persons shall have lading with him, or in his ship, crayer, vessel or bottom, and further truly to answer to such questions as shall be ministered to him or them by the customer or other officer, concerning such wares or merchandizes as he shall have laden, being examined upon his or their oath, or otherwise, in the open custom house or otherwise, as is aforesaid, upon pain to forfeit for every such default not truly advertising nor answering, as is aforesaid, C. li.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no owner, master, purser or other person taking charge of any ship, crayer, vessel or bottom, wherein any goods, wares or merchandizes (except before excepted) shall be laden and brought from any the parts beyond the sea, or the realm of Scotland, shall after the said day discharge into any lighter or bottom, and lay on land, or procure, cause or willingly suffer to be discharged into any lighter or bottom, and to be laid on land out of such ship, crayer, vessel or bottom, any goods, wares or merchandize whatsoever, before such owner, master, purser or person or persons taking charge of the ship, crayer, bottom or vessel, or the merchants goods for that voyage, shall have signified and declared to the customer or other officer of the port, haven or creek, where he arriveth, the names of every of the merchants or laders, and shall have truly answered to such questions and interrogatories touching or concerning such goods, wares or merchandizes, as shall be then laden in any such ship, vessel or bottom, as shall be to him ministered by such customer or other officer, openly in the custom-house, or in such other place as is aforesaid, upon his or their oath, if need so require; (2) upon pain that every such master, purser or other person or persons taking charge of such ship, crayer or other vessel for that voyage, shall forfeit and lose for every such default not truly advertising nor answering, as is aforesaid, C. li.

No master of a ship shall discharge the same before he hath certified the custom.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said day, no person denizen ne stranger, do take upon him to enter, or do or cause to be entered into the books of any customer, or any other officer and officers, of any port or haven within this realm, or his or their deputy or deputies, servant or servants, any manner of goods, wares or merchandize whatsoever, coming or brought into your Highness realm, from any the parts beyond the sea, or from the realm of Scotland, or going or to be transported out of the same your Highness realm, into any the parts beyond the sea, or into the realm of Scotland, in the name or names of any other person or persons, than the very true owner or owners of the same goods, wares or merchandizes, being not sold, bargained or contracted for, to or with any other person or persons, before such entry, or before the arrival of such goods, wares or merchandize in the parts beyond the sea, upon pain of forfeiture of the value of the goods so entered.

No man shall enter goods in the customer's book but in the owner's name.

An act avoiding divers foreign wares made by handicraftsmen beyond the seas.

No person shall bring into this realm to be sold, girdles, rapiers, daggers, &c. ready wrought and made beyond the seas.

WHEREAS heretofore the artificers of this realm of England (as well within the city of London as within other cities, towns and boroughs of the same realm) that is to wit, girdlers, cutlers, saddlers, glovers, point-makers, and such like handicraftsmen, have been in their said faculties greatly wrought, and greatly set on work, as well for sustentation of themselves, their wives and families, families, as for a good education of a great part of the youth of this realm in good art and laudible exercise, besides the manifold benefits, that by means or by reason of their knowledges, inventions and continual travel, daily and universally came to the whole estate of the commonwealth of the said realm.

II. Yet notwithstanding so now it is, that by reason of the abundance of foreign wares brought into this realm from the parts of beyond the seas, the said artificers are not only less occupied, and thereby utterly impoverished, the youth not trained in the said sciences and exercises, and thereby the said faculties, and the exquisite knowledges thereof, like in short time within this realm to decay; but also divers cities and towns within this realm of England much thereby impaired, the whole realm greatly endamaged, and other countries notably enriched, and the people thereof well set on work, to their commodities and livings, in the arts and sciences aforesaid, and to the great discouragement of skilful workmen of this realm, being in very deed nothing inferior to any stranger in the faculties aforesaid.

The several inconveniences of bringing wares ready wrought into England.

III. For reformation whereof, be it enacted by our sovereign lady the Queen's highness, and by the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons of this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no person or persons whatsoever from or after the feast of the nativity of St. John Baptist now next ensuing, shall bring or cause to be brought into this realm of England from the parts of beyond the seas, any girdles, harness for girdles, rapiers, daggers, knives, hilts, pummels, lockets, chapes, dagger-blades, handles, scabbards, and sheaths for knives, saddles, horse-harness, stirrups, bits, gloves, points, leather-laces or pins, being ready made or wrought, in any parts of beyond the seas, to be sold, bartered or exchanged within this realm of England or Wales; (2) upon pain to forfeit all such wares so to be brought contrary to the true meaning of this act, in whose hands soever they or any of them shall be found, or the very value thereof: the one half of the forfeiture to be to our sovereign lady the Queen's highness, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to him or them that will seize the same, or sue therefore in any court of record of the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, by action of debt, bill, plaint, information, or otherwise, where no wager of law, essoin or protection, shall be to him or them allowed. shall remain accountable; (5) shall for the payment and satisfaction unto the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, of his or their arrearages, at any time hereafter to be lawfully, according to the laws of this realm, adjudged and determined upon his or their account (all his due and reasonable petitions being allowed) be liable to the payment thereof, (6) and be put and had in execution, for the payment of such arrearages or debts to be so adjudged and determined upon any such treasurer, receiver, teller, customer, collector, farmer, officer or accountant, as is before-named, (7) in like and in as large and beneficial manner to all intents and purposes, as if the same treasurer, receiver, teller, customer, farmer or collector, upon whom any such arrearages or debts shall be so adjudged or determined, had the day he became first officer or accountant stood bound by writing obligatory, having the effect of a statute of the staple, to her Majesty, her heirs or successors, for the true answering and payment of the same arrearages or debts.

II. And forasmuch as many times it may come to pass, that the Queen's highness, her heirs or successors, shall not or may not be conveniently satisfied of the debt to be determined or due upon any account or farm as is aforesaid, by way of extent, for that the yearly value of the lands extended will not satisfy her Highness, her heirs or successors, within the compass of many years, so as thereby great loss might ensue to her Highness, her heirs and successors; (2) for remedy thereof be it further enacted, That if any treasurer, receiver, collector, farmer, customer, teller, collector of custom, subsidy or impost, or other person accountant before-mentioned, which shall from and after the feast of St. Michael the archangel now next coming receive or be chargeable with any money or treasure of our said sovereign lady the Queen, her heirs or successors, (3) and shall upon the determining of his or their account (all his and their due petitions to them upon the same account being allowed) or by reason of any farm, as aforesaid, be found in arrearages, or to owe unto our said sovereign lady the Queen, her heirs or successors, any sum or sums of money, (4) and shall not within the space of six months next after his or their accounts finished, or debt known, (having allowance of his or their due and reasonable petitions, as is aforesaid) truly satisfy and pay all such arrearages and sums of money as he or they shall owe upon determination of his or their account, or upon his or their debt known, as is aforesaid: (5) that then it shall and may be lawful to the Queen's highness, her heirs and successors, at any time, and from time to time, after the said six months ended, to make sale by her or their letters patents under the great seal of England, of so much of the lands, tenements and hereditaments of every such accountant or debtor so being found in arrearages or in debt, as is above-mentioned, as may suffice our said sovereign lady the Queen, her heirs or successors, for the satisfaction of his or their debt or arrearages, to be determined or adjudged upon his or their account or farm, as is aforesaid, (all due petitions being allowed, as is aforesaid) until her Majesty, her heirs or successors, be by such sale fully satisfied and paid of such arrearages and debt to be found upon account or farm, as is aforesaid.

after he or they shall become accountant or chargeable, as is aforesaid, purchase and buy, or cause to be purchased and bought, any lands, tenements or hereditaments, and cause the assurance thereof to be made in the name of any other person or persons, where the same is indeed meant or intended to the use, profit or behoof of such person accountant or indebted, or of any other person or persons, and that the same manner of purchasing, and secret uses, profits or behoof, shall be found by office or inquisition; That then all and every lands, tenements and hereditaments so to be bought or purchased, or caused to be purchased (as is before-mentioned in this last proviso) shall by virtue of this act be taken, deemed and used for the satisfaction of the arrearages and debt of every such accountant or debtor, as is above-mentioned, to all intents and purposes, as though the person or persons indebted upon his or their account or farm were thereof actually seized of such estate that was conveyed to any person or persons, by any such accountant or debtor, or by his means, as is aforesaid: (2) and that all sales to be thereof made by the Queen's majesty, her heirs or successors, for satisfaction of such debt or arrearages as shall be found, as is aforesaid, to be due and owing to our said sovereign lady the Queen, her heirs and successors, shall be of the like effect, and be used and done in such like manner and form, as is before expressed.

VI. And whereas heretofore some treasurers, tellers, receivers, collectors and others, having had charge of the Queen's majesty's money and treasure, have gotten into their hands great sums of the Queen's majesty's money and treasure since the beginning of her Majesty's reign, and have most fraudulently employed her Majesty's money and treasure which they had in their charge, in sundry wise to their own uses, partly in the purchasing her Majesty's own lands, and partly in purchasing lands of others: (2) and to the intent the same should not be liable to satisfy and pay her Majesty, her heirs and successors, of that which to her or them should appertain, have purchased the same sometimes in their own names, and sometimes in the names of sundry their friends and kinsfolks, wives or children, and yet nevertheless have taken and received the rents and revenues thereof to their own uses:

Lands purchased by accomptant since the beginning of the Queen's reign.

VII. Be it therefore further enacted and ordained by the authority aforesaid, That all and singular lands, tenements and hereditaments, which any treasurer, receiver, teller, customer, collector, officer or accountant before-named hath heretofore since the beginning of the Queen's majesty's reign purchased or caused to be purchased, to the intent the same should not be liable, as is aforesaid (the fraud and covin aforesaid being first found by office or inquisition) shall and may be seized and taken by her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and retained by her Majesty, her heirs and successors, in fee-simple, to be sold or otherwise used at her and their wills and pleasures, towards the payment and satisfaction of all and every arrearages already set or determined and adjudged, or that hereafter shall be set, determined or adjudged, upon his or their account (all reasonable and due petitions being allowed) at such rate and value as the same were purchased or bought, or caused to be purchased or bought, by any such treasurer, receiver, teller, customer or collector before named, or by any other person to their use.

The Queen shall seize only so much land as will satisfy her.

VIII. Provided always, That if the lands and tenements so to be seized, taken or sold, by her Majesty, her heirs or successors, as is last above-mentioned, do surmount, after the rate and value aforesaid, the debt and arrearages to be set, determined and adjudged upon the account of any treasurer, receiver, teller, customer, collector or accomptant before-named, that then her Majesty, her heirs and successors, shall take and seize only so much as shall amount, after the rate and value aforesaid, to the just payment and satisfaction of such debt and arrearages as hath been or shall be set, determined or adjudged upon his or their account as is aforesaid.

X. And be it also further provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not in any wise extend to charge any treasurer, receiver, teller, customer, collector, or accountant aforeaid, having any yearly receipt; (2) nor any their lands, tenements or hereditaments, whose yearly receipt, collection and charge, or whose whole receipt from the beginning of his charge, is not or hath not been, or hereafter shall not be, above the sum of three hundred pounds; (3) otherwise or in any other manner and form than he or they might lawfully have been charged before the making of this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

Accountant whose receipt exceedeth not 300l.

XIV. Provided also, That this act, as touching only the sale of any lands or tenements, shall not extend to any lands, tenements or hereditaments, which any person or persons now have or enjoy, and have purchased or obtained bona fide, and not being privy or consenting unto any such intent to defraud the Queen's majesty, as is above-said: (2) and that it shall be lawful to every person and persons whose lands, tenements or hereditaments, shall by any office or inquisition be found to be fraudulently conveyed or assured, as is above-said, to have his or their lawful traverse, to every such office or inquisition; (3) and if it be found with the party that tendereth the traverse, that then he shall have the said lands out of the Prince's hands without any petition, livery or ouster le main, or any other suit to be had, made or used; (4) and the same being found for such person or persons so traversing, the same lands, tenements and hereditaments, shall be adjudged as not liable, chargeable, nor to be sold by force of this statute.

Lands purchased bona fide.

Any party grieved may have a traverse.

XV. Provided also, and be it enacted, That if the Queen's majesty, her heirs or successors, shall by any sale of lands by force of this statute be fully satisfied of the debt or arrearages of any such accountant or debtor, or any part thereof, then the sureties of such accountant or debtor shall be discharged of so much of the said debt, forfeiture and arrearage, as so shall be satisfied, and for the residue only shall be rateably according to their abilities charged; any thing in this or any other statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

If the Queen do sell the accountant's lands, his sureties shall be discharged for so much.

act made in the said fifth year, and the provisos therein contained, as do or doth concern the transporting of leather or hides, shall be continued and duly put in execution.

The penalty for shipping or loading of any leather, tallow or raw hides, to the intent to be transported.

Farther provisions relating hereto, 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 7. f. 5.

The forfeiture of the owner of a ship, master and mariners offending.

II. And be it further enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to lade, ship or carry in any vessel or ship, or otherwise, any leather, tallow or raw hides, of intent to transport or carry the same into any place or places of the parts beyond the seas, or into the realm of Scotland, by land or by sea, other than Scottish hides, according to the said proviso in the said act made in the said fifth year; (2) upon the pains and forfeitures hereafter ensuing; that is to say, upon the pain of the forfeiture of the said leather, tallow or raw hides so laden or transported, and treble the value thereof, to be forfeited by the owner or owners: (3) and also the owners of the said ships or vessels, knowing of such offence, to forfeit the said ships or vessels, with all their apparel and furniture to them and every of them belonging; (4) and the masters and mariners knowing of such offence, to forfeit all their goods and chattels, and to have imprisonment by the space of one year without bail or mainprize; (5) the one moiety of all which forfeitures to be to the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same, by action of debt or information in any court of record; in which suit no protection nor wager of law shall be admitted.

By what means the master or owner of a ship or mariner may escape the penalty aforesaid.

III. Provided always, That if any owner of any such ship or vessel, or any master or mariner knowing any such transportation of leather, tallow or raw hides, shall within three months next after his knowledge thereof, or after his return into this realm, give good information bona fide, before any of the barons of the Queen's majesty's court of the exchequer, or before the lord president or council in the north, or in the marches of Wales, or before the head officer of any port where he shall first arrive, upon his or their oath, of the number and quantity of leather, tallow and raw hides so carried, conveyed and transported, and by whom, where, and in what ship or vessel, and afterwards shall be ready upon reasonable warning by process to justify and prove the same for the Queen's majesty, that then such owner or owners, master, mariner or mariners, shall not forfeit his or their ship, vessel or vessels, nor incur the forfeitures aforesaid; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The subsidy of hides, calves-skins and tallow transported.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person or persons whatsoever, that shall ship or carry any leather, tallow or raw hides, otherwise than by force of the said proviso made in the said fifth year, into the parts of beyond the seas from henceforth, shall pay to the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, for every hide so to be carried, by the name of subsidy, the sum of ten shillings, (2) and for every dozen of calve-skins three shillings four-pence, (3) and for every hundred pound weight of tallow six shillings eight-pence.

Customers, comptrollers, and farmers shall be accountable for the said customs.

3 H. 6. c. 3.

V. And further, That all customers, comptrollers, farmers and supervisors of customs and subsidy, shall be accountant to the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, to pay the said custom and subsidy for all such goods entred and laden, upon the pains and penalties contained in the statute made for false concealments of customs and subsidy in the third year of the reign of King Henry the Sixth.

An act for the explanation of an act made in the thirteenth year of the Queen's majesty's reign, intituled, An act to make the lands, tenements, goods and chattels of tellers, receivers, &c. liable to the payment of their debts.

WHERE in the parliament holden at Westminster the second day of April in the thirteenth year of the reign of our sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth, there was amongst other things an act made, intituled, An act to make the lands, tenements, goods and chattels of tellers, receivers, &c. liable to pay their debts; (2) upon which act some doubt and question hath been moved, whether the Queen's highness, her heirs and successors, might for the satisfaction of her and their debts and farms, by her or their letters patents under the great seal of England, make sale of any the lands, tenements and hereditaments, whereof her Highness, her heirs and successors, have power or authority to make sale by virtue of the same act, after the death of such accountant or debtor as is mentioned in the said act, or where the account of such accountant or debtor was not or is not made, or his or their debt known in the life-time of the same accountant or debtor:

A question arising upon the exposition of the statute of 13 El. c. 4.

II. For declaration and explaining whereof, be it declared and enacted by the authority of this present parliament, That the said act, in every part thereof, touching the power given by that recited act unto her Highness, her heirs and successors, to make sale of any the lands, tenements or hereditaments by the same act limited to be sold, is, shall and ought to be expounded and intended, as well in case where the sale is to be made after the death of such accountant or debtor, as where it is to be made in his or their life-time; (3) and also as well in case where the account is made, or the debt known within eight years after the death of such accountant or debtor, as where the same account is made, or the debt known in the life-time of the same accountant or debtor; any ambiguity or question that hath risen or grown, or may arise, grow or be conceived, upon the letter of the same act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

The accountant's debt, known within eight years after his death.

III. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after the death of such accountant and debtor, as is mentioned in the said recited act, and before such time as any the lands, tenements and hereditaments, descended unto the heir of such accountant or debtor as heir unto the same accountant or debtor, shall be sold as aforesaid, a scire facias shall be awarded out of her Majesty's court of exchequer unto the sheriff of the county where any such lands do lie, to garnish the same heir, to shew cause why the same lands, tenements and hereditaments so to him descended as aforesaid, should not be put to sale for satisfaction of the same debts or farms in the same act mentioned, according to the tenor of the said act; whereupon if the heir do not within a convenient time upon a garnishment or two nichils returned, shew and prove unto the said court, that the executors or administrators of such accountant or debtor have sufficient, which ought to answer or be liable for the same debt or farm, and whereby the said debt or farm shall and may be duly and fully satisfied; That then after ten months next after such two nichils, or garnishment returned, the same lands, tenements and hereditaments shall be sold by her Majesty, her heirs or successors, and the money thereof coming disposed according to the true intent and meaning of the said former recited act.

Process against the accountant's heir before the sale of his lands.

And if the accountant or debtor have sufficient, which ought to answer or be liable for the same debt or farm, and whereby the said debt or farm shall and may be duly and fully satisfied; That then after ten months next after such two nichils, or garnishment returned, the same lands, tenements and hereditaments shall be sold by her Majesty, her heirs or successors, and the money thereof coming disposed according to the true intent and meaning of the said former recited act.

K

IV. And

The heir's sale good to him who is not consenting to defraud the Queen.
13 El. c. 4.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said recited act, and this statute of explanation also, as touching only the sale of any lands, tenements or hereditaments, to be made after the death of such accountant or debtor as is aforesaid, shall not extend to any lands, tenements or hereditaments, which any person or persons not being privy or consenting unto any such intent to defraud the Queen's majesty, her heirs or successors, as in the said recited act is mentioned, now have or enjoy, or have purchased or obtained, or before any scire facias so to be awarded as aforesaid, shall have or enjoy, purchase or obtain bona fide and upon good consideration; any thing in this act, or in the before-mentioned act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

To what accountants this statute of explanation shall extend.

V. Provided always, and be it enacted, That this act of explanation shall extend only unto such as have been or shall be tellers, receivers, treasurers, customers, cofferers of the household, farmers of impost, collectors, bailiffs, victuallers, and other officers of receipts and accounts unto our sovereign lady the Queen's majesty, her heirs, and successors, and to every of them, their heirs, executors and administrators, and to no other.

No sale of the heir's lands during his minority.

VII. Provided also, and be it likewise enacted, That if the heir of any accountant or debtor before-mentioned, shall happen to be within the age of one and twenty years when any such process shall fortune to be awarded, that then during the time of his or her non-age, this act or any thing therein contained shall not in any wise be extended, executed or put in ure, as touching or concerning only the selling of the lands, tenements or hereditaments of any such heir; any thing in the same act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding: (2) and yet nevertheless, after such time as any such heir shall accomplish the full age of twenty-one years, all and singular the lands, tenements and hereditaments descended unto the same heir from any such debtor or accountant as aforesaid, shall at all times during the space of eight years then next ensuing, be subject and liable to be sold for the payment and satisfaction of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, according to the intent and true meaning of this act, in such manner and form to all intents and purposes, as if the same heir had been of full age at the time of the death of such debtor or accountant.

The heir's lands liable to sale eight years after he shall accomplish his full age.

No sale of lands where the accountant hath a quietus est.

VIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to the sale of the lands, tenements or hereditaments of any such heir or heirs, for or by reason of any account, debt or farm, whereof any such debtor or accountant have or shall have a quietus est; or discharge in his or their life-time. 39 El. c. 7. revived by 1 Jac. 1. c. 25. s. 31.

An act for avoiding of deceitful buying and spending corrupt and unwholesome hops.

FORASMUCH as of late great frauds and deceits are generally practised and used by foreigners, merchants, strangers and others in foreign parts beyond the seas, in the false packing of all foreign hops brought into this realm of England from foreign parts, by way of merchandize here to be uttered and sold, with leaves, stalks, powder, sand, straw, and with loggets of wood, dross and other soil in very many sacks of hops for increase of the weight thereof, selling the same together for so much money as the hops are sold for, to the enriching of themselves by deceit: (2) by means of which false packing of foreign hops, the subjects of this realm have been of late years abused and deceived unto the value of twenty thousand pounds yearly at the least, besides the danger of the subjects' healths, for that in many sacks of foreign hops there is not found scarce one third part to be good and clean hops, the rest being dross and soil:

The penalty for bringing into this realm corrupted hops, or for brewing with them.

Several falsehoods practised by strangers in packing of hops.

II. For reformation whereof, Be it therefore enacted by our sovereign lord the King, and by the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any foreigner, stranger, native Englishman, denizen, merchant, or any other person or persons whosoever, do at any time or times from or after the feast of St. Michael the archangel next coming after the end of this present session of parliament, bring or cause to be brought, into this realm of England, out from any other foreign realm or dominions from beyond the seas, any hops being deceitfully or corruptly unclean, corrupt or mixt with any powder, dust, dross, sand, or any other soil whatsoever, that every person so offending therein contrary to this act, shall forfeit the same hops so brought into this realm.

Informations upon penal statutes shall be prosecuted in the counties where the offences were committed.

WHEREAS the offences against divers and sundry penal laws and statutes of this realm may better, and with more ease and less charge to the subject, be commenced, sued, informed against, prosecuted and tried in the counties where such offences shall be committed: (2) And whereas the poor commons of this realm are grievously charged, troubled, vexed, molested, and disturbed by divers troublesome persons, commonly called relators, informers and promoters, by prosecuting and enforcing them to appear in his Majesty's courts at Westminster, and to answer offences supposed by them to be committed against the said penal laws and statutes, or else to compound with them for the same: (3) For remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority of this present parliament, That all offences hereafter to be committed against any penal statute, for which any common informer or promoter may lawfully ground any popular action, bill, plaint, suit or information, before justices of assize, justices of Nisi prius or gaol-delivery, justices of oyer and terminer, or justices of peace in their general or quarter-sessions, shall after the end of this present session of parliament be commenced, sued, prosecuted, tried, recovered and determined, by way of action, plaint, bill, information or indictment, before the justices of assize, justices of Nisi prius, justices of oyer and terminer, and justices of gaol-delivery, or before the justices of peace of every county, city, borough, or town corporate, and liberty, having power to inquire of, hear and determine, the same, within this realm of England, or dominion of Wales, wherein such offences shall be committed, in any of the courts, places of judicature, or liberties aforesaid respectively, only at the choice of the parties which shall or will commence suit or prosecute for the same, and not elsewhere, save only in the said counties, or places usual for those counties, or any of them: (4) And that the like process upon every popular action, bill, plaint, information, or suit, to be commenced, or sued, prosecuted after the end of this present session of parliament, by force of or according to the purport of this act, be had and awarded, to all intents and purposes, as in an action of trespass, Vi & armis, at the common law; (5) and that all and all manner of informations, actions, bills, plaints and suits whatsoever, hereafter to be commenced, sued, prosecuted or awarded, either by the attorney general of his Majesty, his heirs or successors for the time being, or by any officer or officers whatsoever for the time being, or by any common informer or other person whatsoever, in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, for or concerning any of the offences, penalties or forfeitures aforesaid, shall be void and of none effect; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

II. And

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all informations to be exhibited, and in all bills, counts, complaints and declarations, in any action or suit to be commenced against any person or persons, either by or on the behalf of the King, or any other for or concerning any offence committed or to be committed against any penal statute, the offence shall be laid and alledged to have been committed in the said county where such offence was in truth committed, and not elsewhere: (2) And if the defendant to any such information, action or suit, pleadeth that he oweth nothing, or that he is not guilty; and the plaintiff or informer in such information, action or suit, upon evidence to the jury that shall try such issue, shall not both prove the offence laid in the said information, action, or suit, and that the same offence was committed in that county; then the defendant and defendants shall be found not guilty.

Upon default of proving that the offence was committed in the same county, the defendant shall be found not guilty.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no officer or minister in any court of record shall receive, file or enter of record any information, bill, or complaint, count or declaration, grounded upon the said penal statutes or any of them, which before by this act are appointed to be heard and determined in their proper counties, until the informer or relator hath first taken a corporal oath before some of the judges of that court, that the offence or offences laid in such information, action, suit or complaint, was or were not committed in any other county than where by the said information, bill, complaint, count or declaration, the same is or are supposed to have been committed, and that he believeth in his conscience, the offence was committed within a year before the information or suit, within the same county where the said information or suit was committed, the same oath to be there entered of record.

The informer shall make oath that the offence was committed in the same county where the suit is commenced.

IV. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid; That if any information, suit or action shall be brought or exhibited against any person or persons, for any offence committed or to be committed against the form of any penal law, either by or on the behalf of the King, or by any other, or on the behalf of the King and any other, it shall be lawful for such defendants to plead the general issue, that they are not guilty; or that they owe nothing, and to give such special matter in evidence to the jury that shall try the same, which matter being pleaded, had been a good and sufficient matter in law to have discharged the said defendant or defendants against the said information, suit or action, and the said matters shall be then as available to him or them, to all intents and purposes, as if he or they had sufficiently pleaded, set forth or alledged the same matter in bar, or discharge of such information, suit or action.

The defendant in an information upon a penal statute may plead the general issue.

V. Provided always, That this act, or any clause contained therein, shall not extend to any information, suit or action, grounded upon any law or statute made against popish recusants, or for or concerning popish recusancy, or against those that shall not frequent the church and hear divine service; (2) nor to any information, suit or action, for maintenance, champerty, or buying of titles; (3) nor to any suit or information, grounded upon the statute made in the first year of the reign of our sovereign lord the King, of a subsidy granted to the King, of tonnage, poundage, wool, &c. (4) nor for or concerning the concealing or defrauding the King, his heirs or successors, of any custom, tonnage, poundage, subsidy, impost or prisage; (5) or for transporting of gold, silver, ordnance, powder, shot, munition of all sorts, wool, woofels or leather, but that such offence may be laid or alledged to be in any county, at the pleasure of any informer; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding. 18 El. c. 5.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any wines, goods or other merchandize, whereof the subsidies aforesaid are or shall be due, shall at any time after be shipped or put into any boat or vessel, to the intent to be carried into the parts beyond the seas, or else be brought from the parts beyond the seas into any port, place or creek of this realm or other your Majesty's dominions, by way of merchandize, and unshipped to be laid on land, the subsidy, customs and other duties due or to be due for the same, not paid or lawfully tendered to the collector thereof or his deputy, with the consent and agreement of the comptroller and surveyor there or one of them at the least, nor agreed with for the same in the custom-house according to the true meaning of this act, that then, from the said four and twentieth day of June, all the same wines, goods and merchandizes whatsoever, shall be forfeited to your Majesty; the one moiety of the rate thereof to your Majesty, and the other moiety to him or them that will seize the same or sue for the same; and that it may please your Majesty, That all merchants, as well denizens as strangers, coming into this your realm, be well and honestly intreated and demeaned, for such things as subsidy by this act is granted, as they were in the time of your noble progenitors and predecessors, without oppression to them to be done, paying the subsidies aforesaid.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any goods or merchandize as aforesaid, of any merchant being born denizen, after the said four and twentieth day of June, hath been or at any time hereafter during your Majesty's life shall be taken by any enemies or pirates upon the sea, or perished, in any ship or ships that shall happen to be taken or perished during your Majesty's life, whereof the subsidies and other duties aforesaid are or shall be duly paid or agreed for as aforesaid, and that duly proved before the treasurer of England, commissioners of the treasury or chief baron of the exchequer for the time being, by the examination of the same merchants if they be alive, or of their executors or administrators if they be dead, or by two credible witnesses at the least sworn, or other reasonable witnesses and proof sworn, then the same merchant or merchants, his or their executors or administrators, shall or may newly ship in the same port where the goods and merchandize aforesaid were or shall be customed, so much other merchandize or goods as the same goods or merchandize are or shall be lost as aforesaid shall amount unto in custom, without paying of any thing for the same; (2) so as the same proof be recorded and allowed of in the court of exchequer, and certified unto the collectors of the customs of the port where the same wares or merchandizes are to be newly shipped without custom as aforesaid: (3) And further, That every merchant-denizen who shall hereafter ship any goods or merchandize in any carrack or galley, shall pay to your Majesty all manner of customs and all the subsidies aforesaid, as any alien born out of the realm.

V. Provided

V. Provided always, That it shall and may be lawful to all and every your subjects at his and their will and pleasure, to convey and transport out of this realm, in ships and other vessels of any the subjects of this realm, all and every kind of herrings and other sea-fish, to be taken on the sea by any the subjects aforesaid, from or out of any port or harbour of this realm, to any place out of your Majesty's dominions, without paying any custom, subsidy or poundage-monies for the same herrings or other fish so carried or transported, during your Majesty's life; any thing herein before contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And because no rates can be imposed upon merchandize imported or exported by subjects or aliens, but by common consent in parliament; (2) Be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the rates intended by this present act shall be the rates mentioned and expressed in one book of rates, intituled, The rates of merchandize, that is to say, the subsidy of tonnage, the subsidy of poundage, and the subsidy of woollen cloths or old draperies, as they are rated and agreed on by the commons house of parliament, set down and expressed in this book, to be paid according to the tenor of the act of tonnage and poundage, from the twenty-fourth day of June inclusively, in the twelfth year of his Majesty's reign, during his Majesty's life, and subscribed with the hand of Sir Harbottle Grimston, baronet, speaker of the house of commons; (3) which said book of rates composed and agreed on by your Majesty's said commons, and also every article, rule and clause therein contained, shall be and remain during your Majesty's life, as effectual to all intents and purposes, as if the same were included particularly in the body of this present act.

No rates to be imposed on merchandize without authority of parliament.

VIII. Provided always, That no person or persons, who after the four and twentieth day of June in the year one thousand six hundred and sixty, and before the four and twentieth of July in the same year, have paid, received or collected any duties or customs, according to the rates used in April one thousand six hundred and sixty, shall be molested or any way impeached for or concerning the payment or receipt of the said duties or any other duties by this act imposed.

A proviso for such as paid before July 24, 1660.

IX. And it is hereby further declared, That no person who hath shipped any goods since the said four and twentieth of June, and before the said four and twentieth of July, shall be liable to the payment of any duties therefore, other than such as were used to be paid in the said month of April one thousand six hundred and sixty.

X. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, immediately from and after the passing of this act, to transport, ship and carry out of this kingdom, or out of any port thereof, by way of merchandize, any of these commodities, goods and merchandizes following; that is to say, iron, armour, bandeleers, bridle-bits, halbert-heads and sharps, holsters, muskets, carbines, fowling-pieces, pistols, pike-heads, sword or rapier-blades, saddles, snaffles, styrops, calve-skins, dressed or undressed, geldings, oxen, sheep-skins dressed without the wool, and all sorts of manufactures made of leather, paying the respective rates appointed by this act and no other; any law, statutes, prohibitions and customs to the contrary notwithstanding.

Goods which may be exported immediately after the passing of this act.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful, immediately after the passing of this act, for any person or persons to ship, carry out and transport by way of merchandize, these several Goods which may be exported being at certain prices.

A COLLECTION of STATUTES

By 3 and 4 W. & M. c. 8. and 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 20. f. 4. the exportation of these victuals, corn and grain, &c. is made duty-free. Altered as to exportation of beef, &c. by 22 Car. 2. c. 13. f. 4. 1. W. & M. stat. 1. c. 24.

several sorts of goods following; that is to say, (2) gunpowder, when the same doth not exceed the price of five pounds the barrel: (3) And wheat, rye, pease, beans, barley, malt, and oats, beef, pork, bacon, butter, cheese, candles, when the same do not exceed in price at the ports from whence they are laden, and at the time of their lading, these prices following; that is to say, (4) Wheat the quarter, forty-shillings; rye, beans, and pease, the quarter, twenty-four shillings; barley and malt the quarter, twenty shillings; oats the quarter, sixteen shillings; (5) beef the barrel, five pounds; pork the barrel, six pounds ten shillings; bacon the pound, six-pence; (6) butter the barrel, four pounds ten shillings; cheese the hundred, one pound ten shillings; (7) candles the dozen pound, five shillings, paying the respective rates appointed by this act, and no more; any former law, statute, prohibition or custom to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

His Majesty, by proclamation, may prohibit transporting of gun-powder, arms and ammunition out of England: 16 Car. 1. c. 21.

An additional subsidy upon wines, over and above the fore-mentioned rates.

Security to be given by the importer. The said subsidy to be repaid upon exportation.

These twelve months enlarged to three years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 21. f. 10.

All wines discharged of excise.

Prizage wines not to pay any custom or subsidy.

XII. Provided always, That it shall be free and lawful for his Majesty, at any time when he shall see cause so to do, and for such time as shall be therein expressed, by proclamation to prohibit the transporting of gunpowder, or any sort of arms or ammunition into any parts out of this kingdom; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That over above the rates herein before-mentioned, there shall be paid unto your Majesty of every ton of wine of the growth of France, Germany, Portugal or Madera, brought unto the port of London, or elsewhere, the sum of three pounds of current English money, within the space of nine months after the importing; (2) and of every ton of all other wines brought in, as aforesaid, the sum of four pounds of like current money, within the space of nine months after the importing thereof; (3) for the payment of which duties accordingly, the importer shall give good security: (4) And if any of the said wine, for which the additional duty in this clause mentioned is paid or secured at the importation, be exported within twelve months after their importation, then the aforesaid additional duty in this clause mentioned shall be returned, or the security discharged, as to so much as shall be so exported; (5) and if at the importation the importer shall pay for the same ready money, he shall be allowed after the rate of ten per cent. for a year.

XIV. And be it further enacted, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of July, all manner of wines whatsoever to be imported into the port of London, or elsewhere, shall be freed and discharged of and from the imposition of excise.

XV. Provided, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That the prizage of wines, or prize wines, ought not to pay tonnage nor custom, and shall not be charged with the payment of any custom, subsidy or sum of money imposed upon wines by this act, or any thing therein contained. 13 Car. 2. stat. 1. c. 7.

Provided, That all foreign silks wrought, exported within one year from the importation, shall have two thirds of the aforesaid rates repaid at the custom-house (a).

All silks wrought, shall pay one full moiety over and above what they stand rated in this book, for which additional duty, the importer, giving security at the custom-house, shall have twelve months time for payment of the same from the time of the importation; or in case such importer shall pay ready money, he shall have ten pound per cent. of the said duty abated to him. And if any of the said silks, for which the said duty is paid or secured, at the importation, be exported within twelve months after their importation, then the aforesaid duty shall be wholly returned, or the security vacated, as to what shall be so exported.

(a) 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 39. 1 Ann. stat. 2. c. 8.

All

All merchant strangers bringing in any sorts of the said wines are to pay thirty shillings in the tonne over and above the aforesaid rates which the native pays; including twenty shillings the tonne formerly paid to his Majestie, by the name of Southampton duties, for Muscadels, Malmesies, and all other wines of the growth of the Levant.

For which sorts of wines the stranger is also to pay to the use of the town of Southampton, for every butt or pype, the sum of ten shillings.

Moreover, the stranger is to pay the ancient duty of butlerage, which is two shillings upon every tonne.

Note. That such wines as shall be landed in any of the out-ports, and custome paid, and afterwards brought to the port of London by certificate, shall pay so much more custome as they paid short of the duty due in the port of London.

Certaine rules, orders, directions and allowances, for the advancement of trade and encouragement of the merchant, as also for the regulating as well of the merchants in making of due entries and just payments of their customes, as of the officers in all the ports of this kingdome, in the faithful discharge of their duty.

I. EVERY merchant shall have free liberty to break bulk in any port allowed by the law, and to pay custome and subsidie for no more than he shall enter and land, provided that the master or purser of every such ship, shall first make declaration upon oath, before any two principal officers of the port, of the true content of his ships lading, and shall likewise after declare upon his oath, before the customer, collector, comptroller or surveyor, or two of them, at the next port of this kingdome where his ship shall arrive, the quantity and quality of the goods landed at the other port, where was bulke first broken, and to whom they did belong.

II. All forraign goods and merchandizes (except wines, corrans and wrought silks) first imported shall be again exported by any merchant Eng- 7 Geo. 1. c. 20. s. 10. lish within twelve moneths, or stranger within nine moneths. And such merchant or merchants as shall export any such forraign goods or merchandize (except before excepted) shall have allowance and be repaid by the officer which received the same, the one moietie of the subsidie which was paid at the first importation of such forraign goods and merchandizes, or any part thereof, so as due prooffe be first made by certificate from the officers of the due entry and payment of the custome and subsidie of all forraign goods and merchandizes inwards, together with the oath of the merchants importing and exporting the same, affirming the truth thereof, and the name of his Majesties searcher or under searcher in the port of London, and of the searcher of any other the out ports, testifying the shipping thereof to be exported. After all which duly performed in manner before expressed, the moietie of the subsidie first paid inwards, shall without any delay or reward be repaid unto such merchant or merchants, who doe export such goods and merchandizes, within one moneth after demand thereof. As also the whole additional duty of silk, linen and tobacco in manner as before is directed.

III. And if there be any agreement now in force, which was formerly made by the late commissioners of the customs and subsidies, with the merchants strangers or their factors, or shall hereafter be made by any commissioners, or farmers of the customes and subsidies, or any other power (except by consent of parliament) with any merchant or merchants strangers, or their factors, for any forraign goods and merchandizes to be brought into the port of London, or any other port or haven of this kingdom of England, or principality of Wales, and to be exported againe by way of composition; all other merchants being his Majesties subjects shall be admitted into the same composition, and not to be excluded from any other priviledge whatsoever, granted to the stranger by any private agreement or composition under the same conditions, and with the same restriction, as shall be made with the merchant-stranger.

IV. Every merchant as well English as stranger, that shall ship and export any kind of wines which formerly have paid all the duties of tonnage inwards, shall have repaid or allowed unto them all the duties of tonnage paid inward (except to the Englishman twenty shillings the ton, and except to the stranger five and twenty shillings the ton) upon due proof of the due entry and payment of the tonnage inwards, and of the shipping thereof to be exported, to be made in manner as in the second article is mentioned and expressed.

A COLLECTION of STATUTES

V. If any merchant denison or stranger shall export any Spanish or forraign wools, he shall have liberty so to do, with this further condition, that such Spanish or other foreign wools whatsoever be not exported in any other ship or vessel whatsoever, with intent to be arrived beyond the seas out of the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales, than only in English shipping, upon pain of confiscation.

VI. Every merchant, as well English as stranger, which shall ship and export any currants which formerly were duly entered and paid the subsidie and custome inwards, shall have allowed or repaid unto them respectively, all the custome and subsidie paid inwards for the same (except eighteen pence for every hundred weight to the English, and two and twenty pence and halfe peny for every hundred weight to the stranger,) upon due proof of the due entry and payment of the custome and subsidie thereof inwards, and of the shipping thereof to be exported, to be made in manner as in the second article is declared.

VII. If any merchant having duly paid all duties inwards for forraign goods, and in regard of bad sales, shall be enforced to keep the same or any part thereof in his hands, after the space of a year shall be elapsed, in this case he or any other person is to be permitted to ship the same out for the parts beyond the seas (if they think fit) without payment of any subsidy for the same outwards, upon due proof that the same was duly entered, and subsidy paid inwards.

VIII. Every merchant bringing in any sort of wines into this kingdom by way of merchandize, and shall make due entries of the same in the custom-house, shall be allowed twelve per cent. for leakage.

IX. Every hoghead of wine which shall be run out and not full seven inches or above left therein; and every but or pipe not above nine inches, shall be accounted for outs; and the merchant to pay no subsidie for the same.

Rep. 6 Geo. 1.
c. 13.

X. If any wines shall prove corrupt and unmerchantable, and fit for nothing but to distil into hot waters, or to make vinegar, then every owner of such wines shall be abated in the subsidie, according to such his damages in those wines, by the discretion of the collectors of the customs, and one of the principal officers.

Repealed, as to tobacco.
9 Geo. 1. c. 21.

XI. If any tobacco, or other goods or merchandize brought into this kingdom, shall receive any damage by salt water or otherwise, so that the owner thereof shall be prejudiced in the sale of such goods, the principal officers of the custom-house, or any two of them, whereof the collector for the time being to be one, shall have power to chuse two indifferent merchants, experienced in the values of such goods, who upon visiting the said goods shall certify and declare upon their corporal oaths first administered by the said officers, what damage such goods have received, and are lessened in their true value; and according to such damage in relation to the rates set on them in this book, the said officers are to make a proportionable abatement unto the merchant or owner, of the subsidie due for the same.

XII. The merchant stranger, who according to the rates and values in this book contained do pay double subsidie for lead, tynn, woollen-cloth, shall also pay double custome for native manufactures of wool or part wool, and the said strangers are to pay for all other goods as well inwards as outwards, rated to pay the subsidie of poundage, three pence in the pound, or any other duty payable by Charta Mercatoria, besides the subsidie.

XIII. That the merchants trading into the port of London have free liberty to lade and unlade their goods at any the lawful keyes and places of shipping and landing of goods between the Tower of London and London-bridge, and between sun-rising and sun-setting from the tenth day of September to the tenth day of March, and between the hours of six of the clock in the morning and six of the clock in the evening from the tenth day day of March to the tenth day of September, giving notice thereof to the respective officers appointed to attend the lading and unlading of goods. And such officer as shall refuse upon due calling to be present, he shall forfeit for every default five pounds, the one moiety unto the King, and the other moiety to the party aggrieved, and suing for the same.

XIV. The merchants of York, Kingston upon Hull, and Newcastle upon Tyne, and the members thereof, shall be allowed free of custome and subsidie, two of the northern cloths and kerfies in ten to be shipped in those ports in the names of double wrappers, as formerly hath been there allowed them.

XV. The merchants of Exeter, and other western parts, shall be allowed free of subsidie, one perpetuance in ten for a wrapper, and three Devon dozens in twenty for wrappers, the same to be shipped out of the ports of Exeter, Plymouth, Dartmouth, Barnstable, Lyme Regis, or the members thereof.

XVI. All merchants transporting any sort of woollen, whether new or old drapery, as also bayes and cottons, shall be allowed one in ten for a wrapper, free of custome and subsidie.

XVII. Every merchant shall be allowed upon all other goods and merchandize appointed to pay to any the subsidie of poundage, according to the rule of this book, to be imported, five in the hundred of all the said subsidies of poundage so appointed to be paid.

XVIII. The officers who sit above in the custom-house of the port of London, shall attend the service of their several places from nine to twelve of the clock in the forenoon; and one officer, or one able clerk, shall attend with the book in the afternoon, during such time as the officers are appointed to wait at the water's side, for the better deciding of all controversies that may happen concerning merchants warrants. All other the officers of the out ports shall attend every day in the custom-house of every respective port for dispatch of merchants and shippers, between the hours of nine of the clock and twelve in the morning, and two and four of the clock in the afternoon.

XIX. Every merchant making an entry of goods, either inwards or outwards, shall be dispatched in such order as he cometh; and if any officer or his clerk shall either for favour or reward put any merchant or his servant, duly attending, by his turn, or other ways delay any person so duly attending, and making his entries aforesaid, to draw any other reward or gratuity from him than is limited in the act for tonnage and poundage and this book; if the master officer be found faulty herein, he shall upon complaint to the chief officers of the custom-house, be strictly admonished of his duty; but if the clerk be found faulty therein, he shall, upon complaint to the said chief officers, be presently discharged of his service, and not permitted to sit any more in the custom-house.

XX. The lord major, communalty and citizens of the city of London, their officers or deputies, for and touching the offices of package, scavage, baleage or portage of any goods or merchandize of aliens, or their sons born within this kingdome, or unfreemen, imported or exported into or out of the city of London, or the liberties or ports thereof, unto or from the parts beyond the seas, for or concerning the receiving or taking of any fees or rates heretofore usually taken, for or in respect of the said offices, or any of them, might and may receive and take the same; any thing in the act for tonnage and poundage, or this book, or any former act, to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXI. All ancient duties, heretofore lawfully taken by any city, or town corporate, their farmours, deputies or officers, under the name of town custom or the like, for the maintenance of bridges, keys, harbours, wharfs, or the like, shall and may be received and enjoyed as formerly; any thing in the said act, or any other act or book to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXII. The under searcher or other officers of Gravesend, having power to visit and search any ship outward bound, shall not without just and reasonable cause detain any such ship under color of searching the goods therein laden, above three tydes after her arrival at Gravesend, under pain of loss of their office, and rendering damage to the merchant and owner of the ship; and the searcher or other officer of the custom-house in any of the out-ports having power to search and visit any ship outward bound, shall not without just and reasonable cause detain any such ship under color of searching the goods therein laden, above one tide after the said ship is fully laden and ready to set sayle; under pain of loss of the office of such offender, and rendering damage to the merchant and owner of the ship.

XXIII. Note, That all timber in balks, which shall be of eight inches square or upwards, that shall be imported or brought from any part beyond the seas into the realm of England, dominion of Wales, port and town of Berwick, or any of them, shall be rated according to the measure of timber, the foot square three pence for the value thereof, and according to that rule shall pay for subsidy twelve pence in the pound according to poundage, and all under eight inches square, and above five inches square, shall pay for subsidy according to the rates mentioned in this book of rates for middle balks, and all of five inches square or under shall pay according to the rate of small balks.

XXIV. For avoiding all oppressions by any of the officers of the customs in any port of this kingdom, in exacting unreasonable fees from the merchant by reason of any entries, or otherwise touching the shipping or unshipping of any goods, wares or merchandize: It is ordered that no officer, clerk or other, belonging to any custom-house whatsoever, shall exact, require or receive any other or greater fee of any merchant or other whatsoever, than such as are or shall be established by the commons in parliament assembled: If any officer or other shall offend contrary to this order, he shall forfeit his office and place, and be for ever after incapable of any office in the custom-house.

XXV. All fees appointed to be paid unto the customer, comptroller, surveyor, or surveyor-general in the port of London for any cockquet or certificate outwards, shall be paid altogether in one sum, to that officer from whom the merchant is to have his cockquet or certificate above in the custom-house; and after the merchant hath duly paid his custom and subsidy, and other duties above in the custom-house as is appointed by this book of rates, he is to be master of, and keep his own cockquet or certificate, until he shall ship out his goods so entered, when as he is to deliver the same to the head searcher, or his Majesties under searcher in the port of London or other ports, together with the mark and number of his goods.

XXVI. The officers of the custom-house for the time being, shall allow and make good unto all persons, all such monies as are or shall be due unto them for the half subsidy; and also the Algier duty of foreign goods formerly exported, now due and unpaid.

XXVII. The duties and sums of money appointed to be paid by the act of subsidy of tonnage and poundage passed this parliament, and by the book of rates therein mentioned, and no other, shall be paid to his Majesty's officers, during the continuance of the said act, upon goods imported or exported; any law, statute or usage to the contrary notwithstanding. Nevertheless, it is declared, That prizage of wines, the duty called butlerage, and the duty of twelve-pence of every chalder of sea coale exported from Newcastle upon Tyne to any other port or ports of this realm, shall be continued.

III. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no goods or commodities whatsoever, of the growth, production or manufacture of Africa, Asia, or America, or of any part thereof, or which are described or laid down in the usual maps or cards of those places, be imported into England, Ireland or Wales, islands of Guernsey and Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in any other ship or ships, vessel or vessels whatsoever, but in such as do truly and without fraud belong only to the people of England or Ireland, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or of the lands, islands, plantations or territories in Asia, Africa, or America, to his Majesty belonging, as the proprietors and right owners thereof, and whereof the master, and three fourths at least of the mariners are English; (2) under the penalty of the forfeiture of all such goods and commodities, and of the ship or vessel in which they were imported, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, ammunition and apparel; one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and the other moiety to him or them who shall seize, inform or sue for the same in any court of record, by bill, information, plaint or other action, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

IV. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no goods or commodities that are of foreign growth, production or manufacture, and which are to be brought into England, Ireland, Wales, the islands of Guernsey and Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in English-built shipping, or other shipping belonging to some of the aforesaid places, and navigated by English mariners, as aforesaid, shall be shipped or brought from any other place or places, country or countries, but only from those of the said growth, production or manufacture, or from those ports where the said goods and commodities can only, or are, or usually have been, first shipped for transportation, and from none other places or countries; (2) under the penalty of the forfeiture of all such of the aforesaid goods as shall be imported from any other place or country contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, as also of the ship in which they were imported, with all her guns, furniture, ammunition, tackle and apparel; one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize, inform or sue for the same in any court of record, to be recovered as is before express.

V. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any sort of ling, stock-fish, pilchard, or any other kind of dried or salted fish, usually fished for and caught by the people of England, Ireland, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; or any sort of cod-fish or herring, or any oil or blubber made or that shall be made of any kind of fish whatsoever, or any whale-fins or whale-bones, which shall be imported into England, Ireland, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, not having been caught in vessels truly and properly belonging thereunto as proprietors and right owners thereof, and the said fish cured, fayed and dried, and the oil and blubber aforesaid (which shall be accounted and pay as oil) not made by the people thereof, and shall be imported into England, Ireland or Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall pay double aliens custom.

10 & 11 W. 3. c. 24. § 13. and the importation of anchovies, &c. provided for by § 14.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from henceforth it shall not be lawful to any person or persons whatsoever, to load or cause to be laden and carried in any bottom or bottoms, ship or ships, vessel or vessels whatsoever, whereof any stranger or strangers-born (unless such as shall be denizens or naturalized) be owners, part-owners or master, and whereof three fourths of the mariners at least shall not be English, any fish, victual, wares, goods, commodities or things, of what kind or nature soever the same shall be, from one port or creek of England, Ireland, Wales, islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to another port or creek of the same, or of any of them; under penalty for every one that shall offend contrary to the true meaning of this branch of this present act, to forfeit all such goods as shall be laden and carried in any such ship or vessel, together with the ship or vessel, and all her guns, ammunition, tackle, furniture and apparel; one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall inform, seize or sue for the same in any court of record, to be recovered in manner aforesaid.

No goods to be laden or carried from one part of England to another in the vessel of any alien not denizenized, &c.

The penalty.

VII. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That where any ease, abatement or privilege is given in the book of rates to goods or commodities imported or exported in English-built shipping, that is to say, shipping built in England, Ireland, Wales, islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or in any the lands, islands, dominions and territories to his Majesty in Africa, Asia, or America, belonging, or in his possession, that it is always to be understood and provided, that the master and three fourths of the mariners of the said ships at least be also English; (2) and that where it is required that the master and three fourths of the mariners be English, that the true intent and meaning thereof is, that they should be such during the whole voyage, unless in case of sickness, death, or being taken prisoners in the voyage, to be proved by the oath of the master or other chief officer of such ships.

Ease and abatement in the book of rates to extend only where three parts of the Mariners be English.

VIII. And it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no goods or commodities of the growth, production or manufacture of Muscovy, or to any the countries, dominions or territories to the great duke or emperor of Muscovy or Russia belonging, as also that no sort of masts, timber or boards, no foreign salt, pitch, tar, rosin, hemp or flax, raisins, figs, prunes, olive-oils, no sorts of corn or grain, sugar, pot-ashes, wines, vinegar, or spirits called aqua vite, or brandy-wine, shall from and after the first day of April, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty-one, be imported into England, Ireland, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in any ship or ships, vessel or vessels whatsoever, but in such as do truly and without fraud belong to the people thereof, or some of them, as the true owners and proprietors thereof, and whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are English; and that no currans nor commodities of the growth, production or manufacture of any the countries, islands, dominions or territories to the Othoman or Turkish empire belonging, shall from and after the first day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty-one, be imported into any the afore-mentioned places in any ship or vessel, but which is of English-built, and navigated, as aforesaid, and in no other, except only such foreign ships and vessels as are of the built of that country or place of which the said goods are the growth, production or manufacture respectively, or of such port where the said goods can only be, or most usually are, first shipped for transportation, and whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are of the said country or

An act for prohibiting the exportation of wool, wool-fells, fullers-earth, or any kind of scouring-earth.

No person, after the 14th of January 1660, shall export any sheep or wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay.

Nor carry, or load on board any sheep, wool, &c.

No wool, wool-fells, &c. after the 14th of January

FOR the better preventing and avoiding of such losses and inconveniencies as have happened, and daily do and may happen, to the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales, and to the kingdom of Ireland, by and through the secret and subtil exportation and transportation, and by and through the secret and subtil carrying and conveying away, of wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth and fulling-clay, out of and from the kingdoms and dominion aforesaid, and for the better setting on work the poor people and inhabitants of the kingdoms and dominion aforesaid; (2) and to the intent that the full and best use and benefit of the principal native commodities of the same kingdoms and dominion may come, redound and be unto and amongst the subjects and inhabitants of the same, and not unto or amongst the subjects and inhabitants of the realm of Scotland, or of any foreign realms or states, as the same now of late in some great measure hath done, and is further likely to do, if some severer punishment than heretofore be not speedily inflicted upon such offenders as shall be actors or assistants in and to such exportation and transportation, and in and to such carrying and conveying away thereof, as aforesaid:

(3) be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no person or persons whatsoever from and after the fourteenth day of January, one thousand six hundred and threescore, shall directly or indirectly export, transport, carry or convey, or cause or procure to be exported, transported, carried or conveyed, out of or from the kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or out of or from the isles of Jersey or Guernsey, with Sarke and Alderney, being under the government of Guernsey aforesaid, or out of or from any of them, or out of or from the kingdom of Ireland aforesaid, into any parts or places out of the kingdoms, isles or dominion aforesaid, any sheep or wool whatsoever, of the breed or growth of the kingdoms of England or Ireland, or isles or dominion aforesaid; (4) or any wool-fells, mortlings or shorlings, or any yarn made of wool, or any wool-flocks, or any fullers-earth; or any fulling-clay whatsoever; (5) nor shall directly or indirectly pack or load, or cause to be packed or loaded, upon any horse, cart or other carriage, or load or lay on board, or cause to be laden or laid on board, in any ship or other vessel, in any place or port within the kingdoms of England or Ireland, or town of Berwick, or isles or dominion aforesaid, any such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool or wool-flocks, or any fullers-earth or fulling-clay, to the intent or purpose to export, transport, carry or convey the same, or to cause the same to be exported, transported, carried or conveyed, out of the kingdoms of England or Ireland, town of Berwick, isles or dominion aforesaid, or with intent or purpose that any other person or persons should so export, transport, carry or convey the same into any parts or places out of the kingdoms of England and Ireland, town of Berwick, isles or dominion aforesaid, into the kingdom of Scotland, or any foreign parts.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, or any fullers-earth or fulling-clay, shall be, from and after the fourteenth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and sixty, exported, transported, carried or conveyed out of the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick, or kingdom of Ireland, or out of any port or place of the said kingdoms respectively, unto the isles of Fersey or Guernsey, or to Sarke or Alderney, except as in this act shall be hereafter limited or appointed.

1660, to be carried out of Wales, Ireland, &c.

Except.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the offender and offenders, offence and offences aforesaid, shall be subject and liable to the respective pains, penalties and forfeitures hereafter following, that is to say, The said sheep, wools, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth and fulling-clay so exported, transported, carried, conveyed, packed or loaden contrary to the true intent of this act, shall be forfeited; (2) and that every offender and offenders therein shall forfeit twenty shillings for every such sheep, and three shillings for every pound weight of such wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay; (3) and also the owners of the said ships or vessels, knowing such offence, shall forfeit all their interest in the said ships or vessels, with all their apparel and furniture to them and every of them belonging; (4) and that the master and mariners thereof, knowing such offence, and wittingly and willingly aiding and assisting thereunto, shall forfeit all their goods and chattels, and have imprisonment for the space of three months without bail or mainprise; (5) the one moiety of which said penalties and forfeitures shall be to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him that will sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint or information in any of his majesty's courts of record, or before the justices of assize, or in the general quarter-sessions of the peace; in which suit, no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

The penalties.

IV. And be it further enacted, That if any merchant, or other person or persons, shall after the said fourteenth day of January transport, or cause to be transported any sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, woollen-yarn, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay, contrary to the true intent of this act, and be thereof lawfully convicted, that then he shall be disabled to require any debt or account of any factor or others, for or concerning any debt or estate properly belonging to such offender; (2) provided always, and it is nevertheless declared, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not be construed to take away any greater pains or penalties inflicted, or to be inflicted, for any the offences aforesaid, by virtue of any former act of parliament now in force.

The penalty upon any merchant that shall transport wools, &c.

Proviso.

V. And be it also further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every offence that shall be done or committed contrary to this act, shall and may be inquired of and heard, examined, tried and determined in the county where such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay respectively shall be so packed, loaden or laid aboard as aforesaid, contrary to this act, or else in the county where such offenders shall happen to be apprehended or arrested for such offence, in such manner and form, and to such effect, to all intents and purposes, as if the same offence had been wholly and altogether done and committed at and in such county.

Offences against this act where to be tried.

VI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons whatsoever, shall at any time hereafter be impeached for any offence aforesaid, unless such person or persons shall be prosecuted within the space of one year next ensuing such offence committed.

Prosecution to be within a year after the offence committed.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons to seize, take and challenge to his or their own use and behoof, and to the use of the King, his heirs and successors, all and all manner such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth and fulling-clay, clay, as he or they shall happen to see, find, know or discover to be laid aboard in any ship or other vessel or boat, or to be brought, carried or laid on shore, at or near the sea, or any navigable river or water, to the intent or purpose to be exported, transported or conveyed out of the kingdoms of England or Ireland, town of Berwick, isles or dominion aforesaid, contrary to the true meaning of this act, or to be packed or laden upon any horse, cart or other carriage, to the intent or purpose to be conveyed or carried into the kingdom of Scotland aforesaid; (2) and that such person or persons as shall happen so to seize, take or challenge any such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay as aforesaid, shall have the full moiety thereof to all intents and purposes.

VIII. Provided always, That such person or persons as shall make any such seizure or challenge aforesaid to his or their own use, shall not be admitted or allowed to give in evidence upon his or their oath or oaths against any person or persons which shall happen to be indicted, accused or questioned by virtue of this act, or any thing therein contained.

IX. And furthermore, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every ship, vessel, hulk, barge or boat of what kind soever, whereof any alien born, or whereof any natural-born subjects not inhabiting within the realm of England, shall be owner or part-owner, and wherein any sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay, shall happen to be shipped, put or laid aboard, contrary to the true meaning of this act, shall be forfeited to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors.

X. Provided always, That this act shall not extend to any lambskin ready dressed, and prepared fit and useful for fur or linings.

XI. Provided also, That this act shall not in any wise extend to the transporting, carrying or conveying away of any such wool-fells or pelts, with such wool upon them, or to any beds stuffed with flocks, which shall be carried or employed in any ship or other vessel for necessary use only, of and about the ordinance or other thing in or concerning such ship or vessel, or only for the necessary use of any the persons in such ship or vessel passing or being, and which shall not be sold or uttered in any foreign parts out of the kingdoms of England or Ireland, or town of Berwick, isles or dominion aforesaid; (a) nor to the exporting, carrying or conveying of any wether-sheep, or of the wool growing upon any such wether-sheep, to be carried alive in any ship or other vessel, for and towards the only necessary food or diet of or for the company or passengers, or other persons therein, and for and towards none other purpose.

XII. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to any such wool to be exported or transported out of or from the port of Southampton, only unto the aforesaid isles of Jersey and Guernsey, by or for the only use or behoof of any the inhabitants of the said isles of Jersey and Guernsey, or either of them, or to any such wool to be shipped or laden aboard in any ship or other vessel, by or for the only use or behoof of any the inhabitants of the said isles of Jersey or Guernsey, or either of them, in the port aforesaid, to be exported and transported into the said isles of Jersey or Guernsey, or either of them; so as such person and persons that shall so ship or lay aboard such wool into any ship or other vessel, do before the shipping or laying aboard such wool, deliver unto the custom, comptroller, surveyor or searcher of the port of Southampton aforesaid (out of which the same wool is to be exported) a writing under the seal or seals of the respective governors of the same isles of Jersey and Guernsey, unto which the said wool is to be transported, or of his or their deputy or deputies respectively, the which writing shall purport and express, that the party named in such writing is authorized and appointed to export, or cause to be exported out of the port aforesaid, so much wool, expressing the number of the tods, to the same isle, to be used or manufactured in one of the same isles, or in some of the members or parts of the same, and that such party so authorized and appointed to export or cause to be exported that wool, hath before the making and sealing of that writing, entered into sufficient bond to his Majesty's use for the landing of the said wool in that isle. (2) And to the intent that the quantity of wool to be exported out of the port of Southampton aforesaid into the said isles, or either of them, in any one year, accounting the year to begin from the first day of January next ensuing, and so yearly from the first day of January, may not exceed the quantity hereunder specified; that is to say, unto the isle of Jersey two thousand tods and no more of unkembed wool, and unto Guernsey one thousand tods and no more of unkembed wool, and unto Alderney two hundred tods and no more of unkembed wool, and unto Sarke one hundred tods of unkembed wool and no more, every tod not exceeding thirty two pounds.

XIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the governor of the said isle of Jersey, or his deputy for whom he will answer, shall not make to any person or persons any writing or writings such as is above specified, to authorize and appoint such person or persons as aforesaid, to fetch, export or transport out of the port of Southampton aforesaid, unto the said isle of Jersey, in one year, accounting the year from the first day of January, one thousand six hundred and sixty aforesaid, any greater quantity of wool than two thousand tods in any one year; (2) and that the governor of the said isle of Guernsey, or his deputy for whom he will answer, shall not make to any person or persons any writing or writings, such as is above specified, to authorize and appoint such person or persons as aforesaid to fetch, export or transport out of the port above specified, unto the said isles of Guernsey with Alderney and Sarke, in any one year, accounting the year from the first day of January aforesaid, any greater quantity of wool than one thousand tods for Guernsey, two hundred tods for Alderney, and one hundred tods for Sarke in any one year; (3) and that the customer of the port of Southampton aforesaid shall keep a true account of all the said quantity of wools so by him permitted to be loaden by virtue of this act, and shall not permit any greater quantity of wools to be loaden than by this act is prescribed in any one year, to either of the said islands respectively, under any pretence whatsoever, upon the penalty of the forfeiture of his place, and of the sum of one hundred pounds in money; one moiety whereof to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same in any court of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed. (4) And if any of the governors aforesaid, or any of their or either of their deputy or deputies of the said isles, or either of them, shall give, grant, or make any licence or licences for exporting from Southampton aforesaid, into the said isles respectively, of any greater quantity of such wool than is before by the true meaning of this act limited and appointed in that behalf; that then the respective governor or governors of such of the said isles shall forfeit and pay to the King's majesty, his heirs or successors, the sum of twenty pounds of lawful money of England; for every tod of wool which shall be so licenced to be exported, over and above the rate or proportion of wool, in and by this act, or the true meaning thereof, limited or appointed.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective governors aforesaid, or their respective deputies, or any their clerks, officers or servants, for the granting, making or sealing of every such writing of licence as is aforesaid, and for the entering a remembrance of the same into some book, which they shall have and keep for that purpose, may have and take the sum of twelve pence, and no more; (2) upon pain of forfeiting to the party grieved the sum of five shillings for every penny which shall be taken over and above the said sum of twelve pence, in and by this act allowed to be taken, and so after that proportion; the said penalty or forfeiture for the taking above twelve pence as aforesaid, to be recovered recovered by bill, plaint or information, in any court of record at Westminster, or elsewhere, wherein no injunction, protection, privilege, effoin or wager of law shall be admitted or allowed. Confirmed by 13 Car. 2. stat. 1. c. 14.

An act for prohibiting the planting, setting or sowing of tobacco in England or Ireland.

Importance of the plan-
America.

YOUR Majesty's loyal and obedient subjects, the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, considering of how great concern and importance it is, That the colonies and plantations of this kingdom in America be defended, protected, maintained, and kept up, and that all due and possible encouragement be given unto them; and that not only in regard great and considerable dominions and countries have been thereby gained, and added to the imperial crown of this realm, but for that the strength and welfare of this kingdom do very much depend upon them, in regard of the employment of a very considerable part of its shipping and seamen, and of the vent of very great quantities of its native commodities and manufactures, and also of its supply with several considerable commodities which it was wont formerly to have only from foreigners, and at far dearer rates: (2) and forasmuch as tobacco is one of the main products of several of those plantations, and upon which their welfare and subsistence, and the navigation of this kingdom, and vent of its commodities thither, do much depend; and in regard it is found by experience, That the tobaccos planted in these parts are not so good and wholesom for the takers thereof; and that by the planting thereof, your Majesty is deprived of a considerable part of your revenue arising by customs upon imported tobacco; do most humbly pray, that it may be enacted by your Majesty; (3) and it is hereby enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, and the lords and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no person or persons whatsoever shall or do from and after the first day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and sixty, set, plant, improve to grow, make or cure any tobacco, either in seed, plant or otherwise, in or upon any ground, earth, field, or place within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, islands of Guernsey or Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or in the kingdom of Ireland, under the penalty of the forfeiture of all such tobacco, or the value thereof, or of the sum of forty shillings for every rod or pole of ground so planted, set or sown as aforesaid, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity of ground; one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall sue for the same, to be recovered by bill, plaint or information in any court of record, wherein no effoin, protection, or wager in law shall be allowed.

No person, after the first of January 1660, shall set or plant any tobacco.

The penalty made 101. by 15 Car. 2. c. 7. s. 18.

All sheriffs and other officers may destroy any tobacco planted contrary to this act.

The penalty of any person resisting this act.

II. And it is hereby further enacted, That all sheriffs, justices of the peace, mayors, bailiffs, constables, and every of them, upon information or complaint made unto them or any of them, by any the officers of the customs, or by any other person or persons whatsoever, that there is any tobacco set, sown, planted, or growing within their jurisdictions or precincts, contrary to this act, shall within ten days after such information or complaint cause to be burnt, plucked up, consumed, or utterly destroyed, all such tobacco so set, sown, planted or growing.

III. And it is hereby further enacted, That in case any person or persons shall resist or make forcible opposition against any person or persons in the due due and thorough execution of this act, that every such person or persons, for every such offence, shall forfeit the sum of five pounds, to be divided and recovered in manner aforesaid. (2) And in case any person or persons shall not pay the sums of money by them to be paid by virtue of this act, that in every such case, distress shall be made, and sale thereof, returning the overplus to the owners: and in case no distress be to be found, that then every such party shall be committed to the common gaol in the county where such offence shall be committed, there to remain for the space of two months without bail or mainprize.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to the hindring of the planting of tobacco in any physick garden of either university, or in any other private garden for physick or chirurgery only, so as the quantity so planted exceed not one half of one pole in any one place or garden. 13 Car. 2. stat. 1. rap. 14. 5 Geo. 1. cap. 11. sect. 19. C A P. VII.

An act to restrain the exportation of leather and raw hides out of the realm of England.

WHEREAS notwithstanding the many good laws before this time made, 18 Eliz. c. 9: and still in force, prohibiting the exportation of leather out of this realm, and the penalty by those acts imposed, by the cunning and subtilty of some persons, and the neglect of others who ought to take care thereof; there are such quantities of leather daily exported to foreign parts, that the price of leather is grown to those excessive rates, that many artificers working leather cannot furnish themselves with sufficient store thereof, for the carrying on of their trades: and the poor sort of people are not able to buy those things made of leather, which of necessity they must make use of:

II. For redress of which griefs, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, That from and after the first day of May now next ensuing, no person or persons whatsoever shall carry or transport, or cause to be carried or transported out of England into Scotland, Ireland, or into any of the isles belonging to this kingdom, or to any parts beyond the seas; the skins or hides tanned or untanned of any ox, steer, bull, cow or calf, otherwise or in any other manner than is by this present act directed. What skins or hides tanned may not be transported.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That none of the skins or hides aforesaid, which shall happen to be taken from any of the beasts aforesaid, within any island whatsoever, belonging to the kingdom of England, (except Ireland) shall be transported out of that island to any other place, but into the kingdom of England; (2) upon pain of forfeiture for every such offence, double the value of skins or hides so to be transported out of the said islands, or any of them, to any other place than into the kingdom of England; the same forfeiture to be sued for and disposed as hereafter in this act is directed. Tanned leather may be transported into Scotland, &c. by 20 Car. 2. c. 5. The penalty.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall be found guilty of the transportation of any leather or raw hides of any of the beasts aforesaid, (excepting such calve-skins and sheep-skins, dressed without the wool, as by law may be transported) contrary to the provision of this act; he shall from thenceforth be disabled to Penalty for transportation of any leather or raw hides.

trade or deal in leather for the future; (2) and shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds, to be sued for, and disposed as hereafter in this act is directed.

VI. Provided nevertheless, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to the prohibiting the transportation of any leather made into boots, shoes or slippers, but that the same may be transported; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Who may search and seize leather or hides intended to be transported.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the respective masters and wardens of the cordwainers, saddlers, girdlers and curriers of the city of London, and their deputies, and all customers, comptrollers, farmers of customs, supervisors, searchers, and other officers belonging to the customs, and to and for all justices of the peace, mayors, and chief officers of corporations, within this realm, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, from time to time, as well by land as water, to search for and seize any leather, or raw hides, wrought or unwrought, cut or uncut, packed up or unpacked, intended or purposed to be transported by any person or persons into any the parts beyond the seas, or into Scotland, other than calve-skins and sheep-skins as aforesaid.

How the penalties shall be recovered.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the penalties and forfeitures, and every sum and sums of money, for any offence or offences herein before-mentioned, shall be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, to be brought for the same in any court or courts at Westminster, or in any court or courts of record in the city, town, county or place where the said offence shall be committed, wherein no wager of law, protection or effoin shall be admitted, neither shall the same be removed out of the said county, city, or town corporate; (2) the one half of the said forfeitures to be to the use of the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other half thereof to the use of the informer or informers that shall sue for the same.

Transportation of leather declared a common nuisance.

XI. Provided also, and be it enacted, That all such exportation or transportation of any hides or leather contrary to this act, is hereby adjudged and declared to be a common and publick nuisance.

Leather for necessary use of ships in voyages.

XII. Provided nevertheless, That this act shall not extend, or be construed, to prohibit the carrying or conveying of any such hides or leather which shall be used or employed for the necessary use or provision of any ship or vessel in any voyage beyond the seas, and which shall not be sold in any foreign parts, so as the number do not exceed six raw hides, and three tanned hides.

CAROL II. Regis.

C. A. P. XI.

An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs.

12 Car. 2.
c. 19.

FORASMUCH as it appears that several unlawful and indirect means and devices are daily put in practice, to export and import goods and merchandises prohibited by the laws and statutes of this kingdom, as also to defraud the King's most excellent majesty of his dues, customs and subsidies, as well by secret and deceitful designs, as by open force and violence used against the King's majesty's officers employed in the affairs of the customs.

Ships and vessels arriving from beyond the seas at Gravesend.

II. For the better preventing of which frauds and violences in time to come, it is enacted and ordained by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and be it enacted and ordained by the authority authority thereof, That no ship or vessel arriving from the parts beyond the seas, shall be above three days coming from Gravesend to the place of her discharge (within the river of Thames) without touching or staying at any wharf, key or place adjoining to either shore between Gravesend and Chester's Key, unless apparently hindered by contrary winds, drought of water, or other just impediment to be allowed by such person or persons as are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, the collectors inwards, or other principal officers of the customs); (2) and then or before, the master or purser (for that voyage) of such ship or vessel, shall make a just and true entry upon oath of the burthen, contents and lading of every such ship or vessel, with the particular marks, numbers, qualities and contents of every parcel of goods therein laden, to the best of his knowledge; also where and in what port she took in her lading, of what country built, how manned, who was master during the voyage, and who are owners thereof; (3) and in all out-ports or members, to come directly up to the place of unlading, as the condition of the port requires and will admit, and making entries, as aforesaid, upon the penalty of the forfeiture of one hundred pounds.

True entries of lading to be made upon oath.

The penalty.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no captain, master, purser, or any other person or persons taking charge of any ship or vessel bound for the parts beyond the seas, or into the kingdom of Scotland, whether the same ship or vessel shall have commission from or belong unto the King's majesty that now is, his heirs or successors, or shall belong to or have commission from any foreign prince or state, or otherwise, shall take in, or suffer to be taken into, or laden aboard any such ship or vessel, any English goods, wares or merchandize, to be exported into the parts beyond the seas, or into the kingdom of Scotland, until such captain, master, purser or other person as aforesaid, shall have entered such ship or ships in the book of the commissioners, customer or collector and comptroller outwards of such port where he shall load or take in goods, together with the name of such captain or master, the burden of such ship or vessel, the number of guns and ammunition she carries, and to what port or place she intends to pass or sail; (2) and before he or they shall depart with his or their ship or vessel out of such port or place, shall bring and deliver unto the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, the customer or collector and comptroller of such port or place, a content in writing under his or their hands, of the names of every merchant, and other person or persons that shall have laden and put on board any such ship or vessel, any such goods or merchandize, together with the marks and numbers of such goods and merchandize; (3) and shall likewise publickly in the open custom-house, upon his corporal oath, to the best of his knowledge, have answered to such question or questions as shall be demanded of him by the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, the customer or collector and comptroller, or their deputies, concerning such goods and merchandize as shall be aboard such ship or vessel; (4) upon pain of forfeiture of one hundred pounds: (5) and that no such captain, master, purser, or other person or persons taking charge of any ship or vessel of war, as aforesaid, wherein any goods, wares or merchandizes shall have been laden or brought from the parts beyond the seas, or out of the realm of Scotland, shall unload or put on board any lighter, boat or bottom, or lay on land, or suffer to be discharged or put into any lighter, boat or bottom, or to be laid on land, out of any ship or vessel, as aforesaid, any goods, wares or merchandize whatsoever, before such captain, master, purser, or other person taking charge of the ship or merchants goods for that voyage, as aforesaid, shall have signified and declared in writing under his or their hands, unto the person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, the customer or collector and comptroller inwards of the the port where he arriveth, the names of every merchant or lader of any goods or merchandizes on board the said ship or vessel, together with the number and marks, and the quantity and quality of every parcel of goods and merchandizes, to the best of his knowledge, and shall have answered upon his or their corporal oath, to such questions concerning such goods and merchandizes, as shall be publickly administered unto him in the open custom-house, by such person or persons which are or shall be appointed for managing the customs, customer or collector and comptroller, or their deputies, and shall be liable to all searches and other rules which merchants ships are subject unto, by the usage of his Majesty's custom-house (victualling-bills and entring excepted) upon pain to forfeit one hundred pounds; (6) and upon refusal to make such entries as aforesaid, as well outwards as inwards, the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed for managing the customs, and officers of his Majesty's customs, and their deputies, shall and may freely enter and go on board all and every such ship or vessel of war, and bring from thence on shore into his Majesty's store-house belonging to the port where such ships shall be, all goods and merchandizes prohibited or uncustomed, which shall be found on board any such ship, as aforesaid.

The power of officers for managing the customs to enter and search ships and vessels.

IV. And be it hereby enacted, That the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed for managing the customs, and officers of his Majesty's customs, and their deputies, are hereby authorized and enabled to go and enter aboard any ship or vessel, as well ships of war as merchant ships, and from thence to bring on shore all goods prohibited or uncustomed, except jewels, if they be outwards bound; (2) and if they be ships or vessels inwards bound, from thence to bring on shore into his Majesty's store-house, as aforesaid, all small parcels of fine goods, or other goods, which shall be found in cabbins, chests, trunks or other small package, or in any private or secret place, in or out of the hold of the ship or vessel, which may occasion a just suspicion that they were intended to be fraudulently conveyed away; (3) and all other sorts of goods whatsoever, for which the duties of tonnage and poundage were not paid or compounded for within twenty days after the first entry of the ship, to be put and remain in the store-house aforesaid, until his Majesty's duties thereupon be justly satisfied, unless the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, and officers of the customs, shall see a just cause to allow a longer time, and that the said person or persons which are or shall be so appointed to manage the customs, and the officers of the customs, and their deputies, may freely stay and remain aboard, until all the goods are delivered and discharged out of the said ships or vessels: (4) and if any master, purser or boatswain, or other taking charge in any ship or vessel, or any other person whatsoever, shall suffer any truss, bale, pack, fardel, cask or other package to be opened aboard the said ship or vessel, and the goods therein to be imbezzled, carried away, or put in any other form or package, after the ship comes into the port of her discharge, in every such case the said master, purser, boatswain or other, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds.

Goods concealed in any ship after clearing.

The penalty.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case after the clearing of any ship or vessel, by the person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, or their deputies, and discharging the watchmen or tidemen from attendance thereupon, there shall be found on board such ship or vessel, any goods, wares or merchandizes, which have been concealed from the knowledge of the said person or persons which are or shall be so appointed to manage the customs, and for which the custom, subsidy and other duties due upon the importation thereof, have not been paid; then the master, purser or other person taking charge of such ship or vessel, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds: (2) and it shall be lawful to or for any person or persons, authorized by writ of assistance under the seal of his Majesty's court of exchequer, to take a

constable, headborough or other publick officer inhabiting near unto the place, and in the day time to enter, and go into any house, shop, cellar, warehouse or room, or other place, and in case of resistance, to break open doors, chests, trunks and other package, there to seize, and from thence to bring, any kind of goods or merchandize whatsoever, prohibited and uncustomed, and to put and secure the same in his Majesty's store-house, in the port next to the place where such seizure shall be made.

VI. And for the better increase of shipping and navigation, be it further enacted, That the collectors and other officers of his majesty's customs in all the ports of England, shall forthwith give an account unto the collector and surveyor in the port of London (appointed by his majesty for all duties and matters relating to a late act, intituled, An act for encreasing and encouraging of shipping and navigation), of all foreign-built ships in their ports; owned and belonging to the people of England, of what built and burthen they are, for which certificates have been made according to the said act, and that the said collector and surveyor shall make a true and perfect list of all such ships attested under their hands, and transmit the same into his majesty's court of exchequer, on or before the month of December in the year one thousand six hundred sixty and two, there to remain upon record: (2) and that no foreign built ship (that is to say) not built in any of his majesty's dominions of Asia, Africa or America, or other than such as shall (bona fide) be bought before the first of October one thousand six hundred sixty and two next ensuing, and expressly named in the said list, shall enjoy the privilege of a ship belonging to England or Ireland, although owned or manned by English (except such ships only as shall be taken at sea by letters of mart or reprisal, and condemnation made in the court of admiralty, as lawful prize) but all such ships shall be deemed as aliens ships, and be liable unto all duties that aliens ships are liable unto by virtue of the said act for increase of shipping and navigation. (3) And whereas it is required by the said act, that in sundry cases the master and three fourths of the mariners are to be English, it is to be understood, that any of his Majesty's subjects of England, Ireland, and his plantations, are to be accounted English, and no others, and that the number of mariners be accounted according to what they shall have been during the whole voyage. (4) And whereas of late some of the persons appointed by his Majesty for managing the customs, and the officers of the customs and their deputies, have been hindred, affronted, abused, beaten and wounded, to the hazard of their lives, in the due execution of their several trusts and services in their respective places, by armed companies and multitudes of men, and goods prohibited and uncustomed have by force and violence, as well by land as by water, been forcibly carried and conveyed away; (5) be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That where any officer or officers shall be by any person or persons, armed with club, or any manner of weapon, forcibly hindred, affronted, abused, beaten or wounded as aforesaid, either on board any ship or vessel, or upon the land or water, in the due execution of their office, all and every person and persons so resisting, affronting, abusing, beating or wounding the said officer or officers, or their deputies, or such as shall act in their aid or assistance, shall by the next justice of peace, or other magistrate, be committed to prison, there to remain till the next quarter-sessions: (6) and the justices of the peace of the said quarter-sessions shall and are hereby impowered to punish the offender by fine, not exceeding one hundred pounds, and the offender is to remain in prison till he be discharged by order of the exchequer, both of the fine and of the imprisonment, or discover the person that set him on work, to the end he may be legally proceeded against.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any wharfinger or keeper of any wharf, crane or key, or their servants, or any of them, shall take up or land, or knowingly suffer to be taken up or landed, or shall ship off, or suffer to be water-born at or from any of their said wharfs,

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any goods, wares or merchandizes, for which the duties of subsidy or custom are due and payable to the King's majesty, shall be secretly conveyed on board any ship or vessel before the custom and subsidy thereof be duly answered and paid, and shall escape the discovery thereof by the officers of the customs or others, and be carried into the parts beyond the seas; in such case the owners or proprietors of such goods, wares or merchandizes, or other person or persons who shall have so shipped, or caused the same to be shipped and transported, shall forfeit the double value of the goods, computed according to the book of rates, except for coal, which so secretly exported as aforesaid, shall pay double the custom and duty, to be collected and levied in such manner as by the act of tonnage and poundage is directed and appointed.

Goods secretly conveyed beyond sea uncustomed and undiscovered by the officers.

The penalty.

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

X. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for preventing of frauds in colouring of strangers goods, and otherwise, every merchant or other passing any goods, wares or merchandizes, inwards or outwards, shall by himself or his known servant, factor or agent, subscribe one of his bills of every entry, with the mark, number and contents of every parcel of such goods as are rated to pay by the piece or measure, and weight of the whole parcel of such goods as are rated to pay by the weight, without which the officers of the customs shall not suffer any entry to pass; and that no children of aliens under the age of twenty one years be permitted to be traders, or any goods or merchandizes to be entered in their names.

For preventing frauds in colouring strangers goods.

XI. Be it also hereby enacted, That upon any actions, suits and informations that shall be brought, commenced or entered upon any law or statute concerning the King's majesty's subsidies of tonnage and poundage, or ships or goods to be forfeited by reason of unlawful importation or exportation, there

XIII. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all goods, wares or merchandize, that shall be brought out of or carried into the kingdom of Scotland by land, into or out of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or port and town of Berwick, shall pass and be carried by and through some of the towns and passages hereafter named, (that is to say) by and through Berwick or Carlisle, and then and there pay the custom and subsidy granted and due to the King's majesty, by an act of this present parliament, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandize exported and imported; (2) and if any goods, wares or merchandize prohibited or uncustomed, coming out of Scotland into England, or going out of England into Scotland, shall pass by or beyond the towns, ports and places aforesaid, without due entry and payment of the customs, that then all such goods, wares and merchandize, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost.

1 Eliz. c. 11.
When and where merchandize shall be landed,
paid.

XIV. And whereas in and by an act of parliament in the first year of Queen Elizabeth, of famous memory, directing when and where merchandize shall be landed and customs paid, it is amongst divers other things enacted and ordained, That no goods, wares or merchandize shall be shipped or laden aboard any ship or vessel, or landed or discharged out of or from any ship or vessel, but in or upon some such open place, key or wharf, places, keys or wharfs, (except the port of Hull) as her Highness, her heirs and successors, should therefore assign and appoint by virtue of her Highness commission or commissions within the port of London, and in all ports, creeks, havens or roads, as in and by the said act doth and may at large appear: (2) and whereas, notwithstanding the aforesaid act, there are some ports, creeks and places, where customers, collectors and comptrollers, and searchers and their servants, had then, time out of mind, been resident, to which no such commissions were sent, nor places, keys, nor wharfs appointed, as by the said act was directed: and whereas also since that time, by reason of the alteration of rivers, streams, channels and sands, some places then appointed are become unfit and useless, and others much more convenient and commodious, as well for traffick and commerce as for landing and discharging, lading and shipping of goods, wares and merchandize; (3) it is enacted and ordained, and be it enacted and ordained by the authority aforesaid, That the King's majesty may from time to time by his Highness commission or commissions out of his court of exchequer, assign and appoint all such further places, ports, members and creeks (except the town of Hull) as shall be lawful for the landing and discharging, lading or shipping of any goods, wares or merchandize,

within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or port or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and to what ancient and head ports respectively such places, members or creeks shall belong and appertain: (4) and where any such member, creek or place shall be so (as aforesaid) appointed by virtue of the said commission or commissions, the customer, collector, comptroller and searcher of the head port, shall by themselves or their sufficient deputy or deputies, servant or servants, reside and inhabit, for the entering, clearing and passing, shipping and discharging of ships, goods and merchandize; (5) and by virtue of the aforesaid commission or commissions, may likewise set down and appoint the extents, bounds and limits of every port, haven or creek within his Majesty's kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town and port of Berwick, whereby the extents, limits and privileges of every port, haven or creek, may be ascertained and known: (6) and it shall not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, to lade or put, or cause to be laden or put off or from any key, wharf or other place on the land into any ship, vessel, lighter, boat or bottom, any goods, wares or merchandize whatsoever, (fish taken by his Majesty's subjects, sea-coal, stone and bestials only excepted) to be transported into any place of the parts beyond the seas, or carried by land into the realm of Scotland; (7) or to take up, discharge or lay on land, or cause or procure to be taken up, discharged and laid on land, out of any boat, lighter, ship, vessel or bottom (being not in leak or wreck) any goods, wares, merchandize whatsoever (fish taken by his Majesty's subjects, bestials and salt only excepted,) to be brought from any of the parts beyond the seas, or by land from the realm of Scotland, by way of merchandize, but only upon such open place, key or wharf, places, keys or wharfs, as his Majesty shall from time to time assign and appoint by virtue of such commission and commissions as aforesaid, in his Majesty's port of London, and the members and liberties thereof, in any other port, place, member or creek, within his Majesty's kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town and port of Berwick, without special sufferance and leave first had from the commissioners and officers of his Majesty's customs; upon the penalty of the forfeiture of all such goods, wares, and merchandize.

XV. And forasmuch as it doth appear by daily experience, that there are great practices and combinations between the importers and owners of goods and merchandizes and the seizers and informers, with design and intent to defraud the force of the law, and his Majesty of his duties and customs, (2) be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no ship or ships, goods, wares or merchandize, shall be seized as forfeited, for or by reason of unlawful importation or exportation, into or out of this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or port and town of Berwick, or any the ports, members or creeks, thereunto belonging, or for non payment of any customs and subsidies now due, or hereafter to be due and payable to his Majesty, but by the person or persons who are or shall be appointed by his Majesty to manage his customs, or officers of his Majesty's customs for the time being, or such other person or persons as shall be deputed and authorized thereunto by warrant from the lord treasurer or under-treasurer, or by special commission from his Majesty under the great or privy seal: (3) and if any seizure shall hereafter be made by any other person or persons whatsoever for any the causes aforesaid, such seizure shall be void and of none effect; any statute, law, act or provision to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in every action, suit, indictment, information or prosecution, wherein or whereby the person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing his customs, or the officers of his Majesty's customs, or any officer or officers, person or persons authorized by his Majesty to put in execution the act of parliament, for increasing and encouraging of navigation, their deputies or servants, or any others acting in aid of them, have been, are or shall be sued, indicted, prosecuted or molested, it shall be lawful for all and every the said persons,

For avoiding practices between owners of goods and informers, to avoid payment of customs: none to seize any goods but officers of the customs.

In any suit against persons employed about the customs, the defendant may plead the general issue. 12 Car. 2. c. 18.

And give this or other acts relating to customs or navigation in evidence.

persons, their heirs, executors and administrators, to plead the general issue, and to give this or the aforesaid acts of parliament relating to the customs and navigation, in evidence, in any of his Majesty's courts of justice, or other courts where the said matter shall be depending; and the judges of the said courts are hereby strictly enjoined and required to admit the same, and to acquit and indemnify them and every of them of and from all such suits, indictments, informations or prosecutions, for or concerning any matter or thing acted or done in the due and necessary performance and execution of their respective trusts and employments therein.

XVII. Be it hereby also enacted, for avoiding of fraudulent compositions, That if any seizer, informer or officer as aforesaid shall not prosecute to effect for the bringing to trial and condemnation the ships, goods and merchandize by them seized or informed against; that then, and in every such case, it shall be lawful to or for any of the person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for managing his customs, or the officers of the customs, or other person or persons deputed by them, or thereunto authorized by the lord treasurer or under-treasurer, to make seizure of or inform against such goods and merchandize, or bring his action for the same by way of devenerunt, and that they shall be esteemed and adjudged in law as the true first informers and seizers, and have the benefit of such informers or seizers; any law, statute, act or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

No person employed about managing the customs may take any bribe or reward to connive at any false entry.

XVIII. And that no informer or officer be suffered to compound under one third of the appraised value, upon loss of his office:

The penalty.

XIX. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the King's majesty's officers, or other persons appointed to manage his Majesty's customs, searchers, waiters, or other person or persons whatsoever deputed and appointed by and under them or any of them, or any other authority whatsoever, and employed in or about the affairs of the King's customs and subsidies, shall directly or indirectly take or receive any bribe, recompence or reward in any kind whatsoever, or connive at any false entry of any goods or merchandizes, whereby the King's majesty, his heirs or successors, shall be defrauded or hindered in or of his customs and subsidies, or other sums of money or goods prohibited by the law to be imported or exported into or out of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, town and port of Berwick, be suffered to pass either by way of importation or exportation, the person or persons therein offending shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds, and be for ever afterwards incapable of any office or employment under the King's majesty, his heirs or successors, or any authority derived from them; (2) as also the merchant, mariner, or other person or persons whatsoever, who shall give or pay any such bribe, recompence or reward as aforesaid, shall forfeit the sum of fifty pounds.

Persons revealing their own offences within two months, to be acquitted.

XX. Provided nevertheless, That if any person or persons offending as aforesaid, shall reveal and make known such his or their offence in two months time to the treasurer of England, the chancellor, under-treasurer or barons of the exchequer, he shall for that offence be clearly acquitted and discharged.

Foreign goods where to be landed, and how weighed and numbered.

XXI. And be it further enacted, That all foreign goods and merchandize, which by the person or persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty for the managing of the customs, and the customer, collector and comptroller, shall be permitted to be landed and taken up by bills at sight, bills at view, or sufferance, shall be landed at the most convenient keys or wharfs where the said person or persons so to be appointed customer or collector or comptroller shall appoint, and not elsewhere, and there or in his Majesty's storehouse of the respective ports, at the election of the said person or persons so to be appointed, and the officers, shall be measured, weighed and numbered, by and in the presence of the officers to be thereunto particularly appointed; (2) which said officers so appointed, shall perfect the entry, entry, and thereunto shall subscribe their names, and the next day following shall give account, and make report of every respective entry so perfected as aforesaid, to the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed to manage his Majesty's customs, customier, or collector and comptroller aforesaid, without reasonable cause to be allowed by the said person or persons, or officers aforesaid; or in default thereof, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds.

XXII. Be it also enacted, That no ship, vessel or boat, appointed and employed ordinarily for the carriage of letters and packets, shall (unless it be in such cases as shall be allowed by the said person or persons which are or shall be appointed to manage his Majesty's customs, or officers aforesaid) import or export any goods or merchandize into or out of the parts beyond the seas, upon the penalty of the forfeiture of one hundred pounds to be paid by the master of the said vessel or boat, with the loss of his place, and all goods and merchandize that shall be found on board any such ship, vessel or boat shall be forfeited and lost.

Vessels appointed for carrying letters, may not import nor export merchandize.

XXIII. And whereas some doubts and disputes have arisen concerning the said late act, for increasing and encouraging of shipping and navigation, about some of the goods therein prohibited to be brought from Holland and the parts and ports thereabouts; (2) be it enacted and declared, That no sort of wines, (other than Rhenish) no sort of spicery, grocery, tobacco, pot-ashes, pitch, tar, salt, rozin, deal-boards, fir, timber, or olive-oil, shall be imported into England, Wales, or Berwick, from the Netherlands or Germany, upon any pretence whatsoever, in any sort of ships or vessels whatsoever; upon penalty of the loss of all the said goods, as also of the ships and furniture.

An explanation of 12 Car. 2. c. 18. of goods prohibited to be brought from Holland.

In part repealed by 6 Geo. 1. c. 15. s. 1.

XXIV. And whereas also by the said acts, for increasing and encouraging of shipping and navigation, an imposition of five shillings per ton is laid upon all ships or vessels belonging to any subjects of the French King, which shall come into any port, harbour, creek or road of England, Ireland, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and shall there lade or unlade any goods, or take in or set on shore any passengers, yet notwithstanding there is great difficulty in recovering the said duty, because small shallops come not into harbours where officers are, but either put their goods and passengers on shore, or boats come out of harbours, which privately convey them on shore, there being no penalty in the act against such offenders; (2) be it therefore enacted, That any such ship or vessel upon which the above-said imposition of five shillings per ton is due and payable, which shall either put on shore, or put over into any boat, any goods or passengers without payment of custom and imposition of tonnage, at any time returning into any harbour, port or creek of England or Ireland, shall not only pay the duties formerly due, but forfeit the sum of ten pounds: (3) and whatsoever pilot, waterman or boatman, which shall from any harbour, port or creek, go out and bring any goods from on board such vessel, shall not only be liable to pay the duty of tonnage which the said vessel should have paid, but forfeit the sum of forty pounds.

12 Car. 2. c. 18. Imposition of 5s. per ton upon French vessels.

How to be recovered, and the penalty.

XXV. Be it also hereby enacted, That vinegar, perry, rape, cyder and cyder-eager, of any sort or kind whatsoever, imported from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred sixty and two, from foreign parts, is hereby rated to pay to the King's majesty a subsidy of tonnage of four pounds ten shillings per ton imported by English, and six pounds imported by strangers, according to the rate already imposed and set upon French wines, to be collected and levied for such time and in such manner as by the act of tonnage and poundage is directed and appointed; and the same are by virtue of this act exonerated and discharged of all further and other sums heretofore set or charged upon those commodities, by or under the name of subsidy or poundage; and in case of exportation, there shall be repaid and allowed to the Englishman exporter, the sum of three pounds ten shillings per ton, and to the alien four pounds fifteen shillings per ton, to be repaid according to the rules of the book of rates now established.

Tonnage upon vinegar, perry, rape, cyder and cyder-eager.

Logwood or blockwood.

XXVI. And whereas the ingenious industry of these times hath taught the dyers of England the art of fixing the colours made of logwood alias blockwood, so as that by experience they are found as lasting and serviceable as the colours made with any other sort of dying-wood whatsoever: and whereas by a statute made in the three and twentieth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth of famous memory, intituled, Logwood and blockwood shall not be used in dying of cloth, &c. And by another statute made in the nine and thirtieth year of the aforesaid Queen Elizabeth, (intituled, The penalty for mixing or using of logwood in dying cloth or other stuff) all logwood alias blockwood, that shall be found within this kingdom, shall be forfeited, and openly burned, with divers other pains, penalties and forfeitures, upon such as shall use the same in dying cloth or other commodities, as by the said several acts aforesaid may and doth appear: (2) be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the aforesaid statutes, and either of them, be and are hereby repealed and made void as to all clauses, articles, provisions and penalties in any wise relating to the prohibition or use of logwood alias blockwood: (3) and that from and after the first day of Februray one thousand six hundred sixty and one, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, freely to import into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town and port of Berwick upon Tweed, any quantities of logwood alias blockwood, and freely to use the same in dying or colouring any sort of goods or manufacture whatsoever: the aforesaid two statutes, or any other law, statute, usage, custom, patent of privilege, proclamation, or other restraint, matter or thing, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

XXIX. Provided, That in case the seizure or information shall be made upon any clause or thing contained in the late act, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, that then the defendant or defendants shall on his or their request have a commission out of the high court of chancery to examine witnesses beyond the seas, and have a competent time allowed for the return thereof, before any trial shall be had upon the case, according to the distance of place where such commission or commissions are to be executed, and that the examination of witnesses so returned shall be admitted for evidence in law at the trial, as if it had been given visa voce by the examinee in court; any law, statute or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XXX. And be it also enacted and ordained by the authority aforesaid, That no writ of delivery shall be granted out of the court of exchequer for goods seized, but upon good security, and that for goods perishable only, or in cases where the informer shall defer or delay his coming to as speedy a trial as the course of that court will permit, and shall be thereby ordered and directed.

XXXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That one moiety of all the forfeitures before in this act mentioned and appointed shall be to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as shall seize or sue for the same by bill, plaint or information in his Majesty's court of exchequer, or any other his Majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

XXXII. And be it further enacted and ordained, That all officers belonging to the admiralty, captains and commanders of ships, forts, castles, and block-houses, as also all justices of the peace, mayors, sheriffs, bailiffs, constables and headboroughs, and all the King's majesty's officers, ministers and subjects whatsoever whom it may concern, shall be aiding and assisting to all and every person and persons which are or shall be appointed by his Majesty to manage his customs, and the officers of his Majesty's customs and their respective deputies, in the due execution of all and every act and thing in and by this present act required and enjoined, and all such who shall be aiding and assisting unto them in the due execution hereof, shall be defended and saved harmless by virtue of this act.

All officers and persons to be aiding the officers and persons for management of the customs.

XXXIII. And be it hereby also enacted, That all deputies, clerks and servants, which now have or hereafter shall have any place or office in or about the customs and subsidies by and under the commissioners, or other the King's officers thereof, shall before the first day of June next take their respective corporal oath and oaths for the true and faithful execution and discharge, to the best of their knowledge and power, of their several trusts and employments committed to their charge and inspection: (2) and that no person or persons shall hereafter be employed or put in trust in the business of the customs, until he shall first have taken his oath as aforesaid: and the commissioners and principal officers in the port of London, and the principal officers in all other the out-ports, or any two of them, are hereby authorized to administer and give to all and every person or persons such oath and oaths as aforesaid, and to cause the same to be entered and registered in the custom house of every respective port where the person so taking the oath as aforesaid shall have his residence and employment.

Clerks and servants about the customs to be sworn for their truth and faithfulness therein.

XXXIV. Provided also, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person employed in his Majesty's customs, shall demand or take any other or greater sum of money than by law is now due, or hereafter shall become due, or shall put any merchant or other person out of his turn, without express order before, or immediate approbation after, from the person or persons who are or shall be appointed by his Majesty to manage his customs, or the superior officers for the customs, or shall illegally detain the goods of any person, or shall neglect or refuse to make repayments and allowances which are or shall be due since the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred and sixty, or shall not, after notice given, give out and execute his warrant, shall be liable to double costs and damages.

Persons employed about the customs shall not demand nor take any more than the fees due by law.

XXXV. And for the better increase of good and serviceable shipping, and securing the publick trade and commerce, (2) be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every merchant or other person, that shall after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand six hundred sixty and two, export any goods or merchandizes from any port of this kingdom, capable of a ship or vessel of two hundred ton upon an ordinary full sea, to any part or place of the Mediterranean sea beyond the port of Malaga, or import any goods or merchandizes from the ports or places aforesaid, to any

CAROL II. Regis.

C A P. XIII.

An act prohibiting the importation of foreign bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons and needle-work.

WHEREAS great numbers of the inhabitants of this kingdom are employed in the making of bone-lace, band-strings, buttons, needlework, fringe and imbroideries, who by their industry and labour have attained and gained so great skill and dexterity in the making thereof, that they make as good of all sorts thereof, as is made in any foreign parts, by reason whereof, they have been heretofore able to relieve their poor neighbours, and maintained their families, and also enabled to set on work many poor children, and other persons who have very small means or maintenance of living, other than by their labours and endeavours in the said art: (2) and whereas the persons so employed in the said mystery have heretofore served most parts of this kingdom with bone-lace, band-strings, buttons, needlework and imbroidery, and for the carrying on and managing of the said trade, they have procured great quantities of thread and silk to be brought into the kingdom from foreign parts, whereby his Majesty's customs and revenues have been much advanced; (3) until of late, that great quantities of foreign bone-lace, band-strings, needle-work, cut-work, fringes, silk, bone-lace, buttons and imbroidery were brought into this kingdom by foreigners and inhabitants of this kingdom, and sold to shopkeepers and other dealers in the said commodity, as well by wholesale as retail, without ever entering of the same in any of his Majesty's custom-houses, or paying any duty or custom for the same; (4) by means whereof the said trade and calling is of late very much decayed, those employed in the said callings very much impoverished, the manufacture much decreased, and great quantities thereof already made, left at their hands that make it, his Majesty defrauded and deceived in his customs, and many thousand poor people formerly kept on work in the said art, like to perish for want of employment; (5) there being daily great sums of money exported out of this kingdom for the buying and fetching in of the said commodity, to the great impoverishment of the nation by the consumption of the Bullion and treasure thereof, and contrary to the several statutes made in the first of King Richard the Third, in the third of King Edward the Fourth, in the nineteenth of King Henry the Seventh, and the fifth of Queen Elizabeth, and to a late proclamation made by his Majesty that now is, dated the twentieth day of November last, for the putting the said laws in execution:

II. For redress whereof, and prevention of the like mischiefs for the future, and the better relief, comfort and subsistence of those employed in the said art and manufacture, and for the quickening, reviving, explaining, amending, and more effectual execution of the said statutes; (2) be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That no person or persons whatsoever shall from and after the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred sixty-two, sell or cause to be sold, or offer to sale, within the kingdom of England or dominion of Wales, or export any foreign bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons or needlework made of thread, silk, or any or either of them, in parts beyond the seas, or import, bring in, send or convey, or cause to be brought in, sent or conveyed, into the kingdom of England or dominion of Wales, any such foreign bone-lace, cut-work, fringe, imbroidery, band-strings, buttons or needle-work made of thread, silk, or any or either of them, beyond the seas, after the first day of May, which shall be in the said year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty and two; (3) upon pain that all and every person or persons who shall sell or cause to be sold, or offered to sale, any such foreign bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons or needle-work, shall forfeit and lose for every offence by him committed contrary to this act, the sum of fifty pounds, and the whole bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons or needle-work so sold or caused to be sold, or offered to sale: (4) and upon further pain, That all and every person or persons who shall import, bring in, send or convey, or cause to be brought in, sent or conveyed into this kingdom of England or dominion of Wales, any such bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons or needle-work, shall forfeit and lose, for every offence by him committed contrary to this act, the sum of one hundred pounds, and the whole bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons or needle-work, so imported, brought in, sent or conveyed, or caused to be imported, brought in, sent or conveyed, contrary to the form and effect of this present act as aforesaid: (5) the moieties of all which forfeitures to be to the use of our sovereign lord the King's majesty, his heirs and successors; and the other moiety to him or them that shall sue for the same in any of the King's courts of record, by bill, plaint, action of debt, information or otherwise, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed, at every time and as often as any person shall be found to offend in selling, importing, conveying or bringing in as aforesaid.

Foreign bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, prohibited to be sold, or imported from beyond sea. This act enlarged by 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 10. as to foreign buttons made of hair, and repealed by 5 Ann. c. 17. s. 1. as to foreign lace made of thread.

CAROLI II. Regis.

C A P. XVIII.

An act against exporting of sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, and tobacco-pipe-clay.

WHEREAS against the laws of this kingdom great number of sheep, and great quantities of wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay, are secretly exported, transported, carried and conveyed out of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and kingdom of Ireland, into the kingdom of Scotland, and into foreign parts, to the great decay of the woollen manufactures, the ruin of many families, and the destruction of the navigation and commerce of the kingdoms, town, and dominion aforesaid, which is like daily to increase, if some further remedy be not provided, and further penalties imposed upon the offenders therein:

Exporting or carrying of sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay, out of England, Wales or Ireland.

Made felony. In part repealed by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 23, l. 4.

II. Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That if any person or persons shall, from and after the first day of August one thousand six hundred sixty and two, directly or indirectly export, transport, carry or convey, or shall cause to be exported, transported, carried or conveyed out of or from the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or after the first day of January one thousand six hundred sixty and two out of the kingdom of Ireland, into any parts or places out of the kingdoms or dominion aforesaid, or into the kingdom of Scotland, any sheep or wool whatsoever, of the breed or growth of the kingdoms or dominion aforesaid, or any wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, or any fullers-earth or fulling-clay whatsoever, or shall directly or indirectly pack or load, or cause to be packed or loaden upon any horse, cart or other carriage, or shall load or lay on board, or cause to be loaden or laid on board, in any ship or other vessel, in any place within the kingdoms of England or Ireland, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed aforesaid, any such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay, to the intent or purpose to export, transport, carry or convey the same, or to cause the same to be exported, transported, carried or conveyed out of the kingdoms of England or Ireland, the dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed aforesaid, into the kingdom of Scotland, or into any foreign parts; that then every such such offence shall be adjudged felony, and the offender or offenders being duly convicted, shall suffer and forfeit as in case of felony.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every owner of any such ship or other vessel, and every owner of every horse, cart or carriage, upon which any sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay, shall be so exported, transported, carried or conveyed as aforesaid, or to any such intent or purpose as aforesaid, knowing thereof, and being wittingly and willingly aiding, assisting or consenting thereunto, and also every master and mariner of or in such ship or other vessel, wherein any such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay, shall be so exported, transported, carried or conveyed, or laden or laid on board as aforesaid, to any such intent or purpose as aforesaid, knowing thereof, and being wittingly and willingly aiding, assisting or consenting thereunto, and also every factor or servant, or other person whatsoever, and every customer, comptroller, waiter, searcher, surveyor or other officer or person whatsoever, knowing thereof, and being wittingly or willingly aiding, assisting or consenting thereunto, shall be, and shall be adjudged and taken to be, a felon; and every offender and offenders therein, being duly convicted, shall suffer and forfeit as in case of felony.

Aiders and assistants therein shall be adjudged felons.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every offence which shall be done or committed contrary to this act, shall and may be enquired of, and heard, examined, tried and determined in the county where such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth or fulling-clay respectively, shall be so packed, laden, or laid on board as aforesaid, or else in the county where such offender shall happen to be apprehended or arrested for such offence, in such manner and form, and to such effect to all intents and purposes, as if the same offence had been wholly done and committed in the same county.

Offences against this act, where to be examined and tried.

V. Provided also, That every baron, and other peer of this realm, which shall be indicted or accused as principal or accessory in or to any offence made felony by this act, shall have his, her or their trial, by his, her or their peers, as in cases of felony, at the common law.

Peers.

VI. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons whatsoever shall at any time hereafter be impeached for any offence made felony by this act, unless such person or persons shall be thereof indicted within the space of one year next ensuing such offence committed.

None to be impeached unless within one year next after the offence committed.

VII. And forasmuch as great quantities of wool, woollen yarn and wool-flocks, are close packed and pressed together with screws and other unlawful engines, into butts, pipes, hogheads, chests and other casks and vessels, and into sacks, bags and other wrappers made of wool or linen, and under colour of bales, sacks, bags, packs and casks of other goods, and otherwise, great quantities of the same are daily laden on board of ships or other vessels, and so are carried, conveyed, exported and transported out of the kingdoms, town of Berwick, and dominion aforesaid; and also great quantities are daily carried and laid at or near the coasts of the sea, or some navigable rivers, into store-houses and barns, and by night are laid on board of shallops, and other vessels belonging to aliens, and so carried and exported out of the kingdoms, town of Berwick, and dominion aforesaid; (2) be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of August, no person or persons shall press together with any screws, presses or other engines, into any sack, pack, bag or other wrapper, or shall put, press, pack or stean any wool whatsoever or any yarn made of wool, into any butt, pipe, hoghead, chest or any other cask or vessel, upon any pretence whatsoever, or shall carry or lay, or cause to be carried or laid, at or near the shore or coasts of the sea, or of any navigable river, or into any house or place near Proviso for owners of ships that have offended, and shall first discover the same.

VIII. And whereas great quantities of fullers-earth or fulling-clay are daily carried and exported under the colour of tobacco-pipe-clay; (2) be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no tobacco-pipe-clay shall from and after the first day of August one thousand six hundred sixty and two; be exported, transported, carried or conveyed out of or from the kingdom of England, town of Berwick upon Tweed, or after the first day of January one thousand six hundred sixty and two, out of or from the kingdom of Ireland or the dominion of Wales, into the kingdom of Scotland, or into any foreign parts, or into any port or place out of the kingdom or dominion aforesaid; under the penalty of three shillings for every pound of tobacco-pipe-clay which shall be exported or transported contrary to this act.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August one thousand six hundred sixty and two, no packs, sacks, bags or cask of any wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay or tobacco-pipe-clay, shall be laid or loaded on any horse, cart or other carriage whatsoever, or shall be carried or conveyed by land to or from any place or places within the kingdom of England, town of Berwick or dominion aforesaid, nor after the first day of January, one thousand six hundred sixty-two, in the kingdom of Ireland, but in the day-time and at seasonable hours, (that is to say) from and after the first day of March to the nine and twentieth day of September yearly, between the hours of four of the clock in the morning and eight of the clock in the evening; and from the nine and twentieth day of September to the first day of March yearly, between the hours of seven of the clock in the morning and five of the clock in the evening, under the penalty of the loss and forfeiture of all such goods or the value thereof; (2) the one moiety of all which forfeitures mentioned in this act to be to the use of the King, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue for the same by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any court of record, in which no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be admitted or allowed.

X. Provided nevertheless, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend or be construed to extend to repeal, disannul and make void any the penalties, clauses or provisos mentioned in one act of this present session of parliament, made against the transportation of wool, wool-fells, fullers-earth or any kind of scouring-earth; (2) or to the prohibiting of the loading on board of any ship or vessel, of any wether sheep, wool, wool-flocks or other goods mentioned in this act, that by the aforesaid act is permitted to be loaden on board of any ship or vessel, for the necessary use or provision of such ship or vessel as aforesaid; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XI. Provided always, That if any owner of any ship or vessel, or any master or mariner, knowing of such transportation of such sheep, wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers-earth, fulling-clay or tobacco-pipe-clay, shall within three months next after the knowledge thereof, or after his return into the kingdom of England or Ireland, or into the said town of Berwick, or dominion of Wales aforesaid, give the first information bona fide before any of the barons of either of the courts of the exchequer in England or Ireland for the time being, or before the head officer of any port where he shall first arrive, upon upon his or their oath, of the number and quantity of the goods mentioned in this act, so carried, conveyed and transported, and by whom, where and in what ship or vessel, and afterwards shall be ready upon reasonable warning by process to justify and prove the same; that then such owner and owners, master, mariner and mariners shall not be punished for felony by virtue of this act, but shall nevertheless be subject to all other penalties and forfeitures in this or any other act contained for the offence aforesaid. (2) And all such exportation, transportation, carrying or conveying of any the goods, wares or commodities in this act mentioned, is hereby declared and adjudged to be a common and publick nuisance.

An act against importing of foreign wool-cards, card-wyre or iron-wyre.

WHEREAS by the acts of parliament made in the third year of King Edward the Fourth, and the nine and thirtieth year of Queen Elizabeth, and several other statutes before that time made, it is enacted (amongst other things therein contained) that no cards for wool, nor iron thread (commonly called white wyre) shall be imported, sent or conveyed into this realm of England, wherein the best iron-thread or wyre for making wool-cards is made, and by the said manufacture of making and drawing of wyre, and wool-cards, very many poor people of this kingdom, and their families, have been employed and maintained, and the wool-cards made thereof are of great concernment to this kingdom for the good making of woollen-cloth; (2) and whereas, contrary to the said statutes, not only much foreign card-wyre, but also foreign wool-cards have been in these late times imported into this kingdom, and also within the same many old wool-cards are by ill-disposed persons (for their private lucre) bought up, and the old iron wyre of the said old wool-cards, being very weak and insufficient for the well carding of wool, is put into new leather and new boards, and so uttered and sold to ignorant people for new wool-cards, to their great detriment and the indamaging of their work, carding of wool, and the cloth made thereof: by all which, very great inconveniences have been found by experience of clothiers in their making of English cloth, which is lately much debased and decayed, and wherein this nation is greatly concerned to uphold and encourage the well-making thereof in and by all ways and means in any wise conducive thereunto; (3) be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, assembled in parliament; and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no foreign wool-cards or foreign card-wyre or iron-wyre for making of wool-cards, be imported into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales or any parts thereof, nor used within the same, nor any card-wyre taken out of old cards, be from henceforth put into new leather and new card-boards, nor any such wool-cards made thereof be put to sale; (4) upon the pains, penalties and forfeitures hereafter following, (that is to say) every person or persons who shall

An act for the encouragement of trade.

Tillage.

FORASMUCH as the encouraging of tillage ought to be in an especial manner regarded and endeavoured; and the surest and effectuallest means of promoting and advancing any trade, occupation or mystery, being by rendering it profitable to the users thereof; (2) and great quantities of land within this kingdom for the present lying in a manner waste, and yielding little, which might thereby be improved to considerable profit and advantage (if sufficient encouragement were given for the laying out of cost and labour on the same) and thereby much more corn produced, great numbers of people, horses and cattle employed, and other lands also rendered more valuable:

Corn not exceeding certain rates may be transported.

II. Be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority thereof; and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the first day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty and three, and from thenceforward, when the prices of corn and grain Winchester measure do not exceed the rates hereafter following, at the havens or places where the same shall be shipped or laden, (viz.) The quarter of wheat, eight and forty shillings; the quarter of barley or malt, eight and twenty shillings; the quarter of buck-wheat, eight and twenty shillings; the quarter of oats, thirteen shillings and four pence; the quarter of rye, two and thirty shillings; the quarter of pease or beans, two and thirty shillings current English money; that then it shall be lawful for all and every person and persons to ship, load, carry and transport any of the said corns or grains from the havens or places where they shall be of such prices, unto any parts beyond the seas as merchandize; any law, statute or usage to the contrary notwithstanding; paying such rates for the same, and none other, as are to be paid when the same might have been transported by one act passed this present parliament, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage.

When corn may be transported, and what custom to be paid.

III. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when the prices of the aforesaid corns and grains do not exceed the rates above-mentioned respectively Winchester measure at the haven or place into which any of them shall be imported from any parts beyond the seas, there shall shall be paid for the custom and poundage of every quarter of wheat, five shillings and four pence; and for every quarter of rye, four shillings; and for every quarter of barley or malt, two shillings and eight pence; and for every quarter of buck-wheat, two shillings; and for every quarter of oats, one shilling four pence; and for every quarter of pease or beans, four shillings.

V. And in regard his Majesty's plantations beyond the seas are inhabited and peopled by his subjects of this his kingdom of England; for the maintaining a greater correspondence and kindness between them, and keeping them in a firmer dependance upon it, and rendering them yet more beneficial and advantageous unto it in the further employment and increase of English shipping and seamen, vent of English woollen and other manufactures and commodities, rendering the navigation to and from the same more safe and cheap, and making this kingdom a staple, not only of the commodities of those plantations, but also of the commodities of other countries and places, for the supplying of them; and it being the usage of other nations to keep their plantations trade to themselves:

Plantations beyond the seas.

VI. Be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand six hundred sixty-four, no commodity of the growth, production or manufacture of Europe, shall be imported into any land, island, plantation, colony, territory or place to his Majesty belonging, or which shall hereafter belong unto or be in the possession of his majesty, his heirs and successors, in Asia, Africa, or America, (Tangier only excepted,) but what shall be bona fide, and without fraud, laden and shipped in England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and in English built shipping, or which were bona fide bought before the first day of October one thousand six hundred sixty and two, and had such certificate thereof as is directed in one act passed the last sessions of this present parliament, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs; and whereof the master and three fourths of the mariners at least are English, and which shall be carried directly thence to the said lands, islands, plantations, colonies, territories or places, and from no other place or places whatsoever; any law, statute or usage to the contrary notwithstanding; (2) under the penalty of the loss of all such commodities of the growth, production or manufacture of Europe, as shall be imported into any of them from any other place whatsoever, by land or water; and if by water, of the ship or vessel also in which they were imported, with all her guns, tackle, furniture, ammunition and apparel; one third part to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; one third part to the governor of such land, island, plantation, colony, territory or place, into which such goods were imported, if the said ship, vessel or goods be there seized or informed against and sued for; or otherwise that third part also to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and the other third part to him or them who shall seize, inform or sue for the same in any of his Majesty's courts in such of the said lands, islands, colonies, plantations, territories or places where the offence was committed, or in any court of record in England, by bill, information, plaint or other action, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

c. 22. s. 5.

VIII. And for the better prevention of frauds, be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand six hundred sixty and four, every person or persons importing by land any goods or commodities whatsoever into any the said lands, islands, plantations, colonies, territories or places, shall deliver to the governor of such land, island, plantation, colony, territory or place, or to such person or officer as shall be by him thereunto authorized and appointed, within four and twenty hours after such importation, his and their names and surnames, and a true inventory and particular of all such goods or commodities: (1) and no ship or vessel coming to any such land, island, plantation, colony, territory or place, shall lade or unlade any goods or commodities whatsoever, until the master or commander of such ship or vessel shall first have made known to the governor of such land, island, plantation, colony, territory or place, or such other person or officer as shall be by him thereunto authorized and appointed, the arrival of the said ship or vessel, with her name, and the name and surname of her master or commander, and have shewn to him that she is an English built ship, or made good by producing such certificate, as abovesaid, that she is a ship or vessel bona fide belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick, and navigated with an English master, and three fourth parts of the mariners at least Englishmen; and have delivered to such governor or other person or officer a true and perfect inventory or invoice of her lading, together with the place or places in which the said goods were laden or taken into the said ship or vessel; (2) under the pain of the loss of the ship or vessel, with all her guns, ammunition, tackle, furniture and apparel, and of all such goods of the growth, production or manufacture of Europe, as were not bona fide laden and taken in England, Wales, or the town of Berwick, to be recovered and divided in manner aforesaid; (3) and all such as are governors or commanders of any the said lands, islands, plantations, colonies, territories or places (Tangier only excepted) shall before the five and twentieth day of March one thousand six hundred sixty and four, and all such as shall hereafter be made governors or commanders of any of them, shall, before their entrance upon the execution of such trust or charge, take a solemn oath before such person or persons as shall be authorized by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, to administer the same, to do their utmost within their respective governments or commands, to cause to be well and truly observed what is in this act enacted, in relation to the trade of such lands, islands, plantations, colonies, territories and places, under the penalty of being removed out of their respective governments and commands: (4) and if any of them shall be found, after the taking of such oath, to have wittingly and willingly offended contrary to what is by this act required of them, that they shall for such offence be turned out of their governments, and be incapable of the government of any other land, island, plantation or colony; and moreover, forfeit the sum of one thousand pounds of lawful money of England; the one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and the other moiety to him or them that shall inform or sue for the same in any of his Majesty's courts in any of the said plantations, or in any court of record in England, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

Penalty upon
customs.

IX. And it is hereby further enacted, That if any officer of the customs in England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall give any warrant for, or suffer any sugar, tobacco, ginger, cotton-wool, indigo, speckle-wood or Jamaica-wood, fustick or other dying-wood of the growth of any of the said lands, islands, colonies, plantations, territories or places, to be carried into any other country or place whatsoever, until they have been first unladen bona fide and put on shore in some port or haven in England or

Wales,

Wales, or in the town of Berwick; that every such officer for such offence shall forfeit his place, and the value of such of the said goods as he shall give warrant for, or suffer to pass into any other country or place; the one moiety to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and the other moiety to him or them that shall inform or sue for the same in any court of record in England or Wales, wherein no essoin, protection or wager in law shall be allowed.

X. And for the better encouragement of the said plantations, and the increase of the shipping and navigation of this kingdom, (2) be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March one thousand six hundred sixty and four, it shall and may be lawful, out of any port of England or Wales, or out of the town of Berwick, to ship and lade sea-coals for any part of them, paying for the chalders, Newcastle measure, one shilling eight pence; and for the chalders, London measure, one shilling and no more; in full of all custom and poundage for the same, any law, statute or prohibition to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Encouragement of plantations, and increase of shipping. Sea-coals. Altered by 9 Anne, c. 6. s. 7.

XI. Provided, That such sea-coals be shipped in such shipping, and so navigated, as abovesaid; and that good security be given to the officers of the customs in such port in which they are shipped, for the landing them in the said plantations, and not elsewhere.

XII. And forasmuch as several considerable and advantageous trades cannot be conveniently driven and carried on without the species of money or bullion, and that it is found by experience, that they are carried in greatest abundance (as to a common market) to such places as give free liberty for exporting the same; and the better to keep in and increase the current coins of this kingdom; (2) be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the first day of August one thousand six hundred sixty and three, it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons whatsoever, to export out of any port of England or Wales, in which there is a custom or collector, or out of the town of Berwick, all sorts of foreign coin or bullion of gold or silver, first making entry thereof in such custom-house respectively, without paying any duty, custom, poundage or fee for the same; any law, statute or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Foreign coin or bullion may be exported.

XVI. And for the encouragement of the herring and North-sea, island and Westmore fisheries, (2) be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty and four, no fresh herring, fresh cod or haddock, coal-fish or gull-fish, shall be imported into England, Wales, or the town of Berwick, but in English-built ships or vessels, or in ships or vessels bona fide belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick, and having such certificate thereof as is abovesaid; and whereof the master and three fourths at the least of the mariners are English, and which hath been fished, caught and taken in such ships or vessels, and so navigated, and not being bought or had of any strangers born, or out of any strangers bottoms, under the pain of the forfeiture of all such herring, cod, haddock, coal-fish or gull-fish, imported contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, and of the ship or vessel in which it was imported; (3) one moiety of which forfeitures shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; and the other moiety to him or them that shall inform, seize or sue for the same, to be recovered by bill, plaint or other action, wherein no essoin, protection or wager in law shall be allowed.

Encouragement of herring fisheries. Altered by 1 Geo. 1. st. 2. c. 18. s. 1.

XVII. And be it further enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the following sorts or kinds of salted or dried fish, which from and after the said first day of August shall be imported into England, Wales, or the town of Berwick, in any other ship or vessel than what is English-built or belonging to England, Wales, or town of Berwick, and having such certificate thereof as abovesaid, and whereof the master and three

XVIII. And forasmuch as planting and making tobacco within this kingdom of England doth continue and increase, to the apparent loss of his said Majesty in his customs, the discouragement of the English plantations in the parts beyond the seas, and prejudice of this kingdom in general, notwithstanding an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his said Majesty's reign for prevention thereof, intituled, An act for prohibiting the planting, setting or sowing of tobacco in England and Ireland: (2) and forasmuch as it is found by experience, that the reason why the said planting and making of tobacco doth continue is, that the penalties prescribed and appointed by that law are so little, as have neither power or effect over the transgressors thereof; (3) for remedy therefore of so great an evil, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the person or persons whatsoever, that do or shall at any time hereafter set, plant or sow any tobacco in seed, plant or otherwise, in or upon any ground, field, earth or place, within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, islands of Guernsey and Jersey, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or kingdom of Ireland, shall, over and above the penalty of the said act for that purpose ordained, for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of ten pounds for every rod or pole of ground that he or they shall so plant, set or sow with tobacco, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity of ground; one third part thereof to the King's majesty, one other third part thereof to the use of the poor of such respective parish or parishes wherein such tobacco shall be so planted, set or sowed; and the other third part thereof to him or them that shall sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his said Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

XIX. And it is hereby further enacted, That in case any person or persons shall resist or make forcible opposition against any person or persons in the due and thorough execution of the said act of the twelfth of his said Majesty's reign, that he, she or they, so resisting and making forcible opposition, shall, over and above the penalties therein mentioned for such offences, be committed to the common gaol of the county where such offence shall be committed, there to remain without bail or mainprize, until he, she or they, have entered into a recognizance to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, with two sufficient sureties, of ten pounds penalty, not to do or commit the like offence again.

Proviso for to-

CAP. II.

An act against importing cattle from Ireland and other parts beyond the seas, and fish taken by foreigners.

WHEREAS an act of this present parliament, intituled, An act for the encouragement of trade, amongst other things some provision was made for the preventing of coming in of vast numbers of cattle, whereby the rents and values of the land of this kingdom were much fallen, and like daily to fall more, to the great prejudice, detriment and impoverishment of this kingdom; which nevertheless hath by experience been found to be ineffectual; and the continuance of any importation, either of the lean or fat cattle, dead or alive, herein after specified, not only unnecessary, but very destructive to the welfare of this kingdom: (2) be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, That such importation, from and after the second day of February in this present year one thousand six hundred sixty and six, is a publick and common nuisance, and shall be so adjudged, deemed and taken to be to all intents and purposes whatsoever. (3) And that if any great cattle, sheep or swine, or any beef, pork or bacon (except for the necessary provision of the respective ships or vessels in which the same shall be brought, not exposing the same or any part thereof to sale) shall from and after the said second day of February, by any wise whatsoever, be imported or brought from beyond seas into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; that then it shall and may be lawful for any constable, tithingman, headborough, churchwardens or overseers of the poor, or any of them, within their respective liberties, parishes or places, to take and seize the same, (4) and keep the same during the space of eight and forty hours in some publick or convenient place where such seizure shall be made; within which time, if the owner and owners, or any for them or him, shall make it appear unto some justice of the peace of the same county where

II. And for the better encouragement of the fishery of this kingdom, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any ling, herring, cod or pilchard, fresh or salted, dried or bloated, or any salmons, eels or congers, taken by any foreigners, aliens to this kingdom, shall be imported, uttered, sold or exposed to sale in this kingdom; that then it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to take and seize the same; the one half thereof to be disposed of to the use of the poor of the parish where the same shall be so found or seized; the other half to his or their own use which shall so seize the same.

Isle of Man.

III. Provided always, That nothing in this act shall be construed to hinder the importation of cattle from the Isle of Man in this kingdom of England, so as the number of the said cattle do not exceed six hundred head yearly: (2) and that they be not of any other breed than of the breed of the Isle of Man; (3) and that they be landed at the port of Chester, or some of the members thereof, and not elsewhere.

IV. This act to continue until the end of seven years, and from thence to the end of the first session of the next parliament. Made perpetual by 32 Car. 2. c. 2. s. 2.

VI. AND whereas it cannot be reasonably expected, that the expense, waste and charge in assaying, melting-down and coinage, be born by your Majesty; and for the further encouragement of coinage; (2) be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, that for every tun of wines, vinegar, cyder or beer, that shall be imported or brought into the port of London, or into any other port, creek or place within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, from any parts beyond the seas, or Scotland, from and after the twentieth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred sixty and six, there shall be levied, collected and paid the sum of ten shillings; (3) and for every tun of brandy-wines or strong-waters that shall be imported as aforesaid, the sum of twenty shillings; (4) and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, to be levied, collected and paid at the respective custom-houses to the collectors and other officers of the customs for the time being, at the importation of the said commodities, over and above all other duties charged, leviable and payable upon the said commodities, and to be by them distinguished and kept apart from all other monies by them collected and levied upon the same commodities, or upon any other commodities or merchandizes whatsoever; (5) and to be by the said collector or collectors respectively so answered and paid quarterly into the receipt of the exchequer of your Majesty, your heirs and successors, there also to be kept distinct and apart from all other monies arising by the customs, customs, or by any other way or revenue whatsoever; which said duty they are hereby enjoined to receive and pay according to the several directions of this act, without any salary or fee.

VII. And be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all manner of wines, vinegar, cyder, beer, brandy-wines and strong-waters imported as aforesaid, shall pay their several and respective duties imposed by this act; and upon non-payment thereof shall be liable to such and the same pains, penalties and forfeitures, as in and by the late acts for tonnage and poundage, and for frauds, are enacted and appointed, upon non-payment of the duties, by the said acts imposed upon goods and merchandizes of the same nature with those mentioned in this act.

VIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That for what of the aforesaid commodities shall be transported into any parts beyond the seas, within the term and space of one year after the importation thereof, that the duty paid by this act for the same shall be repaid by the respective collectors of the customs for the time being.

An act to prevent the planting of tobacco in England, and for regulating the plantation trade.

Husbandry.

WHEREAS the sowing, setting, planting and curing of tobacco within divers parts of the kingdom of England doth continue and increase, to the apparent loss of his Majesty's customs, and the discouragement of his Majesty's plantations in America, and great prejudice of the trade and navigation of this realm, and the vent of its commodities thither, notwithstanding an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his Majesty's reign that now is, for the prevention thereof, intituled, An act for prohibiting the planting, setting or sowing of tobacco in England and Ireland; and also one other act of this present parliament made in the fifteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled,

12 Car. 2. c. 34.

15 Car. 2. c. 7.

Justices of the peace are to command all constables, &c. to make a return to them of what tobacco is planted, and upon whose land.

An act for the encouragement of trade:

II. And forasmuch as the remedies and provisions by those laws are found not large enough to obviate and prevent the planting thereof; (2) be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of May which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and one, all justices of the peace within their several limits and jurisdictions shall and do, a month before every general quarter-sessions to be holden for their respective counties, issue forth their warrants to all high constables, petty constables and tithingmen, within their several limits, thereby requiring the said high constables, petty constables and tithingmen, and every of them, to make diligent search and inquisition, what tobacco is then sown, set, planted, growing, curing, cured or made, within their several and respective limits and jurisdictions, and by whom; and to make a true and lawful presentment in writing upon oath, at the next general quarter-sessions to be holden for such county, of the names of all such persons as have sown, set, planted, cured or made any tobacco, and what the full quantity of land is or was sown, set or planted therewith, and who are the immediate tenant or tenants, or present occupiers of the land so sown, set or planted, who are and shall be deemed planters thereof to all intents and purposes.

Which presentment, being filed, shall be a sufficient conviction.

Except upon notice it shall be traversed.

III. Which said presentment upon oath shall be received and filed by the clerk of the peace of the said county in open sessions, and after such receipt and filing shall be a sufficient conviction in law to all intents and purposes, of all such persons as shall be so presented for the sowing, setting, planting, improving to grow, making or curing tobacco, either in seed, plant, leaf or otherwise, contrary to the said recited acts or either of them; unless such person or persons so presented (having notice given to him or them of such presentment made, by the delivery of a copy of such presentment to him or them, or by leaving a copy of such presentment at his or their dwelling-house or houses, or usual place of abode, in the presence of one or more credible witnesses, ten days at the least before the next quarter-sessions) shall at the quarter-sessions next after such notice shall be given to him or them traverse such presentment, and find sufficient sureties for the prosecuting and trying such traverse, at the quarter-sessions to be holden for the said county next after such traverse shall be entered or made.

IV. And it is hereby further enacted, That all constables, tithingmen, bailiffs and other publick officers, shall and do within their respective jurisdictions, from time to time, as often as occasion shall require, within fourteen days after warrant from two or more of the justices of the peace within such county, town, city or place, to them calling to their assistance such person or persons as they and every one of them shall find convenient and necessary, pluck up, burn, consume, tear in pieces, and utterly destroy all tobacco-seed, plant, leaf, planted, sowed or growing in any field, earth or ground.

Power given to all officers, &c. to pull up and destroy all the plants, &c.

V. And if any such tobacco shall be suffered or permitted to grow, or be consumed in seed, plant or leaf, in any township, tithing, parish, hamlet or place, by the space of fourteen days after the receipt of such warrant or warrants, by the said constables, tithingmen, bailiffs, or other publick officers of the respective townships, tithings, parishes or hamlets as aforesaid; That then such constables, tithingmen, bailiffs, or other publick officers respectively, shall for every such offence forfeit and pay the sum of five shillings for every rod, perch or pole of ground so set, planted or sowed with tobacco, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity of ground; the one moiety thereof to the King's majesty, and the other moiety to him or them that shall sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster.

The penalty of officers not doing their duty in destroying of it.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted, That in case any person or persons shall refuse or neglect to aid or assist (being thereunto required) any constable, bailiff or other publick officer, in the due execution of this act, That every such person or persons for every such offence, upon conviction thereof made before two justices of the peace of the said county where such offence shall be committed, shall forfeit and pay the sum of five shillings, to be levied by warrant from the said justices, by distress and sale of the offender's goods; and in case no distress can be found, then every such offender shall be committed to the common gaol of the said county, there to remain for the space of one week, without bail or mainprize.

The penalty for refusing to assist the officers.

VII. And if any person or persons whatsoever shall forcibly resist any constable, bailiff, or other publick officer, or other person or persons whatsoever, in the due execution of this act, That then every such person for every such offence, upon conviction thereof made before two justices of the peace of the said county where such offence shall be committed, shall forfeit and pay the sum of five pounds, to be levied by warrant from the said justices, by distress and sale of the offender's goods; and in case no distress can be found, then every such offender shall be committed to the common gaol of the said county, there to remain for the space of three months, without bail or mainprize.

The forfeiture for resisting the officers.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action, plaint, suit or information, shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person or persons, for what he or they shall do in pursuance or execution of this act, or either of the recited acts, such person or persons so sued in any court whatsoever, shall or may plead the general issue, not guilty, and upon any issue joined, may give this act, or the said recited acts, or either of them, and the special matter, in evidence: (2) and if the plaintiff or prosecutor shall become nonsuit, or forbear further prosecution, or suffer discontinuance, or if a verdict shall pass against him, the defendant

The officer, to any action brought against him, may plead not guilty.

If judgment pass for him, he shall recover double costs.

or defendants shall recover their costs, for which they shall have the like remedy, as in case where costs are given by law to the defendants.

A saving for tobacco planted in the physick gardens.

IX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That this act, nor any thing therein contained, shall extend to the hindering of the planting of tobacco in any physick garden of either university, or in any other private garden for physick or chirurgery only, so as the quantity so planted exceed not one half of one pole, in any one place or garden.

X. And whereas by one act of parliament in the fifteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the encouragement of trade, it is declared, That inasmuch as his Majesty's plantations beyond the seas are inhabited with his subjects of England, for the maintaining a better correspondency betwixt them, and keeping them in a firmer dependence upon it, and rendring them yet more beneficial and advantageous unto it, in the further employment and increase of English shipping and seamen, vent of woollen and other manufactures, rendring the navigation to and from the same more safe and cheap, and making this kingdom a staple, not only of the commodities of those plantations, but also the commodities of other countries, for the supplying them (it being the usage of other nations to keep their plantation-trades to themselves;) (2) it was therefore enacted, That no goods or commodities of Europe shall be carried into any the plantations of Asia, Africa, or America, but what shall bona fide be laden and shipped in England, and in English-built ships, or ships made free, and navigated with English, according to an act of parliament on that behalf: (3) and that no officer of the customs in England or Wales shall give any warrant, or suffer any sugar, tobacco, and other plantation goods therein particularly named, to be carried into any other country or place whatsoever, until they have been first bona fide unladen in England, as by the said act doth more at large appear.

XI. Notwithstanding which, some persons taking advantage of the not mentioning the repealing of the word Ireland, in one clause in an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increase of shipping and navigation; where bonds are directed to be taken for all ships that shall lade any sugar, or other commodities therein particularly mentioned, in any of the said plantations, That the same commodities shall be by the said ship brought to some port of England, Ireland, Wales, or town or port of Berwick, and shall there unlode, and put the same on shore, the said persons having either refused to give bond for the return of their ships in such case to England, Wales, or town or port of Berwick only, or having given such bonds, have nevertheless gone with their ships to Ireland; by which means (although this kingdom hath, and doth daily suffer a great prejudice by the transporting great number of the people thereof to the said plantations, for the peopling of them) yet that the trade of them would thereby in a great measure be diverted from hence, and carried elsewhere, his Majesty's customs and other revenues much lessened, and this kingdom not continue a staple of the said commodities of the said plantations, nor that vent for the future of the victual and other native commodities of this kingdom; (2) be it therefore enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the word Ireland shall, from and after the twenty-fourth day of May in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and seventy-one, be left out of all such bonds which shall be taken for any ship or vessel which shall set sail out of or from England, Ireland, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, for any English plantation in America, Asia and Africa; (3) and that in case the said ship or vessel shall lode any of the said commodities at any of the said English plantations, That the said commodities shall be by the said ship or vessel brought to some port of England or Wales, or to the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and shall there unlode and put on shore the same (the danger of the seas only excepted) and in like manner for all ships coming from any other port or place to any of the aforesaid plantations, who by the aforesaid act for encouraging and increase of shipping are permitted to trade there: (4) that from and after the nine and twentieth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred hundred seventy and one, the governor of such English plantations shall, before such ship or vessel be permitted to lode on board any of the said commodities, take bond in manner and to the value mentioned and directed in the abovementioned act for the encouraging and encrease of shipping and navigation, for each respective ship or vessel, That such ship or vessel shall carry all the aforesaid goods that be laden on board in the said ship, to some other of his Majesty's English plantations; or to England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed: (5) and that every such ship or vessel which from and after the said nine and twentieth day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and one, shall lode or take on board any of the said commodities; until such bond given to such governor, or certificate produced from the officers of some custom-house of England, Wales, or the town of Berwick, that such bond hath been there duly given, or which contrary to the tenor of such bond shall carry the said goods to any land, island, territory, dominion, port or place whatsoever, other than to such other English plantations, as do belong to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, or to the kingdom of England, principality of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and there lay the same on shore; that every such ship or vessel shall be forfeited, with all her guns, tackle, apparel, ammunition, furniture and lading; the one moiety to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize and sue for the same in any of the said plantations, in the court of the high admiral of England, or of any of his vice-admirals, or in any court of record in England, wherein no esoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed.

Forfeiture.

XII. And whereas many complaints have been made of shipping and vessels belonging to some of his Majesty's colonies in America, that contrary to the intent and meaning of this and other afore-mentioned laws, they have brought and transported the said commodities to divers parts of Europe; and there unloaded the same: (2) be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the governors, or their commanders in chief, of his Majesty's respective plantations, do once a year at least make a return to his Majesty's officers of his customs in the port of London, or to such other person or persons as his Majesty shall appoint to receive the same, a list of all such ships or vessels as shall lade any of the said commodities in such plantations respectively, as also a list of all the bonds taken by them: (3) and in case any ship or vessel belonging to any of his Majesty's plantations, which shall have on board her any sugars, tobacco, cotton-wool, indicoes, ginger, fustick or other dying-wood, shall be found to have unladed in any port or place of Europe, other than England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed; That such ship or vessel shall be forfeited; with all her guns, tackle, apparel, ammunition, furniture and lading, to be recovered and divided as aforesaid.

The governors of the American plantations to return yearly to the custom-house, a list of all ships loading therein.

If they shall unlade any sugars, &c. other than in England, &c.

The forfeiture.

XIII. And that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to prosecute such ship or vessel in any court of admiralty in England; the one moiety of the forfeiture in case of condemnation; to be to his Majesty; his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such prosecutor or prosecutors thereof.

Where to be prosecuted.

XIV. And lastly it is hereby enacted; and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That Tangier shall not be deemed or taken to be a plantation to his Majesty belonging in Asia, Africa, or America; within the intent and meaning of this act, or any of the aforementioned acts, so as to enjoy any right, privilege or benefit of trading to or from the said plantations, or any of them; any law, act, usage or declaration to the contrary notwithstanding.

Tangier shall not be taken to be a plantation within this act.

XV. Provided always, and be it enacted, That this act shall continue in force for nine years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer. Continued by 5 Geo. 1. c. 11. f. 19. so long as the 12 Car. 2. c. 4. shall continue.

an act for taking off aliens duty upon commodities of the growth, product, and manufacture of the nation.

21 H. 7. c. 14.
For the enforcement of this act see 1 Ann.
stat. 1. c. 13.

WHEREAS by a statute made in the eleventh year of King Henry the Seventh it is enacted, That all merchant-strangers, and others who be made denizens by the King's letters patents, or otherwise, shall pay such customs and subsidies for their goods and merchandise inwards and outwards, as they should have paid if such letters patents had never to them been made; (a) and

whereas

whereas by one other statute made in the twelfth year of the reign of our sovereign lord the King that now is, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, and afterwards confirmed by an act of parliament made in the thirteenth year of his said Majesty's reign, it is enacted, That every merchant, natural-born subject, denizen and alien, shall pay the sum of twelve pence for all manner of goods or merchandize to be carried out of this realm or to be brought into the same by way of merchandize, amounting to the value of twenty shillings according to the book of rates, whereto reference is made by the said statute; (3) and that every merchant-alien shall pay the sum of twelve-pence over and above the twelve-pence aforesaid, for all manner of the native commodities of this realm, or manufactures wrought of any such native commodities, of the value of twenty shillings, to be carried out of this realm by such merchants-alien; (4) and whereas by another clause of the said statute of the twelfth year of his Majesty's reign that now is, it is enacted, That all strangers and aliens shall pay six shillings and eight-pence per piece for every short cloth to be carried out of this realm by such strangers or aliens; (5) and whereas by the twelfth article of rules, orders, directions and allowances annexed to the said book of rates, it is recited, ordered, and directed, That merchant-strangers should pay double petty-custom for lead, tin, woollen cloth, and for native manufactures of wool or part of wool, and for all other goods, as well inwards as outwards, rated to pay the subsidy of poundage, three-pence in the pound, and other duties payable by Charta Mercatoria, besides the subsidy; (6) be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That so much and such clauses only of the said statutes of the eleventh year of Henry the seventh, and of the twelfth year of our sovereign lord the King that now is, and of the said twelfth article of rules, orders, directions, and allowances, and of Charta Mercatoria therein mentioned, and all other clauses contained in any other act or statutes of this realm whatsoever, as do any ways concern any custom or subsidy upon any of the native commodities of this kingdom, (except coals) or manufactures wrought or made in this kingdom, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to be exported out of this realm, payable by any merchant-alien made denizen, or other stranger or alien, over and above the custom and subsidy payable by his Majesty's natural-born subjects, and no more, be hereby repealed.

II. And for the further explanation hereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May which shall be in the year one thousand six hundred and seventy-three, every such merchant, denizen, stranger or alien, shall pay for all merchandise consisting of any the native commodities of this realm (except coals) or manufactures wrought or made in the kingdom of England, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to be carried out of this realm by any such merchant, denizen, stranger or alien, such customs and subsidies only, and no other or greater, than merchants being the King's natural-born subjects do by virtue of the said statute of the twelfth year of his Majesty that now is, pay for any merchandize of the native commodities of this realm, (except coals) or manufactures wrought or made in this kingdom or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to be exported out of this realm by such natural-born subjects; any law, custom, or statute, to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and three, every merchant, denizen, or alien, shall pay for all sorts of fish caught by Englishmen, and exported in English shipping, and whereof the master and three-fourths of the mariners shall be English, such customs and subsidies only and no greater or other than merchants being natives of this realm do pay for the same. C A P. VII.

An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trades, and for the better securing the plantation-trade.

Liberty given to all persons to trade into Greenland, and to import all sorts of oil, &c.

Without paying any custom or duty for such goods brought in by any English or Welsh vessel.

If by any shipping of the King's colonies or plantations, then the several rates mentioned in this act.

Liberty given to have one moiety of harponiers, and one moiety of English mariners in any English vessel, with the same privilege as before.
By 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 17.
§. 27. one third English is sufficient.

FOrasmuch as the whale-fishing is a very considerable and profitable trade, giving employments to great numbers of seamen and shipping: and whereas neighbouring nations do yearly make great advantage thereby; not only supplying themselves with that sort of oil and fins, but vending into other parts great quantities thereof, and particularly into this kingdom, where the said trade is in a manner quite decayed and lost: for remedy thereof, and encouragement of such as shall be willing to employ themselves and their estates in this trade; (1) be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful for all his Majesty's subjects of this his realm of England and Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, and for every other person or persons of what nation soever residing and inhabiting here, during the time of such their residence, freely to trade into and from Greenland and those seas, and there to take whales and all other sorts of fish, and to import into this kingdom all sorts of oil, blubber, and fins thereof, and to use and exercise all other trade to and from Greenland and those parts. (2) And for the further encouraging of the said trade, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be lawful for any person or persons, native or foreigner, to import train-oil or blubber of Greenland and parts adjacent, and those seas, or of Newfoundland, or of any other his Majesty's colonies and plantations, made of fish or of any other creature living in the seas, and whale-fins caught in any ships or vessels truly and properly belonging to England and Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and imported in such ships, without paying any custom or other duty for the same; (4) and for the ton of such oil taken by any shipping belonging to any of his Majesty's colonies and plantations, and imported in such shipping, there shall be paid the sum of six shillings; (5) and for every ton of whale-fins taken and imported in such shipping, the sum of fifty shillings; (6) and for the ton of such oil taken by the said shipping, but imported in shipping belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, the sum of three shillings; (7) and for every ton of whale-fins taken and imported in such shipping, the sum of five and twenty shillings; (8) and for the ton of all such oil and blubber of foreign fishing, the sum of nine pounds; (9) and for every ton of whale-fins of foreign fishing, the sum of eighteen pounds, and no more. (10) And in regard there are at present great want of harponiers and seamen skilled and exercised in the trade of whale-fishing; (11) be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for any ship or vessel truly belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and whereof the master shall be an Englishman, and inhabiting within the places aforesaid, from and after the first day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and three, and until the five and twentieth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty and three, employed for the catching of whales, during such voyage to be navigated with one moiety of the harponiers and one moiety of the rest of the mariners only English, and yet

yet to pay no further or other custom for the oil, blubber, or fins, caught or imported in such ship or vessel, than if such ship or vessel had been navigated with three fourths of the mariners English; any law, statute or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

II. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no English built ship, or other ship or vessel belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, importing whale oil or blubber, or other fish oil or whale fins of Greenland or those seas, shall enjoy any benefit or privilege by this act, unless such ship or vessel did proceed on her voyage to Greenland and those seas, from England or Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and was victualled for the said voyage in some of those places, to be attested by the collector of the port where the said ship or vessel was victualled; (2) And whereas by one act passed in this present parliament in the twelfth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for encouragement of shipping and navigation, and by several other laws passed since that time, it is permitted to ship, carry, convey, and transport sugar, tobacco, cotton-wool, indico, ginger, fustick, and all other dying-wood of the growth, production, and manufacture, of any of your Majesty's plantations in America, Asia, or Africa, from the places of their growth, production, and manufacture, to any of your Majesty's plantations in those parts, (Tangier only excepted) and that without paying of custom for the same, either at the lading or unlading of the said commodities, by means whereof the trade and navigation in those commodities from one plantation to another is greatly increased; (3) and the inhabitants of divers of those colonies, not contenting themselves with being supplied with those commodities for their own use, free from all customs, (while the subjects of this your kingdom of England have paid great customs and impositions for what of them hath been spent here) but contrary to the express letter of the aforesaid laws, have brought into divers parts of Europe great quantities thereof, and do also daily vend great quantities thereof to the shipping of other nations, who bring them into divers parts of Europe, to the great hurt and diminution of your Majesty's customs, and of the trade and navigation of this your kingdom; (4) for the prevention thereof, we your Majesty's commons in parliament assembled, do pray that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That from and after the first day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and three, if any ship or vessel which by law may trade in any of your Majesty's plantations, shall come to any of them to ship and take on board any of the aforesaid commodities, and that bond shall not be first given with one sufficient surety to bring the same to England or Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and to no other place, and there to unload and put the same on shore, (the danger of the seas only excepted) that there shall be answered and paid to your Majesty, your heirs and successors, for so much of the said commodities as shall be laded and put on board such ship or vessel, these following rates or duties: that is to say, for sugar white, the hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, five shillings, and brown sugar and muscovadoes, the hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, one shilling and six pence; (5) for tobacco, the pound, one penny; for cotton-wool, the pound, one half penny; for indico, the pound, two pence; for ginger, the hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, one shilling; (6) for logwood, the hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, five pence; for fustick and all other dying-wood, the hundred weight, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, six pence; and also for every pound of cocoa-nuts, one penny; (7) to be levied, collected, and paid, at such places, and to such collectors and other officers as shall be appointed in their respective plantations

tations to collect, levy, and receive the same, before the lading thereof, and under such penalties both to the officers and upon the goods, as for non-payment of or defrauding his Majesty of his customs in England.

III. And for the better collection of the several rates and duties aforesaid imposed by this act, be it enacted, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this whole business shall be ordered and managed, and the several duties hereby imposed shall be caused to be levied by the commissioners of the customs in England now and for the time being, by and under the authority and directions of the lord treasurer of England or commissioners of the treasury for the time being.

IV. And in case any person or persons liable by this law to pay any of the duties aforesaid, shall not have monies wherewith to answer and pay the same, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officers appointed to collect the same, shall accept instead of such monies such a proportion of the commodities to be shipped, as shall amount to the value thereof, according to the current rate of the said commodities in such plantation respectively.

C A P. VIII.

An act for continuing a former act concerning coinage.

FOrasmuch as great advantage hath accrued to this kingdom, by one act of this present parliament, passed in the eighteenth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the encouragement of coinage; for that very great quantities of gold and silver have been brought into this realm, and converted into the current coins thereof, by reason of the encouragement given thereto by the said act; (2) and whereas the said act was to continue until the twentieth of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and one, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer, so as that unless the said act be now renewed, the encouragement given thereby to coinage will cease, and this kingdom be deprived for the future of so great a good as it hath thereby for these years last past enjoyed: we therefore your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, do humbly pray that it may be enacted; (3) and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, now in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said act shall continue and be in force for the space of seven years, to commence from and after the determination of this present session of this parliament, and until the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer. Continued for seven years from the first of March, one thousand seven hundred forty five, and to the end of the first session of parliament, by 19 Geo. II. c. 14.

How long to continue.

Where the monies collected upon the act 18 Car. 2. c. 5. were to be paid.

II. Provided always, That whereas by the said act it is enacted, That the monies levied, collected, and paid, by virtue thereof, should be levied, collected, and paid, at the respective custom-houses, to the collectors and other officers of the customs for the time being, and be by them respectively paid into the receipt of the exchequer, whereby each of the said collectors are obliged to pass a distinct account in the exchequer, for the monies received by them by virtue of the said acts, although the sums received by many of them are very small and inconsiderable, and yet no allowance to be made unto them for the doing thereof.

III. For

III. For the avoiding of this unnecessary trouble and inconvenience to the said collectors; (2) be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That during such time as the customs shall be in collection under the management of commissioners, the monies collected, levied, and paid, by virtue of this act, shall be levied, collected, and paid, to such officers as do or shall from time to time collect or receive the customs in the respective ports, upon the commodities charged by this act, and shall be by them respectively answered and paid to the receiver general of the customs now and for the time being, whose acquittance shall be to them and every of them a sufficient discharge for the monies by them paid to him, and a certificate by them obtained yearly or oftner, from the comptroller general of the customs now and for the time being, with the allowance of the commissioners of the customs, or any three or more of them, of their having so paid all the monies by them received, shall be to them and every of them a quietus, and free them from all other accounts or trouble for the same.

To whom the monies collected upon this act shall be paid.

IV. And in case the customs shall be farmed, that the monies levied, collected, and paid, by virtue of this act, during such time, shall be collected, levied, and paid, in the respective ports, to such persons as shall be appointed by the lord treasurer, or commissioners of the treasury for the time being, to levy, collect, and receive the same, and be by them paid to such person as shall be in like manner appointed to receive the said monies from them, whose acquittance shall be to them and every of them a sufficient discharge for the monies by them paid to him; and a certificate by them obtained yearly or oftner, from such person or persons as shall be in like manner appointed to give such certificate of their having so paid all the monies by them received, shall be to them and every of them a quietus, and free them from all other accounts or trouble for the said monies; any thing in the said act for the encouragement of coinage, or any other law, statute or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Quietus.

Quietus.

V. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the monies to be levied, collected, and paid by virtue of this act, shall be levied, collected, and paid, at the importation of the commodities charged thereby, and that over and above all other duties and sums of monies charged and payable upon the same, and under the same penalties and forfeitures as for nonpayment of or defrauding his Majesty of his customs upon the said commodities.

To be paid at the importation of the commodities.

Penalty.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the monies collected in the respective ports by virtue of this act shall be by the respective officers who shall collect the same, distinguished and kept apart from all other monies by them collected upon the same commodities, or upon any other commodity or merchandize whatsoever, and shall be by them respectively answered and paid monthly at least from the officers of the port of London, and quarterly at least from the officers of the out-ports, to the receiver general of the customs for the time being; and when there shall be no such receiver general, to such other person as shall be appointed as aforesaid, to receive the same from them; (2) and that such receiver general or other person who shall receive the said monies from the officers of the respective ports shall also keep the same distinct from all other monies whatsoever, and so pay the same once in every month at the least into the receipt of the exchequer, there also to be kept distinct and apart from all other monies arising by the customs, or by any other way or revenue whatsoever.

The money to be kept by itself and paid monthly.

VII. And lastly, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the encouragement of the respective officers before-mentioned, it shall be lawful for the lord treasurer, or commissioners of the treasury for the time being, to allow unto them out of the monies arising by this act for the services above-mentioned, such salaries and allowances as to them shall seem meet and reasonable, so as that the said salaries and allowances do not exceed in the whole the sum of twelve pence in the pound of the monies collected by this act.

Salaries to be allowed to the officers for collecting it.

WHEREAS an act of parliament was made in the eighteenth year of the reign of our sovereign lord the King that now is, intituled, An act against importing cattle from Ireland, and other parts beyond the seas, and fish taken by foreigners; which was to continue until the end of seven years, and from thence to the end of the first session of the next parliament, which is now expired:

II. And forasmuch as by long experience the said law hath been found very beneficial to this kingdom, (2) be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said act, and every clause, article and thing therein contained, together with the additions and alterations herein-after mentioned and expressed, shall, from and after the second day of February, which shall be in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred and eighty, be revived, continue and remain; and is hereby revived and continued in force, to all intents, constructions and purposes, for ever.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That not only the constables, officers, and inhabitants mentioned in the aforesaid recited act, but any and every other person and persons whatsoever, shall and may take and seize in any place or places whatsoever the cattle and goods imported contrary to the said recited act; (2) and that all and every such person and persons that shall seize as aforesaid, shall from time to time have the benefit and advantage hereafter given by this act to any seizer or seizers whatsoever.

IV. And to prevent all fraudulent seizures, sales and compositions, to be made by any person or persons whatsoever, in any parish or place whatsoever, where any great cattle, sheep, or swine shall be imported or found contrary to this or the act aforesaid, and to make the prohibitions therein more effectual;

V. Be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the respective seizer or seizers of such cattle, sheep, or swine, shall, within six days after conviction and forfeiture thereof, cause the said cattle, sheep and swine to be killed; (2) and the hides and tallow of such great cattle, sheep, and swine, shall be and remain to the use of the said seizer or seizers, and the remainder of the said great cattle, sheep, and swine, shall be forthwith distributed amongst the poor of the said parish, by the churchwardens and overseers of the poor there, or some of them, upon notice thereof to be given them or any of them, by such seizer or seizers as aforesaid: any thing in the said former law, or any other law to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And be it further enacted, That in case the said seizer or seizers, or the churchwardens and overseers of the poor, shall fail in their respective duties, in the execution of this act, they and every of them respectively shall forfeit the sum of forty shillings for every one of the great cattle, and ten shillings for every sheep or swine, which should have been killed and distributed distributed as aforesaid: one moiety thereof to the poor of the said parish, and the other moiety to the informer; (2) the same to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the person or persons so offending, by warrant under the hand and seal of any justice of the peace of the said county or place where the said offence shall be committed; upon confession of the party, view of the said justice, or oath thereof made before such justice by one or more credible witness or witnesses, other than the informer, which oath the said justice hath hereby power to administer, rendering the overplus to the owners thereof, necessary charges of distraining being first deducted. (3) And for want of such distress, the said offender or offenders to be committed to the common gaol of the said county or place, there to remain for the space of three months without bail or mainprize.

To be levied by distress and sale of chattels by warrant of any justice, &c.

For want of distress, the party to be imprisoned without bail three months.

VII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That neither this act nor any other act whatsoever heretofore made shall either hinder or be construed to extend to hinder the importation of stock-fish or live eels into this kingdom of England; (2) but that it shall and may be lawful to and for all and every person and persons whatsoever to import into this kingdom of England any stock-fish or live eels as aforesaid; any thing in this act, or any other law, statute, usage or custom, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Nothing herein to hinder importation of stock-fish and eels.

Any person may import stock-fish and live eels.

VIII. And whereas the present laws do not sufficiently provide against the importation of mutton and lamb out of Ireland, and other parts beyond the seas into this kingdom, but that great quantities thereof are daily imported and sold, to the great loss and prejudice of this kingdom; (2) be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said second day of February, no mutton or lamb shall be imported into this kingdom from the kingdom of Ireland or any foreign parts: (3) and all mutton and lamb imported from Ireland, or beyond the seas, or that shall be exposed to sale within this kingdom, shall be subject to the like seizures, and the importers and sellers thereof respectively to the like penalties, as are provided and appointed in any former law against any importer or seller, or importation of any beef, pork, or bacon, from the kingdom of Ireland, or any foreign parts; any thing in this or any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

Altered as to foreigners by 1 Geo. 1. stat. 2. c. 18. s. 1. Want of sufficient provision against importation of mutton and lamb. No mutton or lamb shall be imported. Mutton or lamb imported, or exposed to sale, subject to former penalties.

IX. And whereas the present laws do not sufficiently provide against the importation of butter and cheese out of Ireland into this kingdom, but that great quantities thereof are daily imported and sold, to the great loss and prejudice of this kingdom; (2) be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said second day of February, no butter or cheese shall be imported into this kingdom from the kingdom of Ireland; (3) and all butter and cheese imported from Ireland, or that shall be exposed to sale within this kingdom, shall be subject to the like seizures, and the importers or sellers thereof respectively to the like penalties, as are provided or appointed in any former law against any importer or seller, or importation of any beef, bacon or pork, from the kingdom of Ireland, or any foreign parts; any thing in this or any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

Want of provision against importation of cheese and butter. No butter or cheese shall be imported. Butter and cheese imported and exposed to sale, subject to former penalties.

X. And for the more effectual execution of this and the aforesaid act, (2) be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any great cattle, sheep or swine, shall be once or oftner seized in pursuance of this or the aforesaid act, and afterwards either by permission, connivance, negligence or otherwise shall be removed into and found alive in any parish or place within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, other than such parish or place wherein they shall have been respectively seized, that then the said cattle, sheep, and swine, shall be liable to like seizure, and the seizer and poor of the parish or place have like benefit and advantage, and the cattle, sheep, and swine be forfeited, and the proof be incumbent upon the owner, as if such cattle had never before been seized.

YACOB I. II. Regis.

An act for granting His Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar imported between the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety and three.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons assembled in parliament, towards a supply for repairs of the navy, and providing stores for the navy and ordnance, and other your Majesty's weighty and important occasions; and with an humble and thankful acknowledgement of your Majesty's favourable and tender regard of us your commons, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted unto your Majesty an aid and assistance to be raised and levied upon all wines and vinegar to be imported into this your Majesty's kingdom, according to such rates, and during such times, and in such manner and form, as herein after followeth. And we do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted;

II. And be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That for all French wines, Spanish wines, or other wines whatsoever, as also for all vinegar, which at any time after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty five, and before the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety three, shall be imported into England or Wales, or the town or port of Berwick upon Tweed, there shall be duly answered and paid to his Majesty the further rates and duties hereafter mentioned; (that is to say) For every ton of French wine, and of vinegar, which shall be imported within the time aforesaid, the sum of eight pounds by the ton, and so after that rate for any greater or lesser quantity: and also for every ton of Spanish wines, or of any other wines which shall be imported within the time aforesaid, the sum of twelve pounds by the ton, and so after that rate for any greater or lesser quantity. See Statute

III. And for the better and more sure collecting and receiving of all and singular the duties hereby imposed; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons within the time aforesaid shall import, or cause to be imported by way of merchandize, or otherwise, any of the liquors, such importers shall, upon the entry made of such liquors, and before the landing thereof, pay down the duties hereby imposed, in ready money, deducting the allowance hereafter mentioned, or otherwise become bound unto his Majesty with two or more sufficient sureties, or persons other other persons to become bound to his Majesty, to answer and pay unto his Majesty the whole rates and duties hereby imposed by three several and equal payments: the first payment thereof to be made within three months after the date of the said obligation; the second payment to be made within six months after the date of the said obligation; and the third and last payment to be made within nine months after the date of the said obligation. The taking which bonds, and the approbation of the sureties therein to be named, is hereby left to the discretion of such farmers, or other commissioners for the time being, as shall be intrusted with the receipt and management of his Majesty's customs and subsidies of tonnage and poundage, or their deputy-collectors, in the several ports, or such other person or persons, as his Majesty shall authorize and appoint to collect the duties arising by this act.

IV. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That all and every person and persons importing any of the liquors aforesaid, within the time aforesaid, by way of merchandize or otherwise, who shall pay the duties which by this act are due and payable in ready money, shall be allowed and abated out of the said duties, after the rate of ten pounds per cent. for a year, in consideration of such ready money so paid down and advanced.

10 l. per cent. allowed to those that pay ready money.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the said liquors shall be imported within the time aforesaid, and landed without present payment made of the rates and duties by this act imposed, in cases where this act requires present payment to be made; or without security given for payment thereof, in cases where this act admits of security to be taken, that then and in every such case all and every the liquors so imported and landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited, one moiety thereof to his Majesty, and the other moiety to him or them that shall or will sue for the same; and shall and may be recovered in any court of record, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance: and yet nevertheless the persons so importing and landing any of the said liquors shall, notwithstanding such forfeitures so as aforesaid incurred, remain and continue liable unto, and shall answer and pay unto his Majesty the rates and duties for such liquors, which by this act are due and payable.

Forfeiture of the value.

VI. And whereas by the act for tonnage and poundage, and the instructions and rules for collecting his Majesty's duties arising thereby, it is directed that certain allowances be made upon importation of wines and other liquors; be it further enacted, That no importer thereof shall be chargeable by virtue of this act to pay the duty hereby required, for any greater proportion of wines or other liquors duly entered at the custom-house, than what shall remain neat after all such allowances and abatements: and whereas this present act gives no abatement to any person upon exportation of any the liquors aforesaid; be it further enacted and declared, That all importers, not being vintners or retailers (who, are hereby declared, shall pay ready money for the whole duty) who shall import any of the aforesaid liquors within the time aforesaid, and shall make oath that the same are imported by way of merchandize, and with intent to sell again (which oath the farmers or commissioners of his Majesty's customs for the time being, or in their absence the collector of his Majesty's customs in each several and respective port, or such other person or persons as his Majesty shall authorize and appoint to collect the duties arising by this act, have hereby power to administer) that then, and in every such case, for and in consideration of any defect or damage that may happen, by any of the aforesaid liquors lying longer on the said importers hands than heretofore, or by reason of any other accident, there shall be allowed and abated to every such importer the further allowance of eight pounds per cent. and no more. Provided, That no merchant shall be

Unless oath be made as aforesaid, no allowance to be made upon exportation.

VII. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That if any of the said imported liquors, for which any of the rates and duties by this act imposed shall be paid down and advanced, or otherwise secured, as aforesaid, shall at any time after such importation be again exported into parts beyond the seas: that then, and in every such case, the person or persons so exporting the same shall be wholly barred and excluded from having or receiving back the duties of this act so paid down or advanced, or any part thereof, nor shall the security formerly given by such person exporting for the true payment of the duties by this act imposed, be any ways raised, lessened or discharged by reason of such exportation, but the same securities shall remain and continue in full force, until the duties thereby secured be fully and wholly satisfied and paid; any such exportation to the contrary notwithstanding.

Officers to have like power as for tonnage and poundage.

VIII. And for the better prevention of all such frauds, which at any time hereafter may be committed to the prejudice of his Majesty in the due collecting and receiving of the duties hereby imposed upon such liquors to be imported as aforesaid; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officers of his Majesty's customs, or such other person or persons as his Majesty shall authorize and appoint to collect the duties arising by this act, shall have like power and authority to enter on board ships and vessels, and make searches, and to do all other matters and things which may tend to secure the true payment of the duties by this act imposed, and the due and orderly collection thereof, which any customers, collectors, or other officers of any of his Majesty's ports can or may do touching the securing his Majesty's customs of tonnage and poundage, and all the said liquors to be imported within the time aforesaid, and landed without doing and performing what by this act is required to be done and performed before the landing thereof: and all officers of his Majesty's customs, and all persons importing any of the said liquors, and all others employed by his Majesty in the collection of the duties arising by this act, who shall be found guilty of any act or neglect tending to defraud his Majesty of any the duties hereby imposed, shall be subject and liable to the same seizures, penalties, and forfeitures, which by virtue of any former act can or may be inflicted in such cases where his Majesty is defrauded, or endeavoured to be defrauded, of any of his customs and subsidies, as fully and amply, as if the same clauses of seizures, penalties, and forfeitures, and the same distribution of such forfeitures, and the same remedy for recovery thereof, had been again in this act particularly repeated, applied, and enacted.

Persons guilty of any act tending to defraud his Majesty, subject to penalties in other acts.

On seizure, proof of duty paid lies upon claimer.

IX. And if any liquors seized for any offence committed against this act, shall be claimed by any person as the importer thereof, the proof whether the duties thereof be duly paid or secured shall lie upon such claimer, and shall not be incumbent on his Majesty, or any prosecutor or informer on behalf of his Majesty and himself.

An act to encourage the building of ships in England.

WHEREAS for some years past, and more especially since the laying a duty upon coals brought into the river of Thames, there hath been observed a more than ordinary decay in building ships, in England, and particularly in Newcastle, Hull, Yarmouth, Ipswich, Alborough, Dunwich, Walderwick, Woodbridge, and Harwich, where many stout ships were yearly built for the coal and other trade, which were of great use to his Majesty in time of war, and a nursery for able seamen; but by the discouragement that trade hath ever since lain under, occasioned chiefly by the freedom which foreign ships and vessels, bought and brought into this kingdom, have enjoyed in the coal and other inland trade, equal to that of English built ships, the merchants, owners, and others, have not been able to build as formerly, which hath caused many of our English shipwrights, calkers, and seamen, to seek their employments abroad, whereby the building trade is not only wholly lost in several of the aforementioned places, and in others very much decayed, but also the importation of timber, plank, bemp, pitch, tar, iron, masts, canvas, and other commodities used in building and fitting out ships, are greatly lessened, to the apparent prejudice of his Majesty's customs, the loss of a considerable employment for shipping, and consequently of all other trades depending thereupon, to the too great advantage of foreign nations:

Foreign built ships to pay 5s. per ton.

Disposal of the money.

Foreign ships

English hands
1s. per ton.

II. Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all foreign built ships and vessels, which shall from henceforth be bought and brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and be employed in carrying or transporting any goods or merchandize from port to port, as aforesaid, for every voyage shall pay to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, at the port of delivery of the respective lading (before the delivery thereof) over and above all duties now paid, or that shall hereafter be payable by English built ships, the sum of five shillings per ton, to be collected and received by such person or persons as his Majesty shall appoint in that behalf; one moiety whereof to be for the use of the chest at Chatham, the other moiety to the master, wardens, and assistants of the Trinity-house of Deptford-Strond, for and towards the relief of wounded and decayed seamen, their widows and children.

III. And whereas there are now in England, belonging, or pretending to belong to English owners, many foreign built ships and vessels which do transport coals and other goods from port to port in England, as aforesaid, paying no more duty than English ships pay; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such foreign ships (which are not free) for every voyage shall pay, after the feast of St. Michael, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty and nine, at the rate of twelve pence per ton over and above all duties now paid, or that shall hereafter be payable by English built ships, to be disposed of unto the chest of Chatham, and the Trinity House of Deptford-Strond, by moieties as aforesaid, and for the uses before mentioned; which said last mentioned duty of twelve pence per ton also shall be collected and received in manner aforesaid, at their respective ports of delivery of their respective lading, before the delivery thereof.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That his Majesty shall have the same remedy for receiving and recovering of the duties above mentioned, as are provided in a certain act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of our late sovereign lord King Charles the Second, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandize exported and imported.

The duties to be recovered, as provided by 12 Car. 2. c. 4.

V. Provided always, That the said duties of five shillings per ton, and twelve pence per ton, or any part thereof, hereby imposed upon such foreign built ships, which have been heretofore or shall hereafter be bought or brought into England, shall not be set to farm to any person or persons for any term or time, or for any rent or certain payment whatsoever, but that the several persons, who shall be appointed to receive the same, shall actually receive the said whole duty payable by every such ship, and account for the same as by this act is directed.

The duties not to be farmed.

II. And inasmuch as no provision was made by the said act for ascertaining and determining the said prices, by reason whereof several great quantities of foreign corn and grain have been imported without paying the respective duties by the said act appointed, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said act:

III. Now for supplying the said defect; be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the feast of St. Michael the archangel next, and from thence forward, it shall and may be lawful to and for all and every the justices of the peace for the several and respective counties within his Majesty's kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, wherein foreign corn or grain shall or may be hereafter imported, and they and every of them are hereby enjoined and required, at their next respective quarter-sessions after Michaelmas and Easter-day yearly, by the oaths of two or more honest and substantial persons of the respective counties, being neither merchants nor factors for the importing of corn, nor any ways concerned nor interested in the corn so imported, and each of them having a freehold estate of twenty pounds per annum, or a leasehold estate of fifty pounds per annum, above all charges and reprises, and being skilful in the prices of corn (which oaths all and every the said justices are hereby empowered to administer) and by such other ways and means as to them shall seem fit to examine and determine the common market prices of middling English corn and grain of the respective sorts in the said act mentioned, as the same shall be commonly bought and sold in the said respective counties into which any for

An act for the abrogating of the oaths of supremacy and allegiance, and appointing other oaths.

WHEREAS by a statute made in the first year of the reign of our late sovereign lady Queen Elizabeth, intituled, An act to restore to the crown the ancient jurisdiction over the estate ecclesiastical and spiritual, and abolishing all foreign powers repugnant to the same, the persons therein mentioned were obliged to take an oath therein mentioned, commonly called the Oath of Supremacy: and whereas by another statute made in the third year of the reign of our late sovereign lord King James the first, intituled, An act for the better discovering and repressing popish recusants, another oath, commonly called the Oath of Allegiance or Obedience, was required to be taken by the persons therein mentioned:

3 Jac. 1. c. 4.

The old oaths of allegiance and supremacy abrogated.

H. Be it enacted by the King's and Queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from henceforth no person whatsoever shall be obliged to take the said oaths, or either of them, by force or virtue of the said statutes, or either of them, or any other statute whatsoever, but that the said statutes, and every other statute, for so much only as concerns the said oaths, and the said oaths themselves, shall be and are hereby repealed, utterly abrogated, and made void.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all persons (other than such concerning whom other provision shall be made in this act, or in any other act of this present session of parliament) that shall hereafter be admitted into any office or employment ecclesiastical or civil, or come into any capacity, in respect or by reason whereof they should have been obliged by any statute to take the said abrogated oaths, or either of them, shall take the oaths hereby appointed, in such manner, at such times, before such persons, and in such courts and places, as they should or ought to have taken the said former oaths, or either of them, in case the same had not been abrogated, as aforesaid. And that every such person, who shall neglect or refuse to take the same, shall incur and be liable to the same penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, and incapacities as by any such statute was appointed, for or upon neglect, or refusal to take the said former oaths hereby abrogated, or either of them.

All persons which shall be in office shall take the oaths, &c.

The penalty for neglect.

XII. And be it enacted, That the oaths that are intended and required to be taken by this act, are the oaths in these express words hereafter following;

Oaths by this act.

I A. B. do sincerely promise and swear, That I will be faithful, and bear true allegiance, to their majesties King William and Queen Mary:

So help me God, &c.

I A. B. do swear, That I do from my heart abhor, detest, and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable doctrine and position, That princes excommunicated or deprived by the pope, or any authority of the see of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their subjects, or any other whatsoever.

And I do declare, That no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate, hath or ought to have any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, ecclesiastical or spiritual, within this realm:

So help me God, &c.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the names of all and singular such persons and officers aforesaid, that do or shall, in the court of chancery, King's bench, or quarter sessions, take the oaths by this act required or appointed to be taken, shall be in the said respective courts of chancery and King's bench, and the quarter sessions, inrolled with the day and time of their taking the same, in rolls made and kept only for that intent and purpose, and for no other. The which rolls, as for the court of chancery, shall be publicly hung up in the office of the petty-bag; and the rolls for the King's bench, in the crown office of the said court; and in some publick place in every quarter sessions; and there remain, during the whole term, every term, and during the whole time of the said sessions, in every quarter sessions, for every one to resort to, and look upon, without fee or reward. And none of the person or persons aforesaid shall give or pay, as any fee or reward to any officer or officers belonging to any of the courts as aforesaid, above the sum of twelve pence for his or their entry of his or their taking of the said oaths by this act required or appointed to be taken.

Names of persons who take the oaths to be inrolled;

to be viewed without fee.

(73) For every tun of French wine imported within the said time, eight pounds above all duties already charged thereupon in the said book of rates, or by any other law, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity. (74) Upon all French goods and merchandize (except wine, brandy, salt, and vinegar) which shall be imported within the said time, five and twenty pounds for every hundred pounds value thereof, more than the same are charged with in the said book of rates, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity. (75) For all silks called alamodes and lustrings, imported within the said time, from any ports or places whatsoever, fifteen pounds for every hundred pounds value, more than is paid for the same by any law now in force. (76) For all lattin, brass, or copper wire imported within the said time, six shillings the hundred weight (containing one hundred and twelve pounds) above all other duties payable for the same. (77) Upon all goods and merchandizes not particularly rated in the said book of rates, paying duty at value imported within the said time, five pounds for every hundred pounds value thereof, to be affirmed upon the oath of the importer, according to the direction of the said book of rates; except mum, and such goods and merchandizes as are particularly charged by this act, or an act of this present parliament intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandizes, to be imported after the first and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety. (78) For every gallon of strong water, aqua vite, or brandy, commonly called single brandy or strong waters, imported within the said time, to be paid by the importer before landing, two shillings over and above the duties of excise and customs at any time before the second year of their Majesties reign payable for the same. [Intended of duties payable by statute in force, 5 W. & M. cap. 4.] (79) For every gallon of strong waters, spirits, or brandy above proof, called double brandy, imported within the said time, to be paid by the importer before landing, four shillings over and above the duties of excise and customs at any time before the second year of their Majesties reign payable for the same. [Intended of duties payable by statute in force. Ibid.]

III. And whereas by one act made in the second year of their Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties several additional duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for four years, from the time that an act for doubling the duty of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, during the space of one year, doth expire, it is amongst other things enacted, That for every gallon of single brandy, spirits, or aqua vitae, imported from beyond the seas, should be paid by the importer before landing, over and above the duties payable for the same, four shillings; and for every gallon of brandy, spirits, or aqua vitae, above proof, commonly called double brandy, imported from beyond the seas, should be paid by the importer before landing, over and above the duties payable for the same, eight shillings; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said two clauses last recited in the said act mentioned, concerning single brandy, spirits, or aqua vitae, and brandy, spirits, or aqua vitae, above proof, called double brandy, are and shall be, from the first day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety two, repealed; any thing in the said last mentioned act to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. Provided always, and be it enacted, That the several rates and impositions, hereby imposed upon the respective goods and merchandises aforesaid, shall be collected and paid according to the respective rates and proportions herein expressed, and be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto their Majesties during the time before mentioned, except where it is otherwise hereby directed, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, means, and ways, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned and expressed in one act of parliament, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandize exported and imported, and the rules, directions, and orders thereto annexed, or any other law now in force, relating to the collection of their Majesties customs: which said act and acts, and every article, rule, and clause therein contained, shall stand and be in force for the purposes aforesaid, during the continuance of this act.

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

V. And be it further enacted, That the several rates and duties upon strong water, aqua vitae, or brandy, commonly called single brandy, or strong water, and upon strong water, spirits, or brandy above proof, called double brandy, shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto their Majesties, their heirs and successors, during the time before mentioned, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, means, and ways, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned, expressed, and directed in one act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for taking away the court of wards and liveries, and revenues in Capite, and by knights service, and purveyance, and for settling a revenue upon his Majesty in lieu thereof; and also in another act of parliament made in the fifteenth year of his reign, intituled, An additional act for the better ordering and collecting the duty of excise, and preventing the abuses therein, or in either of them, or in any other law now in force relating to the revenue of excise.

Rates upon brandy how to be collected.

VI. And be it further enacted, That for all additional duties hereby imposed upon the aforementioned goods and merchandizes to be imported as aforesaid, the importer giving security at the custom house, shall have time, not exceeding twelve months, for the payment of the same, from the importation, to be paid by four equal and quarterly payments; or in case such importer shall pay ready money he shall have after the rate of ten pounds per centum of the said duty for a year abated to him; and if the goods and merchandizes aforesaid, imported as aforesaid, for which the duties hereby granted, paid or secured at the importation thereof, be again exported by any merchant English, within twelve months, or by strangers within nine months after the importation, then the aforesaid duty shall be wholly repaid, or the security vacated, as to what shall be so exported, except all brandy, for which the aforesaid duty shall not be repaid.

VII. Provided nevertheless, That the several duties charged by this act upon all amber beads, amber rough, coral beads, and polished coral, and all cowries, shall be repaid to the merchant exporting the same within three years after the importation thereof; any thing in this act contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

VIII. And for preventing the frauds frequently used in importing of strong waters, spirits, aqua vite, or brandy, in small quantities, whereby the same is more easily conveyed away without payment of the duties thereof; be it enacted, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety three, no brandy, single or double, shall be imported from parts beyond the seas, in any vessel or cask, which shall not contain sixty gallons at the least, upon pain of forfeiting the said brandy, or the value thereof, so to be imported as aforesaid, whereof one half shall be to their Majesties, and the other half to such persons as shall inform or sue for the same, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of their Majesties courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoins, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance.

IX. And be it further enacted, That all and every the officer and officers, who shall be concerned in levying the duties arising by this act, do keep a separate and distinct account thereof, and pay the same in specie into their Majesties exchequer weekly; and upon neglect and refusal of the same, every officer offending shall be forejudged from, and shall forfeit his place or office.

X. And whereas by the said act, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions on all East India goods and merchandize, and upon all wrought silks, and upon several other goods and merchandize, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety, the sum of ten pounds is imposed on every hundred pounds value of grocery ware and drugs, wherein the several sorts of raisins, mentioned in the said book of rates, are included, and likewise the sum of five pounds for every hundred pounds value of currants, which is found by experience to lessen the importation thereof: Wherefore for remedy thereof, and the encouragement of merchants to import the said goods, be it enacted, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety and three, and thenceforth, during the continuance of the said act, the sum of five pounds only shall be paid for every hundred pounds value of raisins of any sort to be imported after the said time, over and above the rates thereon charged in the said book of rates; and fifty shillings, and no more, for every hundred pounds value of currants imported after the said time, and thenceforth during the continuance of the last mentioned act, over and above the rates charged thereon in the said book of rates (the said act, or any thing therein contained to the contrary, notwithstanding) the same to be collected as in and by the said act is directed and appointed.

XI. And whereas by the said book of rates a value is imposed on every piece of calico, without mention of the length whereof such piece should consist; be it further enacted, That no piece of calico imported from and after the first day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety two, during the continuance of the said last recited act, of the breadth of one yard and a quarter, or under, shall exceed in length ten yards; and no piece of calico imported after the said time, during the continuance of the said act, above that breadth, shall exceed six yards; and if any piece of calico shall exceed those lengths, the same shall be rated according to the respective length of ten yards, and six yards for each piece, and pay for the same in that proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, according to the sum rated upon each piece piece of calico in the said book of rates; and that the subsidy, as well as the additional duties upon calicoes by the said last recited act appointed, shall be collected and paid according to that admeasurement of each piece of calico so imported from and after the said time, and not otherwise; any thing in the said book of rates or in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

XII. And for the better ascertaining, explaining, and settling the measures of East country linen, be it enacted, That all linen of Prussia, Polonia, or any part of the East country (except Russia) above the breadth of three quarters and half quarter of a yard, shall pay as broad Germany linen, during the continuance of the said last recited act; and all whited hinderlands from the same countries, under that breadth, shall pay during the said time, as narrow East country linen.

Measure of East country linen settled.

XV. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officers of the customs shall not take or receive from the merchant exporting any of the commodities chargeable by this or any other act with any additional duties, above what is chargeable by the book of rates, any fee or reward for passing any debenture for repayment of the duties to be paid back on exportation, according to the said acts, but shall only receive such fees as were payable for debentures for the repayment of the half subsidy, according to the book of rates, and no more: nor shall any fee or reward be taken for any oath to be administered at any custom house upon this act.

XVIII. And be it further enacted and ordained by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the officer and officers, who shall be concerned in the levying, collecting, and receiving the duties arising by this act, do keep a separate and distinct account thereof, and pay the same in specie into the receipt of their Majesties Exchequer weekly on Wednesday in every week, unless it be an holiday, and then the next day after which shall not be an holiday; and upon neglect or refusal of the same shall incur the penalties, forfeitures, damages, and costs, as other the officers of the Exchequer herein after mentioned shall be liable to; which monies so paid in, shall be applied to the uses hereafter mentioned in this act, and no otherwise.

Money to be paid into the Exchequer weekly.

XXIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That out of the money which shall be levied and paid into the receipt of the Exchequer, as well upon loan as otherwise, by virtue of this act, or any other act of this session of parliament for granting aids or supplies to their Majesties (other than an act, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties an aid of four shillings in the pound for one year, for carrying on a vigorous war against France) the sum of twelve hundred twenty six thousand five hundred and sixteen pounds ten shillings, shall be applied and appropriated, and is hereby appropriated to and for the payment of officers and seamen that have served, and shall serve in their Majesties navy royal, and for the paying for stores, provisions, and victuals, supplied and to be supplied for the said navy, and to and for the expences of their Majesties office of ordnance in respect to naval affairs, and for other necessary uses and services performed and to be performed in and for the said navy, and not otherwise. And if any officer in any way belonging to their Majesties revenue, or to the exchequer, navy, or ordnance respectively, shall wittingly and wilfully divert or misapply any part of the money hereby appropriated, to any other purpose than to the uses hereby directed, contrary to the true intent of this act, such officer and officers so offending, shall forfeit his and their office and place, and is and are hereby disabled and made incapable to hold or execute the said office, or any other office whatsoever.

Punishment upon officer misapplying.

XXV. And as well that the revenue of the customs may be more duly and regularly answered, as to render the several imposts, granted by this present act, a more effectual supply to their Majesties; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That as well the commissioners as the patent officers, and any of their deputies, clerks, or servants, who have or shall have any employment in or about their Majesties customs, shall, before the nineteenth

An act for prohibiting the importation of all foreign hair buttons.

c. 13.

WHEREAS by an act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of his late Majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act prohibiting the importation of foreign bone-lace, cut-work, imbroidery, fringe, band-strings, buttons, and needle-work, amongst other things in the said act mentioned, all foreign buttons made of thread or silk are prohibited to be imported and sold in the kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales: and whereas since the making of the said act, hair buttons are chiefly used and worn, and the button makers of England do make better hair buttons than any are imported from foreign parts, and are able to supply this kingdom with greater quantities of them than they can make use of; yet because buttons made of hair are not expressly mentioned in the said act (although they were thereby intended to be prohibited) many persons who are enemies to the manufactures of this kingdom, taking advantage of the said omission, do daily import such great quantities of hair buttons, that the button trade of England is very much decayed, and many thousands of poor people, that were formerly kept at work in the said trade, are like to perish for want of employment, and all the other mischiefs mentioned in the said act, which relate to the button trade, and were thereby intended to be remedied, are become as great as they were at the time of the making of the said act; for redress whereof, and the more effectual prevention of the like mischiefs for the future;

Foreign hair buttons not to be imported,
&c.

II. Be it enacted by the King's and Queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety and three, no foreign buttons made or to be made of hair, nor any other foreign buttons whatsoever, shall be imported, brought in, sent, or conveyed into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or port or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or bartered, sold, exchanged, or offered to be bartered, sold, or exchanged, upon pain of forfeiting all the said buttons so imported, brought in, bartered, sold, or exchanged, or offered to be bartered, sold, or exchanged, and upon such further and other pains, penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned, contained, and expressed in the said recited act; one moiety of all which forfeitures to be to the use of our sovereign lord and lady the King and Queen, their heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person or persons that shall sue for the same in any of their Majesties courts of record, by bill, plaint, action of debt, information, or otherwise, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

III. And

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the preventing the importing, bartering, selling, vending, or exposing to sale any foreign buttons whatsoever, the justices of the peace within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or port or town of Berwick upon Tweed, within their several and respective counties, cities, and towns corporate, have the same authority and power, and the same authority and power is hereby given unto the said justices, to issue forth their warrants, to seize, or cause to be seized all foreign buttons whatsoever, as by the said act is given unto them for the seizing of foreign buttons made of thread or silk, and other the manufactures in the said act mentioned.

Justices of

An act for continuing certain acts therein mentioned, and for charging several joint stocks.

Most gracious Sovereigns,

WE your Majesties most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons in parliament assembled, for a further supply to your Majesties for the more effectual prosecuting the present war against France, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted unto your Majesties the impositions and duties hereafter mentioned, for and during the respective terms hereafter expressed; and do beseech your Majesties to accept thereof, and that it may be enacted:

II. And be it enacted by the King's and Queen's most excellent Majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That the several impositions and duties upon wines and vinegar, granted by an act made in the first year of the late King James, intituled, An act for granting his Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar, imported between the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety and three; which said act, by an act of this present parliament, made in the second year of their Majesties reign, was continued from the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety three, until the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety six, shall be continued from the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety six, until the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety eight, and no longer: and that the said first mentioned act, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety eight, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, matters, and things in the said act contained, had been again repeated in this act, and particularly enacted.

3 Jac. 2. c. 3.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges, upon the several sorts of goods and merchandize granted by an act of this present parliament made in the second year of their Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all unwrought silks, and several other goods and merchandize, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety; and which were thereby to have continuance until the tenth day of November, one thousand six hundred ninety five, shall be continued from the ninth day of November, one thousand six hundred ninety five, and shall be raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid unto their Majesties, their heirs and successors, until the tenth day of November, one thousand six hundred ninety seven; and that the said act, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all unwrought silks and several other goods and merchandize, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said tenth day of November, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the said last mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, had been again repeated in this act, and enacted particularly; except only as to such part of the said impositions touching which other provisions or alterations are or shall be made, by any other act of this present session of parliament, which other provisions or alterations are to be observed, and to continue, during the continuance of this present act.

Persons interested only to swear to debenture for rebate.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the sixth day of April, one thousand six hundred ninety and three, no person be admitted to swear to a debenture for any duties to be drawn back upon re-exportation, but he who is the true exporter, as being either interested in the propriety and hazard of the goods on the exportation, or as being employed by commission, is concerned in the direction of the voyage, so as to be able to judge that the goods are really and bona fide exported, and not landed, nor intended to be re-landed in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed.

XIV. And whereas it is found by experience, That great quantities of goods are daily imported from foreign parts in a fraudulent and clandestine manner, without paying the customs and duties due and payable to their Majesties, and the same hath of late been much increased and promoted by ill men, who, notwithstanding the laws already made, do undertake as insurers, or otherwise, to deliver such goods so clandestinely imported, at their charge and hazard, into the houses, warehouses, or possession of the owners thereof: For the preventing so great a mischief, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons whatsoever, who, by way of insurance or otherwise, shall undertake or agree to deliver any goods or merchandizes whatsoever, to be imported from parts beyond the seas, at any port or place whatsoever within this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, without paying the customs and duties that shall be due and payable for the same at such importation, or any prohibited goods whatsoever, or in pursuance of such insurance, undertaking or agreement, shall deliver, or cause or procure to be delivered, any prohibited goods, or shall deliver or cause or procure to be delivered, any goods or merchandizes whatsoever, without paying such duties and customs as aforesaid, knowing thereof, and all and every their aiders, abettors, and assistants, shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose the sum of five hundred pounds, over and above all other forfeitures and penalties to which they are liable by any act already in force.

Five hundred pounds penalty on person insuring to import prohibited goods, or goods without custom.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons whatsoever, who shall agree to pay any sum or sums of money for the insuring or conveying any goods or merchandizes that shall be so imported, without paying the customs and duties due and payable at the importation thereof, or of any prohibited goods whatsoever, or shall receive or take such prohibited goods into his or their house or warehouse or other place on land, or such other goods, before such customs and duties are paid, knowing thereof, shall also for every such offence forfeit and lose the like sum of five hundred pounds; the one half of the said forfeitures to be to their Majesties, and the other half to the informer, or such person or persons as shall sue for the same.

Five hundred pounds penalty upon person who shall be so insured.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if the insurer, conveyor, or manager of such fraud, be the discoverer of the same, he shall not only keep and enjoy the insurance money or reward given him, and be discharged of the penalties to which he is liable by reason of such offence, but shall also have to his own use one half of the forfeitures hereby imposed upon the party or parties making such insurance or agreement, or receiving the goods as aforesaid; and in case no discovery shall be made by the insurer, conveyor or manager as aforesaid, and the party or parties insured or concerned in such agreement shall make discovery thereof, he shall recover and receive back such insurance money or premium, as he hath paid upon such insurance or agreement, and shall have to his own use one moiety of the forfeitures imposed upon such insurer, conveyor, or manager as aforesaid, and shall also be discharged of the forfeitures hereby imposed upon him or them.

Reward to insurer, discovering.

XVII. And be it enacted, That all the said penalties and forfeitures shall be recoverable according to the course of the court of Exchequer, in like manner as other penalties and forfeitures in like cases are recoverable.

Manner of recovering the penalty.

XVIII. Provided, That no penalty hereby inflicted shall be recoverable, unless the same be prosecuted within twelve months after the time such fact was committed; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Provido that prosecution be within twelve months.

An act for the regaining, encouraging, and settling the Greenland trade.

WHEREAS the trade to Greenland and the Greenland seas, in the fishing for whales there, hath been heretofore a very beneficial trade to this kingdom, not only in the employing great numbers of seamen and ships, and consuming great quantities of provisions, but also in the bringing into this nation great quantities of oil, blubber, and fins:

II. And whereas neighbouring nations do yearly make great advantage thereby, not only supplying themselves with that sort of oil and fins, but by vending into other parts great quantities thereof, and particularly into this kingdom, where the said trade is now quite decayed and lost:

III. And whereas several merchants of this kingdom did heretofore endeavour to settle and regain the said trade, and for their encouragement therein, it was by an act of parliament, made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trades, and for the better securing the plantation trade, (amongst other things) enacted, That in regard there was then great want of barponiers and seamen skilled and exercised in the trade of whale-fishing, it should and might be lawful for any ship or vessel truly belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and whereof the master should be an Englishman, and inhabiting within the places aforesaid, from and after the first day of May, which was in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred seventy and three, and until the five and twentieth day of March, which was in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred eighty and three, employed for the catching of whales, during such voyage, to be navigated with one moiety of the barponiers and one moiety of the rest of the mariners only English, and yet to pay no further or other custom for the oil, blubber, or fins, caught or imported in such ship or vessel, than if such ship or vessel had been navigated with three fourths of the mariners English; which said act was by another act of parliament made in the second year of their present Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties a subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, continued for four years:

2 W. & M.
ff. 1. c. 4.

IV. And whereas several merchants and other persons of this kingdom were by the first recited act encouraged to fit out and send to the said Greenland seas some ships or vessels for the catching of whales, whereby some small quantities of oil, blubber, and whale fins were imported into this kingdom, but they not being able to carry on the said trade upon their single or separate interests, in regard that the neighbouring nations did yearly send far greater numbers of ships into those seas, the said merchants and other persons of this kingdom were forced to desist from following the said trade, which is now wholly ingrossed by foreigners; and since the expiration and revival of the said act, there have not been any ships sent from England to the said Greenland seas, or any oil, blubber, or whale fins imported into England, but such as have been bought of foreigners, whereby great sums of money are yearly drawn out of England for those commodities, and the rates and prices which are now paid for the same, are now above six times more than heretofore they were, and the said trade having been for above these twelve years last past wholly lost to this kingdom, there are very few or no English barponiers or English seamen skilled and exercised in the said trade of whale-catching, so that the said trade cannot now be regained to this kingdom, nor can be carried on by or without the assistance of foreign barponiers and seamen, or upon the single interests or stocks of any particular persons, or by any other way than by a joint stock:

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the said company hereby established, and for all and every the ships and vessels belonging to or employed by the said company, and truly belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and whereof the masters shall be Englishmen, and inhabiting within the places aforesaid, and for no other ship or vessel whatsoever, from and after the first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety three, and until the first day of October, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seven, employed for the catching of whales in the Greenland seas, and other the seas and places aforesaid, during such their voyages, to be navigated with one third of the mariners English at the least, and yet to pay no further or other custom for the oil, blubber, or fins, caught and imported in such ships or vessels, than if such ships or vessels had been navigated with three fourths of the mariners English; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XXVIII. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no English ship or other vessel belonging to England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and which shall belong to and be employed by the said company, in the catching of whales in the Greenland seas, and other the seas and places aforesaid, and importing whale oil, or blubber, or other fish oil, or whale fins of Greenland, or those seas, or other the seas and places aforesaid, shall enjoy any benefit or privilege by this act, unless such ship or vessel did proceed on her voyage for Greenland and those seas, or for other the seas or places aforesaid, from England or Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, and was victualled for the said voyage in some of those places, to be attested by the collector of the port where the same ship or vessel was victualled. Majesties the subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money given and granted unto his late Majesty King Charles the Second for his life, by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandize exported and imported, according to the rates in the said act mentioned, and rules and orders thereunto annexed (other than such concerning which it is otherwise provided or ordained by an act made in the last or in this present parliament) and do most humbly beseech your Majesties, that it may be enacted;

II. And be it enacted by the King's and Queen's most excellent majesties, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the aforesaid subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandize, be levied, collected and paid unto their Majesties for the term of five years, and no longer, to commence on the twenty sixth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety four, and that the aforesaid act, and every article, rule and clause therein mentioned, and also an order of the commons in parliament assembled, made in pursuance of the rules and orders annexed to the aforesaid act, for settling of officers fees, dated the seventeenth of May, one thousand six hundred sixty two, and signed by Sir Edward Turner then speaker, shall be of full force and effect to all intents and purposes, during the said term of five years, as fully and in like manner, as if the same were particularly and at large recited and set down in the body of this act.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said King Charles the Second, intituled, An act to prevent frauds and concealments of his Majesty's customs and subsidies: as also an act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of the said late King, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs: and also an act made in the two and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for improvement of tillage, and the breed of cattle: and also one other act made in the twenty fifth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for taking off aliens duty upon commodities of the growth, product, and manufacture of the nation: and also one other act made in the said twenty fifth year of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trades, and for the better securing the plantation trade: and also one other act made in the first year of the late King James the Second, intituled, An additional act for improvement of tillage; be of full force and effect during the said term of five years: Provided nevertheless, and be it declared and enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be construed or taken to determine any articles or clauses in any of the before mentioned acts, which were appointed and intended to be perpetual, or which are continued by any act of parliament, for any time which will not expire within the said term of five years, but that the same and every of them shall continue and remain in force, as if this present act had not been made; but such of the said acts, and such clauses in any of them, as would otherwise determine within the said term of five years, shall hereby be revived, and stand, continue, and be in force for the said term of five years only, and no longer.

IV. Provided nevertheless, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any goods, wares or merchandize, shall happen to be imported into this kingdom upon the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred ninety four, and not landed or put on shore upon the said day, all the said goods so imported, and not landed, shall be subject unto like duties, rates, payments and penalties, as if the same had been imported after the commencement of this grant; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That two of their Majesties commissioners of the customs, first named in the commission, whereby they are now authorised to act, shall respectively take their corporal oaths before the chancellor or chief baron of the Exchequer, or master of the rolls for the time being; which they and every of them respectively are hereby authorised and required to administer to them, on or before the first day of January next ensuing, for the true and faithful execution, to the best of their knowledge and power, of their several respective trusts committed to their charge and inspection, and that they will not take or receive any reward or gratuity, directly or indirectly, other than their respective salaries, and what is or shall be allowed them from the crown, or the regular fees established by law, for any service done or to be done in the execution of their employment in the customs, on any account whatsoever. And every other of the said commissioners, and the patent officers, and every of their deputies, clerks or servants, and all other officers who have or shall have any employment in or about their Majesties customs within the port of London, shall, before the first day of February next ensuing, or at their respective admissions hereafter to their respective employments, take the said oath before any two commissioners of the customs, who are hereby authorised to administer the same unto them, after they shall themselves have taken the said oath as aforesaid. And all and every such other patent officers, and every of their deputies, clerks or servants, and all other officers who have or shall have any employment in or about their Majesties customs in the out-ports, or elsewhere, shall, before the five and twentieth day of March next ensuing, or at their respective admissions into their respective employments, take the said oath before two justices of the peace, in the county, town, or place, where his or their employments shall be, who are hereby authorised and required to administer the same accordingly. And when any new commission shall be at any time hereafter made or granted for the constituting of commissioners of the customs, the said oath shall be administered and taken in like manner by the several and respective new commissioners, as is before directed. And if any of the said commissioners or officers, their deputies, clerks or servants, shall neglect or refuse to take the said oath in such manner as is hereby directed and appointed, every such person so refusing or neglecting shall forfeit such his office or employment.

Commissioners and officers of customs to take oath of execution, upon penalty of forfeiting their office.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the persons hereby respectively authorised and required to administer the oath hereby appointed to be taken, shall certify the taking thereof to the next general quarter sessions of the peace, to be held for the county, city, or place, where such oath shall be administered and taken; which certificate shall be recorded and kept amongst the rolls of the said general quarter sessions.

Certificate of oath taken to be returned to the sessions.

VII. And lest any doubt should arise by the intermission or discontinuance of the duties hereby granted, whether debentures for any goods and merchandize exported, or any allowances or abatements for any damage or defects upon any goods or merchandize imported, or for over-entries, which according to the ordinary course of the customs ought to have been made or paid, shall be due and payable out of the duties hereby granted; it is hereby further enacted, That all such debentures, allowances and abatements, as have incurred or grown due, according to the common rules and course of the customs, since the four and twentieth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred and ninety, shall still remain due and payable, and be allowed in their ordinary course, as if no such intermission or discontinuance had been made.

(7) For every pound of tea imported as aforesaid, from Holland, or any other country, not the place of its growth, or or usual shipping, two shillings and six pence per pound weight; and so proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity of any of the commodities imported as aforesaid respectively. (8) For all nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, and mace, imported as aforesaid, five pounds for every hundred pounds value thereof, according to the several values charged on them respectively in the book of rates, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity thereof, over and above all duties now payable for the same. (9) For all pictures imported within the time aforesaid, whether for private use or sale, which are hereby permitted to be imported during the continuance of this act, any law or use to the contrary notwithstanding, twenty pounds of lawful English money per centum of the value, to be affirmed by the oath of the importer, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity thereof.

III. Provided, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to import into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, during the continuance of this act, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and tea, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in English ships, whereof the master and at least two thirds of the mariners are Englishmen, so as notice be first given to the commissioners or farmers of his Majesty's customs, of the quality and quantity of the said spices so intended to be imported, with the name of the ship, and master or commander on which they are to be laden, and the place into which they intend to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the commissioners or farmers of the customs for the time being, or any three of them, for the lading and importing thereof, as aforesaid; which licence they are hereby authorized and required to grant, without any fee or reward, or any other charge to the person demanding the same; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the commodities aforesaid, whereof the duties are or shall be due, shall be unshipped or laid on land, the duties due or to be due for the same not paid, or lawfully tendred to the collector thereof, or his deputy, with the consent and agreement of the comptroller and surveyor there, nor agreed with for the same in the custom house, according to the true meaning of this act, that then from the said first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety five, all the said goods and merchandizes shall be forfeited; the one moiety of the said goods so forfeited shall be to his Majesty's use, and the other moiety to him or them that will seize or sue for the same, without any composition whatsoever.

V. Provided always, and be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That every merchant or other importer, having paid the said duties and impositions in and by this act appointed to be paid for any of the said goods or merchandizes herein mentioned, which might by law have been imported before the making of this act, who, being a native, shall within twelve months, or an alien, shall within nine months, next after such his importation thereof, again ship off and carry out of this kingdom, or any part thereof, the said goods or merchandizes, or any part thereof, to any part beyond the seas, that such merchant or other importer, on such his exportation thereof, shall be repaid two thirds of the duties, so by him paid by virtue of this act; of so much of the said goods and merchandizes which he shall so export or ship off; the said merchant or exporter making oath on his debenture in hac verba, That all the goods, entred and shipped as there certified, are really and truly exported for parts beyond the seas on his own account, if he acts for himself; or if he acts by commission, then on the account of such person or persons for whom the deponent acts in the direction of the voyage, and that none of the said goods have been since landed, or are intended to be relanded, in England, Wales, or Berwick.

VI. And be it further enacted and ordained by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the officer and officers, who shall be concerned in the levying,

An act for the better admeasurement of keels and keel boats in the port of Newcastle, and the members thereunto belonging.

WHEREAS by two several statutes heretofore made, the one in the ninth year of the reign of King Henry the Fifth, intituled, Keels that carry coals at Newcastle, shall be measured and marked; and the other in the sixth year of our late sovereign lord King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the admeasurement of keels and boats carrying coals; for the remedy of deceits therein complained of (amongst other things) it was thereby enacted, That commissioners should from time to time be appointed by his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors, for the admeasuring and marking all and every the keels and other boats, and wains, and carts used, or in any time hereafter to be used, for the carriage of coals in the port of Newcastle upon Tyne, Sunderland upon the River Wear, Cullercoates, Seaton-Suice, Blyth-nook, and all and every of the members, havens, creeks, and places whatsoever, so the said port of Newcastle belonging, upon the forfeiture that every keel, boat, wain, or cart, which should hereafter carry coals in any of the aforesaid places, before they shall be admeasured and marked, as aforesaid, should be forfeited, together with the coals laden upon them: notwithstanding which divers new frauds, deceits and abuses have of late arisen, and are daily practised, to the diminution of his Majesty's customs, customs, and the great prejudice and damage of the buyers and sellers of coals; for remedy whereof,

II. Be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That commissioners shall from time to time be appointed by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for the admeasuring and marking all and every the keels, pan-keels, and pan-boats, and other boats, and wains, and carts used, or in any time hereafter to be used, for the carriage of coals in the port of Newcastle upon Tyne, Sunderland upon the river Wear, Culler-coates, Seaton-sluike, Blyth-nook, and all other places within the counties of Northumberland and Durham, and all and every the members, havens, rivers, creeks and places whatsoever, to the said port of Newcastle, and counties aforesaid belonging; which said admeasurement shall be by a dead weight of lead or iron, or otherwise, as shall seem meet to the said commissioners, or any three of them, allowing three and fifty hundred weight to every chaldron of coals; which said keels, boats, wains, or carts, shall be admeasured and marked at the times and places, and in manner hereafter mentioned; any thing in the said former acts to the contrary notwithstanding.

III. Provided always, That the weight or contents of coals, loaden or carried by every such wain, shall be of the weight or content of seventeen hundred weight and an half, and the weight or contents of coals, loaden or carried by every such cart, shall be of the weight or content of eight hundred and three quarters; and that three such wains, or six such carts, shall be reckoned and allowed for one chaldron, and no more, and that no other wains or carts are hereby intended to be admeasured or marked, but only such wains and carts as are now or hereafter shall be employed in carrying coals to the staiths, to be directly put from the staiths into the ships, and no others.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said commissioners, or any three or more of them, shall cause all and every of the said keels, boats, wains and carts to be admeasured accordingly; and shall give three days notice of the time and place of such admeasurement to the owner or owners thereof, and cause the said keels and boats to be admeasured, to be marked and nailed on each side the stem and stern and midship thereof, or otherwise, as they the said commissioners, or any three of them, in their discretions shall direct; and the said wains and carts to be marked and nailed on the head and sides of the said wains, carts, or otherwise, as the said commissioners, or any three of them, shall direct, or by such persons as shall be by them thereunto appointed; which persons so appointed shall take an oath before the said commissioners, or any three of them, for the true and impartial performance and discharging the same; which oath the said commissioners are hereby impowered to administer: and if the owner or owners of such keels or boats, wains or carts, shall after such notice neglect or refuse to have their said keels, boats, wains or carts so admeasured, they and every of them shall incur the penalty hereafter mentioned.

V. Provided, That no such keel or boat be admeasured, marked or nailed, but between the five and twentieth day of March, and the nine and twentieth day of September, in any year, nor shall be admeasured, marked or nailed, to carry more than ten such chaldrons of coals at any one time; and that all such keels and boats belonging to the port of Newcastle shall be admeasured, marked and nailed at the new key of the said port, and that the keels and boats belonging to the river Wear shall be admeasured, marked and nailed at Lambton Staiths, upon the said river, and not elsewhere; and that all the keels and boats belonging to Culler-coates, Seaton-sluike, Blyth-nook, and all other places within the said counties of Northumberland and Durham, as also all wains and carts, to be admeasured and marked by virtue of this act,

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the rates, duties, and impositions, for all sorts of tobacco, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all tobacco and sugar imported between the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three; which said act, as for and concerning the said duties and impositions on tobacco only, by an act of parliament made in the second year of the reign of his Majesty and the said late Queen, was continued from the three and and twentieth day of June, in the said year one thousand six hundred ninety three, until the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety six; and by another act made in the fourth and fifth years of their said Majesties reign, was continued from the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred and ninety six, until the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety eight; shall be continued from the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, until the said nine and twentieth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and one, and no longer.

4 & 5 W. & M. c. 15.

III. Provided always, and be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon tobacco, which were granted by the said act made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James, and continued, as aforesaid, and which by the said acts were made payable by the first buyer, and subject to the rules of excise, in the several parts of management thereof, shall, for all such tobacco as shall be imported between the first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety six, and the said nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, be secured, collected, raised, levied, answered, and paid to his Majesty, according to the true intent and meaning of this present act, in the method herein after particularly directed, and with such discount and allowances to the merchants as are herein also mentioned, and no otherwise; any thing in the said former acts to the contrary notwithstanding: and that the commissioners of his Majesty's customs for the time being, or any four or more of them, be authorized and impowered, and the said commissioners of the customs, or any four or more of them for the time being, are hereby authorized and impowered to give the necessary directions for securing, collecting, raising, levying, answering, and paying, to his Majesty, the said duties upon tobacco, and to make the discount and allowances to the merchants herein after mentioned, for all such tobacco as shall be imported between the said first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety six, and the said nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, means, or ways, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned and expressed in one act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money, payable upon merchandize exported and imported, and the rules, directions, and orders, thereunto annexed, or any other law now in force, relating to the collection of his Majesty's customs; which said act and acts, and every article, rule, and clause, therein contained, shall stand and be in force for the purposes aforesaid, during the continuance of this act.

upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandize, to be imported after the said five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses, therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said nine and twentieth day of September, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying, the said duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the said last mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things, therein contained, had been again repeated in this act, and enacted particularly, except only as to such part of the said acts, touching which other provisions or alterations are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, which other provisions or alterations are to be observed, and to continue during the continuance of this act.

V. And whereas the methods prescribed by the said recited act, granting the said duties upon tobacco, made in the first year of the late King James the Second, have been found prejudicial to trade, and grievous to the merchants concerned in paying the same: Therefore, for the more easy and better collection of the said duties for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the security to be given for the said duties upon tobacco be, by bond to be given by the importer thereof, with one or more sufficient sureties, for payment of the duty at the end of eighteen months from the importation, and that there be a discount of ten per centum, for prompt payment of the said impost duty, if the same shall be paid within three months from the date of the entry, and of eight per centum at any time afterwards within six months from the same, of six per centum if within nine months, of four per centum if within twelve months, of two per centum if within fifteen months, but after fifteen months expired, there shall be no discount at all; that on any payment of the said duty for tobacco to be consumed here, there be an allowance for the future of eight pounds per centum, for the merchants encouragement, in consideration of waste and shrinkage in the cellars; that the security given by the importers for eighteen months be discharged by debentures referring to the particular entries on exportation, at any time within twelve months from the importation, and not after that time; that there shall be an allowance of four pounds per centum, in consideration of waste that may arise on any tobacco so exported, to be struck off only from the entry, and not to be paid where the whole quantity entered shall happen to be exported; that the debentures for half subsidy, additional and impost duties of the same quantity of tobacco exported be one or more parchment or parchments, and that the oath be printed thereon in hac verba, to be signed and sworn by the exporters, That all the tobacco entered and shipped, as there certified, is really and truly exported for parts beyond the seas on his own account, if he acts for himself; or if he acts by commission, then on the account of such person or persons for whom the deponent acts in the direction of the voyage; and that none of the said tobacco has been since landed, or is intended to be re-landed, in England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the whole management or ordering of the said duties on tobacco, both as to the entry and the account thereof, be made during the continuance of this act (except where it is otherwise hereby directed) conformable to the methods and rules of the customs.

XII. And whereas great frauds and abuses have been and are daily committed, to the prejudice of his Majesty's revenue, by pretence or colour of exporting tobacco and other goods by land carriage into Scotland, and obtaining debentures for the same, although in truth such goods have not been really exported,

XVI. And whereas several merchants trading with the United Provinces in several sorts of coarse linens, commonly called borelapps, have of late been compelled to pay custom for the same as Hollands, which comes to above thirty five pounds per centum, whereby the said trade (so useful to the poorer sort of people) is not only likely to be lost, but the customs thereby much abated; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such linen cloth, known or commonly called by the name of borelapps, not exceeding twenty eight inches and an half in breadth, nor twelve pence an English ell in value, shall be entred ad valorem during the continuance of this act, and pay all other duties accordingly.

Linen cloth called borelapps to be entred ad valorem, and pay the duties.

XVII. And whereas the scarcity and dearness of iron in this kingdom have of late much discouraged the manufactures thereof, in which great numbers of the poor are employed: for remedy whereof for the future be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to import into this kingdom, from Ireland, any bar-iron, unwrought, and iron slit or hammered into rods (other than Swedish or other foreign iron) discharged of the impositions and duties laid upon the same by an act made in the fourth and fifth year of the reign of their Majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for the prosecuting the war against France; any thing in the said act to the contrary notwithstanding.

SECT. VI. AND for the more effectual prohibiting the melting down the coin of this kingdom, and silver plate wrought within this realm, and the exportation of the molten silver and bullion of this kingdom, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the last day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety six, no person or persons whatsoever shall ship or cause to be shipped or put on board any vessel or ship whatsoever, any molten silver or bullion whatsoever, either in bars, ingots, wedges, cakes, pinas, or in any other form whatsoever, unless a certificate be first had and obtained from the court of the lord mayor and aldermen of the city of London, oath having been made before the said court, by the owner or owners of such molten silver or bullion, and likewise by two or more credible witnesses, that the same molten silver and bullion, and every part and parcel thereof, was and is foreign bullion, and that no part thereof was (before the same was molten) the coin of this realm, or clippings thereof, nor plate wrought within this kingdom, which oath the said court of the said lord mayor and aldermen of the city of London are hereby required and authorized to administer, and to examine strictly all and every such persons as shall make such oath concerning the premises, and likewise to make and grant a certificate thereof, as aforesaid, without fee or reward; which certificate shall also contain and express the name and names of the owner or owners of such molten silver or bullion, and of the witness or witnesses, and the true weight of such molten silver or bullion; an entry of which certificate shall be duly made by the said court, in a book to be kept for that purpose; which certificate shall be shewn to the commissioners of the customs for the time being, or four of them, before any cocket be granted for the exporting such molten silver or bullion; and an entry thereof shall be also duly made by the said commissioners of the customs, in a book to be kept by them for that purpose.

VII. And be it further enacted, That if any person or persons whatsoever shall ship, or cause to be shipped or put on board any vessel or ship, any molten silver or bullion whatsoever, as aforesaid, without oath, certificate, and entry first made and obtained, as is before provided; in every such case it shall and may be lawful to and for any officer or officers of his Majesty's customs, or any other person or persons, to seize such molten silver and bullion so shipped and put on board, as forfeited; one moiety whereof shall be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the officer and officers, or persons so seizing the same; and the owner or owners, proprietor or proprietors of such molten silver or bullion, shall forfeit double the value of such molten silver or bullion; one moiety whereof shall be to his Majesty, and the other moiety to the person that shall sue or inform for the same, to be recovered, with costs of suit, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no privilege, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; and the captain or master of such ship or vessel, (if the same belong to a subject) who shall knowingly permit the said molten silver or bullion to be put on board his said ship or vessel, shall forfeit to such person or persons persons as shall sue or inform for the same, the sum of two hundred pounds, to be sued for and recovered in manner as aforesaid; and in case the ship or vessel be a man of war, or vessel belonging to his Majesty, then the captain thereof shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds to any person that shall sue for the same as aforesaid, and shall forfeit his employment, and be made incapable of any office or employment, civil or military.

VIII. And be it further enacted, That if any commissioner or commissioners, officer or officers of the customs, shall grant any cocquet for exporting of any molten silver or bullion whatsoever, before such certificate first had, as by this act is directed, and entry thereof made in the book hereby directed to be kept by the commissioners of the customs; that every such commissioner and officer of the customs so offending shall forfeit the sum of two hundred pounds, and be made incapable of any other office or place of profit or trust whatsoever.

Penalty on commissioners, &c. granting cocquets for exporting bullion before certificate, &c.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any seizure of any molten silver or bullion shall happen to be made in pursuance and execution of this act, or that any action, bill, plaint, or information shall be brought for any of the forfeitures or penalties incurred by this act, and a doubt or question shall arise thereon, whether the molten silver or bullion then in question were really and truly foreign bullion, or prohibited to be exported, or otherwise forfeited by this act; in every such case the proof shall lie on the part of the owner, proprietor, or claimer, of such molten silver or bullion; and unless the owner, proprietor, or claimer, or the party sued, shall prove that the molten silver or bullion in question was, at the time of the seizure or forfeiture thereof, foreign bullion, and that no part thereof was (before the same was molten) the coin of this realm, nor clippings thereof, nor plate wrought within this kingdom, that in every such case, for want of such proof, the molten silver and bullion in question shall be adjudged, deemed, construed, and taken, to be molten silver and bullion forfeited by this act, and liable to the penalties before mentioned.

In case of seizure of bullion, proof to lie on the owners; and for want of proof, to be forfeited.

An act for granting to his Majesty an additional duty upon all French goods and merchandize.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons assembled in parliament, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do hereby give and grant unto your Majesty the additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges, upon the several sorts of goods and merchandize, to be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, during such time and in such manner and form, as herein after followeth; and do humbly pray your Majesty that it may be enacted:

II. And be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That there shall be answered and paid to his Majesty, and his heirs and successors, for the several goods and merchandizes hereafter mentioned, over and above all all impositions, duties, and charges, already imposed and payable upon and for the same in the book of rates of merchandize, by act of parliament established, and the direction therein contained or otherwise, the further rates and duties following; (that is to say)

French wine imported to pay 25 l. per tun above the old rates for 21 years.

III. For every tun of French wine imported from and after the twenty eighth day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety six, for the term of one and twenty years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer, five and twenty pounds above the duties already charged thereupon, without any deduction, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity.

Brandy of single proof 30 l. per tun. Double proof 60 l. per tun. French goods condemned as prize exempted by 8. & 9 W. 3. c. 24. s. 5.

IV. For every tun of French brandy of single proof imported after the twenty eighth day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety six, for the term of one and twenty years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer, thirty pounds: and for every tun of French brandy of double proof imported, as aforesaid, sixty pounds, over and above the duties already charged thereupon, without any deduction, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity.

Repealed as to rating several goods ad valorem, 11 Geo. 1. c. 7. Duties on French wines and goods, &c. made perpetual by 1 Geo. 3. stat. 2. c. 13. s. 3.

Vinegar 15 l. per tun.

V. For every tun of French vinegar imported after the said twenty eighth day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety six, for the term of one and twenty years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer, fifteen pounds, over and above the duties already charged thereupon, without any deduction, and so proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity.

All other French goods 25 l. per cent. ad valorem.

VI. For all other goods of the growth, product, or manufacture of France, imported after the said twenty eighth day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety six, for the term of one and twenty years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer, five and twenty pounds per centum ad valorem, over and above the duties already charged thereupon, without any deduction, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity.

Duties on wine lees imported, repealed by 1 Geo. stat. 2. c. 17. s. 1, 2. and wine lees are to pay as wine. Rates, penalties, &c. to be as in 12 Car. 2. c. 4. Made part of the aggregate fund, 1 Geo. 1. c. 12.

VII. Provided always, and be it enacted, That the several rates and impositions hereby imposed upon the respective goods and merchandizes aforesaid, shall be collected and paid according to the respective rates and proportions herein expressed, and be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto his Majesty, during the respective times before mentioned, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, means, and ways, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are mentioned and expressed in one act of parliament, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money, payable upon merchandize exported and imported, and the rules, directions, and orders, theretunto annexed, or any other laws now in force relating to the collection of his Majesty's customs; which said act and acts, and every article, rule, and clause, therein contained, shall stand and be in force for the purposes aforesaid, during the continuance of this act.

VIII. And whereas a very useful and profitable invention or mystery hath been lately found out, for the better and more speedy making and knitting of worsted and silk stockings, waistcoats, gloves, and other wearing necessities, whereby great quantities are wrought off in a little time, his Majesty's dominions abundantly supplied, and great quantities exported into foreign nations, to the increase of his Majesty's customs, and the improvement of trade and commerce: and whereas several of the frames or engines for the making and knitting of such stockings and other wearing necessities have been of late exported out of this Kingdom, whereby the said commodities have been made in foreign parts, which were heretofore made in this Kingdom only, to the great discouragement of the woollen trade in general, and the great detriment of the said mystery, and the impoverishment of many families, who have been thereby maintained: For the prevention prevention of which inconveniencies for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety six, no person or persons whatsoever shall load or put on board any ship or vessel any such frame or frames, or any part or parcel thereof, in order to be exported beyond the seas, upon pain that the person or persons offending herein shall not only forfeit or lose such frame and frames; parts or parcels of frames, which shall be so loaden and put on board, in order to be exported beyond the seas, as aforesaid, but also the sum of forty pounds of lawful money of England, for such frame, or part or parcel thereof; the one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety thereof to the person or persons who shall inform and sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, or more than one imparlance.

Penalty on exporting stocking frames or engines.

One moiety to the King, the other to the prosecutor.

IX. And for the more effectual preventing the exportation of such frames, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons whatsoever, which from and after the said first day of May, shall buy, sell, dispose of, or remove from place to place, any such frame or engine, or any parts or parcels thereof, shall, within two months next after such disposal or removal thereof, give notice in writing to the master and wardens of the company of Framework-knitters within the city of London, or to their lawful deputy or deputies for the time being, some or one of them, to whom and what place the same were so sold, disposed, or removed, to the end that an account may be taken by the said master and wardens, or their deputy or deputies, thereof, upon pain that every person and persons offending herein shall forfeit and pay, for every such offence, to the uses aforesaid, the sum of five pounds of like money, to be recovered as aforesaid.

Master and wardens of the company of framework-knitters, London, to have notice of the selling or removing of stocking frames.

Goods not to be imported or exported to or from the plantations but in ships built in England, Ireland, or in the plantations.

Except prize ships, and foreign ships employed for 3 years to bring in naval stores.

Penalty.

Goods may be imported and exported in prize ships, the master and three fourths of the mariners being English.

Governors of English plantations to take an oath to observe all the clauses in this and the other acts relating to the said plantations. Further provided for by 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 20. s. 69.

whatsoever shall be imported into, or exported out of, any colony or plantation to his Majesty, in Asia, Africa, or America, belonging, or in his possession, or which may hereafter belong unto, or be in the possession of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or shall be laden in, or carried from any one port or place in the said colonies or plantations, to any other port or place in the same, the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in any ship or bottom, but what is or shall be of the built of England, or of the built of Ireland, or the said colonies or plantations, and wholly owned by the people thereof, or any of them, and navigated with the masters and three-fourths of the mariners of the said places only, (except such ships only as are or shall be taken as prize, and condemnation thereof made in one of the courts of admiralty in England, Ireland, or the said colonies or plantations, to be navigated by the master and three-fourths of the mariners English, or of the said plantations as aforesaid, and whereof the property doth belong to English men; and also except for the space of three years, such foreign built ships as shall be employed by the commissioners of his Majesty's navy for the time being, or upon contract with them, in bringing only masts, timber, and other naval stores for the King's service from his Majesty's colonies or plantations to this kingdom, to be navigated as aforesaid, and whereof the property doth belong to English men), under pain of forfeiture of ship and goods; one third part whereof to be to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, one third part to the governor of the said colonies or plantations, and the other third part to the person who shall inform and sue for the same, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in any court in his Majesty's plantations, where such offence shall be committed.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That (from and after the said five and twentieth day of March) goods or merchandizes may be exported or imported to and from this kingdom, the colonies, plantations, and places aforesaid, in any such ships as are or shall be taken as prize, and whereof condemnation shall be made in one of the courts of admiralty aforesaid, and shall be navigated as aforesaid, by the master, three fourths of the mariners English, and whereof the property shall belong to English men, and also masts, timber, and other naval stores for his Majesty's service, for the space of three years, may be imported from his Majesty's colonies or plantations to this kingdom, in such foreign built ships as shall be employed by the commissioners of the navy for the time being, or by contract with them; any law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And whereas by one clause in the said act passed in the twelfth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, all governors of his Majesty's colonies or plantations in Asia, Africa, or America, are required to take a solemn oath to do their utmost that every the clauses therein before mentioned, and all the matters and things therein contained, shall be punctually and bona fide observed according to the true intent and meaning thereof, so that the said governors are not strictly obliged by that oath to put in execution the subsequent clauses of the said act, although some of the clauses following are of great importance, and tend greatly to the security of the plantation trade: and whereas divers other good laws have been made for the better regulating and securing the plantation trade since the said last mentioned act; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the present governors and commanders in chief of any English colonies or plantations, shall, before the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, and all who hereafter shall be made governors or commanders in chief of the said colonies or plantations, or any of them, before their entrance into their government, shall take a solemn oath to do their utmost, that all the clauses, matters, and things, contained in the before recited acts of parliament heretofore passed, and now in force, relating to the said colonies and plantations, and that that all and every the clauses contained in this present act, be punctually and bona fide observed, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, (which oath shall be taken before such person or persons as shall be appointed by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, who are hereby authorized to administer the same) so far as appertains unto the said governors or commanders in chief respectively; and upon complaint and proof made before his Majesty, his heirs and successors, or such as shall be by him or them thereunto authorized and appointed, by the oath of two or more credible witnesses, that any of the said governors or commanders in chief have neglected to take the said oath at the times aforesaid, or have been wittingly or willingly negligent in doing their duty accordingly, the said governor so neglecting or offending shall be removed from his government, and forfeit the sum of one thousand pounds sterling.

V. And whereas by the said act of the fifteenth of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of trade, the governors of the plantations are impowered to appoint an officer for the performance of certain things in the said act mentioned, which said officer is there commonly known by the name of the naval officer; and whereas through the connivance or negligence of the persons so appointed by the governors of the said plantations, divers frauds and abuses are or have been committed; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the said officers already appointed shall, within two months after notice of this act in the respective plantations, or as soon as conveniently it may be, give security to the commissioners of the customs in England for the time being, or such as shall be appointed by them, for his Majesty's use, for the true and faithful performance of their duty; and all and every person or persons, who shall hereafter be appointed to the said office or employment, shall within two months, or as soon as conveniently it may be, after his or their entrance upon the said office or employment, give sufficient security to the commissioners of the customs as aforesaid, for his Majesty's use, for the true and faithful performance of his or their duty; and in default thereof, the person or persons neglecting or refusing to give such security, shall be disabled to execute the said office or employment; and until such security given, and the person appointed to the said office or employment be approved by the commissioners of the customs as aforesaid, the respective governor or governors shall be answerable for any the offences, neglects, or misdemeanors, of the person or persons so by him or them appointed.

15 Car. 2. c. 7.

Naval officers in the plantations to give security to the commissioners of the customs in England for performance of their duty, and in default to be disabled.

Governors in the interim to be answerable.

VI. And for the more effectual preventing of frauds, and regulating abuses in the plantation trade in America, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all ships coming into, or going out of, any of the said plantations, and lading or unlading any goods or commodities, whether the same be his Majesty's ships of war, or merchants ships, and the masters and commanders thereof, and their ladings, shall be subject and liable to the same rules, visitations, searches, penalties and forfeitures, as to the entering, lading, or discharging their respective ships and ladings, as ships and their ladings, and the commanders and masters of ships, are subject and liable unto in this kingdom, by virtue of an act of parliament made in the fourteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs: and that the officers for collecting and managing his Majesty's revenue, and inspecting the plantation trade, in any of the said plantations, shall have the same powers and authorities, for visiting and searching of ships, and taking their entries, and for seizing and securing or bringing on shore any of the goods prohibited to be imported or exported into or out of any the said plantations, or for which any duties are payable, or ought to have been paid, by any of the before mentioned acts, as are provided for the officers of the customs in England by the said last mentioned act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and also to enter houses or warehouses,

Ships coming into, or going out of, the plantations, liable to the same rules, &c. as ships in England, by 14 Car. 2. c. 11.

And officers of the revenue there to have the same powers as officers of the customs in England.

Penalty on wharfingers, &c. assisting in concealment or rescue of goods.

Like assistance to be given the officers, and officers subject to the same penalties as by 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 11.

General issue.

One third of the forfeitures to be to the King, another to the governor of the plantation, and the other to the prosecutor.

Proof to lie on the owner.

25 Car. 2. c. 7.

No goods to be shipped, though duties paid in the plantations, until security be given as required by 12 Car. 2. c. 12. & 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 16. on forfeiture of ship and goods.

Laws, bye-laws, &c. of plantations, repugnant to this act, to be void.

houses, to search for and seize any such goods; and that all the wharfingers, and owners of keys and wharfs, or any lightermen, bargemen, watermen, porters, or other persons assisting in the conveyance, concealment, or rescue of any of the said goods, or in the hindering or resistance of any of the said officers in the performance of their duty, and the boats, barges, lighters, or other vessels, employed in the conveyance of such goods, shall be subject to the like pains and penalties as are provided by the same act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, in relation to prohibited or uncustomed goods in this kingdom; and that the like assistance shall be given to the said officers in the execution of their office, as by the said last-mentioned act is provided for the officers in England; and also that the said officers shall be subject to the same penalties and forfeitures, for any corruptions, frauds, connivances, or concealments, in violation of any the before mentioned laws, as any officers of the customs in England are liable to, by virtue of the said last mentioned act; and also that in case any officer or officers in the plantations shall be sued or molested for any thing done in the execution of their office, the said officer shall and may plead the general issue, and shall give this or other custom acts in evidence, and the judge to allow thereof, have and enjoy the like privileges and advantages, as are allowed by law to the officers of his Majesty's customs in England.

VII. And it is hereby further enacted, That all the penalties and forfeitures before mentioned, not in this act particularly disposed of, shall be one third part to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and one third part to the governor of the colony or plantation where the offence shall be committed, and the other third part to such person or persons as shall sue for the same, to be recovered in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, or in the kingdom of Ireland, or in the court of admiralty held in his Majesty's plantations respectively, where such offence shall be committed, at the pleasure of the officer or informer, or in any other plantation belonging to any subject of England, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed; and that where any question shall arise concerning the importation or exportation of any goods into or out of the said plantations, in such case the proof shall lie upon the owner or claimer, and the claimer shall be reputed the importer or owner thereof.

VIII. And whereas in some of his Majesty's American plantations, a doubt or misconstruction has arisen upon the before mentioned act, made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, whereby certain duties are laid upon the commodities therein enumerated (which by law may be transported from one plantation to another for the supply of each others wants) as if the same were by the payment of those duties in one plantation, discharged from giving the securities intended by the aforesaid acts, made in the twelfth, two and twentieth and three and twentieth years of the reign of King Charles the Second, and consequently be at liberty to go to any foreign market in Europe, without coming to England, Wales, or Berwick: it is hereby further enacted and declared, That notwithstanding the payment of the aforesaid duties in any of the said plantations, none of the said goods shall be shipped or laden on board, until such security shall be given as is required by the said acts, made in the twelfth, two and twentieth and three and twentieth years of the reign of King Charles the Second, to carry the same to England, Wales, or Berwick, or to some other of his Majesty's plantations, and so toies quotas, as any of the said goods shall be brought to be re-shipped or laden in any of the said plantations, under the penalty and forfeiture of ship and goods, to be divided and disposed of as aforesaid.

IX. And it is further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all laws, bye-laws, usages or customs, at this time, or which hereafter shall be in practice, or endeavoured or pretended to be in force or practice, in any of the said plantations, which are in any wise repugnant to the before mentioned laws, or any of them, so far as they do relate to the said plantations, or any of them, or which are any ways repugnant to this present act, or to any other law hereafter to be made in this kingdom, so far as such law shall relate to and mention the said plantations, are illegal, null and void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever.

X. And whereas great frauds and abuses have been committed by Scotch men and others in the plantation trade, by obtruding false and counterfeit certificates upon the governor and officers in the plantations appointed by his Majesty's commissioners of the customs in England, of having given security in this kingdom to bring the loadings of plantation goods to England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; as also certificates of having discharged their lading of plantation goods in this kingdom, pursuant to securities taken in the plantation, and also coquets or certificates of having taken in their loadings of European goods in England, Wales, or Berwick; by means whereof they may carry the goods of Scotland, and other places of Europe, without shipping or lading the same in England, Wales, or Berwick, to his Majesty's plantations, and also carry the goods of the plantations directly to Scotland, or to any other market in Europe, without bringing the same into England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed: it is hereby further enacted, That in such cases where the governor or officers appointed by the commissioners of the customs in the plantations shall have reasonable ground of suspicion that such certificates are false or counterfeit; (that is to say) that the certificate of having given security in England is false, in such case the governor or officers appointed by the commissioners of the customs, shall require and take sufficient security there for the discharge of the plantation lading in England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; and in such case where there shall be cause to suspect, that the certificate of having discharged her lading of plantation goods in this kingdom is false or counterfeit, the governor or officers aforesaid shall not cancel or vacate the security given in the plantation, until he or they shall be informed from the commissioners of the customs in England that the matter of the said certificate is true; and if any person or persons shall counterfeit, raise, or falsify, any cocket, certificate, return, or permit, for any vessel or goods, or shall knowingly or willingly make use thereof, such person or persons shall forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered and disposed of as aforesaid, and the cocket, certificate, return, or permit, so counterfeited, raised or falsified, shall be invalid and of no effect.

Officers suspecting certificate, to take security for discharge of the plantation lading, and not to cancel certificate till informed of the truth.

Penalty on persons counterfeiting cockets, &c.

XI. And for the better executing the several acts of parliament relating to the plantation trade, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the lord treasurer, commissioners of the treasury, and the commissioners of the customs in England for the time being, shall and may constitute and appoint such and so many officers of the customs in any city, town, river, port, harbour, or creek, of or belonging to any of the islands, tracts of land and proprieties, when and as often as to them shall seem needful; be it further also enacted, That upon any actions, suits, and informations that shall be brought, commenced, or entered, in the said plantations, upon any law or statute concerning his Majesty's duties, or ships or goods to be forfeited by reason of any unlawful importations or exportations, there shall not be any jury, but of such only as are natives of England or Ireland, or are born in his Majesty's said plantations; and also that upon all such actions, suits, and informations, the offences may be laid or alledged in any colony, province, county, precinct, or division, of any of the said plantations where such offences are alledged to be committed, at the pleasure of the officer or informer.

Treasury and commissioners of customs may appoint officers in any town, port, &c. in the islands, &c.

If actions brought in plantations, jury to be natives of England, Ireland, or plantations. Offence to be laid in any colony.

XII. Provided always, That all places of trust in the courts of law, or what relates to the treasury of the said islands, shall, from the making of this act, be in the hands of the native-born subjects of England or Ireland, or of the said islands.

Places of trust to be in the hands of the natives.

the bonds required to be given in the plantations by virtue of the said act, for encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, are altered, and the word Ireland to be left out of the condition of all such bonds; and by the said act it is enacted and provided, That for such ships or vessels coming from other ports or places, to any of the said plantations, which by the said act for encouraging and increase of shipping were permitted to trade there, the governors of such English plantations should, before the said ship or vessel should be permitted to load on board any of the commodities in the said act particularly mentioned, take bond in manner and to the value mentioned and directed in the above mentioned act for encouraging and increase of shipping and navigation, for each respective ship or vessel, that such ship or vessel shall carry all the aforesaid goods, that should be laden on board in the said ship, to some other of his Majesty's English plantations, or to England, Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed: but because no provision hath hitherto been made for the returning and producing certificates within some reasonable limited time, of the landing and discharging such goods, according to the condition of the said bonds, and also because many times it hath happened, that the sureties taken in the said bonds have been persons not resident in the said plantations, but of uncertain and unknown abodes, the said bonds have proved ineffectual to the good purposes intended by the said acts; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all such bonds, to be hereafter given or taken in the said plantations, the sureties therein named shall be persons of known residence and ability in the said plantations, for the value mentioned in the said bonds, and that the condition of the said bonds shall be, within eighteen months after the date thereof (the danger of the seas excepted) to produce certificate of having landed and discharged the goods therein mentioned, in one of his Majesty's said plantations, or in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, otherwise such bond, or copies thereof, being attested under the hand and seal of the governor or commander in chief to whom such bonds were given, shall be in force, and allowed of in any court in England, Ireland, or the plantations, as if the original were produced in court by the prosecutor.

XIV. And whereas several ships and vessels laden with tobacco, sugars, and other goods of the growth and product of his Majesty's plantations in America, have been discharged in several ports of the kingdoms of Scotland and Ireland, contrary to the laws and statutes now in being, under pretence that the said ships and vessels were driven in thither by stress of weather, or for want of provisions, and other disabilities, could not proceed on their voyage: for remedy whereof be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of December, one thousand six hundred ninety six, it shall not be lawful, on any pretence whatsoever, to put on shore in the said kingdoms of Scotland or Ireland, any goods or merchandize of the growth or product of any of his Majesty's plantations aforesaid, unless the same have been first landed in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and paid the rates and duties wherewith they are chargeable by law, under the penalty of the forfeiture of the ship and goods; three fourths without composition to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other fourth to him or them that shall sue for the same.

XV. Provided nevertheless, That if any ship or vessel laden as aforesaid, shall by stress of weather be stranded, or by reason of leakiness, or other disability, shall be driven into any port or place within the kingdom of Ireland, and shall not be able to proceed on her voyage; then and in such case only the said goods and merchandizes may be permitted to be put on shore, but shall be delivered into the custody and possession of the collector or chief officer of the customs of such port or place where the said ship shall be so stranded or driven into, there to remain until the said goods and merchandize shall, at the charge of the owner thereof, be put on board some other ship or vessel, in order to be transported and carried to some other port or place within the said kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, the said officer first taking good and sufficient security security for the delivery of the same, according to the true intent and meaning of this act.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all persons and their assignees, claiming any right or propriety in any islands or tracts of land upon the continent of America, by charter or letters patents, shall not at any time hereafter aliene, sell, or dispose of any of the said islands, tracts of land, or proprieties, other than to the natural-born subjects of England, Ireland, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, without the licence and consent of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, signified by his or their order in council, first had and obtained; and all governors nominated and appointed by any such persons or proprietors, who shall be intitled to make such nomination, shall be allowed and approved of by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, as aforesaid, and shall take the oaths enjoined by this or any other act to be taken by the governors or commanders in chief in other his Majesty's colonies and plantations, before their entring upon their respective governments, under the like penalty as his Majesty's governors and commanders in chief are by the said acts liable to.

Persons not to sell plantations in America, but to subjects of England, &c.

Governors to be approved of by the King, and to take the oaths.

Penalty.

XVII. And for a more effectual prevention of frauds which may be used to elude the intention of this act, by colouring foreign ships under English names; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety eight, no ship or vessel whatsoever shall be deemed or pass as a ship of the built of England, Ireland, Wales, Berwick, Guernsey, Jersey, or any of his Majesty's plantations in America, so as to be qualified to trade to, from, or in, any of the plantations, until the person or persons claiming property in such ship or vessel shall register the same as followeth; that is to say, if the ship at the time of such register doth belong to any port in England, Ireland, Wales, or to the town of Berwick upon Tweed, then proof shall be made upon oath of one or more of the owners of such ship or vessel, before the collector and comptroller of his Majesty's customs in such port; or if at the time of such register the ship belong to any of his Majesty's plantations in America, or to the islands of Guernsey or Jersey, then the like proof to be made before the governor, together with the principal officer of his Majesty's revenue residing on such plantation or island, which oath the said governors and officers of the customs respectively are hereby authorised to administer in the tenor following, viz.

English built ships to be registered, and proof made on oath before the collector of the customs; or, if belonging to America, &c. before the governor, &c.

JURAT A. B. That the ship [name] of [port] The oath.
whereof [master's name] is at present master, being a [i kind of built] of [burthen] tuns, was built at [i place where] in the year [time when] and that [i owners name] of and of, &c.
are at present owners thereof; and that no foreigner, directly or indirectly, have any share, or part, or interest therein.

XVIII. Which oath, being attested by the governor, or custom officer respectively, who administered the same, under their hands and seals, shall, after having been registered by them, be delivered to the master of the ship for the security of her navigation, a duplicate of which register shall be immediately transmitted to the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in the port of London, in order to be entered in a general register, to be there kept for this purpose, with penalty upon any ship or vessel trading to, from, or in, any of his Majesty's plantations in America, after the said five and twentieth day of March, and not having made proof of her built and property, as is here directed, that she shall be liable, and she is hereby made liable, to such prosecution and forfeiture as any foreign ship (except prizes condemned in the high court of admiralty) would for trading with these plantations by this law be liable to.

Oath to be attested by the governor, and a duplicate to be transmitted.

Penalty on ship trading to America without proof of her built.

XIX. Provided

Prize ships to be registred, and oath made that the property is English.

XIX. Provided always, That all such ships as have been or shall be taken at sea by letters of mart or reprizal, and condemnation thereof made in the high court of admiralty of England as lawful prize, shall be specially registred, mentioning the capture and condemnation instead of the time and place of building, with proof also upon oath, that the entire property is English, before any such prize shall be allowed the privilege of an English built ship, according to the meaning of this act.

Fisher-boats, hoys, &c. not to be registred.

XX. Provided also, That nothing in this act shall be construed to require the registering any fisher-boats, hoys, lighters, barges, or any open boats or other vessels (though of English or plantation built) whose navigation is confined to the rivers or coasts of the same plantation or place where they trade respectively, but only of such of them as cross the seas to or from any of the lands, islands, places or territories, in this act before recited, or from one plantation to another.

Ship's name not to be altered without registering de novo, and if sold, such sale to be indorsed on the register's certificate.

XXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no ship's name registred shall be afterwards changed, without registering such ship de novo, which is hereby required to be done upon any transfer of property to another port, and delivering up the former certificate to be cancelled, under the same penalties, and in the like method, as is herein before directed; and that in case there be any alteration of property in the same port, by the sale of one or more shares in any ship after registering thereof, such sale shall always be acknowledged by indorsement on the certificate of the register before two witnesses, in order to prove that the entire property in such ship remains to some of the subjects of England, if any dispute arises concerning the same.

C A P. XXVIII.

An act for the more effectual preventing the exportation of wool, and for the encouraging the importation thereof from Ireland.

This act is enforced by 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 49. f. 1.

WHEREAS several laws have been made to prevent the exportation of wool, yet nevertheless the said exportation is still continued, whereby daily mischiefs and evils do happen, and a correspondence with France is maintained, to the great prejudice of the government, and discouragement of the manufacture of this kingdom:

1 W. & M. H. 1. c. 32.

4 & 5 W. & M. c. 24.

II. And whereas in the first year of the reign of King William and Queen Mary, there passed an act, intituled, An act for the better preventing the exportation of wool, and encouraging the woollen manufactures of this kingdom; which act was continued by an act made in the fourth and fifth years of King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for reviving, continuing, and explaining several laws therein mentioned, which are expired, and near expiring, and will now soon expire: and whereas for preventing the said mischiefs, it is necessary the said act should be continued:

further continued.

III. Be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said act, and every clause, matter and thing therein contained (except what is hereafter otherwise altered, explained, or repealed) shall continue and remain in full force, as if the same were herein and hereby particularly recited and mentioned.

IV. And whereas the statute of the thirteenth and fourteenth of King Charles the Second, made against the exportation of wool, among other things in the said not mentioned, doth enact the same to be deemed felony; by the severity of which penalty the prosecution of offenders hath not been so effectually put in execution; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said act, which relates to the making the said offence felony, be repealed and made void.

Part of 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 18. making the exportation of wool felony, repealed.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the better encouragement of the importation of wool from Ireland, that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, from the place or places in the said act limited, to import into England from Ireland any quantity or quantities of wool, to any the ports hereafter mentioned; (that is to say) Whitehaven in the county of Cumberland, Liverpool, Chester, Bristol, Bridgewater, Minehead, Barnstaple and Biddiford, and to no other; any thing in this act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Ports where wool may be imported from Ireland.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners or farmers of the customs in the kingdom of Ireland for the time being, shall from time to time, and at all times hereafter, once every six months, transmit or cause to be transmitted unto the commissioners of his Majesty's customs in England, a true account of all such wool as shall be from time to time exported from any of the places within the said kingdom of Ireland, from whence the same may be exported, the quantity and weight thereof, and by whom, and in what ships exported, and where consigned, and the names of the persons signing the certificates of the landing the same in England, and the date of the said certificates, and where the same was landed, as also the quantity and weight contained in the said certificates, in order that the same may be compared with the account by the said act appointed to be kept by the commissioners of the customs of this kingdom.

An account to be transmitted from Ireland to England once in six months of all wool exported.

VII. And for preventing the mischiefs of rasing, obliterating or interlining such certificates as aforesaid, be it further enacted; That all certificates given for the landing of wool from Ireland, or from one port to another in England, shall be written upon paper, and not parchment, and that the quantities therein expressed shall not be obliterated or interlined upon any pretence whatsoever.

Certificates to be writ on paper, and not interlined.

VIII. And whereas the several inhabitants of the several counties and shires of this realm next adjoining to the kingdom of Scotland, and to the sea coasts, do reap great profit and advantage by the carrying out of wool, wool-fells, mortlings, shorlings, yarn made of wool, wool-flocks, fullers earth, and scouring-clay, into the said kingdom of Scotland, and exporting of them into France, and other parts beyond the seas, to the great prejudice and decay of the woollen manufacture of this realm; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety six, no wool, or any other of the commodities aforesaid, shall be laid or laden on any horse, or other carriage whatsoever, or shall be carried or conveyed by land, to or from any place or places within the said counties next adjoining to the said kingdom of Scotland, or within five miles of the sea coast, as aforesaid, but between sun-rising and sun-setting, under the penalty and forfeiture of the said commodities, and of the said horses, and other cattle and carriages employed in carrying the same; and that no ship or vessel shall export or carry the same into any part beyond the seas, under the penalty and forfeiture of the said commodities, ship and vessel, and treble the value thereof, with treble costs of suit; and the inhabitants of the respective hundred, port, or place exempt, next adjoining to the said kingdom of Scotland, or to the sea coasts out of or through which any wool, or any other of the commodities aforesaid, shall be so carried or exported, shall forfeit twenty pounds, if the said wool so carried out or exported shall be under the value of ten pounds, but if it shall be of greater value, then treble the value thereof so exported, or carried out of the said kingdom, as also treble costs of suit: all which said penalties, forfeitures, and costs of suit, are to be recovered and received by him or them that shall sue for the same, and to be prosecuted by any action of debt,

Wool not to be carried by land to or from any county adjoining to Scotland, or within 5 miles of the sea coast, but, &c.

Penalties.

Treble costs.

Special provision as to the hundred of Winchelsea by 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 43. s. 11.

suit, bill, plaint, or information, against the inhabitants of such hundred, port, or place exempt, out of or through which the said wool or other commodities shall be exported, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, where no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance.

Execution may be had against two or more inhabitants.

Justices at sessions may assess proportionably as in case of robbery committed,

27 Eliz. c. 13. and levy the same on the inhabitants.

Penalty for assisting in the exportation of wool.

Actions to be in the name of the clerk of the peace of the county, and tried by a jury of another county.

First 3 persons making discovery, not to suffer the penalties.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the execution for the informer shall and may be had against two or more of the said inhabitants; and that after execution had by force of this act, it shall and may be lawful (upon complaint made by the party or parties so charged) to and for the justices of the peace of the same county or place where any such execution shall be had, at their general quarter sessions to be held for the said county or place, to assess and tax, rateably and proportionably, according to their discretions, all and every the towns, parishes, villages, and hamlets, in the said hundred, port, or place exempt, in the same manner and form as any hundred ought to be charged in case of robbery committed, for the persons against whom execution shall be had for the person so robbed, pursuant to an act made in the seven and twentieth year of Queen Elizabeth, intituled, An act for the following of the hue and cry; and that the justices of the peace of the said county or place, where such fact shall be committed, shall and are hereby impowered and required, at their general quarter sessions to be held for the said county or place, to levy the penalties hereby charged upon the said inhabitants, by an equal assessment upon the said inhabitants, and reimburse such person or persons inhabitants within the said hundred, port, or place exempt, adjacent to the kingdom of Scotland, or the sea coast, from whence the said wool, or other the said commodities, shall be transported, in the same manner as if there had been a judgment at law against the said hundred, port, or place exempt.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all persons who shall be aiding, abetting, or assisting, in carrying, or exporting any of the said commodities out of this realm, as aforesaid (being legally convicted thereof) shall suffer three years imprisonment, without bail or mainprize, and the owner of the said wool, or of any other of the commodities aforesaid, and all and every person or persons who shall be aiding, abetting, or assisting, in carrying or exporting of them or any of them out of this kingdom, shall answer and satisfy treble the value of all such forfeitures and penalties, which such inhabitants shall be so charged with and liable to, as also treble costs of suit; which shall and may be recovered by action of debt, suit, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance, by and in the name of the clerk of the peace for the time being, of or for every such county or place, without naming the christian name or surname of the said clerk of the peace; which treble value and treble costs of suit shall be to the only use and behoof of the said inhabitants; and that notwithstanding the death or removal of any such clerk of the peace, after such action of debt, suit, bill, plaint, or information, sued, commenced, or preferred, the same shall be prosecuted and pursued to judgment and execution, in such manner and form, to all intents and purposes, as that clerk of the peace might have done, which first commenced or preferred the said action of debt, suit, bill, plaint, or information.

XI. And for the better and more impartial trials of all such actions and informations which shall be commenced or prosecuted by virtue of this act, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such actions and informations shall be tried, in any of his Majesty's courts of record, by a jury of good and lawful freeholders to be summoned out of any other county than that wherein the fact shall be committed: and to encourage persons to discover the said crime, the first three persons who have been aiding, abetting, or assisting, in carrying out or exportation of wool, or any other of the commodities, modities, as aforesaid, that shall inform thereof any justice of the peace in either of the said several counties aforesaid, whereby the punishment and penalties appointed by this act may be inflicted and recovered, the party or parties so discovering (not being owner or part owners of the said wool, or other commodities aforesaid) shall not suffer any of the said penalties or punishment.

XII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be brought and prosecuted by any person or persons against any justice of peace, or other person employed by them or any of them in the execution of this act, for any matter, cause, or thing, by them or either of them done, committed, or executed, by virtue or reason of this act, or any clause or article therein contained, that then, and in every such case, the action shall be laid in the proper county where the fact was done and committed, and not elsewhere; and the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence at the trial, that the same was done in pursuance, and by authority of this act: and if upon examination it shall so happen to be done, the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and in such case, or if the plaintiff shall be nonsuit, or discontinue his action, after the defendant or defendants hath or have appeared, the defendant or defendants shall have and recover their treble costs which he or they shall sustain or be put unto by reason of his or their wrongful vexation in defence of the said action or suit; and that every action, suit, bill, plaint, or information, by virtue of this act, shall be commenced and prosecuted within one year after the fact committed.

ACTIONS against justice of peace to be levied in the county where the fact was done.

Defendant may plead general issue, and have treble costs.

Limitation of actions.

XIII. Provided always, That if any person, who is intitled to the penalties and forfeitures by this act given, shall compound with any hundred, port, or place exempt, hereby liable to pay the same, for any lesser sum than what is hereby given; that it shall at any time hereafter be lawful for any other person to sue for and recover the same in manner and form as aforesaid, as if no such composition had been made; and the person so compounding shall, for such his offence, suffer five years imprisonment without bail or mainprize: and this act to continue in force for three years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament.

Penalty on persons compounding for forfeitures.

Act to continue for three years.

XIV. And for the better preventing the exportation of wool, and correspondence with France; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the lord high admiral of England, or commissioners for executing the office of lord high admiral for the time being, shall from time to time direct and appoint one ship of the fifth rate, and two ships of the sixth rate, and four armed sloops, constantly to cruise from off the North foreland to the isle of Wight, with orders for taking and seizing all ships, vessels, or boats, which shall export any wool, or carry or bring any prohibited goods or any suspected persons. Continued by 9 W. 3. c. 40.

Commissioners of the admiralty to appoint ships and armed sloops to cruise.

An act that the solemn affirmation and declaration of the people called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an oath in the usual form.

WHEREAS divers dissenters, commonly called quakers, refusing to take an oath in courts of justice and other places, are frequently imprisoned, and their estates sequestered, by process of contempt issuing out of such courts, to the ruin of themselves and families: for remedy thereof be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the fourth day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety six, every quaker within this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, who shall be required upon any lawful occasion to take an oath, in any case where by law an oath is required, shall, instead of the usual form, be permitted to make his or her solemn affirmation or declaration in these words following, viz.

Quakers instead of an oath to make the following affirmation,

I A. B. do declare in the presence of Almighty God, the witness of the truth of what I say.

which is to be of the same force in law as an oath.

II. Which said solemn affirmation or declaration shall be adjudged and taken, and is hereby enacted and declared to be, of the same force and effect, to all intents and purposes, in all courts of justice and other places where by law an oath is required within this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, as if such quaker had taken an oath in the usual form.

Penalty on false affirmation.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any quaker, making such solemn affirmation or declaration, shall be lawfully convicted, wilfully, falsely, and corruptly to have affirmed or declared any matter or thing, which, if the same had been in the usual form, would have amounted to wilful and corrupt perjury; every such quaker so offending, shall incur the same penalties and forfeitures, as by the laws and statutes of this realm are enacted against persons convicted of wilful and corrupt perjury.

An act for encouraging the linen manufacture of Ireland, and bringing flax and hemp into, and the making of sail cloth in this kingdom.

Hemp or flax, &c. may be imported into England from Ireland custom free, on certificate from the officer of the port in Ireland, expressing the mark and particulars in each bale. Confirmed by 1 Ann. stat. 2: c. 8.

WHEREAS there are great sums of money and bullion yearly exported out of this kingdom, for the purchasing of hemp, flax and linen, and the productions thereof, which might in great measure be prevented by being supplied from Ireland, if such proper encouragement were given as might invite foreign protestants into that kingdom to settle; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of August, one thousand six hundred ninety six, it shall and may be lawful to and for any native or natives of England or Ireland to import into England, directly from Ireland, any sorts of hemp or flax, and all the production thereof, as thread, yarn, and linen, of the growth and manufacture of Ireland, free from all manner of customs, duties, and impositions whatsoever, the master or other chief officer of the vessel so importing the same, bringing with him or them a certificate or certificates from the chief officer or officers of the port or ports in Ireland, where such goods shall be put on board, expressing the marks, number, tale or weight, of the species in each bale or parcel mentioned in the bill or bills of lading, with the name or names, place or places of abode of the exporter or exporters from Ireland, and the name or names, place or places of abode of such other person or persons persons that shall have sworn the goods therein mentioned to be bona fide of the growth and manufacture of the kingdom, without fraud or covin, and where and to whom in England consigned; and also the master or masters, chief officer or officers of the said ship or ships, vessel or vessels, on arrival in England, making oath, that the said bales, parcels and goods therein contained, are the said bales, parcels and goods taken on board, by virtue of the said certificate or certificates so to be produced; any act, custom, or usage heretofore to the contrary notwithstanding.

Extended to Irish manufactures,
16 Geo. 2. c. 26.

II. And forasmuch as the making of sail cloth in England is of great use and benefit to the nation, and will employ many thousands of the poor; which manufacture is already set up in several parts of this kingdom, and brought to good perfection; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the encouragement of the further improvement of the same, all English made sail cloth (upon due proof upon oath of its being made in this kingdom) shall, from and after the first day of August, one thousand six hundred ninety and six, be exported free from the payment of all custom and duty whatever, whether the same be exported in the piece or bolt, or in sails ready made; any law, act or statute, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for importing and coining guineas and half guineas.

WHEREAS by an act made in the first session of this present parliament, intituled, An act for taking off the obligation and encouragement of coining guineas for a certain time therein mentioned, it is enacted, That from the second day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety five, until the first day of January then next following, there shall not be any obligation of receiving into his Majesty's mint or mints, to be coined, any gold whatsoever; nor shall the officers of his Majesty's mints be obliged to coin any gold within the time aforesaid, for any person whatsoever; and that the recompences appointed by the statute made in the eighteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and other subsequent statutes, for encouragement of coinage, shall be applied to the use of the silver mints. And it is also thereby further enacted, That from and after the said second day of March, until the said first day of January, it shall not be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever to import guineas or half guineas into this kingdom, upon any pretence whatsoever, upon forfeiture of the said guineas or half guineas. And whereas the reason of making the said act was occasioned by the high and unusual price of guineas, which might in the end be very prejudicial to the subject: but the said price of guineas being now reduced to or near the standard, and sundry persons being desirous to coin gold, and also to import great quantities of guineas and half guineas, which will be very beneficial to the trade and commerce of this kingdom: for the encouragement whereof,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons assembled in parliament, for a further supply of your Majesty's extraordinary occasions, and the effectual prosecution of the war against France, and for satisfaction of such persons who have advanced and lent monies into your Majesty's Exchequer for the purposes aforesaid, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted unto your Majesty the impositions and duties herein-after mentioned, for and during the term hereafter expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges, upon goods and merchandize imported into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, and from thence exported, mentioned, expressed, and granted in and by an act made in the fourth and fifth years of the reign of his present Majesty and the late Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for the prosecuting the present war against France, shall be continued from the first day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety six, and be raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, until the seventeenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety seven; and that the said act, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses, therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said additional duties, and other rates and impositions hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act.

C A P. XX.

An act for making good the deficiencies of several funds therein mentioned; and for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England; and for raising the publick credit.

WHEREAS several persons, as well natives as foreigners, bodies politick and corporate, did advance and lend, at the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer, very considerable sums of money, upon the security of the several and respective aids, revenues, or funds, herein after mentioned; that is to say, upon the first aid of four shillings in the pound, payable out of lands and other things for one year, by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the fourth year of the reign of his Majesty and the late Queen of blessed memory, whereby interest, not exceeding the rate of seven pounds per centum per annum, was allowed for the sums borrowed in pursuance thereof; and upon the third aid of four shillings in the pound, payable out of lands and other things for one year, by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, whereby interest, not exceeding the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, was allowed for the sums thereby borrowed; and upon the fourth aid of four shillings in the pound, payable out of lands and other things, for one year, by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the seventh year of his Majesty's reign, whereby interest, not exceeding the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, is allowed for the sums borrowed in pursuance thereof; and upon the monies which were to arise by an act passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the fifth and sixth years of their said Majesties reign, whereby a poll was granted to their Majesties, payable quarterly for one year; which monies were directed to be applied to satisfy the principal of such loans; and upon the monies which were to arise by the three fourth parts of the customs, after satisfaction of the principal and interest of five hundred thousand pounds charged thereupon by an act of parliament in the second year of their said Majesties reign; for which loans so made, and which were intended to be paid out of the three fourths of the customs, the lenders were intitled to receive interest after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum. And whereas the greatest part of the monies so lent upon the aids, revenues, or funds, before mentioned, hath been actually satisfied and paid off, but the several terms, for which the said respective aids of four shillings in the pound, and the said poll money, were granted, being determined and expired, and three hundred thousand pounds per annum, out of the revenue of customs, being appropriated by act of parliament to the satisfaction of other loans, it doth plainly appear that the several aids and funds herein before mentioned are deficient, and could not fully satisfy all the monies which were charged thereupon, and the interest thereof; and for so much as remains unsatisfied, the respective lenders, their executors, administrators, and assigns, have, or are intitled to have, in their hands, tallies and orders of repayment levied and drawn according to the forms used in his Majesty's receipt of Exchequer: And whereas by an act made and passed in the parliament holden at Westminster in the seventh and eighth years of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing to his Majesty certain duties upon salt, glass wares, stone and earthen wares, and for granting several duties upon tobacco pipes and other earthen wares, for carrying on the war against France, and for establishing a national land bank, and for taking off the duties upon tonnage of ships and upon coals, his Majesty was empowered to borrow or take into the receipt of the exchequer any sum or sums of money, either upon the credit of repayment by orders to be registred and paid in course, with interest after the rate of seven pounds per centum per annum, or upon credit of bills to be made payable upon demand, with interest not exceeding the rate of three pence per diem for every one hundred pounds, so as that the principal sums, which at any one time should be due and owing either upon the said orders, or upon the said bills, or both, should not exceed the sum of two millions five hundred sixty four thousand pounds; and out of the monies to be raised by the act last mentioned, it was directed and intended, that the sums following should be paid and applied, that is to say, the sum of five hundred and sixty thousand pounds to discharge monies which were lent at the receipt of exchequer upon the security of certain duties upon glass wares, stone and earthen bottles, coals and culm (which duties upon coals and culm were taken away by the act last mentioned) and the interest thereof; one hundred and forty thousand pounds to answer and make good the rates and duties of tonnage upon ships, from the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety six, until the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety seven (which duties of tonnage upon ships was also taken away by the same act); and the further sum of one hundred and forty thousand pounds to answer and make good the rates and duties upon salt, from the said seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety six, until the said seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, in the manner therein mentioned; which said several sums of five hundred and sixty thousand pounds, one hundred and forty thousand pounds, and one hundred and forty thousand pounds, amounting in the whole to eight hundred and forty thousand pounds, being taken or subducted from the said sum of two millions five hundred sixty four thousand pounds, the remainder thereof will amount to one million seven hundred twenty four thousand pounds, which is borrowed, or may be borrowed, by his Majesty for the service of the war against France; and the person or persons who have advanced, or shall advance the same, his, her or their executors, administrators, or assigns, have, or may have, in their hands, tallies, and orders of repayment, or bills for the sums so advanced, or to be advanced, which cannot in any reasonable time be satisfied out of the said duties chargeable therewith by the act last mentioned: and whereas several persons did advance and lend, at the said receipt of the Exchequer, several other sums of money, at the rate of seven pounds per centum per annum for interest, upon the credit of two third parts of the excise of eighteen pence per barrel, and other additional duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, which were granted to their said Majesties for four years, by an act of parliament in the second year of their reign, and afterwards continued by a subsequent act of parliament in that behalf, until the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, from which time the same, or the like duties of excise, as are continued or granted by act of parliament for other uses: and whereas several persons, as well natives as foreigners, bodies politick and corporate, have also advanced and lent at the said receipt of the Exchequer, very considerable sums of money upon the security of other aids, supplies, impositions, revenues, or funds, herein after mentioned; that is to say, upon certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, which were granted their said Majesties by an act passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the fourth and fifth years of their reign, to continue until the first day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety six, which act allows interest after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum for the monies thereby borrowed, and upon certain duties payable for vellum, parchment, and paper, for four years, which commenced from the twenty eighth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety four, by virtue of an act which passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the fifth and sixth years of the reign of their said Majesties, whereby there was allowed interest, not exceeding the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, for the monies lent in pursuance thereof; and upon credit of a certain yearly sum of three hundred thousand pounds, payable for five years, from the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred ninety four, out of monies arising by the subsidy of tannage and poundage, and other duties upon merchandizes ex-

ported and imported, by virtue of several acts of parliament, passed in the sixth ^{6 W. & M.} year of the reign of their said Majesties, wherein a credit was given for any ^{C. 1.} sums, not exceeding one million two hundred and fifty thousand pounds, to be repaid, with interest, not exceeding the rate of five pounds per centum per annum for the first three hundred thousand pounds, six pounds per centum per annum for the second three hundred thousand pounds, seven pounds per centum per annum for the third three hundred thousand pounds, and eight pounds per centum per annum for the remaining three hundred and fifty thousand pounds; and upon credit of an act made in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the sixth and seventh years of his Majesty's reign, for granting certain rates and duties upon marriages, births, burials, batchelors, and widowers, for the term of five years, from the first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety five, whereby interest, not exceeding the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, is allowed for the sums lent in pursuance thereof; and upon the credit of several impositions, payable for wines, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, continued, until the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, by virtue of an act passed in the parliament, which was holden at Westminster, in the seventh and eighth ^{7 & 8 W. 3.} years of his Majesty's reign, whereby a credit was given for borrowing any ^{C. 10.} sums, not exceeding one million five hundred thousand pounds, to be repaid with interest, not exceeding the rate of five pounds per centum per annum for the first four hundred thousand pounds, six pounds per centum per annum for the second four hundred thousand pounds, seven pounds per centum per annum for the third four hundred thousand pounds, and eight pounds per centum per annum for the remaining three hundred thousand pounds: and whereas a great part of the monies so lent, upon the two third parts of the said additional duties of excise, and upon the said additional impositions payable for goods and merchandizes, and upon the said duties payable for vellum, parchment, and paper, and upon the said three hundred thousand pounds per annum charged upon the subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and upon the said duties charged upon marriages, births, burials, batchelors and widowers, and upon the said continued impositions payable for wines, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, hath been actually repaid and satisfied with interest; but by computing the product of these duties for the time past, and considering the terms yet to come and unexpired in them respectively, it is supposed and feared that the same duties respectively, at the end of the several terms for which they are granted as aforesaid, will be more or less deficient to answer, pay off, and clear all the principal and interest of the monies which were authorized to be borrowed thereupon, and the persons intitled to the monies not paid off upon the duties last mentioned, have or may have, in their hands, tallies and orders of repayment for the same: and whereas several persons or corporations did advance and lend, at the said receipt of Exchequer, other considerable sums of money upon the credit of an act made in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the fourth and fifth years of their said Majesties reign, intituled, An act for ^{4 & 5 W. & M. c. 15.} continuing certain acts therein mentioned, and charging several joint stocks, wherein a credit was given for the borrowing any sum not exceeding five hundred thousand pounds, at interest not exceeding eight pounds per centum per annum, part of which monies doth still remain unsatisfied, and the persons intitled thereunto have likewise tallies and orders of repayment for the same; and pursuant to another act made and passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the seventh and eighth years of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for laying several duties upon low wines or spirits of the first extraction, and for preventing the frauds and abuses of brewers, distillers, and other persons chargeable with the duties of excise; several other sums of money have been lent to his Majesty, not exceeding seventy thousand pounds, on credit of the rates or duties upon low wines, or spirits of the first extraction, and sweets, thereby granted, to be repaid with interest not exceeding the rate of six pounds per centum per annum for the first forty thousand pounds, and seven pounds per per centum per annum for the remainder thereof; and by virtue of the same act, and of another act made and passed in this present session of parliament to explain the same, the weekly sum of six thousand pounds arising by or out of the hereditary branch of his Majesty's revenues of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, and by or out of that part of the said revenues of excise which is granted to his Majesty during his life (which God preserve) commonly called The hereditary and temporary excise, and the weekly sum of six hundred pounds out of the money or revenue from time to time arising in the general letter office or post office, do severally stand charged to pay off and satisfy in course several tallies of Pro, or assignment, or other tallies in those acts mentioned, for the payment whereof provision is thereby made, together with such several and respective rates of interest for the same as are thereby allowed: and whereas by reason of the deficiencies of several of the aids, supplies, impositions and duties above mentioned, which have not or will not be sufficient to answer the principal and interest charged thereupon, and by reason of the remoteness of the course of payment of the tallies and orders charged upon some of them, and upon other the duties in this act before mentioned, the owners of the said tallies or orders are frequently necessitated to sell and dispose thereof at great loss, or at an excessive discount, whereby the publick credit is very much prejudiced and impaired, and the trade, and other publick and private affairs within this realm, do exceedingly suffer: and whereas it is computed or estimated, that the deficiencies or sums which are or will be wanting to satisfy and pay off all principal and interest due or to be due on the deficient aids, duties or funds before mentioned, (over and above all arrears, standing out upon any of them, which are determined, and over and above all monies to be raised by such of them as are yet unexpired) do or may amount to the sums following; that is to say, upon the said first aid of four shillings in the pound, fifty five thousand six hundred twenty two pounds, ten shillings and five pence; upon the said third aid of four shillings in the pound, four hundred and seven thousand three hundred seventy and two pounds, and three pence; upon the said fourth aid of four shillings in the pound, nine hundred and seventeen thousand one hundred and one pounds, thirteen shillings, and two pence halfpenny; upon the said quarterly poll, eighty nine thousand two hundred seventy five pounds, thirteen shillings, and four pence; upon the said three fourth parts of the customs, two hundred and thirteen thousand four hundred forty seven pounds, fifteen shillings and nine pence; upon the said act charging salt, and other things therein mentioned, one million, seven hundred and eleven thousand and five hundred pounds; upon the said two third parts of the additional excise, one hundred and sixty thousand pounds; upon the said additional impositions payable for goods and merchandizes, four hundred forty five thousand one hundred seventy seven pounds, seven shillings, and four pence; upon the said duties payable upon vellum, parchment, and paper, two hundred twenty four thousand one hundred and fourteen pounds, seven shillings, eight pence halfpenny; upon the said duties charged upon marriages, births, burials, bachelors, and widowers, six hundred forty and eight thousand pounds; and upon the said continued impositions payable for wine, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, one hundred forty six thousand one hundred eighty one pounds, nineteen shillings, and five pence halfpenny; and on the said yearly sum of three hundred thousand pounds out of the subsidy of tunnage and poundage, one hundred forty two thousand six hundred sixty six pounds, seven shillings, three pence, and three farthings, amounting in the whole to the sum of five millions, one hundred and sixty thousand four hundred fifty and nine pounds, fourteen shillings, nine pence, one farthing: We your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, having duly weighed and considered the premises, and being desirous to raise such aids and supplies, and to use such proper methods, as may make good the said deficiencies, and raise the publick credit, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted unto your Majesty the supplies, impositions and other duties herein after mentioned, for and during the

the respective terms hereafter expressed; and do beseech your Majesty to accept thereof, and that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, which were given and granted unto his late Majesty King Charles the Second for his life, by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported; and which by an act of parliament made in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, were granted and continued for the term of five years, to commence on the six and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred ninety four, shall be continued to his Majesty, from the expiration of the said term of five years, until the first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six, and no longer; and that the said act, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and every article, rule and clause therein mentioned, and also an order of the commons in parliament assembled, made in pursuance of the rules and orders annexed to the aforesaid act, for settling of officers fees, dated the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred sixty two, and signed by Sir Edward Turner, then speaker, shall be of full force and effect, to all intents and purposes, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, as fully, and in like manner, as if the same were particularly and at large recited and set down in the body of this act.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges, upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes, granted by an act made in the second year of their said Majesties reign, (intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East-India goods and manufactures, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandizes, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety) and which thereby, and by several other acts afterwards passed, were to have continuance and are to continue until the nine and twentieth day of September, ber, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be further continued from the eight and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, until the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six, and no longer: and that the said act made in the second year of their said Majesties reign, concerning East-India goods, and other things therein charged, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said respective duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the said last mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things, therein contained, had been again repeated and enacted particularly, except only as to such part of the said acts concerning the said impositions on wines, vinegar, tobacco, East-India goods, and other merchandizes imported, touching which other provisions or alterations are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, which other provisions or alterations are to be observed, and to continue during the continuance of this act; and the said act, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine and vinegar, and upon tobacco, and East-India goods and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and every article, clause, matter, and thing therein contained, for the raising, levying, securing, answering, and paying the impositions and duties on the merchandizes and commodities thereby charged, and which are by this act continued, shall be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the additional and other rates, duties, impositions, and charges, upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes, granted by an act of parliament made in the fourth and fifth years of their said Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for prosecuting the present war against France, and which were thereby to have continuance, from the first day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety two, to the first day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety six, shall be continued from the last day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety six, to the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six, and no longer; and that the said act last mentioned, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses, therein contained, as herein after is excepted and provided, as for and concerning the said rates, duties, and impositions, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully to all intents and purposes as if the said last mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, had been again repeated and enacted in this act particularly.

Additional impositions on goods and merchandizes, by 4. and 5. W. & M. c. 5. continued until 1706.

IX. And whereas by the said act passed in the fourth year of their Majesties reign, for granting the said additional impositions on goods and merchandizes, the sum of twenty shillings is imposed on every tun of lapis calaminaris exported, which was found by experience to hinder the exportation thereof, and utterly to ruin the manufacture; it is therefore hereby provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for and during the continuance of the said additional impositions, the sum of two shillings only shall be paid for every tun of lapis calaminaris exported, over and above the rates thereon charged by the book of rates, to be collected as in and by the said act is directed and appointed; any thing in this or the last mentioned act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

And whereas the scarcity and dearth of iron in this kingdom have of late much discouraged the manufactures thereof, in which great numbers of the poor are employed; be it therefore further provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to import into this kingdom from Ireland, any bar iron unwrought, and iron slit or hammered into rods (other than Swedish or other foreign iron) discharged of the impositions and duties laid upon the same by this or the said act for granting the said additional impositions; any thing in this or the said act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XI. Provided also, That in all cases where any other provision or alteration is made, by any act or acts of parliament now in being, in or about any other matter or thing contained in the said act of parliament for the impositions last mentioned, such other provisions or alterations shall be observed during the continuance of the term hereby granted in the same impositions; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

LXIX. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses, in the plantation trade, it is amongst other things therein enacted, That all the present governors and commanders in chief of any English colonies or plantations shall, before the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, and all who shall be made governors or commanders in chief of the said colonies or plantations, or any of them, before the entering into their governments, shall take a solemn oath to do their utmost that the clauses, matters, and things, contained in one act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation; and one other act made in the fifteenth year of his said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for encouragement of trade; and also the said act made in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses, in the plantation trade; be punctually and bona fide observed, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, so far as appertains unto the said governors or commanders in chief respectively: and whereas the persons appointed to administer the said oaths are by some accidents prevented from performing the same within the time limited by the said act; to the end therefore that the good intent of the said act may not be disappointed for want of time to put the same in execution, be it therefore enacted, That further time shall be allowed for administering the said oath, and that all present governors and commanders in chief of any English colonies or plantations, shall, before the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, and who shall hereafter be made governors or commanders in chief of the said colonies or plantations, or any of them, shall, at their entrance upon their respective governments, or within the space of six months after the same, take a solemn oath to do their utmost, that all the clauses, matters, and things, contained in the before recited acts of parliament, or any of them, heretofore passed and now in force, relating to the said colonies and plantations, be punctually and bona fide observed, according to the true intent and meaning thereof, (which oath shall be taken before such person or persons as shall be appointed by his Majesty, his heirs and successors, who are hereby authorized to administer the same) so far as appertains to the governors or commanders in chief respectively.

culm shall, from time to time, during the said term of five years, be answered and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, or to such collector or person as shall by his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or by the said commissioners of the customs, or any four or more of them for the time being, under their hands and seals, be thereunto appointed, before bulk of the ship or vessel in which they are imported, brought or carried, shall be broken, or any the coals or culm therein shall be unladen, and before any meter, measurer or weigher in that behalf appointed or to be appointed, shall measure or weigh the same; upon receipt whereof, the party appointed to receive such duties shall, without delay, fee or reward, deliver a receipt under his hand to the person or persons who shall pay the said duty, which receipt shall for so much be a sufficient discharge; of all which ships and vessels, and of the coals and culm therein imported or brought, due entries shall from time to time be made in the custom-house, of or belonging to such port or place where such importation shall be made (if any custom-house be there) or else in the custom-house of the next port or place where such importation shall be. And in case any of the said coals or culm so imported, brought or carried by sea, shall be unshipped to be laid on land, before the impositions, duties or sums aforesaid respectively due for the same shall be paid or secured, that then as well the said coals and culm so unshipped, as also the ship or vessel out of which the same shall be so unshipped, with all her guns, tackle, furniture and ammunition, shall be forfeited and lost; one moiety of which forfeitures shall be unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to such person or persons as shall seize, sue, or inform for the same, to be recovered in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be admitted.

IX. And to the end that the said impositions and duties may be duly answered and paid without fraud or covin, and for the better levying and collecting thereof, and for the discovery of the just quantities of all sorts of coals and culm, from time to time shipped, or waterborn to be shipped or carried by sea, imported or unladen as aforesaid; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or to or for any four or more of the said commissioners of the customs for the time being, by writing under their hands and seals, from time to time, to assign and appoint, within every or any port or place within the said kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, such and so many meters, weighers or measurers of the said coals and culm, as shall within the term aforesaid be imported, brought or landed in such port or place, wherein or for which such meters, weighers or measurers shall be assigned or appointed as aforesaid; who shall from time to time measure and weigh all such coals and culm so imported or brought; and when and as soon as any such ship or vessel shall be unladen, shall forthwith deliver a true certificate in writing, under his or their hand or hands, unto the person or persons appointed to receive the said impositions or duties within such port or place, of the sorts, quantities, and numbers of chalders or tuns of coals or culm respectively, which shall be measured or weighed, and delivered from on board any such ship or vessel, under the penalty of one hundred pounds: and in case it shall appear by such certificate, or otherwise, that there was on board any such ship or vessel a greater number of chalders or tuns of coals or culm, than for which the said impositions or duties hereby imposed shall have been answered and paid as aforesaid, that then in every such case there shall be paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, by the master or owners of such ship or vessel, for every chalders or tun of coals or culm so concealed, over and above the impositions and duties aforesaid, the sum of ten shillings, for which, in case of refusal refusal to pay the same, such ship or vessel, with the tackle, furniture and apparel thereof, or any part thereof, shall and may be attached and detained by the officer or officers for the time being, in such port or place appointed to receive the said impositions or duties, or to measure or weigh the said coals or culm, until payment thereof, and to sell the said ship or vessel, tackle, furniture and apparel, or any part thereof, in case all the said impositions, duties or payments before mentioned, for the said concealed coals or culm, shall not be paid and satisfied, with reasonable costs and charges for such attaching, detaining or selling, rendering the overplus; which sale shall be good and effectual in the law.

X. Provided nevertheless, That if the importer, upon such certificate delivered in by the measurer or weigher, shall, within the space of six days after the delivery of such ship or vessel, and before her departure from that port or place, give in his post-entry, and satisfy and pay the whole duty for the surplussage of the said coals or culm, appearing upon the unloading of such ship or vessel, then upon such payment the penalty aforesaid shall be discharged.

XI. And for the manifestation of the truth, and certainty in the premises, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officers to be appointed in each port and place for the receiving of the said impositions or duties, and for the weighing and measuring of the said coals and culm shipped, or waterborn to be shipped, imported or landed as aforesaid, shall respectively keep one or more book or books for every such port or place, wherein they shall respectively enter down a true account of all such sums of money, which shall be paid or received for or upon account of the said impositions or duties, and of all the payments and disbursements of the same, and also a true account of the numbers of chalders and tuns of coals and culm so imported, landed, and unladen in any such port or place, and of the respective sorts thereof.

XII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be allowed to every master or owner of any ship or vessel three months time for the payment of the duty imposed by this act, for such coals and culm, from time to time imported, brought or carried by sea as aforesaid, good and sufficient security being given for the same, such as the collector or other chief officer of the port or place where such goods shall be imported or brought shall approve of; or if such master or owner shall for the same pay present money, there shall be allowed him after the rate of ten pounds per centum per annum, for such prompt payment; and if any of the coals or culm, for which the duty hereby granted shall be once paid or secured at the importation or landing thereof, shall be again exported and carried to any other place of this kingdom, there shall be no further duty by this act paid or demanded for the same; and if any of the coals, for which the duty by this act shall be once paid or secured as aforesaid, shall be afterwards carried to any parts beyond the seas, then an allowance out of the over-sea duties, or repayment, shall be made of so much as was before paid by this act for the same coals or culm.

XIII. Provided also, and be it enacted, That if any person or persons shall at any time be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done in execution of this act, he or they may plead the general issue, and give this act in evidence; and if a verdict pass for the defendant, or the plaintiff be nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, the defendant shall have treble costs, to be recovered as in other cases where costs are given by law to defendants.

Proviso.

Officers of the several ports to enter a true account of all monies received and paid;

and the number of chalders and tuns, &c.

Three months allowed for paying the duties, on giving security.

Ten pounds per cent. allowed for prompt payment.

WHEREAS the preventing the currency of clipt and unlawfully diminished, and counterfeit money, is a more effectual means to preserve the coin of this kingdom intire and pure, than the most rigorous laws for the punishment of such as diminish or counterfeit the same: and whereas by the known laws of this kingdom no person ought to pay, or knowingly tender in payment, any counterfeit or unlawful diminished money, and all persons not only may refuse to receive the same, but may, and by the ancient statutes and ordinances of this kingdom have been required to destroy and deface the same; and more especially the tellers in the receipt of the Exchequer, by their duty and oath of office, are required to receive no money but good and true; and to the end the same might the better be discerned and known, by the ancient course of the said receipt of the Exchequer, all money ought to be received there by weight as well as by tale: for the restoring of which course, together with other things, an act was made in the last session of this present parliament, intituled, An act for the better observation of the course anciently used in the receipt of the Exchequer, whereby amongst other things it is enabled, That the respective tellers of the said receipt of the Exchequer, when any money shall be brought to the said receipt of the Exchequer, to be there paid, shall without delay receive it, weighing the same in intire sums or otherwise, and making due entry of the weight and tale thereof, according to the ancient course; but no provision is made in the said act, that the said tellers shall refuse to receive the said money, in case it shall not be of its due weight: and the former and ancient laws being grown into desuetude, whereby unlawfully diminished and counterfeit money receive a currency, and wicked and traitorous persons are encouraged to diminish and counterfeit the same: now to the end the kingdom, after so vast a charge and expence for the reformation of the silver coin, and restoring it to its due weight and purity, may not relapse into the same evil, from which it hath been so lately delivered with great difficulty and hazard, and that counterfeit and unlawfully diminished money, which already begins to increase, may be defaced and destroyed, be it declared and enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That it is and shall be lawful to and for any person, to whom any silver money shall be tendred, any piece or pieces whereof shall be diminished, otherwise than by reasonable wearing, or that by the stamp, impresson, colour, or weight thereof, he shall suspect to be counterfeit, to cut, break, or deface such piece or pieces; and if any piece so cut, broken, or defaced, shall appear to be counterfeit, the person tending the same shall bear the loss thereof; but if the same shall be of due weight, and appear to be lawful money, the person that cut, broke, or defaced the same, shall and is hereby required to take and receive the same at the rate it was coined for; and if any question or dispute shall arise, whether the piece so cut be counterfeit, it shall be heard and finally determined by the mayor, bailiff, or bailiffs, or other chief officer of any city or town corporate, where such tender shall be made; and if such tender shall be made out of any city or town corporate, then by the next justice of the peace of the county, inhabiting or being near the place where such tender shall be made; and the said mayor, or other chief officer, and justice of the peace, shall have full power and authority to administer an oath, as he shall see convenient, to any person, for the determining any questions relating to the said piece.

II. And

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the tellers of the receipt of the Exchequer, and their deputies and clerks, and receivers general of every branch of his Majesty's revenue, aids, impositions, duties, and taxes, given or granted, or to be hereafter given or granted, shall and are hereby required, to cut, break; or deface, or cause to be cut, broken, or defaced, every piece of counterfeit, or unlawfully diminished, silver money, that shall be tendred in payment to them to the use of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, or for any part of the revenue, aids, impositions, duties, or taxes of his Majesty, his heirs or successors; and the better to discover silver money that is counterfeit, or unlawfully diminished, from that which is good and true, the tellers and receivers general, and their respective deputies and clerks, shall weigh in whole sums, or otherwise, all silver money by them received; and if the same, or any piece thereof, shall by the weight or otherwise appear to be counterfeit, or unlawfully diminished, the same shall not be received by or from them in the said receipt of the Exchequer; nor be allowed them upon their respective accounts.

Officers of the Exchequer, receivers general, &c. required to cut such money so tendred, &c.

and to weigh all silver money received.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act made the last session of this present parliament, intituled, An act for the better preventing the counterfeiting the current coin of this kingdom, and every article and clause therein contained, shall from henceforth continue and be of force until the five and twentieth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and one, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament.

An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tonnage and poundage, towards raising the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, for the service of his Majesty's household, and other uses therein mentioned, during his Majesty's life.

New subsidy.

WHEREAS your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, being deeply sensible of the great blessings which, by the goodness of Almighty God, we and all other the subjects of your Majesty's realms and dominions, in the free exercise of the true christian religion (the most valuable benefit which can be bestowed upon any nation or people) as also in our liberties and properties, do fully enjoy under your Majesty's most auspicious government; and being desirous to make a grateful acknowledgment of your Majesty's unparalleled grace and favour to us your commons, and particularly for the great and successful undertakings and achievements, whereby your Majesty hath been the happy instrument of securing the aforesaid blessings to us and our posterities; have therefore freely and unanimously resolved to increase your Majesty's revenue during your Majesty's reign, (which God long continue) and do give and grant unto your most excellent Majesty the further rates, duties, and sums of money, herein after mentioned; and do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and of the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That over and above all subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and over and above all additional duties, impositions, and other duties whatsoever, by any other act or acts of parliament, or otherwise howsoever, already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to his Majesty, for or upon any wines, goods or merchandizes whatsoever,

foever, imported or to be imported, there shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto his Majesty, one other subsidy called Tunnage, for and upon all wines which, from and after the last day of January, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, at any time or times, during his Majesty's life, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; (that is to say),

French wines imported to London by the King's subjects to pay 4l. 10s. per tun, and by aliens 6l. per tun.
French wines imported into any other ports 3l. per tun, and by aliens 4l. 10s.

Muscadels, malmseys, &c. 45s. per but or pipe, and by aliens 3l. &c.

Rhenish wine, &c. 20s. per awm.

Wines landed in the out ports, and afterwards brought to London, to pay the whole duty due in the port of London.

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

12d. per pound on all goods and merchandize imported.

Goods imported, &c. and not rated in the book of rates, to pay the subsidy, &c.

II. Of every tun of wine of the growth of France, or of any the dominions of the French King, or crown of France, that shall come into the port of London, and the members thereof, by way of merchandize, by his Majesty's natural born subjects, the sum of four pounds and ten shillings of current English money, and so after that rate; and by strangers and aliens six pounds of the like money: And of every tun of the like wine, which shall be brought into all and every the other ports and places of this kingdom, and the dominions thereof, by way of merchandize, by his Majesty's natural born subjects, the sum of three pounds; and by aliens four pounds ten shillings.

III. And of every but or pipe of muscadels, malmseys, cutes, tents, alicants, bastards, facks, canaries, malaga's, maderas, and other wines whatsoever, commonly called Sweet Wines, of the growth of the Levant, Spain, Portugal, or any of them, or any the islands or dominions to them or any of them belonging, or elsewhere, that shall come or be brought into the port of London, by his Majesty's natural born subjects, the sum of forty five shillings of current English money, and so after that rate; and by strangers and aliens three pounds of like money: and of every but and pipe of the like wine, which shall come or be brought into all and every or any the other ports and places of this kingdom and dominions thereof, by way of merchandize, by his Majesty's natural born subjects, the sum of thirty shillings; and by strangers forty five shillings.

IV. And of every awm of rhenish wine, or wine of the growth of Germany, that shall be brought into this realm, and the dominions thereof, by his Majesty's natural born subjects, the sum of twenty shillings of current English money; and by strangers and aliens twenty five shillings: and that such wines that shall be landed in any the out ports, and afterwards brought to the port of London by certificate, shall pay so much more subsidy by this act as they paid short of the duty due in the port of London. Which several rates for wines are the same which are expressed in a certain book of rates which was signed by Sir Harbottle Grimstone, baronet, formerly speaker of the house of commons, and which is referred to by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported. And one further subsidy called Poundage; (that is to say) of all manner of goods and merchandizes of every merchant, natural born subject, denizen, and alien, to be imported or brought into this realm, or any his Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said last day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, during his Majesty's life, by way of merchandize, of the value of every twenty shillings of the same goods and merchandizes, according to the several and particular rates, and values of the same goods and merchandizes, as the same are particularly and respectively rated and valued in the aforeaid book of rates, twelve pence, and so after that rate; and if there shall happen to be brought into this realm any goods liable to the payment of subsidy by this act granted, which are not particularly rated in the said book of rates, that in every such case every customer or collector for the time being shall levy the subsidy by this act granted, according to the value and price of such goods, to be affirmed upon the oath of the merchant, in the presence of the customer, collector, comptroller, and surveyor, or any two of them: except and foreprized out of this grant grant of subsidy of poundage, all wines before limited to pay subsidy of tunnage, and all manner of fish English taken, and brought by English bottoms into this realm, and all manner of fresh fish and bestial that shall come into this realm, and all other goods and merchandizes, which in the said book of rates are mentioned to be custom free, and except and foreprized out of this grant of subsidy of poundage all goods and merchandizes which are commonly used in dying.

V. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted, That all drugs chargeable by this act, which shall be imported directly from the place of their growth in English built shipping, shall be rated to pay by this act one third part of what is charged thereupon in the said book of rates, and no more; and that all spicery, except pepper, which shall be imported directly from the place of its growth in English built shipping, shall be rated to pay by this act one third part of what is charged in the said book of rates, and no more; and that this act shall not extend to charge linen imported with the additional duty of one moiety of the rate mentioned in the said book of rates; and that all foreign wrought silks exported within one year from the importation, shall have two thirds of the rate hereby charged repaid at the custom house; and this act shall not extend to charge wrought silks imported with the additional duty of one moiety mentioned in the said book of rates; or to charge tobacco of the English plantations with the additional duty of one penny per pound, over and above the subsidy mentioned in the said book of rates; or to charge wines of the growth of France, Germany, Portugal, or Madeira, with the additional duty of three pounds per tun, or any other wines with the additional duty of four pounds per tun, mentioned in the said former acts or book of rates; and that for all tobacco of the English plantations, which shall be imported and exported again within one year after such importation, the further subsidy of one penny per pound hereby granted, shall be repaid at the custom house.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That out of the several subsidies of tunnage and poundage by this act granted, there shall be such and the like allowances and abatements in all cases, as are or were prescribed in the like cases by the said former act, or by the said book of rates, or the rules thereunto annexed, and to be made and allowed under the same restrictions, and in the same manner and form as are therein expressed.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several subsidies of tunnage and poundage hereby granted, shall be raised, levied and collected by the respective officers of his Majesty's customs for the time being, under the management and direction of the commissioners of the customs for the time being; and shall be brought and paid, or answered into the receipt of his Majesty's Exchequer, for the purposes in this act mentioned (such additional charge as shall be necessary for the management of this revenue only excepted); and that all and every the clauses, powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, matters and things whatsoever, contained in the said former act of tunnage and poundage, or in the said book of rates, or the rules thereunto annexed, or in any other laws or statutes whatsoever now in force, for raising, levying, securing, collecting, answering or paying the subsidy of tunnage and poundage thereby granted, shall be applied, practised, and put in execution, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the subsidy of tunnage and poundage by this act granted, as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the said clauses, powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, matters and things were particularly repeated, and again enacted in the body of this present act.

VIII. Provided always, and be it enacted, That the whole further subsidy laid by this act upon all sugars that shall be imported from the English plantations in America, shall and may be drawn and paid back at the exportation thereof; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

c. 21. s. 10.

IX. And whereas great quantities of brown and muscovado sugars have formerly been refined here in England, and afterwards exported to foreign markets, whereby a great number of people have been employed, and a manufacture carried on very profitable to this kingdom; which trade of refining sugars for exportation will be lost, unless a drawback be allowed, when such sugars are exported, after they are refined here, suitable to the drawback allowed on the exportation of brown and muscovado sugars, by reason foreign nations will be thereby enabled to refine them cheaper abroad than they can be done here at home; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for every hundred weight of sugar refined in England (and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity) exported out of this kingdom after the said last day of January, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, during the continuance of this act, there shall be repaid at the custom house to the exporter, within one month after demand thereof, the sum of three shillings, oath being first made by the refiner, that the said sugar so exported was produced from brown and muscovado sugar charged by this act, and that, as he very believes, the same was imported from his Majesty's plantations in America, and that, as he verily believes, the duty of the said brown and muscovado sugar was duly paid at the time of the importation thereof, and that the same was duly exported, his Majesty's searcher also certifying the shipping thereof, and all other requisites duly performed, according to the book of rates.

X. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the further subsidy hereby granted upon tobacco of the English plantations in America, the merchant importer shall have three months time from the importation to pay the same, giving security for the payment thereof accordingly; and in case of paying the same sooner than the said three months, the said merchant importer shall be allowed a discount after the rate of ten pounds per centum per annum for prompt payment; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XI. Provided always, That ginger of the English plantations in the West Indies, which by the said book of rates is valued at sixteen pence a pound, shall pay for the said former subsidy one shilling for every hundred weight, and for the subsidy by this act one shilling for every hundred weight, and after that proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, and no more; any thing in this act or the said former act to the contrary notwithstanding.

XII. And whereas great quantities of cut whalebone fit for use are frequently imported in short lengths and small parcels, by means whereof, not only his Majesty is defrauded of the duties laid thereupon, but the merchants importing, and the manufacturers employed in cutting of fin whalebone, are greatly prejudiced and discouraged; be it therefore declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, natives or foreigners, bodies politic or corporate, shall import or bring into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, any cut whalebone (other than in fins only) he, she or they shall forfeit the goods, and double the value of the cut whalebone so imported, one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall seize or sue for the same in any of his Majesty's courts of record, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance; any thing in this act, or any former law to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any the foreign goods or merchandizes by this act charged with the subsidy of tunnage or poundage hereby granted (other than and except foreign wrought silk, tobacco, sugars, and refined sugars, touching which other provisions are hereby made) shall at any time or times be again exported by any merchant English, within twelve calendarly months, or stranger within nine calendarly months, after the importation thereof, and that due proof be first made by certificate from from the proper officers, of the due entry and payment of the subsidy hereby granted, of any such foreign goods, wines, or merchandizes inward, together with the oath of the merchant importing and exporting the same, affirming the truth thereof, and that all other requisites shall be performed, which are by law required to be performed, in cases where the half subsidy is repaid by the said former act, the whole subsidy by this act granted, and which shall have been actually paid for such goods, wines or merchandizes, shall, without any delay or reward, be repaid unto such merchant or merchants who do export the same, within one month after demand thereof; or the security for the said subsidy by this act charged shall be vacated, as to so much as shall be so exported; and that as to the said foreign wrought silks, tobacco, sugars, and refined sugars, no repayment or drawback of or for the subsidy by this act shall be made or allowed for the same, unless they respectively be again exported within the times hereby limited for other goods; and that the like due proof be made, and other requisites performed, for the said silks, tobacco, sugar, and refined sugar, as are hereby directed in the like case for other goods or merchandizes exported; and that upon such exportation of foreign wrought silks, and such due proof made, and other requisites performed for the same, not only the two thirds of the subsidies by this act directed to be repaid for such silks as aforesaid, but also the remaining one third of the same subsidy, shall be entirely repaid at the custom house; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Drawback on exporting foreign silks, tobacco, sugar, &c.

XIV. And whereas it is intended, that the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds shall be supplied to his Majesty for the service of his household and family, and for other his necessary expences and occasions, out of the hereditary rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale and other liquors, which were granted to the crown in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and out of the rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale and other liquors, payable for the term of his Majesty's life, by an act of parliament made and passed in the second year of the reign of his Majesty and the late Queen of blessed memory, after all the tallies charged upon the weekly sum of six thousand pounds issuing out of the said several rates and duties of excise, pursuant to an act of parliament passed in the seventh year of his Majesty's reign in that behalf, and still remaining unsatisfied (with the interest thereof) shall be fully paid off and cleared; and out of the revenue of the general letter office or post office, or the office of the postmaster general, after all the tallies charged upon the weekly sum of six hundred pounds, issuing out of that revenue, pursuant to the said act of parliament for the seventh year of his Majesty's reign, and still remaining unsatisfied, and all the interest thereof shall be fully paid and discharged; and out of the small branches of his Majesty's revenues herein after mentioned and expressed, that is to say, The first fruits and tenths of the clergy; the fines for writs of covenant and writs of entry payable in the alienation office; the post fines; the revenue of the wine licences; the monies arising by sheriffs proffers and compositions in the Exchequer, and by the seizures of uncustomed and prohibited goods; the revenue of the ducky of Cornwall, and any other revenue arising by the rents of lands in England or Wales, or for fines of leases of the same, or any of them; and the duty of four and an half per centum in specie, arising in Barbadoes, and the Leeward islands in America; and out of the monies which from and after the commencement of this act shall arise by the further subsidies and duties hereby granted; be it therefore further enacted, and it is hereby enacted and provided by the authority aforesaid, That if the said great and small branches and revenues herein before mentioned, and out of which the said yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds is intended to be supplied as aforesaid, and every or any of them, shall produce in clear money more than the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, to be reckoned from the five and twentieth day of December, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, that then the overplus of such produce (being more than

7 & 8 W. 3.
c. 19.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the seventh and eighth years of his present Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act to encourage the bringing plate into the mint to be coined, and for the further remedying the ill state of the coin of this kingdom, it is amongst other things so enacted, That after the last day of March then next ensuing, no wrought plate of this kingdom can be shipped off, under the great penalties in the said act contained, whereby no home wrought manufactured plate, though never so beneficial to the artificers and trade of this kingdom, is permitted to be exported, which was at that time a good and wholesome law, and tended to the benefit of the kingdom, by keeping bullion at home to be coined: now forasmuch as by a subsequent act, made in the eighth and ninth years of the reign of his said Majesty, intituled, An act for the encouraging the bringing in of wrought plate to be coined, it is therein enacted, That from and after the first and twentieth day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, no goldsmith, silversmith, or other person whatsoever, shall work, make, or cause to be wrought or made, any silver vessel, plate or manufacture of silver, less in fineness than that of eleven ounces and ten penny weight of fine silver in every pound Troy, nor put to sale the same until it be marked, as in the said act is directed; whereby no profit can arise to any person who shall export such plate, as hath been or shall be made pursuant to that act, by losing the charge of the fashion in melting down the same, and selling the silver abroad, the principal thing aimed at to be prevented by the first recited act: but on the contrary a great benefit may accrue to many artificers, and to the kingdom in general, by giving liberty to export watches, sword-hilts, wrought plate, and several other silver manufactures made within this kingdom, being of the fineness prescribed in the said last recited act; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, it shall and may be lawful to export such watches, sword-hilts, wrought plate, and other silver manufactures made within this kingdom, being of the fineness of eleven ounces and ten penny weight to every pound Troy, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser weight, according to the rules prescribed in the said last recited act, as shall be yearly allowed by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs for the time being, or any three of them; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Watches, sword-hilts, wrought plate, &c. may be exported, as shall be yearly allowed by the commissioners of the customs.

II. And whereas great quantities of empty boxes, cases, and dial plates, for clocks and watches, have been exported without their movements, and in foreign parts made up with bad movements, and thereon some London watch-makers names engraven, and so are sold abroad for English work; and also there have been the like ill practices in England by divers persons, as well by some professing the art of clock and watch-making, as others ignorant therein, in putting counterfeit names, as also the names of the most known London watch-makers, on their bad clocks and watches, to the great prejudice of the buyers, and the disreputation of the said art at home and abroad: for the preventing therefore of all such ill practices for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons whatsoever shall, after the said four and twentieth day of June, export or send, or endeavour to export or send, out of this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, any outward or inward box, case or dial plate, of gold, silver, brass or other metal, for clock or watch, without the movement in or with every such box, case or dial plate made up fit for use, with the clock or watch-maker's name engraven thereon; nor any person whatsoever, after the said four and twentieth day of June, shall make up, or cause to be made up, any clock or watch without engraving or putting, or causing to be engraven or put, his or her own name and place of abode or freedom, and no other name or place, on every clock or watch he or she shall so make up, or cause to be made up, under the penalty of forfeiting every such empty box, case and dial-plate, clock and watch, not made up and engraven as aforesaid, and also for each and every of such offence the sum of twenty pounds, one moiety whereof to be to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety shall be to him, her or them that shall sue for the same in any of his Majesty's courts of record, by action of debt, bill, plaint or information, wherein no essoin, protection or wager of law shall be allowed, or more than one imparlance; any thing herein contained, or any law or statute to the contrary thereof, in any wise notwithstanding.

WHEREAS the wrought silks, commonly called lustrings and alamodes, under the name of wrought silks, in and by the book of rates referred to in the act of tunnage and poundage, which was made and passed in the twelfth year of the reign of his late Majesty King Charles the Second, were valued at forty shillings the pound weight, containing sixteen ounces; and according to that valuation are and will be liable to pay several subsidies, additional and other duties or impositions to your Majesty, by virtue of several acts of parliament since that time made and past, referring to the said book of rates for the value of the said silks: we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, being sensible that the said silks, called lustrings and alamodes, were much undervalued in the said book, and that the same are ordinarily of a much higher value than forty shillings for such a pound weight as aforesaid, do therefore in all humility grant, that your Majesty's duties for and upon all lustrings and alamodes imported, now payable by or according to the said valuation of forty shillings the pound weight, shall be increased, answered and paid according to the valuation herein after mentioned; and be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same; That all lustrings and alamodes, which from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be valued at four pounds for every pound weight, containing sixteen ounces as aforesaid: and his Majesty's several subsidies, additional and other duties and impositions as aforesaid, during the continuance of the same respectively, shall be collected, paid and answered for and upon the said lustrings and alamodes, according to the said valuations of four pounds for every pound weight, as if the same had been originally inserted in the said book of rates, and had been particularly referred to (instead of the said rate of forty shillings) in the several acts before mentioned: and that according to the same rules and methods, and with such or the like allowances, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as are by the said acts, and every or any of them prescribed, for the respective duties on the said commodities; any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And whereas it is a common practice in the said marshes, for divers persons, not resident upon the place, to buy up great quantities of wooll, and transport, or cause the same to be transported, out of this kingdom: for preventing such practices for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no person or persons residing within fifteen miles of the sea, in the counties of Kent and Sussex, shall presume to buy any wooll, before they do enter into bond to the King's majesty, his heirs or successors, with sureties, that all the wooll they buy shall not be sold by them to any person or persons within fifteen miles of the sea; and in case any wooll be found carried towards the sea side in the counties aforesaid, unless such wooll be first entred, and security given, the same shall be forfeited, and the person or persons offending therein shall also forfeit three shillings for every pound weight of all such wooll.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no wooll removed from the place where it was first housed, lodged or laid after sheering, within ten miles, as aforesaid, shall be lodged after the first removing within fifteen miles of the sea, in the counties aforesaid, upon pain of forfeiting all such wooll, if found; but if carried away, then every person or persons, who were the owners of the said wooll, to forfeit for every pound weight the sum of three shillings.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person or persons that shall lay, or cause to be laid or hid, any wooll within fifteen miles of the sea, and not entred, as aforesaid, all such wooll shall be seized and forfeited; that upon any seizure of such wooll, every person, laying claim to the same, shall give sufficient security in his Majesty's court of Exchequer (if cast upon trial) to pay treble costs, over and above the penalties and forfeitures aforesaid.

VII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be brought and prosecuted by any person or persons against any person employed in the execution of this act, for any matter, cause, or thing, by them or either of them done, committed, or executed by virtue of this act, or any clause or article therein contained, that then and in every such case the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence at the trial, that the same was done in pursuance and by authority of this act; and if upon examination it shall so happen to be done, the jury shall find for the defendant or defendants; and in such case, or if the plaintiff shall be nonsuit, or discontinue his action, the defendant or defendants shall have and recover treble costs, which he or they shall sustain or be put unto, by reason of his or their wrongful vexation in defence of the said action or suit.

VIII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the forfeitures and penalties before in this act mentioned, shall be distributed in manner and form following; viz. one third part to the use of his Majesty, Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other two thirds to the use of such person or persons as shall seize or sue for the same, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts at Westminster, wherein no effoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

IX. And whereas by an act of parliament, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, it is enacted, That no person or persons whatsoever should at any time thereafter be impeached for any offence against the said act, unless such persons be prosecuted within one year next ensuing such offence committed: and whereas a great many persons who have been guilty of transporting wooll, but discovery thereof hath not been made till the expiration of twelve months after the offence committed, to the great encouragement of several notorious offenders; For the prevention whereof be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty to cause such person or persons, as are or shall be guilty of transporting, or causing to be transported, any wooll, wooll-fells, fullers earth, or scouring clay, to be sued and prosecuted at any time within three years after the offence committed, in the same manner as informations on other penal statutes have been usually and may lawfully be prosecuted. 12 Car. 2. c. 32.

Exporters of wooll, &c. may be prosecuted within 3 years after offence.

XI. And whereas by an act made in the parliament held in the seventh and eighth years of his present Majesty, intituled, An act for the more effectual preventing the exportation of wooll, and for the encouraging the importation thereof from Ireland, amongst other things it is enacted, That the hundred out of which any wooll shall be exported, be liable to such penalties and forfeitures as is mentioned in the said act; but the hundred of Winchelsea in the cinque ports being divided by a navigable arm of the sea, so that the inhabitants on the one side thereof cannot be privy to or prevent what is done by those of the other side; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said hundred of Winchelsea shall be deemed and taken, in respect to the said act, as two distinct hundreds; (that is to say) the part of the one side of the said arm of the sea as one hundred, and the part on the other side as one other intire hundred; and the penalties, which may be forfeited for suffering such exportation, shall affect, charge, and be levied on that part only of the said hundred which lies on the same side of the said arm of the sea, out of which such exportation was made and permitted; any thing in this or any other act to the contrary notwithstanding; provided nevertheless, That nothing in this act shall be construed to extend to divide the said hundred in any other particular but in this only. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 28.

this is declared to extend to salt exported to Scotland, &c.

XXII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall export beyond the seas, any salt, as well foreign as English, or any rock-salt, the officer of the place where the said salt was made, taken out of pits, or imported, and the duty thereof paid, or secured to be paid, shall, upon demand, deliver gratis, and without delay, a certificate under his hand and seal, that the duty imposed by this act on such salt hath been duly paid, or secured to be paid; and then the officer of the place where the salt is exported, upon producing the said certificate, and oath made of shipping off the said salt, and of its not being reloaded in England or Wales, shall give a debenture under his hand, without delay, fee, or reward, for repayment of the said duty; which being produced to the officer of the place where the duty on the said salt shall have been paid or secured to be paid, such security shall be discharged, and all and every sum and sums of money, paid for the duty of the said salt by this act, shall be repaid, upon demand, by the said officer, without fee or reward.

Persons sued on this act may plead the general issue, &c.

XXIV. Provided always, and be it enacted, That if any person or persons shall at any time be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done or executed in pursuance of this act, he or they shall or may plead the general issue, and give this act in evidence for his defence; and if upon a trial a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs be nonsuit, discontinue, or forbear prosecuting the said actions, then such defendant or defendants shall have double costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs, for which costs he shall have such remedy, as in other cases where costs are by law given to defendants.

Penalty on persons landing salt after duty has been repaid, before the duty be again paid.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the salt, for which the duty shall have been repaid or discharged upon the exportation thereof, as is herein before directed, shall (by fraud or otherwise) be landed in England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, before the duty be again paid, and such entry, and all other things performed, as are herein before required, in case where any foreign salt is imported, every person so offending shall forfeit double the value (and after the rate of ten shillings per bushel) of such salt so landed, and such other penalties and forfeitures as are herein inflicted upon any person who shall land any foreign salt contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act.

All persons trading in pursuance of this act, &c. shall enter the goods they export, &c.

LXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons whatsoever, that shall or may, in pursuance of this act, trade or send, or cause to be sent, any goods, foreign coins, or other merchandizes, for the East Indies, or other the parts within the limits aforesaid, before such goods, foreign coins, or other merchandizes, or any of them (the goods, foreign coins, or other merchandizes of such company as shall or may be erected, if any such be, to trade with a joint stock, as aforesaid, only and always excepted) shall be shipped, laded, or put on board any ship, or into any lighter, boat, or other vessel for that purpose, shall make, or cause to be made, an entry or entries of the same, in a book or books for that purpose, specifying in such entry or entries the true and full quantities, kinds, and values of all the goods, foreign coins, or other merchandizes so intended to be sent for the East Indies, or other the parts within the limits aforesaid, from England, or from any other country whatsoever, with the name of the ship, and of the commander or master thereof; to the end it may may be seen by inspection of such book or books (to which all persons concerned shall have free access at all seasonable times, without fee or charge) from time to time, whether such traders do or do not send more goods, coins, or merchandizes in the said trade than they respectively are allowed to send by this act; and all and every such person and persons, upon such entry or entries made, from time to time, shall make and sign an affirmation in writing, in which he or they shall declare or affirm (upon the oath or solemn declaration which he or they shall previously have taken or made, as aforesaid, in that behalf) that such entry or entries do contain the true and full value and values of all the goods, coin, or merchandizes, to be shipped by or for him or them on such ship for that voyage; all which entries and affirmations shall be made before two or more of the trustees for the general society aforesaid, and in books to be kept by them for that purpose, until a company with power to trade upon a joint stock shall be erected, as aforesaid; and after such company shall be erected, then the same shall be made before two or more of the directors or managers of such company, and in books to be kept by them for that purpose.

The said entries to be attested on oath, &c.

Entries and affirmations how to be made.

LXVIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That if any person or persons, who are hereby required to make such entries and affirmations as this act directs, shall neglect so to do, or if any goods, foreign coins, or other merchandizes so entered, shall be of greater value than shall be specified in such entry or entries, that then, and in every such case, the goods, foreign coins, or other merchandizes which shall be shipped or put on board any ship or other vessel designed for the East Indies, or any other the parts within the limits aforesaid, or into any lighter, boat, or other vessel, to be put upon any such ship, for which no such entry or affirmation shall be made, or which shall be omitted therein, and the effects and proceed of the same (wheresoever they shall be found) shall be forfeited, and may be seized, and double the value thereof shall and may be sued for and recovered against the respective offenders, and to be divided or distributed in such manner and form, as his Majesty by such charter or charters shall appoint.

Penalty on persons not making true entries.

LXIX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That no company or particular person or persons who shall have a right, in pursuance of this act, to trade to the East Indies, or other the parts within the limits aforesaid, shall be allowed to trade thither, until sufficient security shall be first given (which the commissioners of the customs in England, or any three or more of them for the time being, are hereby authorized and required to take, in the name, and to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors) that such company, or particular persons, shall cause all the goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities, which shall at any time or times hereafter, during the continuance of this act, be laden by or for them, or any of them, or for their or any of their accounts, in any ship or ships whatsoever, bound from the said East Indies, or parts within the limits aforesaid, shall be brought (without breaking bulk) to some port of England or Wales, and there be unladen and put on land (the danger of the seas, enemies, pirates, constraints of princes and rulers, and barratry of seamen excepted); and in case there be any difficulty or dispute in the acceptance of any such security, such difficulty and dispute shall and may be determined by the lord chief baron, and other the barons of the coif of the Exchequer, or any of them, according to his or their best judgment and discretion; and that all goods and merchandizes, belonging to the company to be erected, as aforesaid, or any other traders to the East Indies, and which shall be imported into England or Wales, as aforesaid, pursuant to this act, shall by them respectively be sold openly and publicly by inch of candle, upon their respective accounts, and not otherwise, upon pain that the same, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited and lost, to wit, one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to any person or persons that will seize, inform, or sue for the same, by action of debt, or of the case, bill, plaint, or information, as aforesaid.

No company, &c. to trade before security given, &c. that goods laden in the Indies shall be brought to England, &c. This clause explained as to the securities to be given, and also breaking bulk, by 6 Annæ, c. 3. s. 1.

Disputes in acceptance of security how to be determined.

Goods imported to be sold by inch of candle.

Penalty.

King's commission, &c. shall direct in what manner the shares in the yearly fund, &c. shall be assigned or transferred.

An additional duty of 5 l. per cent. laid on all East India goods imported, &c. Continued by 10 Annæ, c. 28.

To be paid over to the general society, &c. for maintaining ambassadors, &c.

Overplus, if any, how to be disposed.

Security to be given for payment of the said additional duty, &c.

LXX. And be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty, by any such commission, charters, or letters patents, as aforesaid, under the great seal of England, to limit, direct, and appoint, how, and in what manner and proportions, and under what rules and directions, the shares of all and every person and persons whatsoever in the said yearly fund, and of and in the stock of the said general society, or of any company to be settled or authorized to trade in pursuance of this act, and every or any part or proportion thereof, shall or may be assignable or transferrable, to be assigned or transferred to such person or persons only, as shall freely and voluntarily accept of the same, and not otherwise; and that all assignments and transferences made in such manner shall be good and available in the law.

LXXVI. And the said commons of England in parliament assembled, for the ends and purposes in this act expressed, have also given and granted unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the further rates and duties herein after mentioned; and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for and upon all goods, wares, and merchandizes whatsoever, of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East Indies, or any other countries or places within the limits aforesaid, to wit, beyond the said cape to the streights of Magellan, which from and after the said nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand six hundred and ninety-eight, at any time or times shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, by any corporation, person or persons, trading within the limits aforesaid, by virtue or in pursuance of this act, there shall be yielded and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors (over and above all other duties payable for the same) a duty after the rate of five pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value of the said goods; to be paid over from time to time to the said general society of subscribers, and their successors, or such treasurer or treasurers, as such society shall appoint to receive the same, unless a company, upon the desire of the subscribers, or any of them, shall be erected in pursuance of this act, to trade with a joint stock, as aforesaid; and from and after the erecting or settling of such company, then the said duty of five pounds per centum shall be paid over to such company, and their successors, or to their treasurer, to the end that the said general society, and the said company respectively, may, out of the produce of the said duty of five pounds per centum, maintain such ambassadors, or other ministers, as his Majesty, his heirs or successors, (at the nomination of the trustees, directors, or managers, of or for the general society aforesaid, or of such company, to be empowered to trade with a joint stock, as aforesaid), shall be pleased to send to any emperor, prince, or state, within the parts aforesaid, and defray any other extraordinary or necessary expences, in carrying on the said trade; and if at any time or times there be an overplus of the produce of the said duty, to dispose the same, from time to time, to and for the benefit of all the members of the said general society, until a company to trade with a joint stock shall be erected, as aforesaid; and after such company shall be erected, then to and for the benefit of all the members thereof, according to their respective shares or interests in the principal or capital stock of the same.

LXXVII. And for the better raising, levying, and securing, the said duty, after the rate of five pounds in the hundred, it is hereby further enacted, That upon the importation of any such goods, as aforesaid liable thereunto, an entry or entries thereof shall be made in the custom-house where such goods shall be imported, and before the landing thereof the importer or importers of the same shall give security (which the commissioners, or proper officers of the customs, are hereby required and empowered to take) for payment of the said duties, after the rate of five pounds in the hundred upon the said goods, as soon as the same shall be sold, the value value thereof to be reckoned according to the gross price at which such goods shall be sold; and that in case any such goods shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house, in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and the duties hereby imposed shall be secured, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering of the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported goods as shall be so landed, or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit, one moiety of the same to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize the said goods, or sue for the same, or the value thereof, by action, bill, suit, or information, as aforesaid.

Goods landed before duty secured, &c. shall be forfeited.

LXXVIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That the said duty of five pounds in the hundred shall be from time to time under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs for the time being, who shall cause the same to be raised, levied, collected, and paid, to the hands of the receiver or receivers general of the revenue of the customs for the time being, and such receiver or receivers general for the time being shall answer and pay over all the monies arising thereby (the necessary charges of raising, collecting, and answering the same, only excepted) in such manner, and for such purposes, as are before in this act appointed.

These duties to be managed by the commissioners of the customs.

LXXIX. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That at any time upon three years notice, after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, upon repayment by parliament of the said sum of two millions, or such part thereof as shall be paid or advanced as aforesaid, unto the respective subscribers and contributors of the same, or to such person or persons as by, from, or under them shall be intitled to the said annuities or shares of the said yearly fund or capital stock in respect of the same, and of all arrears of the said annuities or yearly payments, then and from thenceforth as well the said duties upon salt, and rock-salt, as the said duties upon stamped vellum, parchment and paper, and also the said yearly fund charged thereupon, and the said annuities issuing out of the same, and the said duty of five pounds in the hundred, for the said imported goods, and also all the said corporations to be erected by or in pursuance of this act, and the benefit of trade hereby given, or intended to be given to them, or any of them, shall absolutely cease and determine; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

On 3 years notice after the 29 Sept. 1711, and repayment by parliament of the said 2,000,000l. &c. this act to cease and determine. Refrained by 10 Annæ, c. 28. to 3 years notice after 25 March, 1733.

LXXXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such persons or corporations, as in pursuance of this act shall have a right and power to trade to the East Indies, and other the parts aforesaid, according to such provisions, proportions and restrictions, as are in this act contained, and subject to the condition or power of redemption before mentioned, from and after the said nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand six hundred ninety-eight, shall have, use, and enjoy, the whole and sole trade and traffick, and the only liberty, use, and privilege, of trading, trafficking, and exercising the trade or business of merchandize to and from the said East Indies, and to and from all the islands, ports, havens, cities, towns, and places, within the limits before mentioned; and that the said East Indies, the islands, havens, forts, cities, towns, or places, within the limits aforesaid, or any of them, shall not, after the said nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand six hundred ninety-eight, be visited, frequented, or entered, by any other of the subjects of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, during such time as the benefit of trade hereby given, or intended to be given, to the subscribers or others, as aforesaid, ought to continue by virtue of this act; and if any of the subjects of his Majesty, his heirs, or successors, of what degree or quality soever they be, other than such as may lawfully Persons who may trade pursuant to this act, shall have the sole trade to the East Indies, &c.

SECT. II. AND be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the tenth day of July, one thousand six hundred ninety-eight, there shall be answered and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, for and during the term of eight years from thence next ensuing, for and upon all whale fins and Scotch linens herein-after mentioned, as shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, (over and above all impositions, duties and charges already imposed and payable upon and for the same, by the book of rates or otherwise) the further rates and duties following; that is to say,

III. For all whale fins that are or shall be taken, caught and imported in and by any ships or vessels whatsoever, of or belonging to the company established for the Greenland trade, the sum of three-pence for every pound weight thereof; and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity: and for all whale fins which are or shall be taken, caught, or imported, by foreigners, or by any ships or vessels not belonging to the said company, the sum of six pence for every pound weight thereof; and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; to be paid by the importer or importers of the same.

IV. For all linen of the manufacture of Scotland, commonly called by the name of twill, which shall be imported or brought in as aforesaid, the sum of ten shillings for every hundred, containing one hundred and twenty ells: and for all linen of the manufacture of Scotland, commonly called by the name of ticking, which shall be imported or brought in as aforesaid, the sum of six shillings and eight pence for every hundred, containing one hundred and twenty ells; and after those rates for any greater or lesser quantities; to be also paid by the importer or importers of the same.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for the additional duties hereby imposed upon the above mentioned goods, the importer, giving security at the custom-house, shall have time not exceeding twelve twelve months, for the payment of the same, from the importation, to be paid by four equal and quarterly payments; or in case such importer shall pay ready money, he shall have after the rate of ten pounds per centum of the said duty for a year abated to him; and if the goods and merchandizes aforementioned, imported as aforesaid, for which the duties hereby granted shall be paid or secured at the importation thereof, be again exported by any merchant, English, within twelve months, or by strangers within nine months, after the importation, then the aforesaid duty shall be wholly repaid, or the security vacated as to what shall be so exported.

ter the rate of 10 l. per cent. for prompt payment. Goods exported again in 9 months, duty to be repaid. These 12 and 9 months enlarged to 3 years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 21. s. 10.

IX. And it is hereby further enacted, That upon the importation of any whale fins, Scotch linen or tickings hereby charged as aforesaid, an entry or entries thereof shall be made in the custom-house where such goods shall be imported; and in case any such goods shall be landed or put on shore, out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made as aforesaid, and the duties hereby imposed thereupon shall be paid or secured, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, then all such imported goods as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning thereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited and lost, and shall and may be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; (to wit) one moiety of the said forfeitures to the use of the King, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize the said goods, or sue for the same or the value thereof, by action, bill, suit, or information, as aforesaid.

Entry to be made on importation of whale fins, Scotch linen, &c.

Goods landed before entry forfeited, and may be recovered of importer, &c.

X. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties hereby granted and payable for whale fins, and such Scotch linen as aforesaid, shall be from time to time under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs for the time being, who shall cause the same to be raised, levied, collected, and paid to the hands of the receiver or receivers general of the revenue of the customs for the time being: and such receiver or receivers general shall from time to time bring the produce thereof, (the necessary charges of raising and answering the same only excepted) into the receipt of the Exchequer: and that the officers of the said receipt of the Exchequer for the time being, to whom it shall appertain, shall from time to time issue, pay, and apply, as well the said duties upon whale fins, and such Scotch linens as aforesaid, arising by this act, as also such part of the said duties upon glass and glass wares, as is not taken away by this act, to and for the payment and satisfaction of such principal and interest monies, whereunto the whole duties upon glass, and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes, by any act or acts of parliament now in force, ought to have been applied, if this present act had never been made; and that in such order and form, and under the like penalties and forfeitures, as by any such act or acts now in force are or were provided or prescribed for the issuing, paying and applying of the said whole duties upon glass and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes; by any thing in this act, or any former act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act to prevent the exportation of wooll out of the kingdom of Ireland and England into foreign parts; and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England.

This act made more effectual by 5 Geo. 2. c. 21.

From 24 June, 1699,

no wooll, woollfells, shortlings, &c. to be exported out of Ireland, to any place but England, &c.

Wooll laid near the sea, &c. in order to be exported, is forfeited by 5 Geo. 1. c. 11. s. 21.

FORASMUCH as wooll and the woollen manufactures of cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, and other stuffs made or mixed with wooll, are the greatest and most profitable commodities of this kingdom, on which the value of lands, and the trade of the nation do chiefly depend: and whereas great quantities of the like manufactures have of late been made, and are daily increasing in the kingdom of Ireland, and in the English plantations in America, and are exported from thence to foreign markets, heretofore supplied from England, which will inevitably sink the value of lands, and tend to the ruin of the trade, and the woollen manufactures of this realm: for the prevention whereof, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures within this kingdom, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no person or persons whatsoever, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, shall directly or indirectly export, transport, ship off, carry, or convey, or cause or procure to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried, or conveyed out of, or from the said kingdom of Ireland, into any foreign realm, states, or dominions, or into any parts or places whatsoever, other than the parts within the kingdom of England, or the dominion of Wales, any the wooll, woollfells, shortlings, mortlings, woollflocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made up or mixed with wooll or woollflocks, or shall directly or indirectly load, or cause to be laden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, or load or lay on board, or cause to be laden or laid on board in any ship or vessel, in any place or parts within or belonging to the said kingdom of Ireland, any such wooll, woollfells, shortlings, mortlings, woollflocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cloth, bays, kerseys, serges, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, or any other drapery or woollen manufactures, to the intent or purpose to export, transport, ship off, carry or convey the same.

same, or cause the same to be exported, transported, shipped off, carried or conveyed out of the said kingdom of Ireland, or out of any port or place belonging to the same, or with intent or purpose that any person or persons whatsoever should so export, transport, ship off, carry or convey the same out of the said kingdom of Ireland, into any ports or places, except as aforesaid.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every of the offender and offenders, offence and offences, aforesaid, shall be subject and liable to the respective pains, and penalties, and forfeitures hereafter following; (that is to say) The said wooll, woollfells, shortlings, mortlings, woollstocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, or any other draperies, stuffs, or any other manufactures, made of or mixed with wooll or woollstocks, so exported, transported, shipped off, or carried, conveyed, or laden, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall be forfeited; and that every of the offender and offenders therein shall likewise forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds for every such offence; and all and every ship, vessel, barge, boat, or other bottom whatsoever, wherein any of the said commodities are or shall be shipped or laid on board, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall be forfeited, with all her tackle, apparel, and furniture to them and every of them belonging; and the masters and mariners thereof, or any porters, carriers, waggoners, boatmen, or other persons whatsoever, knowing such offence, and wittingly aiding and assisting therein, shall forfeit forty pounds; of which one moiety shall be to him or them that shall sue for the same by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record in England, or Ireland, and the other moiety thereof to the encouragement of setting up the linen manufactures in Ireland, to be disposed of by the court of Exchequer there for that use only; in which suit no effoin, protection, or wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be allowed.

Penalties on offenders.

By 3 Geo. 1. c. 21. s. 4. One moiety is given to the King.

III. And to prevent evading the penalties of this act, by pretension of prosecution or acquittals in Ireland; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no acquittal, nor any indictment, information, or suit (unless the offender be thereupon convicted) in Ireland, for any offence provided against in this act, shall be pleaded or allowed in bar or delay of any indictment, information, suit, or prosecution within the kingdom of England.

No acquittal, &c. in Ireland, allowed in bar of any prosecution in England.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons to seize, take, secure, and convey to his Majesty's next warehouse, all such wooll, woollfells, shortlings, mortlings, woollstocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cloth, serges, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-serges, shalloons, stuffs, and other draperies and woollen manufactures, or mixed with wooll or woollstocks, as he or they shall happen to see, find, know, or discover to be laid on board in any ship, vessel, or boat, or to be brought, carried, or laid on shore, at or near the sea, or any navigable river or water, to the intent or purpose to be exported or conveyed out of the said kingdom of Ireland, contrary to the true meaning of this act, or to be laden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, to the intent or purpose to be exported, conveyed, or carried into any foreign parts or places, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof; and also that it shall and may be lawful to and for any person and persons to seize and secure all and every such ship, hulk, vessel, barge, or boat, of what kind soever, or wheresoever found or discovered, wherein any of the aforesaid commodities shall happen to be shipped or put on board, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act; and that such person or persons that shall happen so to seize, take, or secure any of the commodities aforesaid, or any such ship, vessel, hulk, barge, or boat, as aforesaid, shall be indemnified for so doing, to all intents and purposes.

Any person may seize all such wooll, &c.

And also the ship, hulk, &c.

Seizer indemnified for so doing.

V. And

Bond to be given for ship taking on board woollen commodities.

Ship taking goods on board before bond given, to be forfeited.

A register to be kept of goods imported from Ireland.

Cockets, &c. to be written on paper, and signed, and certificates of landing.

Goods to be viewed by surveyor, &c.

Quantities to be expressed on the cocket, &c.

Commissioners of the customs of Ireland to transmit the quantities, &c. of goods exported, to the commissioners of the customs in England, and duplicates of the bonds, &c. as also dates of certificates.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for every ship or vessel, which from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, shall set out and sail from the said kingdom of Ireland, in order to export or carry off any of the commodities aforesaid to this kingdom, bond shall be given by two sufficient persons, known inhabitants of and residing in or near the place where the bond is or shall be given, to the chief officers of the customs, belonging to the said port or place in the said kingdom of Ireland, from whence the said ship or vessel shall set sail, in double the value of any the aforesaid goods, intended to be transported, as aforesaid, before the said ship or vessel shall be permitted to lade on board any of the commodities aforesaid; with condition that if the said ship or vessel shall lade or take on board any of the said goods, in the kingdom of Ireland, that then and in such case all the said goods shall be brought, by the same ship or vessel, to some port or ports within the kingdom of England, or the dominion of Wales, as aforesaid, and shall there unlade or put on shore the same, and pay the custom and duties thereof, the danger of the seas only excepted. And that every ship or vessel, which shall lade or take on board any of the said goods, until such bond be given, shall be forfeited, to be recovered and employed in manner as aforesaid.

VI. And for the more effectual execution of the powers granted by this act; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a register be kept at the custom house in London, of all the aforesaid goods, from time to time imported from Ireland, into any of the ports within this kingdom, or dominion of Wales, with the particular qualities and quantities thereof, the master's and owners names, and to whom consigned.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all cockets and warrants for the carrying or transporting of any of the aforesaid goods, from the kingdom of Ireland, to any port or ports aforesaid, within this kingdom, shall be written upon paper, and not parchment, and signed by three of the chief officers of such respective port at least; and all certificates of landing the same in any the ports aforesaid, within this kingdom, or dominion of Wales, shall be signed in like manner; and that all the goods aforesaid, both at shipping and landing, shall be viewed and examined by the surveyor or searcher, or land-waiter, attending the shipping or discharge of any the aforesaid goods; and that the exact quantities and qualities, marks and numbers of the goods aforesaid, so shipped in Ireland, shall be particularly expressed and indorsed upon the cocket, by which the said goods are or were to be shipped, and likewise upon the warrant for landing the same in England; and also upon the certificate or certificates, given or to be given, for discharging the bond or bonds taken in Ireland for the same.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of the revenue, or farmers of the customs, or of the revenue of the kingdom of Ireland, for the time being, shall from time to time, and at all times hereafter, once within every six months, or within thirty days after the end thereof, transmit or cause to be transmitted unto the commissioners or farmers of his Majesty's customs in England, of all such goods as aforesaid, as shall from time to time be exported from the said kingdom of Ireland, the qualities and quantities thereof, and duplicates of the bonds taken for lading the same, and by whom and in what ships exported, and where and to what port in the kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, consigned, and the names of the persons signing the certificates of the landing the same in England, and the date of the said certificates, and where the same are or were laden, and also of the qualities and quantities, marks and numbers contained in the said certificates, in order that the same may be compared with the registred account, appointed by this act to be kept by the commissioners or farmers of the customs of this kingdom.

IX. And for preventing the mischief of rasing, obliterating, or interlining such certificates, as aforesaid; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such certificates shall be written upon paper, and not parchment, and that the quantities and qualities, marks, and numbers therein expressed, shall not be obliterated or interlined upon any pretence whatsoever.

Certificates to be written on paper, &c.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such goods as aforesaid, as shall from time to time be exported from the said kingdom of Ireland, into the ports of this kingdom, or dominion of Wales, in manner as aforesaid, shall be shipped off and entred at the ports of Dublin, Waterford, Youghall, Kingsale, Cork, and Drogheda, in the said kingdom of Ireland, and at or from no other port or place within the said kingdom; nor shall the same be imported into any parts of the kingdom of England, or dominion of Wales, other than the ports of Bideford, Barnstable, Minehead, Bridgewater, Bristol, Milford Haven, Chester, and Liverpool; any thing in this act to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Ports for exporting and importing goods.
By 4 Annæ, c. 7. goods may be exported from New Ross.

XI. And to the intent and purpose that this act may more effectually be put in execution, for preventing the growing mischiefs that daily do or may arise to this kingdom, from the exportation of such goods as aforesaid, or any of them, out of the kingdom of Ireland, should the same still be suffered to be sent from thence to supply the foreign markets, that are or have been supplied from England; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any commissioner or commissioners, farmer or farmers of the revenue of Ireland, or officer or officers employed under them in the management of the said revenue there, shall, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, take or suffer to be taken any entry outward, or sign any cocket, warrant or sufferance, for the shipping and exporting any such goods, as aforesaid, into any kingdom, state, or dominion whatsoever (except as aforesaid) or shall wittingly or willingly permit, connive, or suffer the same to be done, directly or indirectly, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, that then, and in every such case, such commissioner or commissioners, farmer or farmers, officer or officers, so offending in the signing such cocket, warrant, or sufferance for the shipping or exporting any of the said goods into any other kingdom, state, or dominion, or place whatsoever (except as aforesaid) or passing such entry for the same, or any wise conniving thereat, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, or shall otherwise fail or neglect to perform all other duties required by this present act, shall for every such offence or neglect forfeit his office, and shall moreover for every such offence forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered and employed in manner and form as aforesaid.

Penalty on commissioner or officer of the customs, &c.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every offence which shall be done or committed contrary to this act, shall and may be inquired of, tried, heard, and determined in the county where any such goods, as aforesaid, shall be so laden or put on board, as aforesaid, or where in the county, either in England or Ireland, where such offender shall happen to be apprehended or arrested for such offence, or where any such of the goods aforesaid, or the said ship or ships, vessels, hulks, barks, or boats shall happen to be seized or taken, or brought in; and that the said trial shall be in such manner and form, and in such effect, to all intents and purposes, as if the same offence had been wholly done and committed in the same county.

Offences where triable.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action, bill, plaint, suit, or information shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person, for what he shall do in pursuance of this act, such person so sued shall and may file a common bail, or enter into a common appearance, and plead the general issue, Not guilty, and upon issue joined Persons sued for executing this act may file a common bail, &c.

Defendant to have treble costs.

Woollen manufactures may be imported from Ireland to England.

Notice being first given, may give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if the plaintiff or prosecutor shall become nonsuit, or suffer discontinuance, or if a verdict pass against him, or if upon demurrer judgment pass against him, the defendant shall recover treble costs and damages for the molestation.

XIV. And for the further encouragement of the woollen manufactures of England; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, to import from the said ports of Dublin, Waterford, Youghall, Kinsale, Cork, and Drogheda, in the kingdom of Ireland, any wools, woollfells, shortlings, mortlings, woollflocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cloth, serges, bays, kerseys, frizes, druggets, shalloons, stuffs, cloth-serges, or any other drapery made of or mixed with wool, or woollflocks, and manufactured in the kingdom of Ireland, into such ports of this kingdom or dominion of Wales only, as aforesaid, so as notice be first given to the commissioners or chief managers of his Majesty's customs in this kingdom, or to the chief customer or collector in the port to which the same is intended to be brought, of the quantity, quality, and package, together with the marks and numbers thereof, with the name of the ship and master or commander, on which the said goods are to be laden, and the place or port into which they are intended to be imported, and so as bond be first entered into, to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, with one or more sufficient sureties, in treble the value of the goods so intended to be imported, That the same shall (the dangers of the seas excepted) be landed accordingly, and so as a licence be also first taken, under the hands of the commissioners or chief managers of the customs for the time being, or three of them, or from the chief customer or collector where such bond is given, for the landing and importing thereof, as aforesaid; which licence they are hereby authorized and required to grant, without any fee or reward, or any other charge to the person demanding the same; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XV. And for the more effectual preventing the transportation of wool, woollfells, shortlings, mortlings, or woollflocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, or any manufactures of wool or woollflocks, or mixed with the same, into foreign parts; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the penalties and forfeitures of the bonds, which by this act or any other former law or usage are to be given, or have been given in the kingdom of Ireland, for any wool, or any of the commodities aforesaid, intended to be exported from that kingdom, to be brought into the ports of this kingdom, or dominion of Wales, as aforesaid, shall not, on any consideration whatsoever, be granted or assigned over to any person whatsoever; and that all such grants or assignments are and shall be void to all intents and purposes; any law, usage, or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XVI. And for the better preventing the exportation of wool out of this kingdom or Ireland, into foreign parts; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the lord high admiral of England, or commissioners for executing the office of high admiral for the time being, shall direct and appoint two ships of the fifth rate, and two ships of the sixth rate, and eight armed sloops, constantly to cruise on the coasts of England and Ireland, particularly between the north of Ireland and Scotland, with orders to take and seize all ships, vessels, and boats, which shall export any wool with intent to carry it into foreign parts; and that the lord high admiral, or commissioners, as aforesaid, shall send a list of all such ships and sloops, and the names of the commanders, together with true copies of their several instructions that are or shall be given, to the commissioners of the customs in London, within ten days after such orders, as aforesaid, are or shall be given.

XVII. And

XVII. And for the encouragement of the commanders and mariners belonging to the ships and sloops aforesaid; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all wool, ships, vessels, or boats that shall be so seized or taken, shall be forfeited, and all such wool shall be lodged in the King's warehouse, in such port where it is or shall be taken or seized, or into which it shall be brought, until it shall be condemned according to law; and being so condemned, shall be exposed publickly to sale, after one and twenty days, publick notice being given in writing at the custom-house of the said port, and on the royal exchange of London, by inch of candle, to the last and best bidder; and all ships, vessels, or boats that shall be so seized and condemned, as aforesaid, shall, together with all their guns, tackle, furniture, and apparel, be exposed to sale in like manner; and that one fourth part of the produce of the wool, ships, vessels, and boats so sold, as aforesaid, shall be to the commander, one other fourth part to the officers of the ship or ships, sloop or sloops that took the same, one other fourth part to the mariners belonging to such ship, vessel, or sloop, to be equally divided and paid amongst the said mariners, by the collectors of the said port, or such person or persons as shall be authorized to pay the same, and the other fourth part thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, after a deduction made out of the last fourth part of all the charges of prosecution and condemnation.

All wool, ships, &c. so seized to be forfeited, and sold by inch of candle.

Produce how to be divided.

XVIII. And for preventing of all composition or confederacy by any commander of any ship, vessel, or sloop, with any person whatsoever, concerned in such wool or ship, vessel or boat, as aforesaid; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every commander of such ship or sloop, neglecting his duty by this act required, or compounding for any wool, ship, vessel, or boat, as aforesaid, or conniving at the exportation of any wool, shall lose and forfeit all pay and wages due to him or them, and suffer six months imprisonment, and be for ever incapable of serving his Majesty in any office in the navy.

Penalty on commander neglecting his duty.

XIX. And for the more effectual encouragement of the woollen manufacture of this kingdom; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, no wool, woolfells, shortlings, mortlings, woolflocks, worsted, bay, or woollen-yarn; cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-ferges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made or mixed with wool or woolflocks, being of the product or manufacture of any of the English plantations in America, shall be laden or laid on board in any ship or vessel, in any place or parts within any of the said English plantations; upon any pretence whatsoever; as likewise that no such wool, woolfells, shortlings, mortlings, woolflocks, worsted, bay, or woollen yarn, cloth, serge, bays, kerseys, says, frizes, druggets, cloth-ferges, shalloons, or any other drapery stuffs, or woollen manufactures whatsoever, made up or mixt with wool or woolflocks, being of the product or manufacture of any of the English plantations in America as aforesaid, shall be laden upon any horse, cart, or other carriage, to the intent and purpose to be exported, transported, carried or conveyed out of the said English plantations to any other of the said plantations, or to any other place whatsoever; upon the same and like pains, penalties, and forfeitures, to and upon all and every the offender and offenders herein, within all and every of the said English plantations respectively, as are prescribed and provided by this act for the like offences committed within the kingdom of Ireland; and all governors or commanders in chief of the said respective plantations, as also all officers employed in the customs, or other branches of his Majesty's revenue there, be hereby authorized, charged, and required to take effectual care, that the true intent and meaning of this act, so far forth as it relates to the said respective plantations, be duly put in execution.

No wool, &c. of the produce of the English plantations in America, shall be exported, under the like penalties, &c.

Offenders may be sued in any of the courts at Westminster, and be obliged to give sufficient bail.

XX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every person and persons, who after the said four and twentieth day of June, shall be guilty of any offence or offences, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this or any other act of parliament made for the preventing the exportation of wool, shall and may be prosecuted for any such offence or offences by action, suit, or information in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, and thereupon a Capias shall and may issue the first process, specifying the sum of the penalty sued for; and such person or persons shall be obliged to give good and sufficient bail and security, by natural born subjects or denizens, to the officer serving or executing such process against him or them, to appear in the court out of which such Capias shall issue, at the day of the return of such writ, to answer such suit or prosecution, and shall likewise at the time of such appearance give sufficient bail or security by such persons, as aforesaid, in the said court, to answer and pay the forfeitures and penalties incurred for such offence or offences, in case he, she, or they shall be convicted thereof, or to yield his, her, or their bodies to prison.

Act to be given in charge by the judges of Ireland at the assizes, who are to take accounts of the execution thereof,

and acquaint the lord deputy, &c. therewith.

XXI. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted, That after the nine and twentieth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, the lord lieutenant, lord deputy, or lords justices for the time being for the kingdom of Ireland, or any of them, are hereby required to give direction in council, that this act shall be given in charge by the several judges of the kingdom of Ireland, at all the assizes that shall be held in that kingdom, to the end that this act may be strictly put in execution, according to the true intent and meaning thereof; which said judges are hereby impowered and required, from time to time, to take particular accounts throughout their respective circuits, of the due execution of this act, and at their returns to Dublin, at the end of every circuit, shall acquaint the said lord lieutenant, lord deputy, or lords justices of that kingdom for the time being in council, with all accounts or informations they shall have so received of any breach of the said act, or negligence or faults in any of the officers to whom the execution of this act is committed, to the end that the said chief governors, or any of them, for the time being, may be the better informed and enabled to look to and provide for the strict and punctual observation of this act, throughout that kingdom; of which the said chief governors, or any of them, for the time being, shall, once every year, lay a particular account in writing, under his or their hands, before the King, his heirs and successors, in council.

An act for taking off the remaining duties upon glass wares.

W H E R E A S in and by an act made and passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty certain duties upon glass wares, stone and earthen bottles, coals, and culm, for carrying on the war against France, several rates and duties, therein mentioned, were laid upon all glass and glass wares, stone and earthen bottles, which at any time or times, during the term of five years, from the nine and twentieth day of September, which was in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety five, should be made within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, or imported, or brought into the same; and in and by another act made and passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the seventh year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing to his Majesty certain duties upon salt, glass wares, stone and earthen wares, and for granting several duties upon tobacco pipes, and other earthen wares, for carrying on the war against France, and for establishing a national land bank, and for taking off the duties upon tunnage of ships, and upon coals, the aforesaid rates and duties upon glass or glass wares, stone bottles, and earthen bottles, are continued and granted to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever: and whereas by another act made and passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the ninth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass, and the whole duties lately laid on stone and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes, and for granting (in lieu thereof) new duties upon whale fins and Scotch linen, it is (amongst other things) enacted, That from and after the first day of August, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, one moiety or half-part of the several rates and duties by the aforesaid acts, or either of them, charged and made payable for or upon the said glass and glass wares, should cease, determine, and be no longer payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors; as by the said several acts of parliament, relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear: and whereas it is found by experience, that the remaining duties on glass and glass wares are very vexatious and troublesome in the levying and collecting the same, and of small advantage to the crown, and, should the same be continued, would lessen the duty on coals, much more than the said duties on glass wares will amount to, will hinder the employing great numbers of poor, and endanger the loss of so beneficial a manufacture to this kingdom: be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of August, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, the remaining moiety or half-part of the several rates and duties by the aforesaid acts, any or either of them, charged or imposed, for and upon the said glass or glass wares, shall cease, determine, and be no longer payable, paid, or collected, to or to the use of his Majesty, his heirs or successors, in any manner of wise; any thing in the said acts, any or either of them, contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

into the same, the sum of five shillings, of lawful English money, for every chalder, reckoning the chalder to consist of thirty six bushels Winchester measure, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, to be paid at the respective ports and places of importation or landing of such cynders, and to be charged upon the respective owner and owners, master and masters, or other persons having the charge of the ship or vessel in which the said cynders shall be carried, imported, or brought; and that the said duties upon cynders shall be under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs for the time being; and shall be raised, levied, and collected by such ways and means, and under the like penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances, and according to such rules and methods, as in and by an act of parliament made in the ninth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty several duties upon coals and culm, are prescribed, authorized, or mentioned, for raising, levying, and collecting the duties thereby granted.

XXIX. And whereas the importation of tobacco in bulk hath given abundant opportunity to ill disposed persons to run the same on shore, without paying his Majesty's customs due thereon, to the great impairing of the revenue, and the no less prejudice of the fair trader: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred, no tobacco be brought or imported into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in any ship or vessel from any of his Majesty's plantations on the continent of America, nor shipped in any of the said plantations in order to be so imported, otherwise than in cask, chest, or case only, each cask, chest, or case whereof shall contain two hundred weight of neat tobacco at the least, and each hundred thereof shall contain one hundred and twelve pounds, under the penalties and forfeitures following; that is to say, That all the tobacco so imported, or shipped to be imported, contrary to this act, shall be forfeited, and every person or persons offending, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, shall forfeit six pence for every pound weight thereof, two third parts thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other third part thereof to such person as shall seize and sue for the same: provided nevertheless, That such small quantities as shall be necessary for the ships companies smoking in the said voyage, shall not be deemed or construed any breach of this act; the said forfeitures and penalties to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, in which no effoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor more than one imparlance.

XXX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons whatsoever, from and after the said tenth day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, to import into England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, from Germany, pearl ashes, being the product of Germany, paying his Majesty his customs and duties as pot ashes; any law, custom or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

XXXI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all whale fin taken and caught by the people and inhabitants of New England, New York, and Pensilvania, or any other his Majesty's plantations and colonies in America, and imported from thence, shall be chargeable with and pay to his Majesty (by virtue of an act of the last session of parliament, intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass wares, and the whole duties lately laid on stone and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes; and for granting, in lieu thereof, new duties upon whale fins and Scotch linen) the like duties, as whale fin caught and imported in and by any ships or vessels whatsoever, of or belonging to the company established for the Greenland trade.

An act to encourage the trade to Newfoundland.

WHEREAS the trade of and fishing at Newfoundland is a beneficial trade to this kingdom, not only in the employing great numbers of seamen and ships, and exporting and consuming great quantities of provisions and manufactures of this realm, whereby many tradesmen and poor artificers are kept at work, but also in bringing into this nation, by returns of the effects of the said fishery from other countries, great quantities of wine, oil, plate, iron, wool, and sundry other useful commodities, to the increase of his Majesty's revenue, and the encouragement of trade and navigation; be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from henceforth it shall and may be lawful for all his Majesty's subjects residing within this his realm of England, or the dominions thereunto belonging, trading or that shall trade to Newfound- land, and the seas, rivers, lakes, creeks, harbours in or about Newfoundland, or any of the islands adjoining or adjacent thereunto, to have, use, and enjoy the free trade and traffick, and art of merchandize and fishery, to and from Newfoundland, and peaceably to have, use, and enjoy the freedom of taking bait and fishing in any of the rivers, lakes, creeks, harbours, or roads, in or about Newfoundland, and the said seas, or any of the islands adjacent thereunto, and liberty to go on shore on any part of Newfoundland, or any of the said islands, for the curing, salting, drying, and husbanding of their fish, and for making of oil, and to cut down wood and trees there for building and making or repairing of stages, ship-rooms, trainfats, hurdles, ships, boats, and other necessities for themselves and their servants, seamen and fishermen, and all other things which may be useful or advantageous to their fishing trade, as fully and freely as at any time heretofore hath been used or enjoyed there by any of the subjects of his Majesty's royal predecessors, without any hindrance, interruption, denial, or disturbance of or from any person or persons whatsoever; and that no alien or stranger whatsoever (not residing within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed) shall at any time hereafter take any bait, or use any sort of trade or fishing whatsoever in Newfoundland, or in any of the said islands or places abovementioned.

No alien to bait or fish in Newfoundland.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every master of a by-boat or by-boats shall carry with him at least two fresh men in six; (viz.) one man that hath made no more than one voyage, and one man that hath never been at sea before; and that every inhabitant shall be obliged to employ two such fresh men, as the by-boat keepers are obliged for every boat kept by them; and further, that all masters of fishing ships shall carry with them, in their ships company, at least one such fresh man that never was at sea before, in every five men they carry; and that the master of each such by-boat, and each such fishing ship, shall make oath before the collector, or other principal officer of the customs of the port or ports from whence such ship intends to sail, that each ship and by-boat's company have such fresh men therein as this act directs; and that the said officer or officers is and are hereby impowered and required to administer the aforesaid oath to the said masters of ships and by-boats, and give a certificate thereof under his hand, without any fee, gratuity, or reward for so doing.

By-boats to carry two fresh men in six.

Inhabitant obliged to employ two such fresh men.

Master of fishing ship to carry one fresh man in five; and make oath thereof.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every master or owner of any fishing ship going to Newfoundland (after the said twenty fifth day of March) shall have in his ship's company every fifth man a green-man; (that is to say) not a seaman or having been ever at sea before.

Every fifth man a green-man.

XVII. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the eighth and ninth years of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tunnage and poundage upon merchandizes imported, for the term of two years and three quarters, and an additional land tax for one year, for carrying on the war against France; and by another act made in the ninth and tenth years of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, towards the raising a yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, for the service of his Majesty's household, and other uses therein mentioned, during his Majesty's life, an additional duty of twelve pence on every twenty shillings value of all goods and merchandizes imported (all manner of fish English taken excepted) is granted to his Majesty, his heirs and successors: and whereas some doubt hath arisen, whether oil, blubber, and fins, taken and imported by the company of merchants of London trading to Greenland, are not liable to the said duty: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all whale fins, oil, and blubber, taken and imported by the ships of the company of merchants of London trading to Greenland, were not nor are intended to be charged or made liable to the duty of twelve pence for every twenty shillings value of goods imported, charged in the aforesaid acts, but that the whale fins, oil, and blubber, taken and imported in the aforesaid, and also all whale fins, oil, and blubber of English fishing, taken in the seas of Newfoundland, or any of the seas belonging to any of his Majesty's plantations or colonies, and imported into this kingdom by any

An act or laying further duties upon wrought silks, muslins, and some other commodities of the East Indies, and for enlarging the time for purchasing certain reversionary annuities therein mentioned.

Most gracious Sovereign,

All wrought silks, &c. on which a duty was granted by this act, were prohibited (after expiration hereof) by a subsequent act of this session, c. 10. but the duty of 15l. per cent. on muslins is further continued until 1706, by 12 & 13 W. 3. c. 11. Further duties laid on wrought silks, bengals, &c. from 25 Mar. 1706, to 30 Sept. 1707, 15l. per cent. Explained as to muslins and calicoes 12 & 13 W. 3. c. 11. f. 14. further continued by 3 & 4 Annæ, c. 4. 6 Annæ, c. 22. and perpetuated by 7 Annæ, c. 7. f. 26. The like duty on muslins.

Goods to be entred at the custom-house where imported.

Importer to give security for payment of duty.

These twelve months enlarged to three years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 21. & 11.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, as a further supply for your Majesty's occasions in this act mentioned, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do hereby give and grant to your Majesty the further rates, payments, duties, and sums of money herein after mentioned. And be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That for and upon all wrought silks, and for and upon all bengals and stuffs made of or mixed with silk or herba, of the manufacture of Persia, Cbina, or the East Indies, and for and upon all calicoes painted, dyed, printed or stained there, which, from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred, and before the thirtieth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, by any person or persons, or bodies politick or corporate whatsoever, there shall be yielded and paid to his Majesty (over and above all customs, subsidies, impositions and duties already due and payable for the same) a further duty after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value of the said goods, to be ascertained as is herein after mentioned; and for and upon all muslins which from and after the said five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred, and before the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom, dominion or town aforesaid, there shall be yielded and paid to his Majesty (over and above all other duties now payable for the same) a further duty after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value of the said muslins, to be also ascertained as is herein after mentioned.

II. And for the better raising, levying and securing the said duties, after the rate of fifteen pounds in the hundred, it is hereby further enacted, That upon the importation of any such goods as aforesaid liable thereunto, an entry or entries thereof shall be made in the custom-house where such goods shall be imported, and before the landing thereof the importer or importers of the same shall give security by bond, with two or more sufficient sureties (which the commissioners or proper officers of the customs are hereby required or impowered to take) for payment of the said duties after the rate of fifteen pounds in the hundred upon the said goods, as soon as the same shall be sold, and for exposing the goods so imported to sale openly and fairly, by way of auction, or by inch of candle, within the city of London, within the time of twelve months after the importation thereof.

III. And

III. And it is hereby enacted and declared, That the value of the said goods, according to which the said rate is to be paid, shall be reckoned according to the gross price at which such goods shall be sold; and that in case any such goods shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and the duties hereby imposed shall be secured as aforesaid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering of the same first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively; that all such imported goods shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit) two third parts of the same to the use of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other third part to the use of such person or persons as will seize the said goods, or sue for the same, or the value thereof, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

How goods shall be valued.
Penalty on landing them before entry.

IV. And it is hereby further enacted, That the said duties of fifteen pounds in the hundred shall be from time to time under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs for the time being, who shall cause the same to be raised, levied, collected, and paid to the hands of the receiver or receivers general of the revenue of the customs for the time being; and such receiver or receivers general for the time being shall answer and pay over all the monies arising thereby (the necessary charges of raising, collecting, and answering the same only excepted) into the receipt of his Majesty's exchequer, for the purposes in this act mentioned.

Commissioners of the customs to manage these duties.
Made perpetual by 7 Anne, c. 7. and part of the aggregate fund, 3 Geo. 1. c. 8.

V. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in case the goods or merchandizes upon which the said further duties of fifteen pounds in the hundred are paid, or secured to be paid, as aforesaid, be again exported at any time or times within twelve months after the importation thereof, and that due proof be first made upon oath, that the goods or merchandizes, so exported, be the same for which the said duties are paid; or secured to be paid as aforesaid, then and in such case (and not otherwise) the same duties shall, without any delay or reward, be wholly repaid by the receiver general of his Majesty's customs for the time being, out of such monies as shall be in his hands of the said duties of fifteen per cent. arising by this act, unto the person or persons, bodies politic or corporate, making the said exportations, or the said security shall be required, as to so much of the said goods or merchandizes as shall be so exported; any thing in this act, or in any former act or acts of parliament, contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Goods exported again, duty to be repaid.
These twelve months are enlarged to three years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 21. s. 11.

VI. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That in case any of the said goods which shall have been entred, and for which security shall have been given, as aforesaid, shall, within the time hereby limited, be fairly sold by way of auction, as aforesaid, that then the importer paying down, in ready money, his Majesty's said duties of fifteen pounds per centum for such goods, within twenty days after such sale, shall have an allowance for such prompt payment after the rate of five pounds for every hundred pounds of duties so paid.

Allowance on prompt payment.

XV. And whereas great numbers of the poor of this kingdom are employed in the manufacture of bone-lace: for the encouragement thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred, it shall and may be lawful for all persons, natives or foreigners, to export to the English plantations in America, or to any other parts beyond the seas, or into Scotland, all sorts of English bone-lace, needle-work, point or cut-work, without paying any custom or duty for the same, oath being first made that the same was made or manufactured within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; any law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Tallow candles imported, on exportation again one moiety of the duties to be repaid.

XVI. And whereas tallow candles imported into this kingdom, are chargeable, by several acts of parliament, with the subsidies of tiennage and portage, and other impositions, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the tenth day of April, one thousand seven hundred, the one moiety and no more of all the said subsidies and impositions, payable only for such tallow candles as shall be exported, according to the rules and methods by the said acts appointed, shall be repaid, or discharged upon the security for the same; any law or statute to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for the more effectual employing the poor, by encouraging the manufactures of this kingdom.

WHEREAS it is most evident, that the continuance of the trade to the East Indies, in the same manner and proportions as it hath been for two years last past, must inevitably be to the great detriment of this kingdom, by exhausting the treasure thereof, and melting down the coin, and taking away the labour of the people, whereby very many of the manufacturers of this nation are become excessively burdensome and chargeable to their respective parishes, and others are thereby compelled to seek for employment in foreign parts: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, all wrought silks, bengalls, and stuffs mixed with silk or herba, of the manufacture of Persia, China, or East India, and all calicoes, painted, dyed, printed, or stained there, which are or shall be imported into this kingdom, shall not be worn, or otherwise used within this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, but under such limitations as are herein after mentioned and expressed.

After 29 Sept. 1701, no wrought silks, &c. of Persia, China, or India, or calicoes, &c. shall be worn, &c.

Such goods imported after 29 Sept. 1701, after entry thereof shall be put into warehouses, and shall be exported again, and not landed in England, &c. These securities when to be void, 8 Anne, c. 13. s. 24.

II. And for the better effecting the same, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, all such wrought silks, bengalls, and stuffs mixed with silk or herba, of the manufacture of Persia, China, or East India, as aforesaid, and all calicoes, painted, dyed, printed, or stained there, which are or shall be imported into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall, after entry thereof, be forthwith carried and put into such warehouse or warehouses, as shall be for that purpose approved of by the commissioners of his Majesty's customs for the time being, so as none of them shall be taken or carried out thence upon any account whatsoever, other than in order for exportation, and not until sufficient security be first given to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, (which the said commissioners are hereby required and empowered to take) that the same and every part thereof shall be exported, and not landed again in any part of this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed; which said securities shall be discharged without any fee or reward, upon certificate returned, under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known English merchants upon the place, that such goods were there landed, or upon proof by credible persons that such goods were taken enemies, or perished in the seas; the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the said commissioners; and all such of the aforesaid goods, whether the same shall be mixed, sewed, or made up together for sale, with any other goods or materials, or otherwise, which shall be found in any house, shop, or warehouse, or other place whatsoever (other than in such warehouses as shall be approved of by the said commissioners, as aforesaid) shall be forfeited; and subject and liable to be searched for, and seized, in like manner as prohibited and uncustomed goods are, by an act (intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs) made in the fourteenth year of the reign of our late sovereign Lord King Charles the Second; and all such goods so forfeited, as aforesaid, shall, upon seizure thereof, be carried to the next custom-house, and after condemnation shall be sold to the best advantage for exportation, at publick sale by candle; the buyer and buyers giving security for the exportation thereof, in manner as aforesaid; and one third part of the monies to be raised by such sale shall be paid to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other two third parts thereof to him, her, or them that shall seize or prosecute for the same; and over and above the loss of the said goods, the person or persons in whose custody, knowing thereof, the same shall be found seized, or that shall sell or dispose thereof to any person or persons whatever, shall forfeit and lose the sum of two hundred pounds, one third part thereof to the King's majesty, his heirs and successors, and the other two third parts thereof to such person or persons that shall sue for the same, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, suit, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed, or any more than one imparlance.

III. And for preventing all clandestine importing or bringing into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, any of the aforesaid goods hereby prohibited, or intended to be prohibited, from being worn or used in England; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, or bodies corporate, from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall import or bring into any port of or in this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, other than the port of London, any of the aforesaid prohibited goods, or into the port of London, and shall not make due entries of such goods so imported, or brought in, the same shall be, and is hereby adjudged, deemed, accounted, and taken to be clandestine running thereof, and such person or persons, or bodies corporate offending therein, and their abettors, shall not only forfeit and lose the said goods so clandestinely run, as aforesaid, but also the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered and divided in such manner as aforesaid.

Penalty on importing such goods, otherwise than into the port of London, and there making entry thereof.

IV. And be it further enacted, That if any question or doubt shall arise where the said goods were manufactured, the proof shall lie upon the owner or owners thereof, and not upon the prosecutor; any law, usage, or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

Proof where goods were manufactured to lie on the owner.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action, bill, plaint, suit, or information, shall be commenced, or prosecuted against any person or persons for any seizure, or other thing to be made or done, in pursuance or in execution of any thing before in this act contained, such person or persons, so sued in any court whatsoever, may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence, for their excuse or justification; and if the plaintiff or plaintiffs, or prosecutor or prosecutors, shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or suffer discontinuance, or if a verdict pass against him, her, or them, in any such action, bill, plaint, suit, or information, as aforesaid, the defendant or defendants shall have treble costs, for which they shall have the like remedy, as in any case where costs by law are given to the defendant.

Treble costs.

Not to extend to apparel, &c.

The benefit of this proviso applied by 10 Geo. 1. c. 11. to furniture made up before 25 Dec. 1722.

Proprietors of such goods may affix one lock to warehouse, &c.

After 29 Sept. no duties to be paid for such goods imported, except the half subsidy.

VI. And for preventing clandestinely carrying out of the said warehouses any of the said goods hereby prohibited, and by this act intended for exportation, as aforesaid; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers shall keep one or more book or books, wherein he or they shall fairly enter or write down an exact, particular, and true account of all and every chest, bale, and number of pieces therein contained, of such of the aforesaid goods only, which shall be brought into, and carried out of, his or their said warehouse or warehouses, and the days and times when the same shall be so brought in and carried out; and shall every six months in the year transmit in writing an exact account thereof, upon oath, to the said commissioners, together with an exact account how much shall be remaining in his or their said warehouse or warehouses respectively; and the said commissioners are hereby empowered and enjoined, within one month after the same shall be transmitted to them, as aforesaid, to appoint one or more person or persons to inspect the said book or books, warehouse or warehouses, and examine the said accounts, and to lay a true account of the same before the parliament, within the first week of every sessions thereof; and if upon examination it shall appear, that any of the aforesaid goods were carried out, unless for exportation, or before sufficient security given for their exportation, as aforesaid, that then the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, so offending therein, shall not only forfeit and lose the value of the said goods so carried out, as aforesaid, and be for ever disabled from any publick employment for the future, but shall also forfeit the sum of five hundred pounds for every such offence, to be recovered and divided in manner as aforesaid.

VII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That this act shall not extend to any silks, bengals, stuffs mixed with silk or herba, or painted, dyed, printed, or stained calicoes manufactured in Persia, China, or East India, which shall have been made up and used in any sort of apparel or furniture, before the said twenty ninth of September, one thousand seven hundred and one.

VIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the proprietor or proprietors of the said goods so lodged in any warehouse or warehouses, as aforesaid, to affix one lock to every such warehouse or warehouses, the key of which shall remain in the custody of the said proprietor or proprietors; and that he or they may view, sort, or deliver the said goods, in order for exportation, as aforesaid, in the presence of the said warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, who is and are hereby obliged, at seasonable times, to give attendance for that purpose.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and one, there shall be no customs or duties whatsoever paid, or secured to be paid, for any of the said goods or commodities which shall be imported at any time from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, other than and except the half subsidy, which is to remain by law after the goods are exported; but that all other customs and duties, now chargeable upon or payable for the said goods, shall from that time cease and determine.

An act for taking away the duties upon the woollen manufactures, corn, grain, bread, biscuit, and meal exported.

WHEREAS certain subsidies or duties, which were payable upon the exportation of the woollen manufactures, as well of the old as the new draperies, by the act of tunnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and by the book of rates thereto annexed (except such part thereof as hath been taken away by an act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for taking off aliens duties upon commodities of the growth, product, and manufacture of the nation) are, by an act of parliament, made and passed in the eighth year of his now Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making good the deficiencies of several funds therein mentioned, and for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England; and for raising the publick credit, granted to continue until the first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six; and whereas by an act of parliament, which was made in the fourteenth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses, in his Majesty's customs, all woollen manufactures, exported from any port of this kingdom, capable of a ship or vessel of two hundred tons upon an ordinary full sea, to any port or place of the Mediterranean sea, beyond the port of Malaga, in any ship or vessel that hath not two decks, and doth carry less than sixteen pieces of ordnance mounted, together with two men for each gun, and other ammunition proportionable, are (amongst other things) liable to a further duty of one per centum; as by the said several acts, relation being thereunto had, may more fully appear: and whereas the wealth and prosperity of this kingdom doth, in a great measure, depend upon the improvement of its woollen manufactures, and the profitable trade carried on by the exportation of the same, which trade ought, by all proper means, to be encouraged; be it therefore enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, from and after the thirtieth day of March, one thousand and seven hundred, all and every the subsidies, duties, and sums of money, by the acts before mentioned, or any of them, or by any other act or acts of parliament, or law whatsoever now in force, granted, continued, due, or payable, or to grow due or payable, for or upon the exportation of any long cloths, short cloths, kerseys, bays, or ferges, cottons, stuffs, stockings, hats, caps, or any other manufactures of wooll, or made of sheeps wooll, or coney wooll, or mixed with any or either of them, and which are or shall be made or manufactured within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall cease, determine, and be no longer due or payable to his Majesty, his heirs or successors, for so much as shall be exported after the said thirtieth day of March; the aforesaid acts of parliament, or any of them, or any other law, statute, ordinance, custom, prescription, or provision whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duties payable by the aforesaid acts on exportation of English woollen manufactures, &c. determined.

Aulnage duties (after expiration of the grants thereof) to cease, &c.

II. And for the better encouragement of the woollen manufactures of this kingdom; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the subsidy and aulnage of the old and new draperies, and of all woollen manufactures whatsoever, within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall, from and after the expiration, or other sooner determination determination (except for non-payment of rent, within three months after the same becomes due and payable) of the two grants or leases of the said duties, to Charles duke of Richmond and Lenox, for the term of sixty years, bearing date the eighteenth day of December, in the sixteenth year of King Charles the Second, cease, determine, and be no longer due or payable; any law, statute, usage, prescription, or custom whatsoever to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

IV. And for the greater encouragement of tillage, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the thirtieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred, the subsidy and all other duties whatsoever payable for or upon the exportation of wheat, rye, barley, malt, beans, pease, and other sorts of corn and grain whatsoever, ground or unground, and for and upon the exportation of bread, biscuit, and meal, or any of them, out of or from the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, as to so much of the said commodities, or any of them, as shall be so exported after the said thirtieth day of March, shall cease, determine, and be no longer due or payable to his Majesty, his heirs and successors; any law, statute, usage, or prescription, to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for granting to his Majesty several duties upon low wines or spirits of the first extraction, and continuing several additional duties upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices, and pictures, and certain impositions upon hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen, and the duty of fifteen per centum upon muslins, and for improving the duties upon japanned and lacquered goods, and for continuing the coinage duty, for the several terms and purposes therein mentioned.

ECT. AND be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the rates, duties, additional duties, impositions, and sums of money whatsoever, granted to his Majesty by the act passed in the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty several additional duties upon coffee, tea, chocolate, and spices towards satisfaction of the debts due for transport service for the reduction of Ireland, which were thereby charged or imposed upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, pictures, or any other matters or things hereby charged, from the first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, until the second day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, and which, by an act made in the ninth year of his Majesty's reign, were continued from the first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, until the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be continued from the thirtieth of April, one thousand seven hundred and one, and be raised, levied, collected, answered and paid unto his Majesty, his heirs and successors, until the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and six; and that the said act of the sixth year of his Majesty's reign, concerning the said coffee and other the enumerated commodities aforesaid, and the powers, privileges, provisions, penalties, forfeitures, articles and clauses therein contained (and not hereby altered) which were to have continuance until the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall continue and be in full force and effect, until the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and six, and shall be practised and executed for raising, levying, collecting, and answering, the duties hereby continued, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, and to no other use, intent, or purpose, whatsoever.

Duties on coffee, &c. and all powers in 6 W. 3. c. 7. & 9 W. 3. c. 14. continued till 1 May, 1706. 7 Ann. c. 7. s. 26.

XII. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the duty upon muslins, after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, which was imposed by an act made in the eleventh year of his Majesty's reign, whereby further duties were imposed upon wrought silk, muslins, and some other commodities of Persia, China, and the East Indies, which should be imported after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred, and before the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be continued for and upon all muslins which from and after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, and before the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, over and above all other duties payable for the said muslins; and all the rules, directions, powers, allowances, penalties, forfeitures, fines, matters, and things, in the said last mentioned act contained (and not hereby altered) for or concerning the ascertaining, securing, levying, and raising the duties thereby imposed, shall be revived, practised, and put in in execution, for ascertaining, securing, levying, and raising the duties upon muslins hereby imposed during the time aforesaid, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, and to no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

If muslins for which duty is paid be again exported within 12 months, duty to be repaid. These 12 months enlarged to 3 years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 21. s. 11.

XIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That if the said muslins hereby charged, or any of them, upon which the said further duties of fifteen pounds in the hundred are paid or secured to be paid as aforesaid, be again exported at any time or times within twelve months after the importation thereof, and that due proof be first made upon oath, that the goods or merchandizes so exported be the same for which the said duties are paid or secured to be paid as aforesaid, then and in such case, and not otherwise, the same duties shall without any delay or reward be repaid by the receiver general of his Majesty's customs for the time being, out of such monies as shall be in his hands of the said duties of fifteen pounds per centum arising by this act, unto the person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, making the said exportations, or the said security shall be vacated as to so much of the said goods or merchandizes as shall be so exported; any thing in this act, or in any former act or acts of parliament contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Species of muslins.

XIV. And it is hereby declared, That by muslins, the several species following are meant, viz. Awbroaks, abdaties, betelles plain, striped pandavarts, rowallew, golconda, oringall, junays, and also doreas, coffaes, plain and flowred tanjebbs, plain and flowred jamdannes, mullmulls, plain and flowred jecolsies, mamolwbiates, plain and flowred neckcloths, rebing, fallows, comervilles, seerbands, night-rails, aprons, tirindames, callico lawns, and all other thin callicoes, commonly called muslins; and that by painted, dyed and stained callicoes, mentioned in the said act of the eleventh year of his Majesty's reign, for laying the said duty of fifteen pounds per centum on several commodities from Persia, China, and the East Indies, are meant not only all callicoes painted, dyed or stained, after the weaving thereof, but all such whereof the yarn or other materials were painted, dyed or stained before the making of such callicoes.

What is meant by painted callicoes, &c. in the act 11 W. 3. c. 3.

Duties on japanned and lacquered goods imported shall be paid ad valorem, as prescribed in the act 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 3. and applied to the same uses, &c.

XV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the duties by any act or acts of parliament now in being, charged or imposed upon all or any japanned and lacquered goods which shall be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and one, shall be answered and paid, according to the true and real value of the same, to be ascertained by the gross price at which such goods shall be sold by the candle, in such manner and form, and under such rules and directions, and subject to such penalties and forfeitures, as by the said act of the eleventh year of his Majesty's reign are prescribed for ascertaining the said duty upon muslins; nevertheless the said duties upon japanned and lacquered goods shall be applied and disposed to the same use and purposes to which the respective duties upon the same goods, payable in any other manner, by the said former act or acts were appropriated or applicable.

4 W. & M. c. 24. for encouraging of coinage, continued for 7 years.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act made in the eighteenth year of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for encouraging of coinage; and another act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles, intituled, An act for continuing a former act concerning coinage; both which said acts were revived, by an act made in the first year of the reign of the late King James the Second, and were further continued by an act made in the fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty and the late Queen of blessed memory, to be in force for the space of seven years, from the thirteenth day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety two, and from thence to the end of the first session of parliament then next following, shall be and are by virtue of this act continued, and shall be in force for the space of seven years, from the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and one, and from thence to the end of the first session of parliament then next following, and no longer, to defray the necessary expences of his Majesty's mint.

XX. And for the preventing all secret and unlawful importation of foreign spirits or brandy; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any foreign brandy or spirits of any kind whatsoever, shall, from and after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and one, be imported into this kingdom, or be brought into any port, creek, or haven of this realm, in any ship or vessel, under the burden of fifteen tuns except for the use of the seamen on board such ship or vessel only, not exceeding one gallon for each seaman) such brandy or spirits shall be forfeited, one moiety thereof to his Majesty, his heirs and successors, the other moiety to such person as shall seize or sue for the same, by bill, plaint, or information, in any of his Majesty's courts of record at Westminster.

An act for explaining a clause in an act made at the parliament begun and holden at Westminster, the two and twentieth of November, in the seventh year of the reign of our sovereign lord King William the Third, intituled, An act for the better security of his Majesty's royal person and government.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made at the parliament begun and holden at Westminster the two and twentieth day of November, in the seventh year of the reign of his late Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the better security of his Majesty's royal person and government, it was among other things enacted, That no commission, either civil or military, should cease, determine, or be void by reason of the death or demise of his said Majesty, or of any of his heirs or successors, Kings or Queens of this realm, but that every such commission should be, continue, and remain in full force and virtue, for the space of six months next after any such death or demise, unless in the mean time superseded, determined, or made void by the next and immediate successor, to whom the imperial crown of this realm, according to the act of settlement, in the same recited act mentioned, is limited and appointed to go, remain, or descend: and forasmuch as some doubt may be conceived concerning the extent of that clause; therefore for the avoiding of any dispute or question that may arise concerning the construction thereof, be it declared and enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That no patent or grant of any office or employment, either civil or military, shall be taken, construed, or adjudged, to cease, determine, or be void, by reason of the death or demise of his said late Majesty, but that every such patent or grant shall be, continue and remain in full force and virtue, from and after the seventh day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and one, for the space of six months then next ensuing, unless in the mean time superseded, determined, or made void by her present Majesty.

No patent, &c. to cease by the late King's death, but continued for 6 months, &c.

No patent, &c. to cease after the Queen's death, but to continue for 6 months, &c.

II. And be it further enacted, That no patent or grant of any office or employment either civil or military, hereafter to be made, shall cease, determine, or be void, by reason of the death or demise of her present Majesty, (whom God Almighty long preserve to reign over this realm) or any of her heirs or successors, Kings or Queens of this realm, but that every such patent or grant shall be, continue, and remain, in full force and virtue, for the space of six months next after any such death or demise, unless in in the mean time superseded, determined, or made void by the next and immediate successor, to whom the imperial crown of this realm is limited and appointed to go, remain, or descend.

IV. And be it further enacted, That no writ, plea, or process, or any other proceeding upon any indictment or information for any offence or misdemeanor, or any writ, process, or proceeding, for any debt or account that shall be due or to be made to her Majesty, her heirs or successors, for or concerning any lands, tenements, or other revenue that shall belong to her or them, that shall be depending at the time of her Majesty's demise (whom God long preserve) or of any of her heirs or successors, shall be discontinued or put without day, by reason of her or any of their deaths or demises, but shall continue and remain in full force and virtue, to be proceeded upon notwithstanding any such death or demise.

No writ, &c. to be discontinued by the Queen's death, &c.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no commission of association, writ of admittance, or Si non omnes, original writ, writ of Nisi prius, writ of assistance, nor any commission, process, or proceedings whatsoever, in or issuing out of any court of equity, nor any process or proceeding upon any office or inquisition, nor any writ of Certiorari or Habeas Corpus, in any matter or cause either criminal or civil, nor any writ of attachment or process for contempt, nor any commission of delegacy or review, for any matters ecclesiastical, testamentary, or maritime, or any process thereupon, shall be determined, abated, or discontinued by the demise of the said late King, but all and every such writ, commission, process, and proceedings, shall be and are hereby revived and continued, and shall be in full force and virtue, and shall and may be proceeded upon as if his late Majesty were living; nor hereafter by the demise of her present Majesty, or any King or Queen of this realm, shall any commission of assize, oyer and terminer, general gaol delivery, or of association, writ of admittance, writ of Si non omnes, writ of assistance, or commission of the peace, be determined; but every such commission and writ shall be and continue in full force and virtue, for the space of six months next ensuing, notwithstanding any such demise, unless superseded and determined by her Majesty, her heirs or successors: and also no original writ, writ of Nisi prius, commission, process, or proceedings whatsoever, in or issuing out of any court of equity, nor any process or proceeding upon any office or inquisition, nor any writ of Certiorari or Habeas Corpus in any matter or cause, either criminal or civil, nor any writ of attachment, or process for contempt, nor any commission of delegacy or review, for any matters ecclesiastical, testamentary, or maritime, or any process thereupon, shall be determined, abated, or discontinued, by the demise of her Majesty, or any King or Queen of this realm; but every such writ, commission, process, and proceeding, shall remain in full force and virtue, to be proceeded upon, as if her Majesty, or such other King or Queen had lived, notwithstanding any such death or demise.

No proceeding in any court of equity, &c. to cease by the King's death,

nor hereafter by her Majesty's death, but be in force for 6 months.

VI. STAT. I. CAP. XIII.

An act for making good deficiencies, and for preserving the publick credit.

WHEREAS several bills of credit, commonly called Exchequer Bills, were made forth and issued by divers acts of parliament, which were made and passed in the reign of his late Majesty King William the Third (of blessed memory) and many of the said bills have been already discharged out of several aids or supplies, which were provided by several acts of parliament, for or towards the discharging and cancelling the same; but over and above the monies already applied towards the discharging and cancelling of the said bills, and over and above the monies which are yet to arise from the said aids or supplies formerly provided for that purpose, it is computed, that there is and will be wanting the sum of five hundred and fifteen thousand one hundred sixty five pounds four shillings and seven pence farthing, to discharge all the principal monies contained in such of the said bills as are now standing out and unsatisfied, and so much more as will be sufficient to discharge all the interest due, and to grow due thereupon: and whereas it appears that the pound rate or land tax of three shillings in the pound, granted to his said late Majesty, by an act of parliament in the eighth year of his reign, hath not been sufficient to satisfy all the loans which were made upon the credit of the same pound rate or land tax: and that over and above all arrears of the said pound rate, not yet recovered, there is and will be deficient, and wanting, to discharge all the principal money so lent, the sum of four hundred and fifteen thousand ninety nine pounds, and so much more as will be sufficient to discharge the interest after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, due and to grow due thereupon: and whereas the duties upon paper, pasteboard, vellum, and parchment, which were granted to his late Majesty for two years, from the first day of March, one thousand six hundred ninety six, by an act passed in the eighth year of his reign, did prove insufficient to satisfy all the monies which were borrowed upon the credit of that act, so that there is deficient and wanting the sum of fifteen thousand four hundred pounds, to discharge all the principal monies so borrowed, and so much more as will satisfy the interest, due and to grow due for the same, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum: and whereas several tickets were made forth and issued by virtue of an act made and passed in the eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, whereby certain duties were laid upon malt and other things therein mentioned, and many of the said tickets have already been discharged out of the same duties, or otherwise; but it is computed, that there is deficient and wanting to discharge all the principal monies contained in such of the said tickets as are now standing out and unsatisfied, the sum of five hundred seventy nine thousand and sixty pounds, besides what will be necessary to discharge the interest due, and to grow due, upon the said unsatisfied tickets, or such of them as do bear interest after the rate of an halfpenny per diem, for each ten pounds thereof: and whereas it is evident, that the duties upon leather, which were granted to his said late Majesty by an act passed in the eighth year of his reign, for three years, from the twentieth day of April, one thousand six hundred and ninety seven, and which were thereby appropriated to and for the payment of so much as then remained unpaid of the sum of five hundred sixty four thousand seven hundred pounds, formerly lent upon certain duties upon coals and other things therein mentioned, and the interest thereof, have not been sufficient for that purpose, so that there is wanting, to discharge the principal money still remaining unpaid of the sum last mentioned, the sum of five hundred and four thousand four hundred thirty eight pounds, besides the interest thereof, due and to grow due, after the rate of seven pounds per centum per annum: and that the monies granted to his said late Majesty, by the act passed in the ninth year of his reign, for an aid by a quarterly poll for one year, including therein such arrears of the said poll as are still recoverable, do not extend to satisfy all the principal monies which were borrowed upon the same act, by the sum of two hundred and twelve thousand seven hundred and seventy pounds, seventeen shillings, which with the interest thereof, due and to grow due, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, are and will be likewise deficient: and that the monies granted to his said late Majesty by the act passed in the tenth year of his reign, for granting the sum of one million four hundred eighty four thousand and fifteen pounds, one shilling and eleven pence, three farthings, for disbanding the army, providing for the navy, and for other necessary occasions, whereupon a credit was given for any sum not exceeding one million four hundred thousand pounds, to be repaid with interest after the rate of seven pounds per centum per annum, have not extended to pay off all the monies borrowed upon the same act, and the interest thereof: but that there is a deficiency of twenty five thousand eight hundred twenty three pounds, two shillings and nine pence, which together with all arrears of the aid last mentioned, not yet recovered, are wanting to clear off the remainder of the principal monies so borrowed, besides what shall be necessary to discharge the interest of the same: and whereas at Michaelmas, one thousand seven hundred and one, the sum of seventy thousand eight hundred seventy two pounds, eleven shillings, and the penny halfpenny, was wanting to compleat the payments then due and incurred, for and upon the yearly sum of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds, which by an act passed in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, was intended to be paid out of certain duties upon salt, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, for the purposes therein mentioned; and ought to have been made good in pursuance of the same act; all which said sums of money so reckoned to be deficient or wanting, to pay off the principal money borrowed as aforesaid, or contained in the said Exchequer bills and malt tickets, do amount to the whole to the sum of two millions three hundred thirty eight thousand six hundred twenty eight pounds, fifteen shillings, and five pence three farthings, besides the interest due and to grow due, as aforesaid. said deficiencies; and preserve the publick credit, do cheerfully and unanimously give and grant to your Majesty the supplies, impositions and duties herein after mentioned, for the terms herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty to accept thereof, and that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, which were given and granted unto his late majesty King Charles the Second for his life, by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, and which by several acts of parliament since made, have been granted for several terms, and are to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be further continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six, until the first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer; and that the said act made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and every article, rule and clause therein mentioned, and also an order of the commons in parliament assembled, made in pursuance of the rules and orders annexed to the aforesaid act, for settling of officers fees, dated the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred sixty two, and signed by Sir Edward Turner, then speaker, shall be of full force and effect, to all intents and purposes, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, as fully and in like manner, as if the same were particularly and at large recited and set down in the body of this act.

II. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said King Charles the Second, intituled, An act to prevent frauds and concealments of his Majesty's customs and subsidies; as also an act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in his Majesty's customs; and also an act made in the two and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the improvement of tillage, and the breed of cattle; and also one other act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for taking off aliens duties upon commodities of the growth, product and manufacture of the nation; and also one other act made in the said five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland, and Eastland trades, and for the better securing the plantation trade; and also one other act made in the first year of the late King James the Second, intituled, An additional act for the improvement of tillage; and one act made in the eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the lessening the duty upon tin and pewter exported, and granting an equivalent for the same by a duty upon druggs; and another act of the ninth year of his reign, for increasing his Majesty's duties upon lustrings and alamodes; and one act made in the eleventh year of his reign, intituled, An act for taking away the duties upon the woollen manufactures, corn, grain, bread, biscuit and meal exported; and all the clauses and directions whatsoever contained therein, or in any other act or acts of parliament now in force concerning the said subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other sums of money upon merchandizes exported and imported, which were granted in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid, shall be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten.

III. Provided

III. Provided nevertheless, and be it declared and enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be construed or taken to determine any articles or clauses in any of the last mentioned acts, hereby enacted to be in force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, which were appointed and intended to be perpetual; or which are continued by any act of parliament, for any time which will not expire by or before the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten; but that the same, and every of them, shall continue and remain in force, as if this present act had not been made; but such of the said acts, and such clauses in any of them as would otherwise determine before the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall hereby be revived, and stand, continue, and be in force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer.

But not to

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several impositions and duties upon wines and vinegar, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar imported between the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three; which said act, by several acts of parliament afterwards passed, hath been continued; and is to continue until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be further continued from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and six, until the first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer; and that the said act so made in the first year of the reign of the late King James the Second, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles and clauses therein contained, for or concerning the said imposition on wines and vinegar, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and shall be applied, practised and executed for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties upon wine and vinegar, hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, matters and things in the said act of the first year of King James the Second contained, had been again repeated in this act, and particularly enacted.

 in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, in-tituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all tobacco and sugar, imported between the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three; which said act, as for and concerning the said duties and impositions upon tobacco only, was, by several acts of parliament afterwards made, continued, and is to continue to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be further continued from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and six, until the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer.

 aforesaid, That the said duty upon tobacco, which shall be imported during the term hereby granted, shall be secured, collected, raised, levied, answered and paid to her Majesty, in such method, and with such discount and allowances, and according to such rules and directions, as are mentioned, referred to, or prescribed, as to the duties or impositions upon tobacco in and by the act made in the parliament holden in the seventh

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties and charges, upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes granted by an act made in the second year of the reign of King William the Third and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandizes, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety, and which thereby, and by several other acts afterwards passed, were to have continuance, and are to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be further continued from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and six, until the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer; and that the said act made in the second year of their said late Majesties reign, concerning East India goods and other things therein charged, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles and clauses therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and shall be applied, practised and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering and paying the said respective duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the said last mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters and things therein contained, had been again repeated and enacted particularly; except only as to such part of the said acts concerning the said impositions on wines, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, touching which other provisions or alterations are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being; which other provisions or alterations are to be observed and to continue during the continuance of this act; and the said act, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine and vinegar, and upon tobacco and East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and every article, clause, matter and thing therein contained, for the raising, levying, securing, answering and paying the impositions and duties on the merchandizes and commodities thereby charged, and which are by this act continued, shall be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the additional, and other rates, duties, impositions and charges upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes, granted by an act of parliament, made in the fourth year of their said late Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for prosecuting the present war against France; and which by several acts of parliament have been granted to continue to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be further continued from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and six, to the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer; and that the said act last mentioned, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles and clauses therein contained (except as herein after is excepted and provided) as for and concerning the said rates, duties and impositions, shall continue and be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and shall be applied, practised and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering and paying the said duties hereby continued, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as if the said last mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters and things therein contained, had been again repeated and enacted in this act particularly.

IX. Nevertheless it is hereby provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for and during the continuance of the said additional impositions, the sum of two shillings only shall be paid for every ton of lapis calaminaris exported, over and above the rates thereon charged by the book of rates, to be collected as in and by the said act is directed and appointed; and that it shall and may be lawful to import into this kingdom from Ireland, any bar iron unwrought, and iron slit or hammered into rods (other than Swedish or other foreign iron) discharged of any impositions or duties to be laid upon the same by this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Bar iron, &c. may be imported from Ireland.

X. Provided also, That in all cases where any other provision or alteration is made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, in or about any other matter or thing contained in the said act of parliament, for the impositions last mentioned, such other provisions or alterations shall be observed, during the continuance of the term hereby granted, in the same impositions; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Proviso.

XIV. And it is hereby further enacted, That the several impositions and duties for and upon all whale-fins and Scotch linen imported, which by an act of parliament in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass wares, and the whole duties lately laid on stone and earthen wares and tobacco-pipes, and for granting in lieu thereof new duties on whale-fins and Scotch linens, were granted to his said late majesty King William, for the term of eight years, from the tenth day of July, one thousand six hundred ninety eight, (except so much of the said duty of whale-fins as is since taken away by any subsequent act of parliament) shall be and are hereby continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the expiration of the said term of eight years, until the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer; and shall be raised, levied, collected and paid, in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures as are mentioned in the said act for granting the said impositions on whale-fins and Scotch linens; which act, with all the powers, provisos, penalties, articles and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred to, shall continue and be in full force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and shall be applied, practised, and put in execution, for raising and levying the said duties on whale-fins and Scotch linens hereby continued, as fully and effectually as if all the clauses, matters and things therein contained, concerning the said duties on whale-fins and Scotch linens, were repeated and again enacted in the body of this present act.

STAT. I. CAP. XXI.

An act for preventing frauds in the duties upon salt, and for the better payment of debentures at the custom-house.

SECT. VI. AND whereas her Majesty is very much defrauded of her duties upon foreign salt, by the different and uncertain measuring of the same, upon the importation and exportation thereof: for remedy thereof be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, eighty four pounds weight of foreign salt shall be deemed and taken to be a bushel of foreign salt, both upon the importation and exportation thereof; any thing herein, or in any former law to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

VII. And whereas the importers of foreign salt do bring the same in vessels on the several coasts of this kingdom, and dominion of Wales, and lie hovering off the said coasts, and will not bring the same into port, or land the said salt, until they can get an opportunity of running such salt without entry or payment of duties; and in many cases where they do bring the same into port, yet continue such salt in port on board their vessels, and refuse to enter or land the same, and in the night-time, or absence of the officers from on board such vessels, privately run the said salt on shore, without entry or payment of duties, or giving security for the same: for prevention thereof, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, where any ship or vessel laden with salt shall be found hovering on the coasts of England or Wales, not directly proceeding on her voyage to some port, it shall and may be lawful to and for the officers of the customs, or the officers for the said duty on salt, to go on board such vessels, and compel the same to come into port, and to continue on board such ships or vessels until the salt shall be unladen, or the said ship or vessel shall depart from the said port, on her intended voyage, to some other place; and if the persons on board such ship or vessel, or any other ship or vessel importing salt, shall neglect or refuse to enter or unlade such salt, for the space of twenty days after the same is come into port, or within that time to depart and proceed regularly on their voyage to some other place, unless permitted by the chief officer of the customs for that port to make a longer stay, then and in such case, all the salt on board such ship or vessel shall be forfeited, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the master of such ship or vessel, or the person commanding the same in that voyage.

Officer may compel ship laden with salt, and hovering on the coast, to come into port, &c. and on refusal may enter, &c.

Salt forfeited, &c.

VIII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, no foreign salt shall be imported from parts beyond the seas, in any ship or vessel of less burthen than twenty tuns, and in bulk only (except for the necessary provisions of the ships) upon pain of forfeiting the said salt, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the person importing the same.

No foreign salt to be imported in any vessel less than 20 tuns. Exception. Penalty.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, sixty five pounds weight of rock salt shall be deemed and taken to be a bushel of rock salt; any thing in the said former acts contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

65 pounds weight of rock salt deemed a bushel.

XI. And whereas by the several acts for laying duties upon salt, any person exporting salt to parts beyond the seas, is intitled to a drawback of the whole duty of the salt so exported; and it is found by experience, that many exporters of salt of salt and rock salt, after they have obtained the said drawback, or a debenture for the same, do privately re-land such salt or rock salt in England or Wales, without paying the duties thereof upon such re-landing: for prevention thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, no debenture shall be made or granted, or drawback allowed to be paid, for or upon account of the exportation of any salt or rock salt for Ireland, until the exporter of the said salt or rock salt shall produce, to the officer appointed to make such debenture, a certificate under the hand of the collector of the customs of the port in Ireland, where such salt or rock salt shall be landed, or the person executing his office, of the particular quantity of salt or rock salt actually landed, to be computed after the rate of fifty six pounds weight to the bushel, in case the same shall be English white salt, and after the rate of sixty five pounds to the bushel, in case the same shall be English rock salt, and after the rate of eighty four pounds to the bushel, in case the same shall be foreign salt; which salt and rock salt is hereby directed and required to be weighed by the said collectors, or persons executing their respective offices, and the said certificate to be made gratis and without delay. And it is hereby enacted, That no drawback shall be allowed or paid for more salt or rock salt, of the quantity exported in such vessel, than what shall appear by such certificate to have been actually landed in Ireland.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any ship or vessel laden with salt exported, to be carried to parts beyond the seas, shall, from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, by stress of weather, or otherwise, be drove or come into any port, creek, harbour or other place within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, it shall and may be lawful to and for the officer of excise on salt for such place, appointed or to be appointed for that purpose by the commissioners of excise, to enter or come on board such ship or vessel, and there to continue and be, till the said ship or vessel shall unlade her cargo, or return to sea to go her intended voyage, under the penalty of twenty pounds, to be recovered of the master of such ship or vessel, who shall refuse such officer so to come and continue on board as aforesaid. And if the said master, or any other person, shall unlade or put on shore any part of the said salt, before due entry or repayment of the duty, as by the statutes in that behalf made is provided, that then, and in every such case, not only the said salt so unladen, but also the whole cargo of salt in such ship or vessel remaining, shall be forfeited and lost.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That where any salt, as well foreign as English, shall be laid on board any ship or vessel, either to be transported to parts beyond the seas, or carried coastwise, to be re-landed in England, Wales, or Berwick, the officer of the customs of the port where the said salt shall be laden on board any such ship or vessel, shall in the cocquets made out and delivered for such ship or vessel (which cocquet shall be also signed by the officer in the said port appointed by the commissioners of excise for the duty on salt, and given without fee or delay) express the particular quantity of salt so laden on board: and in case such ship or vessel shall come into any port, creek, harbour or place in England, Wales, or Berwick, it shall be lawful for the officers of the customs, or other officers for the said duties, to go on board any such ship or vessel, and demand a sight of such cocquet; and in case he or they shall have just cause to suspect that there is not so much salt on board as the quantity expressed in such cocquet, and shall make affidavit thereof before the collector or collector of the said port, or person executing their or either of their offices, to weigh all the salt remaining on board; and in case, upon such weighing, there shall appear not to be so much salt on board as the quantity expressed in such cocquet, making reasonable allowance for the waste of the said salt since its exportation, and making also allowance (for salt going coastwise) of salt delivered delivered at another port, and indorsed in the salt permit, going with the said vessel, as delivered at such port, then and in such case the said salt so remaining on board shall be forfeited and lost. Penalty.

XIV. And for prevention of frauds frequently practised in curing fish at sea with salt, which hath not, or shall not have been entred, nor the duties thereof paid, or secured to be paid, according to the directions of the former laws, or with salt exported from England or Wales, the duties whereof shall have been repaid upon such exportation, or debentures obtained, in order to the drawing back of the same; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and two, no fish, for which allowances are by law given upon exportation, shall be imported, brought in, or landed within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, unless the owner or proprietor of such fish, or the master of the vessel, shall make oath before the officer for the said duties, in the port or place where such fish shall be imported, brought in, or landed (who shall administer the same without fee or charge) that all the salt wherewith the said fish was cured, was laden or put on board from some port of England, Wales, or Berwick, and that no drawback or allowance, or debenture for the same, hath to his knowledge or belief been had or obtained, or is intended to be had or obtained, upon the exportation or carrying out of the said salt, or any part thereof, upon pain of forfeiting such fish that shall be imported, brought in or landed, contrary to the intent or meaning hereof, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof.

No fish, &c. shall be imported, but what was cured with salt for which duty is paid, and no drawback allowed, &c.

Penalty.

XV. And whereas the officers appointed by the commissioners of excise to take care of the duties on imported salt, and to prevent frauds in the undue obtaining of debentures for drawbacks, and allowances out of the said duties, are not, by any of the laws relating to the said duties, sufficiently empowered to go on board ships and vessels for that purpose, although the duties on salt are under the management of the said commissioners and their officers; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from henceforth it shall and may be lawful to and for the officers appointed by the commissioners of excise for the said duties on salt, from time to time, to go on board all ships importing or exporting any salt or fish, and to continue on board such ships, to take an account of such salt and fish, and see the same weighed, landed or exported; and if any person or persons shall obstruct or hinder any of the said officers in performance of their duties aforesaid, then, and in every such case, the person offending therein shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds.

Officers for the salt duties may go on board all ships exporting salt, &c. Penalty on persons obstructing.

XVI. And whereas her Majesty's duties on salt are much lessened by the exportation of great quantities of fish, in regard the exporters thereof, after the same are carried out of port, and allowances, or debentures for allowances out of the duties on salt, had or obtained on such exportation, do frequently bring back such fish into port, and re-export the same, and obtain a second or more allowances for the very same fish: for remedy thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and two, it shall and may be lawful for the officers for the said duties on salt, in the several and respective ports of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, upon the exportation of any codfish, ling, or hake, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to cut off part of the tail of every such codfish, ling, or hake, before the same shall be so exported, to the intent it may be known that such codfish, ling, or hake hath been so exported, and allowances obtained on exportation thereof, in case the same shall be relanded or re-imported; and also, that it shall be lawful upon the exportation of any pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to mark any cask, barrel, or other vessel, wherein any such pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, shall be

XVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any codfish, ling, or hake, or any pilchards, scads, white herrings, red herrings, salmon, or dried red sprats, shall, after the same shall be exported, be fraudulently re-landed in England, or Wales, the town of Berwick upon Tweed, or re-imported, all the said fish, so re-landed or re-imported, shall be forfeited and lost, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures, hereby given and imposed, shall be recovered and levied by the same ways, means, and methods, as any penalties and forfeitures can or may be recovered and levied by any of the laws of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, nor any more than one imparlance: and that the said penalties and forfeitures shall be distributed in manner following; (viz.) one moiety thereof to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue or inform for the same.

STAT. I. CAP. XXVI.

An act for the relief of the masters of boys and other vessels carrying corn and other inland provisions within the port of London.

WHEREAS great quantities of English corn, grain, meal, and other goods, which may lawfully be exported, and for which no duties are payable to her Majesty upon exportation thereof, are daily brought in boys and other vessels to the city of London, from the counties of Kent and Essex: and whereas the masters of such boys and vessels, employed in the carriage of such goods, have of late been put to unreasonable and unnecessary charges and trouble, by certain officers of her Majesty's customs, who for their own profit and lucre have required and exacted great fees for transires and cocquets, to the great discouragement of the country farmers, and oppression of the said boymen: for remedy whereof be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the tenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and two, no cocquet or cocquets, or bonds thereon, shall be required by any officer of the customs, or others, of or from any such master or owner of such boys or vessels, carrying or conveying such goods as aforesaid, to or from any place within the port of London; that is to say, from London Bridge unto the supposed right line from the promontory or point called the North Foreland, in the county of Kent, unto the promontory or point called the Naes, including so much of the ports of Sandwich and Ipswich, and the members thereof, as are within the said limits, for or in respect of any such corn, grain, meal, and such other goods as are before described, the same shall or may be conveyed as aforesaid, by transires or let-pas only, for which transire there shall be paid to the respective officers, who by law are intitled to fees of bonds, and cocquets, and certificates, and entries thereupon, the sum of three shillings and five pence, and no more; which sum shall be respectively distributed amongst them, in such manner and proportion, as where bonds and cocquets are taken for goods carried coastwise, ought and used to be paid; any custom, law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

No cocquet,
&c. to be required of masters of boys,
&c.

but may be

Fee for tran-sires.

II. And whereas it often happens, that small quantities and parcels of corn and hops are brought as aforesaid to the city of London, and the fees exacted by the officers aforesaid have exceeded the charge of the freight thereof; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said tenth day of May, the sum of one shilling and eight pence halfpenny, and no more, shall be respectively distributed to and amongst the officers aforesaid, when the quantity of such corn or grain as aforesaid exceeds not fifty quarters, or when the quantity of hops exceeds not fifty bags in any one such boy or vessel as aforesaid.

&c. brought to London.

III. And

Certificates on bonds transmitted into the Exchequer, to be indorsed on the back of the bond, &c. Penalty.

An act not to take away any tolls, &c. payable to the city of London.

Right of the ports of Sandwich and Ipswich saved.

III. And whereas upon the carrying of goods from port to port, bonds are given for returning certificates of the landing or discharging of the goods in the ports to which they are carried, and when such bonds are transmitted into the Exchequer, the certificates relating thereunto have been usually annexed to such bonds, but by fraud or carelessness the certificates are sometimes disjoined from the respective bonds, whereby persons who have duly complied with the conditions thereof, have been put to unjust vexation and charge: for prevention whereof for the future it is hereby enacted, That the proper officers for transmitting the said bonds into the Exchequer shall truly and faithfully endorse, on the backside of every such bond, the substance of the certificate, if there be any relating thereto, and sign such indorsement, to serve as an intimation to the court of Exchequer, concerning the performance or non-performance of the conditions of such bonds respectively, under the penalty of forfeiting treble damages, besides costs of suit, to be recovered by the party grieved against the officer who shall offend therein, by action of debt or the case, or by bill, suit, or information, in any court of record, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance shall be granted or allowed.

IV. Provided, and it is hereby enacted, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend to the lessening or taking away the tolls or duties due and payable to the mayor, and commonalty, and citizens of the city of London, or to the mayor of the said city for the time being; any thing herein to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

V. Saving always, The usual and known right, liberty, and privilege to the ports of Sandwich and Ipswich, and either of them, and the known members thereof, and of the customers, comptrollers, searchers, and their deputies, of and within the said ports of Sandwich and Ipswich, and the several creeks, harbours, and havens to them, or either of them, respectively belonging within the counties of Kent and Essex, in all matters and things whatsoever, other than in such matters and things as are specially provided for or directed by this present act.

STAT. II. CAP. VIII.

An act for explanation of a clause in one act made in the seventh year of his late Majesty's reign relating to Borelaps, and to take off the additional subsidy upon Irish linen.

A clause in 7 W. 3. c. 10.

concerning Borelaps, and the duties, &c.

WHEREAS in and by an act of parliament made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, of blessed memory, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine and vinegar, and upon tobacco, and East India goods, and other merchandises imported, for carrying on the war against France, it is therein recited, That whereas several merchants trading with the United Provinces in several sorts of coarse linen, commonly called Borelaps, had then of late been compelled to pay custom for the same as Hollands, which came to above thirty five pounds per centum; whereby the said trade, so useful to the poorer sort of people, was not only likely to be lost, but the customs thereby much abated: it was therefore enacted, That all such linen cloth, known or commonly called by the name of Borelaps, not exceeding twenty eight inches and a half in breadth, nor twelve pence an English ell in value, should be entred ad valorem during the continuance of that act, and pay all other duties accordingly: and whereas some doubt hath been made, whether the said clause concerning Borelaps be yet in force, force, and is to continue for such time and term of years, as other clauses in the said recited act are by subsequent acts now in force continued; be it therefore declared and enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said clause concerning Borelaps, and the duties and customs payable for the same ad valorem, is and shall be in full force and effect to all intents, constructions and purposes whatsoever, until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten. EXP.

till 1710.

II. And whereas by one other act made in the seventh year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for encouraging the linen manufacture of Ireland, and bringing flax and hemp into, and the making of sail-cloth in this kingdom, it is enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any native or natives of England, or Ireland, to import into England directly from Ireland, any sorts of hemp or flax, and all the production thereof, as thread, yarn, and linen, of the growth and manufacture of Ireland, free from all manner of customs, duties, and impositions whatsoever, upon producing such certificate, and making such oath, as in the said act is mentioned: and whereas by one other act made in the eighth year of the reign of his said late Majesty, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tunnage and poundage upon merchandizes imported, for the term of two years and three quarters, and an additional land tax for one year, for carrying on the war against France, a further subsidy of poundage was granted to his Majesty after the rate of twelve pence for the value of every twenty shillings, upon all manner of goods and merchandizes imported or brought into this realm, or any the dominions to the same belonging, at any time after the first day of May, one thousand six hundred ninety seven, and before the first day of February, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, according to the several and particular rates and values of the same goods and merchandizes, as the same are particularly and respectively rated and valued in the aforesaid book of rates; which said additional subsidy of poundage hath been since continued by divers acts, and is yet in force, and to continue for and during the term of her Majesty's life; by reason of which said last mentioned act, and the several acts for continuing the said additional subsidies, all linens imported from Ireland do now stand charged with the said additional subsidy of twelve pence for the value of every twenty shillings of the same goods imported, notwithstanding the said recited act of the seventh year of his late Majesty's reign, for encouraging the linen manufacture of Ireland; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and two, all sorts of hemp or flax, and all the production thereof, as thread, yarn and linen, imported into England directly from Ireland, by any native or natives of England or Ireland, being of the growth and manufacture of Ireland, upon producing such certificates, and making such oath as in and by the said act of the seventh year of his said late Majesty was and is required, shall be free from the said additional subsidy of poundage, and all manner of customs, duties and impositions whatsoever; any act, custom, or usage heretofore to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Hemp or flax,
&c. may be imported from Ireland free.

CAP. VI.

An act for the increase of seamen, and better encouragement of navigation, and security of the coal trade.

Parish boys may be put out apprentices to the sea service,

WHEREAS the giving due encouragement to such of the youth of this kingdom, as shall voluntarily betake themselves to the sea service, and practice of navigation, and obliging others, who, by reason of their own or their parents poverty, are destitute of employment, or any lawful means whereby to maintain themselves, may greatly tend to the increase of able and experienced mariners and seamen, for the service of her Majesty's royal navy, and for the carrying on the trade and commerce of this kingdom; be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and four, it shall and may be lawful to and for two or more justices of the peace, in their several and respective counties, ridings, or divisions, as also to and for all mayors, aldermen, bailiffs, and other chief officers and magistrates of any city, borough, or town corporate, within her her Majesty's kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, and likewise to and for the churchwardens and overseers of the poor (for the time being) of the several and respective parishes within the places aforesaid, by and with the consent and approbation of such justices of the peace, mayors, aldermen, bailiffs, or other the chief officers or magistrates aforesaid, to bind and put out any boy or boys, who is, are, or shall be of the age of ten years, or upwards, or who is, are, or shall be chargeable, or whose parents are or shall become chargeable to the respective parish or parishes wherein they inhabit, or who shall beg for alms, to be apprentice and apprentices to the sea service, to any of her Majesty's subjects, being masters or owners of any ship or vessel used in sea service, and belonging to any port or ports within the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed aforesaid, for so long time, and until such boys shall respectively attain or come to the age of one and twenty years; and such binding out any such apprentice shall be as effectual in the law, to all intents and purposes, as if such boy were of full age, and by indenture had bound himself an apprentice: and to the end that the time of the continuance of the service of such apprentice or apprentices may the more plainly and certainly appear, the age of every such boy, so to be bound apprentice, shall be mentioned and inserted in his indentures, being taken truly from a copy of the entry in the register book, wherein the time of his being baptized is or shall be entred (where the same can or may be had) which copy shall be given and attested by the minister, vicar, or curate of such parish or parishes wherein such boy's baptism shall be registered, without fee or reward, and may be writ upon paper or parchment without any stamp or mark; and where no such entry of such boy's being baptized can be found, two or more of such justices of the peace, and such mayors, aldermen, bailiffs, or other chief officers shall, as fully as they can, inform themselves of such boy's age, and from such information shall insert the same in the said indentures; and the age of such boy so inserted and mentioned in the said indentures (in relation to the continuance of his service) shall be taken to be his true age, without any further proof thereof.

Boy's age to be inserted in his indenture, &c.

V. And be it further enacted, That the churchwardens and overseers of the parish, out of which any such boy shall be bound an apprentice, shall send the said indentures to the collector of her Majesty's customs, residing at or belonging to any port or ports within this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, whereunto such masters or owners of ships or vessels, to whom such apprentice or apprentices shall be bound, do or may belong; who shall, in a fair book or books to be by him kept for that purpose, fairly enter, from time to time, all and every indenture and indentures, whereby such apprentice and apprentices shall be bound, and which shall be so sent unto him, and shall make an indorsement upon the said indentures of the registry thereof, subscribed by the said collector, without taking any fee or other reward for the same: and every such collector neglecting or refusing to enter such indentures, and indorse the same, or making false entries, shall forfeit the sum of five pounds for the use of the poor of the parish, from whence such boy was bound apprentice: and all and every such collector or collectors, or his or their lawful deputy or deputies, of the said several and respective ports, shall from time to time transmit certificates in writing, under his or their hands, to the lord high admiral of England, or to the commissioners of the admiralty for the time being, containing the names and ages of every such apprentice respectively, and to what ship he belongs; and upon receipt of such certificates, protections shall, from time to time, be made and given for such apprentices, till they attain their several and respective ages of eighteen years, without any fee or reward to be taken for the same; which certificates, so as aforesaid to be given, are not required to be writ upon stamp paper or parchment.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all and every the person and persons, to whom any poor parish boy hath been, or hereafter shall be, put apprentice, according to the statute made in the forty third year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, may, with the consent and approbation of two or more justices of the peace of the same county, and dwelling in or near the same parish where such poor boy was bound apprentice, or by and with the consent and approbation of any mayor, alderman, bailiff, or other chief officer or magistrate of any city, borough, or town corporate, where such poor boy was bound apprentice, at the request of the master or mistress, then living, of such apprentices, or his or their executors, administrators, or assigns, by indenture, assign and turn over such poor boy apprentice to any master or owner of any such ship or vessel, using the sea service, as aforesaid, for and during the then remaining time of his apprenticeship; which assignment and assignments of such apprentices, so as aforesaid, shall be, and are hereby declared to be good and effectual in the law: all which indentures of assignment are hereby directed to be registred, and certificates thereof given and transmitted by such collector, at the said several ports where such parish apprentices shall be so assigned over, and bound to the sea service, in manner and form aforesaid; and upon receipt of such certificates, protections shall, from time to time, be made and given for such apprentices (so to be assigned over, as aforesaid) till they shall attain their several and respective ages of eighteen years, without fee or reward for the same, in like manner as aforesaid.

VIII. And for the better providing such apprentices with masters for the said service; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every of her Majesty's subjects, being masters or owners of any ship or ships, vessel or vessels, used in the sea service, as aforesaid, of the burthen of thirty tun to the burthen of fifty tun, be obliged to take one such apprentice, and one more for the next fifty tun, and one more for each and every hundred tun, such ship or vessel shall exceed the burthen of one hundred tun: and such master or owner of any ship or vessel, refusing to take such apprentice or apprentices, as aforesaid, shall forfeit the sum of ten pounds for the use of the poor of the parish from whence such boy was bound apprentice.

IX. And be it further enacted, That every master or owner of such ship or ships, vessel or vessels, so obliged to take such apprentice or apprentices, after his arrival into any port or ports aforesaid, and before he clears out of such port, shall give an account in writing, under his hand, to the collector of such port to which he belongs, containing the names and numbers of such apprentices as are then remaining in his service.

XI. And it is hereby directed, That the counterpart of all and every such indentures, to be executed by the several and respective masters of all such apprentices, shall be sealed and executed in the presence of, and attested by, the collector at the port aforesaid, (where such apprentices shall be bound or assigned over) and the constable or other officer, who shall bring or convey such apprentices to the said several and respective masters; which constables or officers last mentioned shall transmit and convey the counterparts of such indentures to the churchwardens and overseers of the several parishes from whence such apprentices shall be bound, by the same ways and means as such apprentice or apprentices were conveyed to the said several and respective ports.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every such collector in every port or ports aforesaid, shall, in their several and respective stations, keep an exact register, containing as well the number and burthen of all such ships and vessels, together with the masters or owners names, as also the names of such apprentices in each ship and vessel belonging to their respective ports, and from what parishes and places such apprentices were respectively sent; and that such collectors shall transmit true copies of such register, signed by them, to the quarter sessions, or to such cities, boroughs, towns corporate, parishes, or places, when and so often as they shall be reasonably required so to do; for which copy or copies, so to be transmitted as aforesaid, no fee or reward shall be taken: and that every such collector refusing or wilfully neglecting to transmit such copies, as aforesaid, shall for every such refusal or neglect forfeit five pounds for the use of the poor of the parish from whence such boy was bound apprentice. and transmit a copy thereof to the quarter sessions, &c. gratis. Penalty.

XIV. And be it further enacted, That every custom-house officer or officers, at each and every of the ports aforesaid, shall insert, and are hereby required, from time to time, to insert at the bottom of their cocquets, the number of men and boys on board the respective ships or vessels, at their going out of every such port, therein particularly describing the apprentices by their respective names, ages, and the dates of their several indentures, for which no fee or reward shall be taken. Officer to insert on the cocquet, the number of men and boys on board, &c.

XV. And for the encouragement of all such as have, or shall voluntarily bind themselves apprentices to the sea service; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every such person and persons, who have or shall so voluntarily, and of his or their own accord, bind or put him or themselves apprentice to any such masters or owners of any ship or vessel, as aforesaid, shall not be compelled or imprest into her Majesty's sea service, or the sea service of her Majesty's heirs or successors, for and during the term of three years, to be accounted from the dates of the respective indentures of such voluntary apprentice or apprentices; all which indentures are hereby directed to be registred, and certificates thereof given and transmitted by such collector at the said several ports, where such apprentices already have become so bound, or that hereafter shall so bind themselves, in manner and form as aforesaid; upon receipt of which said several certificates, protections shall, from time to time, be made and given, for the said first three years of their several respective apprenticeships, without either fee or reward for the same. Persons voluntarily binding themselves apprentices to sea service, not to be impressed for 3 years. Indentures to be registred, and protections given for the said 3 years.

XVIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the penalties and forfeitures directed by this act, shall, by warrant under the hands and seals of any two or more justices of the peace of the same county, city, borough or town corporate, be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender, which sale shall be good in the law against such offender. Penalties and forfeitures, how to be levied.

which from and after the last day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, at any time or times, during his Majesty's life, should be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; and one further subsidy called Poundage, of all manner of goods and merchandizes imported or brought into this realm, or any his Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said last day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, during his Majesty's life, by way of merchandize (except such goods and merchandizes as are therein excepted) and with such abatements, regulations, directions for making repayments or allowances upon exportation, and subject to such rules and other matters and things touching the said several subsidies, as in the said act are expressed; which said further subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties upon wine, goods, and merchandizes, granted by the act above recited, are to be raised and paid to your Majesty, during your life, by virtue of another act of parliament made and passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the better support of her Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown, as by the said acts (relation being thereunto severally had) may more fully appear: Now we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects the commons of England, in parliament assembled, for the better enabling your Majesty to carry on the present war, and to defray your other necessary expences, do cheerfully and unanimously give and grant unto your most excellent majesty, the additional rates, duties, and sums of money herein-aftermentioned, and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That over and above the subsidies of tunnage and poundage above-mentioned, and over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any other act or acts of parliament or otherwise however already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, imported or to be imported, there shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty one other subsidy called Tunnage, for and upon all wines which from and after the eighth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and three, at any time or times within or during the space of three years from thence next and immediately ensuing, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed; that is to say, one third part of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said recited acts, or either of them, are imposed or payable for or upon any kind of wine or wines respectively; and one other subsidy called Poundage, of all manner of goods and merchandizes to be imported or brought into this realm, or any her Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and three, during the said term of three years, by way of merchandize; that is to say, one third part of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said recited acts, or either of them, are imposed or payable for or upon the same goods and merchandizes respectively, except such goods and other merchandizes as by the said acts, or either of them, are exempted from payment of the subsidies thereby granted.

II. And it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where by the said former acts, or either of them, any drawbacks or abatements are to be made of the whole or any part of the duties thereby imposed, there shall be in the like cases proportionable drawbacks and abatements made of the whole or part of the duties by this act granted respectively; and that the several subsidies and duties by this act granted, during the continuance thereof, shall be raised, collected, levied, secured, and paid, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such rules and and directions, as in and by the said acts, or either of them, are prescribed or appointed, touching or concerning the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage which were thereby granted, as aforesaid; and that every article, rule, and clause contained in the said recited acts, or either of them, concerning the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage formerly granted, as aforesaid, and now in force, so far forth as the same do or may relate to the subsidies or duties formerly granted, as aforesaid, shall be used, exercised, and put in practice for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the subsidies and duties hereby before granted, as fully and effectually as if the same articles, rules, and clauses, and every of them, were again particularly and at large recited and re-enacted in the body of this present act: except only as to such of the said articles, rules, and clauses, touching which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being; which other provisions, alterations or exemptions shall be observed with respect to the duties hereby granted, during the continuance of this act, in the same manner as they are to be observed with respect to the said subsidies formerly granted, as aforesaid.

to pay duties ad valorem, as aforesaid, by any act or acts of parliament already made in that behalf, during the continuance of the same act and acts of parliament, or any of them, an entry or entries thereof shall be made in the custom-house, where such goods, wares, or merchandizes shall be imported, and before the landing thereof, the importer or importers of the same shall give security by bond, with two or more sufficient sureties (which the commissioners or proper officers of the customs are hereby empowered to take) for payment of the said duties, according to the real values of the said goods, to be ascertained according to this act (except coffee, the duties whereof are to be regulated according to the former acts concerning the same) as soon as the said goods shall be sold; and also for exposing the goods so imported to sale, openly and fairly by way of auction, or by inch of candle, within the city of London, within the time of twelve months after the importation thereof.

VII. And it is hereby enacted and declared, That the value of such goods, according to which the said duties are to be paid (except coffee, as aforesaid) shall be reckoned according to the gross price at which such goods shall be so sold, making such allowances only out of the same as are herein after mentioned; that is to say, it is hereby enacted, That out of the values of the said goods so to be ascertained by the price at the candle, as aforesaid, there shall be a deduction and allowance made of so much as the net duties, payable to her Majesty for the same goods respectively, do amount unto, (except the duty of five pounds per centum, payable to the Queen for the use of the said companies), and so much as the respective companies, or traders aforesaid, shall bona fide allow for prompt payment to the persons who at such sales shall buy the said goods at time: and also upon the whole values of the said goods so to be ascertained by the price at the candle, there shall be deducted and allowed six pounds for every hundred pounds to the said companies and traders respectively, for their charges in keeping the said goods, from the time such goods are imported till the sale by the candle, and in that proportion for a greater or lesser value.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any such unrated goods of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East Indies, China, or other the parts within the limits aforesaid, shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry thereof be made at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and the said duties shall be secured, as aforesaid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported goods as shall be so landed and put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; (to wit) two thirds of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, (she or they bearing the charge of the prosecution) and the other third part to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, or the value thereof, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed: nevertheless the said duties so to be paid upon the values so ascertained of the said unrated goods, wares, and merchandizes (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, and answering the same) shall be applied and disposed to the same uses and purposes to which the respective duties upon the same goods, payable in any other manner by any former act or acts, were appropriated or applicable.

IX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where by the said former acts concerning the said duties of unrated goods, or any of them, any drawbacks or allowances were to be made of all or any part of the duties, upon the exportation thereof within the respective time or times thereby thereby limited, there shall be the like drawbacks or allowances made of or out of the duties of the same goods, to be ascertained by this act.

XI. Provided also, and be it enacted, That all persons importing any tobacco, hereby charged with any the duties aforesaid, shall have nine months time, from the entry of the tobacco inwards, for payment of the duty hereby imposed upon the same, giving bond, with sufficient sureties, to her Majesty for payment thereof at the end of the said nine months, as in like cases is usual; and in case of prompt payment, the importer shall have a discount after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum.

Nine months given for paying the duties on tobacco.

6 per cent. discount on prompt payment.

XII. And for the encouragement of the iron manufacture of this kingdom; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and three, there shall not be allowed any drawback, or repayment of customs, or duties, charged in this or any former act, upon any wares made of wrought iron or steel in foreign parts, which shall be imported into this kingdom, and afterwards exported to any of her Majesty's plantations in America; any clause in this or any former act to the contrary notwithstanding.

No drawback on wares made of foreign wrought iron, &c.

XIV. And be it further enacted, That in all cases where the oath of merchants, importing and exporting, is by law required to obtain any drawback or allowance upon the exportation of any foreign goods, the making of such oath by the agent or husband of any corporation, or company trading by a joint stock, affirming the truth of the officers certificate of the entry and due payment of the duties of such foreign goods by any such company or corporation; and the making of such oath by the known servant of any merchant usually employed in the making his entries, and paying his customs, for any goods of a merchant so to be exported, shall be of the like effect as if the said oaths were made by any particular merchant or merchants themselves.

Oath of the agent or husband of any company, &c. or servant of merchant, &c. sufficient.

An act for the better securing and regulating the duties upon salt.

WHEREAS great sums of money are paid out of her Majesty's duties upon salt, on account of debentures for salt shipped to be exported to foreign parts; and it is found by experience, that great part of the salt, for which such debentures have been paid, hath been fraudulently landed on the coasts of England and Wales, and not exported to any foreign parts, or having been actually landed in Ireland, or other places out of England and Wales, have been shipped off again from thence, and fraudulently brought into England or Wales; by which evil practices her Majesty's said duties are very much lessened in the produce thereof, and the salt makers, who pay their full duties, are very much prejudiced and discouraged in their trade, by reason they cannot sell their salt in places which are supplied with salt run, as aforesaid: for remedy whereof be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That no salt whatsoever, being of the produce or manufacture of England, Wales, Berwick upon Tweed, Scotland, or Ireland, nor any other salt coming from Ireland, Scotland, or the isle of Man, shall, after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and four, be imported or brought into any port or place within England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, nor be taken out of any ship or vessel, nor put on shore within any of the said ports or places, upon

No salt coming from Ireland, Scotland, or the isle of Man, to be imported. Further provisions for this purpose by 5 Geo. 1. c. 18. s. 23.

Forfeiture.

pain that all the salt so imported or brought in, taken out of any ship or vessel, or landed, or put on shore, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act, shall be forfeited and lost; and that the ship or vessel in which any such salt shall be so imported or brought in, or out of which any such salt shall be taken or put on shore, together with all her tackle and apparel, shall also be forfeited and lost; and every person that shall take any such salt out of any such ship or vessel, or carry the same on shore, or convey the same from the shore when landed, or be aiding or assisting therein, shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds for every such offence, or suffer six months imprisonment.

Salt so imported may in two months after be seized;

also the ship;

and if not claimed in 20 days may be sold.

Salt carried coastwise excepted.

Salt forced into any port by stress of weather, &c. may be reloaded.

Fisherman may land salt taken on board for salting fish, on oath made, &c.

Allowance of salt for ship's provision, or for curing fish, &c.

What forfeited upon neglect of such entries by 5 Geo. 1. c. 18. s. 18.

H. And be it further enacted, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any of the officers for the said duties upon salt, at any time within two months after the importation or landing any such salt, and not afterwards, to seize the salt so imported or taken out of any ship or vessel, or landed or put on shore, or conveying from the shore; and also the ship or vessel in which such salt was imported, together with all her tackle and apparel; and in case the owner of such salt or ship shall not, within twenty days after such seizure, claim the salt and ship so seized, and also give sufficient security to answer the value thereof; then, and in every such case, the salt and ship, with all her tackle and apparel, shall be sold to the best advantage.

III. Provided nevertheless, That nothing in this act shall extend, or be construed to extend, to any salt which shall be shipped, to be carried coastwise, by certificate from one port to another in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, according to the directions of the former acts relating to the said duties.

IV. Provided also, That in case where any salt shall have been entred and shipped to be exported to foreign parts, according to the directions of the former acts in that behalf, and the ship or vessel, laden with such salt, shall, by stress of weather, enemies, or other unavoidable necessities, be forced into any port or place within England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, it shall and may be lawful to and for the owner of such salt, or master of such ship, within twenty days after her coming into such port, to reload the said salt, so as due entry be made, and the duties again paid down for the whole quantity of salt that was entred to be exported, before any part thereof shall be reloaded, and not otherwise; any thing in this act or any other law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

V. Provided also, That in case where any fisherman shall have taken any salt on board his boat or vessel from any part of England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, for the salting of fish at sea, it shall and may be lawful for any such fisherman to bring in and land any such salt so taken on board, so as oath be made before the landing thereof (which oath the officer for the said duties hath hereby power, and is hereby directed to administer, without fee or charge) that the particular quantity of salt, so to be landed, was taken on board from some part of England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, and at what place it was taken on board, and that no part thereof was taken out of any ship or vessel at sea; any thing in this act or any other statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. Provided also, That in case where any ship or vessel shall come into any port of England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, from Ireland, or any other foreign part, having on board any quantity of salt, which was taken in only for the necessary provisions of the ship for such voyage, or for curing of fish, it shall and may be lawful to and for the master of such ship or vessel to land the said salt, so as entry be made thereof within ten days after his first coming into such port, and the duties paid down or secured for the same, before the same, or any part thereof, shall be landed or taken out of any such ship or vessel, in the same manner as the duties of foreign salt imported are to be paid or secured; any thing in this act or any other statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

IX. And whereas in and by the said act of parliament made in the fifth year of the reign of the late King William and Queen Mary, and by several other acts relating to the said duties upon salt; it is amongst other things provided, That any person, who shall export beyond the seas any salt, as well foreign as English, or any rock salt, shall, upon a debenture made out according to the direction of the said acts, be repaid the duties of such salt so exported: and whereas some doubts and controversies have been made, whether salt shipped and exported to Scotland, the isle of Man, or the islands of Jersey and Guernsey, be an exportation of salt within the intent and meaning of the said acts, so as to intitle the exporter to a drawback of the duties of the salt so exported: for preventing of all such controversies and disputes, be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That it was and is the intent and meaning of the said acts, that any person exporting any salt to Scotland, the isle of Man, or the islands of Jersey and Guernsey, according to the directions of the said acts, is and shall be intitled to a drawback of the duties of the salt so exported, and shall be repaid the same, in such manner, and under such conditions, as are directed and required by the said acts, in case of the exportation of salt to any other foreign parts; any thing in the said acts or any other law or statute to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Further provisions relating hereto by 5 Annæ, c. 29. f. 16.

Salt exported to Scotland, the isle of Man, or Jersey and Guernsey, intitled to a drawback.

X. Provided always, and it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That where any salt or rock salt (the duties whereof shall have been paid, or secured to be paid, according to the direction of the former laws, relating to the said duties on salt) shall, from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and four, be shipped or laid on board any ship or vessel, in any port, river, or place within this kingdom of England, or the dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, in order to be exported to parts beyond the seas, or be carried coastwise; and the said salt or rock salt, so shipped or laid on board, shall happen to perish by the sinking of the ship or vessel, on which the same shall be shipped or laid on board, before the said ship or vessel shall go out of such port or place, and before the exporter of such salt shall be intitled to a drawback or allowance of the duties thereof, then and in such case the exporter or proprietor of the said salt or rock salt, so perished, shall, upon proof made before the justices of the peace, at the next general quarter sessions of the peace, to be held for the county, city, riding, division, or place, next to the place where the said salt or rock salt shall so perish, of the loss of the salt or rock salt so shipped, receive from the said sessions a certificate, that such proof was made before them, and upon producing the said certificate to any of her Majesty's collectors or officers appointed to collect the said duties on salt, the said collectors and officers are hereby required to let the said exporter or proprietor buy the like quantity of salt or rock salt, as is expressed in the said certificate to be so perished, without paying to her Majesty any duty of excise for the same, in the same manner as if such salt or rock salt had so perished going coastwise from one port of England to another.

Salt shipped for exportation, and perishing in port, by the sinking of the ship, &c.

Proprietor to buy the like quantity, duty free.

XI. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That if any person or persons shall at any time be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done or executed in pursuance of this act, he or they shall or may plead the general issue, and give this act in evidence for his defence; and if upon trial a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs be nonsuit, discontinue, or forbear prosecuting the said actions, then each defendant or defendants shall have double costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs, for which costs he shall have such remedy in other cases where costs are by law given to defendants.

General issue.

Double costs.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several penalties and forfeitures, hereby given and imposed, shall be recovered and levied by the same ways, means, and methods, as any penalties and forfeitures can or may be recovered and levied by any of the laws of excise, or by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her Majesty's Penalties and forfeitures how to be recovered.

Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no effoin, protection, or wager of law, nor any more than one imparlance shall be allowed: and that the said penalties and forfeitures shall be distributed in manner following: (to wit) one moiety thereof to her Majesty, her heirs, and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that will sue or inform for the same.

No herrings, pilchards, scads, codfish, ling, hake, salmon, &c. shall be imported or landed, unless oath be made, that the salt wherewith such fish was cured, was laden from England, &c. and no drawback allowed on exportation, &c. Penalty.

Newfoundland or Island fish, excepted.

Part of the tail of such fish to be cut off. Penalty on landing the same before tender thereof made.

XIII. And whereas it is found by experience, that great quantities of fish, which have been cured at sea, or in Ireland, or other parts not within England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, with salt, for which the duties have not been answered and paid, have been imported or brought into England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, by which practice her Majesty, and the English fishery, are very much prejudiced: for remedy whereof be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and four, no herrings, pilchards, scads, codfish, ling, hake, salmon, or dried red sprats whatsoever, or by whomsoever caught or cured, shall be imported, brought in, or landed within England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, unless the owner or proprietor of such fish, or the master of the vessel, shall make oath before the officer for the said duties on salt, in the port or place where such fish shall be imported, brought in, or landed (who shall administer the same without fee or charge) that all the salt wherewith the said fish was cured, was laden or put on board from some part of England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, and when and where the same was so put on board, and that no drawback or allowance, or debenture for the same, hath to his knowledge or belief been had or obtained upon the exportation or carrying out of the said salt, or any part thereof, or is intended to be had or obtained on account of such exportation, upon pain of forfeiting such fish that shall be imported, brought in, or landed contrary to the intent and meaning hereof, and double the value thereof, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof.

XIV. Provided, That nothing in this act shall extend to prohibit the importing and landing any codfish, ling, or hake, which have been caught and cured at Newfoundland or Island, so as oath be first made before the landing thereof by the owner or proprietor of such fish, or the master of the vessel, before the officer for the said duties in the port or place where such fish shall be imported, brought in, or landed (who shall administer the same without fee or charge) that all the fish so imported came from Newfoundland or Island, and were caught and cured there, and so as the said fish be at the landing thereof, and before the same be removed from the shore, tendered to the officer of the port for the said duties, to have part of the tail of every such codfish, ling, or hake cut off, that no allowance for such fish be obtained upon exportation; and the said officer is hereby impowered and required to cut off part of the tail of all such fish on the importation thereof: and in case any such fish shall be landed before the same shall be tendered to the officer, to have part of the tail cut, as aforesaid, all the fish, so imported and landed, shall be forfeited, and double the value thereof; to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit, one moiety thereof to the Queen, the other moiety thereof to him or them who shall prosecute or sue for the same.

of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and that all and every such or the like several and respective duties for and upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, as by the said act of the twelfth year of his said late Majesty's reign were, as aforesaid, continued until the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be continued and be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, which shall be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, at any time or times from and after the last day of April, one thousand seven hundred and six, and before the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and that all and every such and the like several duties, impositions, and sums of money to be paid by every hawker, pedlar, petty chapman, and such other persons as are described in one act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, for licensing hawkers and pedlars, and all the powers for granting licences, and other powers, and all clauses, directions, allowances, penalties, forfeitures, articles, matters, and things therein contained, which, by the said act of the twelfth year of his said late Majesty's reign, have continuance until the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be continued, and be paid, and be practised, observed, and put in execution, by virtue of this act, from the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and six, until the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and that the same or the like duty upon all muslins described in the said act of the twelfth year of his said late Majesty's reign, after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, to be determined by the gross price upon sale by the candle, as by the same act hath continuance until the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall by virtue of this act be continued, and be raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all such muslins as shall be imported or brought into this realm of England, dominion of Wales, and town or port of Berwick upon Tweed, at any time or times from and after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and six, and before the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; the said several and respective duties, impositions, and sums of money, for and upon all low wines or spirits of the first extraction, and for and upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and upon all hawkers, pedlars, petty chapmen, and other persons described as aforesaid, and for and upon all muslins, to be paid during the respective times for which they are granted, or are to continue, by virtue of this act, as aforesaid, (over and above all other duties and impositions whatsoever, already charged for or upon the same commodities and persons, or any of them respectively, by any other laws or statutes now in force) and to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, and paid, and accounted for, to the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the said penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks, allowances, and repayments, and in such manner and form in all respects, as the like duties, impositions, and sums of money respectively granted or continued by the said act of the twelfth year of his said late Majesty's reign, are thereby, or by any other law, whereunto the said act hath reference, prescribed, enacted, or appointed to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, during the continuance thereof respectively.

provided, settled, or established by the said acts of the sixth, ninth, and twelfth years of his said late Majesty's reign, or by any of them, or by any other act now in force, whereunto the same, or any of them, have or hath relation, for the better raising, levying, recovering, answering, or paying the said respective duties thereby granted, or for making any drawbacks, repayments, or allowances out of any of the said several and respective duties upon exportations, shall be revived and be continued, and be in force and virtue during the continuance of this act, and further for the recovery of all the arrearages and sums of money, which shall become due or payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon this act, in as full and ample manner, to all intents and purposes, as if the said powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, and every of them, were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

V. And for the increasing her Majesty's revenues upon some of the commodities before in this act charged (to wit) upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, to be imported within or during the term herein after-mentioned; and to the end more money may be raised thereby for carrying on the said war, and other her Majesty's most necessary occasions, it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be answered and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all and all manner of coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, which shall be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, at any time or times after the first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and four, and before the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten, over and above all duties, and additional duties already payable for the same, or any of them, by any other law now in force, and over and above the said continued duties chargeable thereupon by this act, the new additional rates and sums following; that is to say, for every hundred weight of coffee imported, as aforesaid, accounting one hundred and twelve pounds to the hundred, six and fifty shillings of lawful English money; for every hundred weight of cocoa nuts imported, and containing as aforesaid, from any the plantations belonging to the crown of England, six and fifty shillings; for every hundred weight of cocoa nuts imported, and containing as aforesaid, from any other country or place from whence they may by law be imported, four pounds and four shillings of like lawful English money; for every pound of chocolate ready made, and imported as aforesaid, one shilling; for every pound of cocoa paste, imported as aforesaid, two shillings; for every pound of tea, regularly imported as aforesaid, from whence the same might lawfully have been imported before the making of the said act of the sixth year of his said late Majesty's reign, one shilling; for every pound of tea, imported as aforesaid, from Holland, or any other country, not the place of its growth, or usual shipping, two shillings and six pence, and so proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity of any the commodities imported as aforesaid, respectively; for all nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, and mace, imported as aforesaid, five pounds for every hundred pounds value thereof, according to the several values charged on them respectively in the book of rates, and in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity thereof; and for all pictures imported within the time aforesaid, whether for private use, or sale, which are hereby permitted to be imported during the continuance of this act, any law or usage to the contrary notwithstanding) twenty pounds of lawful English money per centum of the value, to be affirmed by the oath of the importer, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity thereof.

VI. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to import into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, during the continuance of this act, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and tea, subject to the several duties duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas, in English ships, so as the master, and at least one moiety of the mariners, during the continuance of the present war, be Englishmen; and so as after the end of this war, and during the continuance of this act, the master and at least three fourths of the mariners be English; and so as notice be first given to the commissioners of her Majesty's customs, of the quality and quantity of the said spices and tea so intended to be imported, and the place in which they intend to import the same; and taking a licence under the hands of the commissioners of the customs for the time being, or any three of them, for the lading and importing thereof, as aforesaid; which licence they are hereby authorized and required to grant without any fee or reward, or any other charge to the person demanding the same; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

VII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the additional duties last-mentioned, for and upon the said coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, to be imported, from and after the said first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and four, at any time or times before the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and all arrearages thereof (over and above all other duties on the same commodities respectively) shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, to the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the said penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks, allowances, and repayments to be made, of or out of the said additional duties last-mentioned respectively, upon the exportation of the said commodities last enumerated, (coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, for which other provision is made by this act, only excepted) or any of them respectively, as the like respective duties, by virtue of the said act of the twelfth year of his said late Majesty's reign, or by virtue of this present act, or any other act now in force relating thereunto, are to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, or accounted for, during the continuance thereof respectively; and upon the exportation of coffee, tea, and cocoa nuts, within the times limited by law, so much as shall have been paid for the same, for such of the said duties as are by this act to commence from the said first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and four, shall be repaid to the exporter, under such regulations as are prescribed by any former acts for drawbacks, in case of exportation of those commodities respectively.

VIII. And her Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, being desirous by the most reasonable ways and means to raise the monies necessary for carrying on the said war, and other her Majesty's important occasions, have for that end and purpose also given and granted to her Majesty the further duties herein after mentioned; and be it enacted, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be answered and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all white calicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs, (except drugs for dying) which from and after the first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and four, and at any time or times before the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten, are or shall be imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, (over and above all other duties payable for the same at the custom-house) the further rates and sums following; that is to say, for and upon all white calicoes (by which are meant, all calicoes which do not pay duties as muslins, and all dimities and other manufactures made of cotton) which within the times aforesaid shall be imported, as aforesaid, a duty after the rate of fifteen pounds of lawful English money for every hundred pounds of the true and real real value of the said calicoes, to be ascertained upon the sale at the candle; as is herein after mentioned; and for and upon all porcelan, commonly called China or Japan ware, made of earth, which within the times aforesaid are or shall be imported as aforesaid, a duty after the rate of twelve pounds of like money for every hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, to be also ascertained by the sale at the candle, as is herein after mentioned; and for and upon all drugs (dying drugs excepted) which are rated in the book of rates, and are or shall be imported as aforesaid, a duty after the rate of ten pounds of like money for every hundred pounds worth thereof, according to the several values charged on them respectively in the said book of rates; and for and upon unrated drugs (dying drugs excepted) which are or shall be imported within the days and times last mentioned, a duty after the rate of four pounds of like money for every hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, to be ascertained as is herein after mentioned, and so proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity of any the commodities last mentioned respectively: and it is hereby declared, That by unrated drugs, chargeable by this act, are meant, all bark called clove bark, all bark called jesuits bark, callabassa, caffena, fecchia, brugiata, grana germanica, gum mount-jack, jessamine ointment, lapis hyacinthia, oil of aniseeds, oil of carraway-seeds, oil of cinnamon, oil of cloves, oil of copavia, or balsam of copavia, oil of juniper, oil of lignum rhodium, oil of peony, oil of assafras, pomatum, sal tamariscæ, and all chymical salts, snake root, terra dulcis, turpentine of Germany, all chymical preparations, physical oils and medicinal drugs (excepting unrated drugs used for dying, and except coffee, tea, chocolate, cocoa paste, and cocoa nuts.) And it is hereby also declared, That by such dying goods, as are by this act, or any other acts, exempted from payment of the respective duties by this or the said other acts granted, are meant the goods following; (viz.) aqua-fortis, argoll, anotto, allum of all sorts, archelia or Spanish weed, cochineal, cream of tartar, copperas of all sorts, gum arabick, gum seneca, sticklack, cakelack, madder roots, or rubia tinctorum, saunders red, sal armoniaek, sal gem, turnesole, verdigrease, ising glass, plaitain, litharge of all sorts, bayberries, antimony, pomegranate, pills arsenick, agarick, senna, gauls, indico of all sorts, litmus, madder of all sorts, orchall, saffore, shumack, caffumba, log wood, brazile wood, brazeletto wood, nick-rago wood, fustick, red wood, sapan wood, woad, weld, valonia grain or scarlet powder, grain of sevil in berries, and grains of Portugal or Rota, Englisb berries from the plantations, French berries, and salt petre.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties hereby granted for and upon all white calicoes imported, shall be secured, ascertained, valued, raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid, according to the gross price thereof, upon sale at the candle, by such ways and means, and subject to such of the like allowances, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the duties of fifteen per centum on muslins imported, by the said act of the twelfth year of his said late Majesty's reign, are to be secured, raised, levied, collected, answered, or paid; and that the said respective duties hereby granted, for and upon the said China or Japan ware, and for and upon all such of the said unrated drugs, imported from the East Indies, Persia, China, or other parts within the limits of the charters granted to the East India companies, shall be secured, ascertained, valued, raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid, according to the prices thereof, upon sale at the candle, by such ways and means, and with such several and respective allowances, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the duties of unrated goods from the East Indies, China, or other parts within the limits of the charters granted to the East India companies, are enacted, prescribed, or appointed to be secured, ascertained, valued, raised, levied, collected, answered, or paid, by an act passed in the second year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty an additional subsidy of tannage and poundage for three years, and for laying a further duty upon French wines condemned as lawful prize, and for ascertaining the values of unrated goods imported from the East Indies: and that the value of all such of the said unrated drugs as shall be imported from any parts or places, (other than the East Indies, Persia, China, and other parts within the limits of the charters aforesaid) according to which the said duty of four per centum is to be paid, shall be affirmed by the oaths of the importers of such drugs respectively.

Importer to pay the 4l. per cent. on unrated drugs.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties of four per centum, by this act imposed upon unrated drugs, imported from parts not within the limits of the charters granted to the said East India companies, shall be paid by the respective importers of the same upon the importation thereof.

Goods landed before entry forfeited.

XI. And it is hereby enacted, That in case any of the said callicoes, China ware, rated or unrated drugs, hereby charged as aforesaid, shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the said duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon shall be secured or paid, as this act doth require in the respective cases aforesaid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported callicoes, China ware, and drugs, as shall be so landed and put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof, (to wit) two thirds of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, (she or they bearing the charge of prosecution) and the other third to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, or the value thereof, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

On exportation duties to be repaid.

These twelve, nine, and eighteen months, are enlarged to three years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1. c. 21. s. 10.

XII. Provided always, and be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said callicoes and China wares, upon which the said further duties by this act granted are paid or secured to be paid, as aforesaid, be again exported at any time or times within twelve months by English, or within nine months by aliens; or if any of the said rated or unrated drugs, for which the said further duties by this act granted shall be paid as aforesaid, be again exported by any English merchants within eighteen months, or by aliens within nine months, to be accounted from the respective times of the entry of the said goods inwards, and that due proof be first made upon oath, that the said callicoes, China wares, and drugs so exported, be the same for which the said duties are paid and secured to be paid, as aforesaid, that then, and in every such case, (and not otherwise) the same duties so paid shall, without any delay or reward, be wholly repaid out of any the duties on imported commodities by this act granted, or the security, for such of the said duties as shall be secured, shall be vacated, as to so much of the said callicoes, China wares, and drugs, as shall be so exported; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duties to be paid into the Exchequer.

XIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That all the duties by this act granted or continued, (except the necessary charges for raising and managing the same) shall, from time to time, by the respective receivers thereof, be brought into her Majesty's receipt of the Exchequer, for the purposes in this act mentioned.

Money to be paid into the Exchequer.

XVII. And to the end all the money, that shall be so lent to her Majesty, may be well and sufficiently secured and repaid with interest, as aforesaid, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arising by the said duties, upon which the said loans are to be made, (other than the necessary charges of raising and managing the said duties) shall be brought and paid from time to time weekly into the receipt of the Exchequer; that is to say, on Wednesday in every week, if it be not an holiday; and if it be, then the next day after that is not an holiday; and that there shall be provided and kept in her Majesty's Exchequer, that is to say, in the office of the auditor auditor of the receipt, one book, in which all the said monies, which shall be so paid into the Exchequer, shall be entred apart and distinct from all other monies paid or payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon any account whatsoever.

A book to be kept for entering the same.

An act for granting to her Majesty a further subsidy on wines and merchandizes imported.

Two thirds subsidy.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of your Majesty's late royal brother King William the Third, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, towards raising the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, for the service of his Majesty's household, and other uses therein mentioned, during his Majesty's life, it was enacted, That over and above all subsidies of tunnage and poundage, and over and above all additional duties, impositions, and other duties whatsoever, therein mentioned, there should be raised and paid to his Majesty one other subsidy, called Tunnage, over and upon all wines, which from and after the last day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, at any time or times during his Majesty's life, should be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; and one further subsidy, called Poundage, of all manner of goods and merchandizes imported or brought into this realm, or any his Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said last day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, during his Majesty's life, by way of merchandize, (except such goods and merchandizes as are therein excepted) and with such abatements, regulations, directions for making repayments or allowances upon exportation, and subject to such rules, and other matters and things touching the said several subsidies, as in the said act are expressed; which said further subsidies of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wine, goods, and merchandizes, granted by the act above recited, are to be raised and paid to your Majesty during your life, by virtue of another act of parliament made and passed in the first year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the better support of her Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of the crown; and by another act made and passed in the second year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty an additional subsidy of tunnage and poundage for three years, and for laying a further duty upon French wines condemned as lawful prize, and for ascertaining the values of unrated goods imported from the East Indies, a further subsidy of tunnage upon all wines, which were to be imported during the term therein mentioned; (that is to say) one third part of such or the like duties, as by the said recited acts, or either of them, were imposed upon wines; and one other subsidy of poundage of goods and merchandizes, which were to be imported during the term therein mentioned; (that is to say) one third part of such or the like several duties, as by the said recited acts, or either of them, are imposed upon the same goods and merchandizes respectively (except as therein is excepted) are already granted to your Majesty, in the manner therein expressed, as by the said several acts (relation being thereunto severally had) may more fully appear: now your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, for the better enabling your Majesty to carry on the present war, and to defray your other necessary expences, do cheerfully and unanimously give and grant unto your most excellent Majesty the additional tional rates, duties, and sums of money, herein after mentioned, and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That, over and above the subsidies of tunnage and poundage above mentioned, and over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any other act or acts of parliament, or otherwise however already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, imported or to be imported, there shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, one other subsidy, called Tunnage, for and upon all wines which from and after the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and four, at any time or times within or during the space of four years from thence next and immediately ensuing, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tyne (that is to say) two third parts of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign were granted, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign are continued and payable for or upon any kind of wine or wines respectively: and one other subsidy, called Poundage, of all manner of goods and merchandizes to be imported or brought into this realm, or any her Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and four, during the said term of four years, by way of merchandize, (that is to say) two third parts of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign were granted, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign are continued and payable for or upon the same goods and merchandizes respectively; except tobacco, and such currants as shall be imported in English built shipping, navigated according to the laws now in force, and sugar from the English plantations, and such goods and other merchandizes as by the two acts last mentioned, or either of them, are exempted from payment of the subsidies thereby granted.

II. And it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where by the said two acts last mentioned, or either of them, any drawbacks or abatements are to be made of the whole or any part of the duties thereby imposed, there shall be in the like cases proportionable drawbacks and abatements made of the whole or part of the duties by this act granted respectively; and that the several subsidies and duties by this act granted, during the continuance thereof, shall be raised, collected, levied, secured, and paid, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such rules and directions, as in and by the said former acts, or any of them, are prescribed or appointed touching or concerning the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage, which were thereby granted, as aforesaid; and that every article, rule, and clause contained in the said recited acts, or any of them, concerning the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage formerly granted, as aforesaid, and now in force, so far forth as the same do or may relate to the subsidies or duties formerly granted, as aforesaid, shall be used, exercised, and put in practice, for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the subsidies and duties hereby before granted, as fully and effectually, as if the same articles, rules, and clauses, and every of them, were again particularly and at large recited and re-enacted in the body of this present act; except only as to such of the said articles, rules, and clauses, touching which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions, are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being; which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions, shall be observed, with respect to the duties hereby granted, during the continuance of this act, in the same manner as they are to be observed with respect to the said subsidies formerly granted, as aforesaid.

III. All

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the officers of her Majesty's customs, or any of them, or any of their clerks or substitutes, shall not directly or indirectly receive, take, or demand any fee, gratuity, or reward whatsoever, from any her Majesty's subjects or aliens, for any entry, warrant, debenture, certificate, cocket, or other matter or thing to be done or performed by them, or any of them, in relation only to the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage herein before granted, on pain of forfeiting for every such offence the sum of forty pounds, (to wit) one third thereof to her Majesty, and the other two thirds thereof (besides costs of suit) to the party grieved, who may sue for the same by action of debt, or on the case, bill, suit, or information, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

Penalty on officers taking fee for entry, &c.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arising by the said subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other the duties hereby granted, as aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of raising and answering the same) shall from time to time be brought and paid into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer.

XII. And whereas by the acts made in the twelfth and five and twentieth years of the reign of his late Majesty King Charles the Second, the former intituled, An act for the encouraging and increasing of shipping and navigation, and the latter intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trade, and for the better securing the plantation trade, certain commodities therein enumerated, of the growth, production, or manufacture of any of the English plantations in America, Asia, or Africa, are obliged to be imported into this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, or to some other of the said plantations, under the securities and penalties in the said acts particularly mentioned, to the end this kingdom might be made a staple, not only of the commodities of those plantations, but also of the commodities of other countries, for supplying them; since the making of which laws several commodities, which are not in the said acts particularly enumerated, such as rice and melasses, are produced and made in the said plantations, and carried to divers foreign markets in Europe, without being first brought into this kingdom, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the aforesaid laws, to the great prejudice of the trade of this kingdom, and the lessening the correspondence and relation between this kingdom and the aforesaid plantations: for the prevention whereof for the future, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and five, all rice and melasses shall be under like securities and penalties restrained to be imported into this kingdom, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick aforesaid, as by the fore-recited acts, or either of them, is provided for the goods therein particularly enumerated.

An act to permit the exportation of Irish linen cloth to the plantations, and to prohibit the importation of Scotch linen into Ireland.

WHEREAS in and by an act made in the fifteenth year of the reign of his late Majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of trade, it is amongst other things enacted, That no commodity of the growth, production, or manufacture of Europe, shall be imported into any land, island,

island, plantation, colony, territory, or place, to his Majesty belonging, or which shall hereafter belong unto, or be in the possession of his Majesty, his heirs and successors, in Asia, Africa, or America, (except as is therein excepted) but what shall be bona fide, and without fraud, laden and shipped in England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, under the penalties in the said act contained: yet forasmuch as the protestant interest in her Majesty's kingdom of Ireland ought to be supported, by giving the utmost encouragement to the linen manufactures of that kingdom; her Majesty is graciously pleased, in tender regard to her good protestant subjects of her said kingdom, and for the further encouragement of the linen manufactures thereof, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and the commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and five, it shall and may be lawful to and for any native or natives of England or Ireland, to lade and ship in any port of the said kingdom of Ireland in English built shipping, whereof the master and one moiety of the mariners, during the present war, and afterwards the master and three fourths of the mariners at least to be English or Irish, any white or brown linen cloth, which shall be of the manufacture of the said kingdom of Ireland, and no other, and the same to transport in such ships, and so navigated, into any of the said lands, islands, plantations, colonies, territories, or places, and there freely to traffick with, and vend the same; any thing in the said act, or in any other act, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

After 24 June, 1705, Irish linen may be transported, and sent to the English plantations. This part of the act continued by 3 Geo. I. c. 21. s. 1. under the limitation therein mentioned.

No ship to break bulk until notice of arrival be first given to the governor, and an invoice of the lading, &c. delivered.

Penalty on commander offending.

II. Provided nevertheless, That no ship or vessel coming to any of the said lands, islands, plantations, colonies, territories, or places, from the said kingdom of Ireland, shall unlade, or break bulk, until the master or commander of such ship or vessel shall first have made known to the governor of such land, island, plantation, colony, territory, or place, or to such person or officer as shall be by him thereunto authorized and appointed, the arrival of the said ship or vessel, with her name, and the name and surname of the master or commander, and shall have delivered to such governor or officer a true and perfect inventory or invoice of the lading of such ship or vessel, together with a certificate from the chief officer of the port in Ireland, where such ship or vessel shall be laden, expressing the particulars of such lading, with the names and abodes of the exporters, and of two persons at the least, who shall have made oath before such chief officer, that the said goods and linen are bona fide of the manufacture of the said kingdom of Ireland, and until the master or commander of such ship or vessel shall have made oath before such governor or officer, that the said goods, and every parcel thereof, are the same goods that he, the said master or commander, took on board by virtue of such certificate, as is aforesaid, nor until such ship or vessel shall have been visited and searched by an officer or officers; and in case the commander of any such ship or vessel shall unlade, or break bulk, before such notice given, and such certificate produced, and such oath made by such commander, or before such search made, as aforesaid, or if upon such search any goods whatsoever of woollen manufacture, not laden in England, (necessary apparel of the commander and mariners only excepted) or any linen goods not laden in England, nor of the manufacture of Ireland, shall be found in such ship or vessel; in all or any of the said cases, such ship or vessel shall be, and is hereby adjudged forfeited, with all her guns, tackle, ammunition and furniture, together with all such goods and commodities, of what kind soever, as shall be imported or found in such ship; one third part to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, one third part to the governor of such land, island, plantation, colony, territory, or place, into which such goods shall be imported, if the said ship, vessel, or goods be there seized, informed against, or sued for, (or otherwise that third part also to her Majesty, her heirs and successors) and the other third part to him or them who shall sue for the same in her Majesty's court, in such of the said lands, islands, colonies, plantations, plantations, territories, or places, where the offence shall be committed, or in any of her Majesty's courts at Westminster, by bill, plaint, information, or other action, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

III. And be it further enacted, That all ships coming from Ireland, to any such land, island, colony, plantation, territory, or place, shall be subject to the same rules, visitations, searches, penalties, and forfeitures, to which ships coming from England to any of the said colonies, plantations, or places, are subject or liable to by any law now in force.

Ships coming from Ireland, liable to be visited in like manner as ships from England.

VIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That if any person or persons be sued, molested, or prosecuted, for or by reason of any seizure made in pursuance of this act, such person and persons may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or if the plaintiff shall discontinue his action, or be nonsuited, or if judgment be given against him, then such defendant or defendants shall have double costs.

Persons sued may plead the general issue.

IX. Provided always, That all informations, actions, and suits, to be brought for any offence against this act, shall be brought and commenced within twelve months after the discovery of such offence.

Suits to be commenced within 12 months after offence.

X. Provided also, and be it enacted, That if any ship or vessel, being laden with goods in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, for any of the plantations aforesaid, shall put into any port or place in Ireland, and shall there take in any white or brown Irish linen cloth; in that case, the like certificate and oaths shall be made, that the said linen cloth is of the manufacture of Ireland, as is before directed by this act: and if, upon the arrival of such ship or vessel in any of the said plantations, such certificate be produced, and oaths made, as aforesaid, such ship or vessel, her master or commander, and lading, shall be subject and liable to such rules, visitations, searches, penalties, and forfeitures, as they respectively were subject and liable to by virtue of the laws which were in force before the passing of this act, and no other; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Proviso concerning English ships laden for the plantations, &c.

XI. Provided, That this act shall continue only for the term of eleven years, [Continued by 3 Geo. I. c. 21.]

Act to continue 11 years.

An act for continuing an additional subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and certain duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and additional duties of excise, and for settling and establishing a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and six, and other uses therein mentioned.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of England in parliament assembled, duly considering your Majesty's great occasions for money to carry on the present war, and having regard as well to the great burthen of taxes now lying upon your Majesty's subjects, as to the present condition of the publick funds, and the present incumbrances thereupon, are therefore desirous, by such easy and effectual ways and means, as in this act are expressed and intended, to raise a sum of money, not exceeding, in the whole, two millions five hundred seventy five thousand seven hundred sixty one pounds, sixteen shillings and two pence, (part of the money necessary to be provided in this session of parliament for your Majesty's supply) and such further sum of money as will be sufficient, during the first two years of

of the term herein after mentioned, to compleat the payment of the annuities to be purchased upon this act; and have for that end and purpose cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant unto your Majesty the subsidy of tonnage and poundage upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, and the several duties upon coal, culm, and cynders, and upon beer, ale, cyder, and other liquors hereafter in this act mentioned, for such several and respective terms, and to commence at or from such respective days and times, and to be paid and payable in such manner and form, as in this act are afterwards expressed: (that is to say) whereas by an act made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, of glorious memory, (intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty a further subsidy of tonnage and poundage, towards raising the yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, for the service of his Majesty's household, and other uses therein mentioned, during his Majesty's life) it was enacted, That ever and above the subsidies, impositions, and other duties therein mentioned, there should be raised and paid to his Majesty, one other subsidy called tonnage, for and upon all wines which from and after the last day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety and nine, at any time and times, during his Majesty's life, should be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed; and one further subsidy called poundage of all manner of goods and merchandizes imported or brought into this realm, or any his Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said last day of January, one thousand six hundred ninety nine, during his Majesty's life, by way of merchandize (except such goods and merchandizes as are therein excepted) and with such abatements, regulations, directions for making repayments or allowances upon exportation, and subject to such rules and other matters and things touching the said several subsidies, as in the last-mentioned act are expressed: which said further subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, granted by the act above recited, are to be raised and paid to her Majesty, during her life, by virtue of another act of parliament made and passed in the first year of her reign, (intituled, An act for the better support of her Majesty's household, and the honour and dignity of the crown:) and whereas by an act made and passed in the second year of her Majesty's reign, (intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty an additional subsidy of tonnage and poundage for three years, and for laying a further duty upon French wines condemned as lawful prize, and for ascertaining the values of unrated goods imported from the East Indies) it was enacted, That there should be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty one other subsidy called tonnage, for and upon all wines which from and after the eighth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and three, at any time or times within or during the space of three years from thence next and immediately ensuing, should be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed; (that is to say) one third part of such or the like several and respective duties as by the two acts last recited or mentioned, or either of them, were imposed or payable for or upon any kind of wine or wines respectively: and one other subsidy called poundage of all manner of goods and merchandizes to be imported or brought into this realm, or any her Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, at any time or times after the said eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and three, during the said term of three years, by way of merchandize; (that is to say) one third part of such or the like several and respective duties as by the said two acts last before recited or mentioned, or either of them, are imposed or payable for or upon the said goods and merchandizes respectively, (except such goods and other merchandizes as by the said two acts last-mentioned, or either of them, are exempted from payment of the subsidies thereby granted) as in and by the said several acts (relating hereto respectively made) may more fully appear: now we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons in parliament assembled, the ends and purposes aforesaid, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That over and above the subsidies of tonnage and poundage above-mentioned, and over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any act or acts of parliament, or otherwise howsoever already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for or upon any wines, goods, and merchandizes whatsoever imported or to be imported, there shall be continued, and be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all wines which from and after the eighth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six, at any time or times, within or during the term of ninety and eight years from thence next and immediately ensuing, and fully to be compleat and ended, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, the same or the like subsidy of tonnage, as by the said act of the second year of her Majesty's reign was charged or imposed, for or upon any kind of wine or wines whatsoever; (that is to say) one third part of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, were granted to him during his life, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, are continued to her during her Majesty's life, for or upon any kind of wine or wines respectively, and for and upon all manner of goods and merchandizes, which from and after the said eighth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and six, at any time or times within or during the said term of ninety and eight years, shall be imported or brought into this realm, or any her Majesty's dominions to the same belonging, by way of merchandize, there shall be continued, raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, the same or the like subsidy of poundage, as by the said act of the second year of her Majesty's reign was laid or imposed, for or upon any goods or merchandizes whatsoever; (that is to say) one third part of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, were granted to him during his life, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, are continued during her Majesty's life, for or upon the same goods and merchandizes respectively, (except such goods and other merchandizes, as by the said subsidy acts made in the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, and in the first and second years of her now Majesty's reign, or any of them, are exempted from payment of the said subsidies thereby granted.)

II. And it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where by the said subsidy act of the second year of her Majesty's reign, or by any general or particular clauses therein contained, any drawbacks or abatements of the whole, or any part of the duties thereby granted, or any other allowances whatsoever, are appointed to be made or given in respect of the subsidy thereby granted, there shall be in the like cases respectively the same, or the like drawbacks and abatements of the whole or part of the duties by this act granted, and other allowances made and given in respect of the subsidy thereby imposed; and that the said several subsidies and duties by this act payable, during the continuance thereof, and all arrearsages of the same, shall be raised, levied, collected, secured and paid by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such rules and directions as in and by the said subsidy acts of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, and of the first and second years of her now Majesty's reign, or by any general, relative or particular clauses, or words therein, or in any of them contained, and now in force, are prescribed or appointed, appointed, touching or concerning the said several subsidies of tonnage and poundage, which were thereby respectively granted as aforesaid; and that so much of the said subsidy act of the second year of her Majesty's reign, and such of the branches and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred unto, as do concern only the subsidy of tonnage and poundage thereby granted, (being one third part of the subsidies granted by the said former acts, as aforesaid) and are now in force, shall be used, exercised, put in practice, and observed, in and for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the subsidies and duties hereby before granted, as fully and effectually as if the same were again particularly and at large repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

III. And it is hereby declared and enacted, That the exception contained in the act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty a further subsidy on wines and merchandizes imported, whereby currans imported in English-built shipping, navigated according to the laws then in force, are exempted from the duties thereby granted, shall be extended to all such currans as after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and six, shall be imported in ships belonging to any of the subjects of the republick of Venice, so that they also shall be exempted from payment of the subsidy granted by that act; any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And her Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons, in parliament assembled, do also humbly beseech her Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such and the like impositions, rates and duties whatsoever, as in and by an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, (intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty several duties upon coal and culm) were charged and imposed upon the several sorts of coals and culm therein mentioned, for the term of five years, which commenced from the fifteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety eight, and the duty and duties upon cynders, which in and by an act made and passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the tenth and eleventh years of his late Majesty's reign, (intituled, An act for laying further duties upon sweets, and for lessening the duties as well upon vinegar, as upon certain low wines, and whale fins, and the duties upon brandy imported, and for the more easy raising the duties upon leather, and for charging cynders, and for permitting the importation of pearl ashes, and for preventing abuses in the brewing of beer and ale, and for the importation of tobacco) were charged or imposed upon such cynders as are therein mentioned, for four years, commencing from the fifteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand six hundred ninety nine, which several duties upon coals, culm, and cynders were by an act made in the first year of her now Majesty's reign, (intituled, An act for continuing the duties upon coals, culm, and cynders) continued from the fourteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and three, until the fifteenth day of May, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight (charcoals made of wood being always excepted) shall, by force and virtue of this act, be further continued from the fourteenth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, until the thirtieth day of September, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, for the purposes in this act expressed, and shall, during all that time and term, be raised, levied, collected, and paid, for and upon all such and the like sorts of coal, culm, and cynders, as by the said former acts touching the same, or any of them, were chargeable, in such manner and form, and according to such rules, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as by the same former acts touching coals, culm, and cynders, or the duties thereof, or any of them, them, were prescribed for or concerning the duties thereby granted or continued.

V. And it is hereby enacted, That the said act (intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty several duties upon coals and culm) and so much of the said act for laying duties upon sweets, and other things, as concerns the said duty upon cynders, and all and every the powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things therein contained, now being in force, for governing, managing, raising, levying, securing, collecting, receiving, paying, and accounting for the duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, by the said former acts granted or continued, during the said several terms therein mentioned, shall be and are by force and virtue of this present act revived, and shall be in full force, and be duly observed, practised, and put in execution, in and for the governing, managing, raising, levying, securing, collecting, receiving, paying, and accounting for the duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, by this act granted, for and during the term hereby granted of and in the same, and all arrearages thereof, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the same powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters and things, were again expressed, and particularly repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

continuance of this act, there shall be continued or appointed commissioners, receivers general, comptrollers, collectors, and other proper officers for raising the several duties by this act granted, and for keeping the accounts of the same; and that the respective commissioners or chief managers thereof, shall from time to time weekly compute and ascertain the monies of each branch of the said duties hereby granted or continued, which ought to be paid into the Exchequer on every Wednesday, or on the subsequent day, not being an holiday, as aforesaid; and that all commissioners, receivers general, comptrollers, collectors, and other officers, who are or shall be concerned in the managing, raising, levying, receiving, collecting, or paying the same, or in keeping the accounts thereof, shall perform their several and respective duties therein, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the said monies, as are prescribed, and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King William the Third, (intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies) for the like offence or neglect in relation to the duties upon salt, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, thereby granted, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies which were granted by the act last mentioned.

XX. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arising of or for the said several subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and of or for the said duties of coals, culm, and cynders, and the said several rates and duties of excise by this act appointed to be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer, from time to time, as aforesaid, together with the sum of two hundred and eighty thousand pounds, (part of the contribution-monies to be reserved and applied as is herein after mentioned) or so much of the said subsidies, rates, impositions, duties, and contribution-money, as shall be sufficient for answering the full and due payment of all the annuities to be purchased upon this act, from time to time, according to the true meaning thereof, is, are, and shall be the general fund for payment of the same, and shall be charged therewith, and liable thereunto, and shall not be diverted or divertible to any other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities in this act expressed.

XXIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every the annuities whatsoever, which shall be purchased upon, or in pursuance of this present act, shall be, and are hereby charged upon, and shall be paid and payable from time to time in the first place, and with preference to all other payments whatsoever, out of the monies arising from time to time, of and for the said several subsidies of tonnage and poundage, impositions upon coals, culm, and cynders, and the said several rates and duties of excise, and all and every other duty and duties, sum and sums of money whatsoever, by this act appointed to be brought and paid into the receipt of Exchequer, as aforesaid, and every of them; and also out of the said sum not exceeding two hundred and eighty thousand pounds by this act allowed to be contributed for or towards the making good or completing the quarterly payments for the first two years, as aforesaid, and so much of the said several subsidies, duties, impositions, rates, sum and sums of money so appointed by this act, to be brought or paid into the Exchequer, and so much of the said sum not exceeding two hundred and eighty thousand pounds, allowed by this act to be contributed for this purpose, as aforesaid, as are and shall be sufficient to satisfy and discharge all the annuities to be purchased upon this act, according to the purpose and true meaning of the same, are and shall be, by virtue of this act, appropriated appropriated and applied, to and for the satisfying and discharging of the same annuities accordingly, and shall be issued, disposed, and applied to that use, and to no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; any thing in this or any other act of parliament contained, or any other matter or thing whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXIV. Provided always, That if at the end of the said first two years of the said term of ninety nine years, there shall be an overplus remaining in the receipt of the Exchequer of the said duties and contribution-monies, or any of them, by this act appointed for the payment of the said annuities, which shall be more than what shall have been sufficient to discharge all the quarterly payments of the said annuities; until, and for the quarter to end at Lady-day, one thousand seven hundred and eight; or if at the end of any subsequent year of the said term of ninety nine years, the monies brought into the Exchequer within such year of the said several subsidies, impositions, rates, duties, and monies by this act appropriated for payment of the said annuities, pursuant to this act, shall exceed all the monies then due for or upon the said annuities, and all arrearages thereof, then or at any time or times before that time incurred, so that there shall be an overplus remaining in the Exchequer, such overplus-monies shall be disposable from time to time for the publick use and service by authority of parliament, and not otherwise; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Overplus-monies, if any, disposable by parliament.

XXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all and every contributor and contributors upon this act, duly paying the consideration or purchase-money at the rate aforesaid, at or before the respective days and times in this act limited in that behalf, for any such annuity or annuities, as aforesaid, or such as he, she or they shall appoint, his, her, or their respective executors, administrators, successors, and assigns, shall have, receive, and enjoy, and be entitled, by virtue of this act, to have, receive, and enjoy the respective annuity and annuities so to be purchased out of the monies by this act appropriated or appointed for the payment thereof during the said whole term of ninety nine years, as is above-mentioned; and that all and every such purchasers, their executors, administrators, and assigns respectively, shall have good and sure estates and interests in the several annuities so by them to be purchased, according to the tenor and true meaning of this act; and that all the said annuities to be purchased upon this act, and every of them, during the term aforesaid, shall be free from all taxes, charges, and impositions whatsoever.

Contributors to have sure estates in the annuities purchased by them free from taxes.

XXXV. And whereas several bonds, pursuant to several acts of parliament in that behalf, have been entered into by several merchants and others for the customs, additional duties, impositions, and other duties of goods and merchandizes imported into the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, upon which bonds the whole monies or part of the monies specified in the conditions of the same respectively, have, according to the conditions, incurred or become payable at several days or times of payment, before the sixth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and five, and do remain unsatisfied, or such bonds are not delivered up; it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all and every case and cases where the obligors in such bonds (being principals or sureties) their executors, or administrators, or any of them, have paid or shall have paid, before the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and six, to the proper officer or officers, the principal monies so incurred or grown up before the said sixth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and six, such payment shall be of the same force and effect, as if the same had been made at or before the respective day or days in such condition or conditions mentioned for payment thereof; and in all cases where the whole principal monies, due or to be due by the conditions of such bonds as are before-mentioned, are or shall be paid by the said first day of June, one thousand in case principal money be paid by 1 June, 1706, such bonds to be delivered up.

Merchants bonds for customs, payable before the sixth of February, 1705, and remain yet unsatisfied;

An act for making the town of New Ross, in the county of Wexford in the kingdom of Ireland, a port for the exporting wool from Ireland into this kingdom.

10 & 11 W. 3.
c. 10.

WHEREAS by an act passed in this kingdom in the tenth and eleventh years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act to prevent the exportation of wool out of the kingdoms of Ireland and England into foreign parts, and for the encouragement of the woollen manufactures in the kingdom of England, it is, amongst other things, enacted, That all the wool and the manufactures thereof, in the said act particularly specified, as should, from time to time, be exported from the said kingdom of Ireland into the ports of this kingdom or dominion of Wales, should be shipped off, and entered at the ports of Dublin, Waterford, Youghall, Kingsale, Cork, and Drogheda in the said kingdom of Ireland, and at no other port or place within the said kingdom, under great penalties to every offender against the said act: and whereas the town of New Ross, in the county of Wexford in the said kingdom of Ireland, is in the same harbour with the port of the city of Waterford, and before the passing of the said act hath always had liberty to export the said commodities directly into this kingdom; but the said town not being particularly named in the said act, some doubt hath arisen whether the said commodities may be exported thence: therefore, to prevent all doubt for the future concerning the same, be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same; That at all times from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and six, it shall and may be lawful to and for all and every person and persons whomsoever, to ship off, enter, and export, from the said town of New Ross, all the said commodities in the said recited act particularly mentioned, and to import the same into any of the ports of Biddeford, Barnstable, Minhead, Bridgewater, Bristol, Milford Haven, Chester, and Liverpoole, in the same manner, as if the said town of Ross had been particularly named for exportation of the said commodities in the said former act; any law or statute to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

An act for an union of the two kingdoms of England and Scotland.

Most gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS articles of union were agreed on, the twenty second day of July, in the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, by the commissioners nominated on behalf of the kingdom of England, under your Majesty's great seal of England, bearing date at Westminster the tenth day of April then last past, in pursuance of an act of parliament made in England, in the third year of your Majesty's reign, and the commissioners nominated on the behalf of the kingdom of Scotland, under your Majesty's great seal of Scotland, bearing date the twenty seventh day of February, in the fourth year of your Majesty's reign, in pursuance of the fourth act of the third session of the present parliament of Scotland, to treat of and concerning an union of the said kingdoms: and whereas an act hath passed in the parliament of Scotland at Edinburgh, the sixteenth day of January, in the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, wherein 'tis mentioned, That the estates of parliament considering the said articles of union of the two kingdoms, had agreed to and approved of the said articles of union, with some additions and explanations, and that your Majesty, with advice and consent of the estates of parliament, for establishing the protestant religion and presbyterian church government within the kingdom of Scotland, had passed in the same session of parliament an act, intituled, An act for securing of the protestant religion and presbyterian church government, which by the tenor thereof was appointed to be inserted in any act ratifying the treaty, and expressly declared to be a fundamental and essential condition of the said treaty or union in all times coming: the tenor of which articles, as ratified and approved of, with additions and explanations by the said act of parliament of Scotland, follows:

ARTICLE I.

Union of the two kingdoms.

Ensigns ar-morial.

THAT the two kingdoms of England and Scotland shall, upon the first day of May, which shall be in the year one thousand seven hundred and seven, and for ever after, be united into one kingdom by the name of Great Britain; and that the ensigns armorial of the said united kingdom be such as her Majesty shall appoint, and the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew be conjoined in such manner as her Majesty shall think fit, and used in all flags, banners, standards, and ensigns, both at sea and land.

ARTICLE II.

Succession to the monarchy.

That the succession of the monarchy to the united kingdom of Great Britain, and of the dominions thereto belonging, after her most sacred Majesty, and in default of issue of her Majesty, be, remain, and continue to the most excellent princess Sophia, electress and dutchess dowager of Hanover, and the heirs of her body being protestants, upon whom the crown crown of England is settled by an act of parliament made in England in the twelfth year of the reign of his late Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the further limitation of the crown, and better securing the rights and liberties of the subject: and that all papists, and persons marrying papists, shall be excluded from, and for ever incapable to inherit, possess, or enjoy the imperial crown of Great Britain, and the dominions thereunto belonging, or any part thereof; and in every such case, the crown and government shall from time to time descend to, and be enjoyed by such person, being a protestant, as should have inherited and enjoyed the same, in case such papist, or person marrying a papist, was naturally dead, according to the provision for the descent of the crown of England, made by another act of parliament in England in the first year of the reign of their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act declaring the rights and liberties of the subject, and settling the succession of the crown.

Papists excluded.

ARTICLE III.

That the united kingdom of Great Britain be represented by one and the same parliament, to be stiled The Parliament of Great Britain.

One parliament.

ARTICLE IV.

That all the subjects of the united kingdom of Great Britain shall, from and after the union, have full freedom and intercourse of trade and navigation to and from any port or place within the said united kingdom, and the dominions and plantations thereunto belonging; and that there be a communication of all other rights, privileges, and advantages, which do or may belong to the subjects of either kingdom; except where it is otherwise expressly agreed in these articles.

Freedom of trade.

ARTICLE V.

That all ships or vessels belonging to her Majesty's subjects of Scotland, at the time of ratifying the treaty of union of the two kingdoms in the parliament of Scotland, though foreign built, be deemed, and pass as ships of the built of Great Britain; the owner, or where there are more owners, one or more of the owners, within twelve months after the first of May next, making oath, That at the time of ratifying the treaty of union in the parliament of Scotland, the same did, in whole or in part, belong to him or them, or to some other subject or subjects in Scotland, to be particularly named, with the place of their respective abodes; and that the same doth then, at the time of the said deposition, wholly belong to him or them; and that no foreigner, directly or indirectly, hath any share, part, or interest therein; which oath shall be made before the chief officer or officers of the customs, in the port next to the abode of the said owner or owners; and the said officer or officers shall be impowered to administer the said oath; and the oath being so administered shall be attested by the officer or officers who administered the same; and being registred by the said officer or officers, shall be delivered to the master of the ship for security of her navigation; and a duplicate thereof shall be transmitted by the said officer or officers to the chief officer or officers of the customs in the port of Edinburgh, to be there entred in a register, and from thence to be sent to the port of London, to be there entred in the general register of all trading ships belonging to Great Britain.

Scotch ships to be British ships.

ARTICLE VI.

That all parts of the united kingdom for ever, from and after the union, shall have the same allowances, encouragements, and drawbacks, and be under the same prohibitions, restrictions, and regulations of trade, and liable to the same customs and duties on import and export; and that the allowances, encouragements, and drawbacks, prohibitions, restrictions, and regulations of trade, and the customs and duties on import and export, settled in England when the union commences, shall, from and after the union, take place throughout the whole united kingdom; excepting and reserving the duties upon export and import of such particular commodities, from which any persons, the subjects of either kingdom, are specially liberated and exempted by their private rights, which after the union are to remain safe and entire to them in all respects, as before the same. And that from and after the union, no Scots cattle carried into England, shall be liable to any other duties, either on the public or private accounts, than those duties to which the cattle of England are or shall be liable within the said kingdom. And seeing by the laws of England, there are rewards granted upon the exportation of certain kinds of grain, wherein oats grinded or ungrinded are not expressed; that from and after the union, when oats shall be sold at fifteen shillings sterling per quarter, or under, there shall be paid two shillings and six pence sterling for every quarter of the oatmeal exported in the terms of the law, whereby and so long as rewards are granted for exportation of other grains, and that the bear of Scotland have the same rewards as barley: and in respect the importation of victuals into Scotland, from any place beyond sea, would prove a discouragement to tillage, therefore that the prohibition as now in force by the law of Scotland, against importation of victuals from Ireland, or any other place beyond sea into Scotland, do, after the union, remain in the same force as now it is, until more proper and effectual ways be provided by the parliament of Great Britain, for discouraging the importation of the said victuals from beyond sea.

Trade.

ARTICLE VII.

Excises.
See 5 Geo. 1.
c. 20.

That all parts of the united kingdom be for ever, from and after the union, liable to the same excises upon all exciseable liquors, excepting only that the thirty four gallons English barrel of beer or ale, amounting to twelve gallons Scots present measure, sold in Scotland by the brewer at nine shillings and six pence sterling, excluding all duties, and retailed, including duties and the retailers profit, at two pence the Scots pint, or eighth part of the Scots gallon, be not after the union liable, on account of the present excise upon exciseable liquors in England, to any higher imposition than two shillings sterling upon the aforesaid thirty four gallons English barrel, being twelve gallons the present Scots measure: and that the excise settled in England on all other liquors, when the union commences, take place throughout the whole united kingdom.

ARTICLE VIII.

Foreign salt.

Scotch salt.

That from and after the union, all foreign salt which shall be imported into Scotland, shall be charged at the importation there, with the same duties as the like salt is now charged with being imported into England, and to be levied and secured in the same manner: but in regard the duties of great quantities of foreign salt imported may be very heavy upon the merchants importers, that therefore all foreign salt imported into Scotland, shall be cellar'd and locked up under the custody of the merchant importers, and the officers employed for levying the duties upon salt, and that the merchant may have what quantity thereof his occasion may require, not under a way or forty bushels at a time, giving security for the duty of what quantity he receives, payable in six months. But Scotland shall, for the space of seven years from the said union, be exempted from paying in Scotland, for salt made there, the duty or excise now payable for salt made in England;

 but from the expiration of the said seven years, shall be subject and liable to the same duties for salt made in Scotland as shall be then payable for salt made in England, to be levied and secured in the same manner, and with proportionable drawbacks and allowances as in England, with this exception, That Scotland shall, after the said seven years, remain exempted from the duty of two shillings four pence a bushel on home salt, imposed by an act made in England in the ninth and tenth of King William the Third of England; and if the parliament of Great Britain shall, at or before the expiring of the said seven years, substitute any other fund in place of the said two shillings four pence of excise on the bushel of home salt, Scotland shall, after the said seven years, bear a proportion of the said fund, and have an equivalent in the terms of this treaty; and that during the said seven years, there shall be paid in England, for all salt made in Scotland, and imported from thence into England, the same duties upon the importation, as shall be payable for salt made in England, to be levied and secured in the same manner as the duties on foreign salt are to be levied and secured in England; and that after the said seven years, as long as the said duty of two shillings four pence a bushel upon salt is continued in England, the said two shillings and four pence a bushel shall be payable for all salt made in Scotland, and imported into England, to be levied and secured in the same manner; and that during the continuance of the duty of two shillings four pence a bushel upon salt made in England, no salt whatsoever be brought from Scotland to England by land in any manner, under the penalty of forfeiting the salt, and the cattle and carriages made use of in bringing the same, and paying twenty shillings for every bushel of such salt, and proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, for which the carrier as well as the owner shall be liable, jointly and severally, and the persons bringing or carrying the same to be imprisoned by any one justice of the peace, by the space of six months without bail, and until the penalty be paid. And for establishing an equality in trade, that all flesh exported from Scotland to England, and put on board in Scotland to be exported to parts beyond the seas, and provisions for ships in Scot- land, and for foreign voyages, may be salted with Scots salt, paying the same duty for what salt is so employed as the like quantity of such salt pays in England, and under the same penalties, forfeitures, and provisions for preventing of frauds as are mentioned in the laws of England; and that from and after the union, the laws and acts of parliament in Scot- land, for pining, curing, and packing of herrings, white fish and salmon for exportation with foreign salt only, without any mixture of British or Irish salt, and for preventing of frauds in curing and packing of fish, be continued in force in Scotland, subject to such alterations as shall be made by the parliament of Great Britain; and that all fish exported from Scot- land to parts beyond the seas, which shall be cured with foreign salt only, and without mixture of British or Irish salt, shall have the same eases, premiums, and drawbacks, as are or shall be allowed to such persons as export the like fish from England; and that for encouragement of the herring fishing, there shall be allowed and paid to the subjects, inhabitants of Great Britain, during the present allowances for other fish, ten shillings five pence sterling for every barrel of white herrings which shall be exported from Scotland; and that there shall be allowed five shilling sterling for every barrel of beef or pork salted with foreign salt, without mixture of British or Irish salt, and exported for sale from Scotland to parts beyond sea, alterable by the parliament of Great Britain; and if any matters of fraud relating to the said duties on salt shall hereafter appear, which are not sufficiently provided against by this article, the same shall be subject to such further provisions as shall be thought fit by the parliament of Great Britain.

Land tax.

Quota of Scotland.

‘ That whensoever the sum of one million nine hundred ninety seven thousand seven hundred and sixty three pounds, eight shillings, and four pence halfpenny, shall be enacted by the parliament of Great Britain to be raised in that part of the united kingdom now called England, on land and other things usually charged in acts of parliament there, for granting an aid to the crown by a land tax; that part of the united kingdom now called Scotland, shall be charged by the same act, with a further sum of forty eight thousand pounds, free of all charges, as the quota of Scotland, to such tax, and so proportionably for any greater or lesser sum raised in England by any tax on land, and other things usually charged together with the land; and that such quota for Scotland, in the cases aforesaid, be raised and collected in the same manner as the cess now is in Scotland; but subject to such regulations in the manner of collecting, as shall be made by the parliament of Great Britain.’

ARTICLE X.

Stamp vellum.

‘ That during the continuance of the respective duties on stamp paper, vellum, and parchment, by the several acts now in force in England, Scotland shall not be charged with the same respective duties.’

ARTICLE XI.

Window tax.

‘ That during the continuance of the duties payable in England on windows and lights, which determine on the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, Scotland shall not be charged with the same duties.’

ARTICLE XII.

Coals, culm, and cynders.

‘ That during the continuance of the duties payable in England on coals, culm, and cynders, which determine the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, Scotland shall not be charged therewith for coals, culm, and cynders consumed there; but shall be charged with the same duties as in England, for all coals, culm, and cynders not consumed in Scotland.’

ARTICLE XIII.

Malt.

‘ That during the continuance of the duty payable in England upon malt, which determines the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and seven, Scotland shall not be charged with that duty.’

ARTICLE XIV.

Scotland not chargeable with any other duties before the union, except these consented to. See 3 Geo. 1. c. 20.

Proviso.

‘ That the kingdom of Scotland be not charged with any other duties laid on by the parliament of England before the union, except these consented to in this treaty; in regard it is agreed, That all necessary provision shall be made by the parliament of Scotland for the publick charge and service of that kingdom, for the year one thousand seven hundred and seven. Provided nevertheless, That if the parliament of England shall think fit to lay any further impositions by way of customs, or such excises, with which by virtue of this treaty, Scotland is to be charged equally with England, in such case Scotland shall be liable to the same customs and excises, and have an equivalent to be settled by the parliament of Great Britain; with this further provision, That any malt to be made and consumed in that part of the united kingdom now called Scotland, shall not be charged with any impositions imposition on malt, during this present war. And seeing it cannot be supposed that the parliament of Great Britain will ever lay any sort of burthens upon the united kingdom, but what they shall find of necessity at that time for the preservation and good of the whole, and with due regard to the circumstances and abilities of every part of the united kingdom, therefore it is agreed, That there be no further exemption insisted upon for any part of the united kingdom, but that the consideration of any exemptions beyond what are already agreed on in this treaty, shall be left to the determination of the parliament of Great Britain.

ARTICLE XV.

* That whereas by the terms of this treaty, the subjects of Scotland, for Equivalent. preserving an equality of trade throughout the united kingdom, will be liable to several customs and excises now payable in England, which will be applicable towards payment of the debts of England, contracted before the union; it is agreed, That Scotland shall have an equivalent for what 5 Geo. I. c. 20. the subjects thereof shall be so charged towards payment of the said debts of England, in all particulars whatsoever, in manner following; viz. That before the union of the said kingdoms, the sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand and eighty five pounds, ten shillings, be granted to her Majesty by the parliament of England, for the uses after-mentioned, being the equivalent to be answered to Scotland for such parts of the said customs and excises upon all exciseable liquors with which that kingdom is to be charged upon the union, as will be applicable to the payment of the said debts of England, according to the proportion which the present customs in Scotland, being thirty thousand pounds per annum, do bear to the customs in England, computed at one million three hundred forty one thousand five hundred and fifty nine pounds per annum; and which the present excises on exciseable liquors in Scotland, being thirty three thousand and five hundred pounds per annum, do bear to the excises on exciseable liquors in England, computed at nine hundred forty seven thousand six hundred and two pounds per annum: which sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand eighty five pounds ten shillings, shall be due and payable from the time of the union. And in regard that after the union Scotland becoming liable to the same customs and duties payable on import and export, and to the same excises on all exciseable liquors as in England, as well upon that account, as upon the account of the increase of trade and people, (which will be the happy consequence of the union) the said revenues will much improve beyond the before-mentioned annual values thereof, of which no present estimate can be made; yet nevertheless, for the reasons aforesaid, there ought to be a proportionable equivalent answered to Scotland; it is agreed, That after the union there shall be an account kept of the said duties arising in Scotland, to the end it may appear what ought to be answered to Scotland, as an equivalent for such proportion of the said increase as shall be applicable to the payment of the debts of England. And for the further and more effectual answering the several ends hereafter mentioned, it is agreed, That from and after the union, the whole increase of the revenues of customs, and duties on import and export, and excises upon exciseable liquors in Scotland, over and above the annual produce of the said respective duties, as above stated, shall go and be applied, for the term of seven years, to the uses hereafter mentioned; and that upon the said account there shall be answered to Scotland annually from the end of seven years after the union, an equivalent in proportion to such part of the said increase, as shall be applicable to the debts of England; and generally, that an equivalent shall be answered to Scotland for such parts of the English debts, as Scotland may hereafter become liable to pay by reason of the union, other than such for which appropriations have been made

' made by parliament in England, of the customs, or other duties on export
 ' and import, excises on all exciseable liquors, in respect of which debts, ' equivalents are herein before provided. And as for the uses to which the ' said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand eighty five pounds ten ' shillings, to be granted, as aforesaid, and all other monies which are to ' be answered or allowed to Scotland, as aforesaid, are to be applied, it is ' agreed, That in the first place, out of the aforesaid sum, what conside' ration shall be found necessary to be had for any losses, which private ' persons may sustain by reducing the coin of Scotland to the standard and ' value of the coin of England, may be made good; in the next place, that
 ' the capital stock or fund of the African and Indian company of Scotland
 ' advanced, together with interest for the said capital stock, after the rate
 ' of five per centum per annum, from the respective times of the payment
 ' thereof, shall be paid: upon payment of which capital stock and interest,
 ' it is agreed, the said company be dissolved and cease, and also, that from ' the time of passing the act of parliament in England, for raising the said
 ' sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand eighty five pounds ten shil' lings, the said company shall neither trade, nor grant licence to trade;
 ' providing, that if the said stock and interest shall not be paid in twelve ' months after the commencement of the union, that then the said company
 ' may from thenceforward trade, or give licence to trade, until the said
 ' whole capital stock and interest shall be paid. And as to the overplus of ' the said sum of three hundred ninety eight thousand eighty five pounds ten ' shillings, after payment of what consideration shall be had for losses in ' repairing the coin, and paying the said capital stock and interest, and ' also the whole increase of the said revenues of customs, duties, and ' excises, above the present value, which shall arise in Scotland, during the ' said term of seven years, together with the equivalent which shall become ' due upon the improvement thereof in Scotland after the said term; and ' also, as to all other sums, which, according to the agreements aforesaid,
 ' may become payable to Scotland by way of equivalent, for what that king' dom shall hereafter become liable towards payment of the debts of Eng' land; it is agreed, That the same be applied in the manner following;
 ' viz. That all the publick debts of the kingdom of Scotland, as shall be ' adjusted by this present parliament, shall be paid: and that two thousand ' pounds per annum, for the space of seven years, shall be applied towards ' encouraging and promoting the manufacture of coarse wool within those ' shires which produce the wool; and that the first two thousand pounds
 ' sterling be paid at Martinmas next, and so yearly at Martinmas, during ' the space aforesaid; and afterwards the same shall be wholly applied to' wards the encouraging and promoting the fisheries, and such other manu' factures and improvements in Scotland, as may most conduce to the general
 ' good of the united kingdom. And it is agreed, That her Majesty be im' powered to appoint commissioners, who shall be accountable to the parlia' ment of Great Britain, for disposing the said sum of three hundred ninety
 ' eight thousand and eighty five pounds ten shillings, and all other monies
 ' which shall arise to Scotland, upon the agreements aforesaid, to the pur' poses before-mentioned: which commissioners shall be impowered to call ' for, receive, and dispose of the said monies, in manner aforesaid, and to ' inspect the books of the several collectors of the said revenues, and of all ' other duties, from whence an equivalent may arise: and that the collec' tors and managers of the said revenues and duties be obliged to give to ' the said commissioners subscribed authentick abbreviates of the produce of ' such revenues and duties arising in their respective districts: and that the ' said commissioners shall have their office within the limits of Scotland, and ' shall in such office keep books containing accounts of the amount of the ' equivalents, and how the same shall have been disposed of from time to ' time, which may be inspected by any of the subjects, who shall desire the ' same.'

ARTICLE XVI.

• That from and after the union, the coin shall be of the same standard Coin: and value throughout the united kingdom, as now in England, and a mint shall be continued in Scotland, under the same rules as the mint in England, and the present officers of the mint continued, subject to such regulations and alterations as her Majesty, her heirs or successors, or the parliament of Great Britain shall think fit.

ARTICLE XVII.

• That from and after the union, the same weights and measures shall be used throughout the united kingdom, as are now established in England, and standards of weights and measures shall be kept by those burghs in Scotland, to whom the keeping the standards of weights and measures, now in use there, does of special right belong: all which standards shall be sent down to such respective burghs, from the standards kept in the Exchequer at Westminster, subject nevertheless to such regulations as the parliament of Great Britain shall think fit.

ARTICLE XVIII.

• That the laws concerning regulation of trade, customs, and such excises to which Scotland is, by virtue of this treaty, to be liable, be the same in Scotland, from and after the union, as in England; and that all other laws in use within the kingdom of Scotland, do after the union, and notwithstanding thereof, remain in the same force as before, (except such as are contrary to, or inconsistent with this treaty) but alterable by the parliament of Great Britain; with this difference betwixt the laws concerning public right, policy, and civil government, and those which concern private right; that the laws which concern public right, policy, and civil government, may be made the same throughout the whole united kingdom; but that no alteration be made in laws which concern private right, except for evident utility of the subjects within Scotland.

ARTICLE XIX.

• That the court of session, or college of justice, do after the union, and notwithstanding thereof, remain in all time coming within Scotland, as it is now constituted by the laws of that kingdom, and with the same authority and privileges as before the union, subject nevertheless to such regulations for the better administration of justice, as shall be made by the parliament of Great Britain; and that hereafter none shall be named by her Majesty, or her royal successors, to be ordinary lords of session, but such who have served in the college of justice as advocates, or principal clerks of session for the space of five years; or as writers to the signet for the space of ten years; with this provision, That no writer to the signet be capable to be admitted a lord of the session, unless he undergo a private and public trial on the civil law, before the faculty of advocates, and be found by them qualified for the said office, two years before he be named to be a lord of the session; yet so as the qualifications made, or to be made, for capacitating persons to be named ordinary lords of session, may be altered by the parliament of Great Britain. And that the court of justiciary do also after the union, and notwithstanding thereof, remain in all time coming within Scotland, as it is now constituted by the laws of that kingdom, and with the same authority and privileges as before the union, subject nevertheless to such regulations as shall be made by the parliament

ARTICLE XX.

That all heretable offices, superiorities, heretable jurisdictions, offices for life, and jurisdictions for life, be reserved to the owners thereof, as rights of property, in the same manner as they are now enjoyed by the laws of Scotland, notwithstanding this treaty.

ARTICLE XXI.

That the rights and privileges of the royal burghs in Scotland, as they now are, do remain entire after the union, and notwithstanding thereof.

ARTICLE XXII.

That by virtue of this treaty, of the peers of Scotland, at the time of the union, sixteen shall be the number to sit and vote in the house of lords, and forty five the number of the representatives of Scotland in the house of commons of the parliament of Great Britain; and that when the

Majesty, her heirs or successors, shall declare her or their pleasure for holding the first or any subsequent parliament of Great Britain, until the parliament of Great Britain shall make further provisions therein, a writ do issue under the great seal of the united kingdom, directed to the privy council of Scotland, commanding them to cause sixteen peers, who are to sit in the house of lords, to be summoned to parliament, and forty five members to be elected to sit in the house of commons of the parliament of Great Britain, according to the agreement of this treaty, in such manner as by an act of this present session of the parliament of Scotland is or shall be settled; which act is hereby declared to be as valid as if it were a part of, and ingrossed in this treaty. And that the names of the persons so summoned and elected shall be returned by the privy council of Scotland into the court from whence the said writ did issue. And that if her Majesty, on or before the first day of May next, on which day the union is to take place, shall declare under the great seal of England, That it is expedient that the lords of parliament of England, and commons of the present parliament of England, should be the members of the respective houses of the first parliament of Great Britain, for and on the part of England, then the said lords of parliament of England, and commons of the present parliament of England, shall be the members of the respective houses of the first parliament of Great Britain, for and on the part of England: and her Majesty may, by her royal proclamation, under the great seal of Great Britain, appoint the said first parliament of Great Britain to meet at such time and place as her Majesty shall think fit; which time shall not be less than fifty days after the date of such proclamation; and the time and place of the meeting of such parliament being so appointed, a writ shall be immediately issued under the great seal of Great Britain, directed to the privy council of Scotland, for the summoning the sixteen peers, and for electing forty five members, by whom Scotland is to be represented in the parliament of Great Britain. And the lords of parliament of England, and the sixteen peers of Scotland, such sixteen peers being summoned and returned in the manner agreed in this treaty, and the members of the house of commons of the said parliament of England, and the forty five members for Scotland, such forty five members being elected and returned in the manner agreed in this treaty, shall assemble and meet respectively, in the respective houses of the parliament of Great Britain, at such time and place as shall be so appointed by her Majesty, and shall be the two houses of the first parliament of Great Britain; and that parliament may continue for such time only as the present parliament of England might have continued, if the union of the two kingdoms had not been made, unless sooner dissolved by her Majesty. And that every one of the lords of parliament of Great Britain, and every member of the house of commons of the parliament of Great Britain, in the first and all succeeding parliaments of Great Britain, until the parliament of Great Britain shall otherwise direct, shall take the respective oaths appointed to be taken instead of the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, by an act of parliament made in England in the first year of the reign of the late King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for the abrogating of the oaths of supremacy and allegiance, and appointing other oaths; and make, subscribe, and audibly repeat the declaration mentioned in an act of parliament made in England in the thirtieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the more effectual preserving the King's person and government, by disabling papists from sitting in either house of parliament; and shall take and subscribe the oath mentioned in an act of parliament made in England, in the first year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act to declare the alterations in the oath appointed to be taken by the act, intituled, "An act for the further security of his Majesty's person, and the succession of the crown in the protestant line, and for extinguishing the hopes of the pretended prince of Wales,

“That from and after the union, there be one great seal for the united kingdom of Great Britain, which shall be different from the great seal now used in either kingdom: and that the quartering the arms, and the rank and precedence of the lyon king of arms of the kingdom of Scotland, as may best suit the union, be left to her Majesty: and that in the mean time, the great seal of England be used as the great seal of the united kingdom, and that the great seal of the united kingdom be used for sealing writs to elect and summon the parliament of Great Britain, and for sealing all treaties with foreign princes and states, and all publick acts, instruments and orders of state, which concern the whole united kingdom, and in all other matters relating to England, as the great seal of England is now used: and that a seal in Scotland after the union be always kept and made use of in all things relating to private rights or grants, which have usually passed the great seal of Scotland, and which only concern offices, grants, commissions, and private rights within that kingdom; and that until such seal shall be appointed by her Majesty, the present great seal of Scotland shall be used for such purposes: and that the privy seal, signet, caffer, signet of the justiciary court, quarter seal, and seals of courts now used in Scotland be continued;

continued; but that the said seals be altered and adapted to the state of the union, as her Majesty shall think fit; and the said seals, and all of them, and the keepers of them, shall be subject to such regulations as the parliament of Great Britain shall hereafter make. And that the crown, scepter, and sword of state, the records of parliament, and all other records, rolls and registers whatsoever, both publick and private, general and particular, and warrants thereof, continue to be kept as they are within that part of the united kingdom now called Scotland; and that they shall so remain in all time coming, notwithstanding the union.

Regalia, records of parliament, &c.

ARTICLE XXV.

That all laws and statutes in either kingdom, so far as they are contrary to, or inconsistent with the terms of these articles, or any of them, shall, from and after the union, cease and become void, and shall be so declared to be, by the respective parliaments of the said kingdoms.

An act to repeal all the laws prohibiting the importation of foreign lace made of thread.

WHEREAS it is by experience found, That an act passed in the parliament holden at Westminster, in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, intituled, An act prohibiting the importation of foreign bone lace, cut work, embroidery, fringe, and strings, buttons, and needle work, as also divers other acts heretofore made, prohibiting or restraining the importation of foreign lace, or for rendering the laws more effectual for preventing the importation of foreign lace, have obstructed the exportation and vending or selling of the woollen manufactures of England, in the Spanish Low Countries, and other places abroad: now for the remedy thereof, be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the aforesaid act of the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of King Charles the Second, and also all and every other act and acts of parliament whatsoever which prohibit or restrain the importation, vending, or selling of foreign lace, be henceforth repealed so far forth as the said acts relate to foreign lace made of thread in the said Spanish Low Countries, or in any other place not within the dominions of the French King; and that the afore-mentioned acts, and every clause, matter, and thing in them contained, so far as they relate to such foreign lace made of thread (except as is before excepted) be and are hereby repealed and made void.

13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 13.

All acts which prohibit the importation of foreign lace, repealed.

II. Provided nevertheless, That nothing in this act contained shall any ways extend, or be construed to extend, to permit or allow of the importation of lace made in any the dominions of the French King, or in any of the lands, towns, or countries in the possession of the duke of Anjou, so long as they shall remain or continue in the possession of the said French King or duke respectively.

Not to extend to lace made in the French King's, or duke of Anjou's dominions.

II. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of the reign of the said King Charles the Second, intituled, An act to prevent frauds and concealments of his Majesty's customs and subsidies; as also an act made in the fourteenth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds and abuses in his Majesty's customs; and also an act made in the two and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the improvement of tillage, and the breed of cattle; and also one other act made in the five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for taking off aliens duties upon commodities of the growth, product, and manufacture of the nation; and also one other act made in the said five and twentieth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland traders, and for the better securing the plantation trade; and also one other act made in the first year of the reign of King James the Second, intituled, An additional act for the improvement of tillage; and one act made in the eighth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the lessening the duty upon tin and pewter exported, and granting an equivalent for the same by a duty upon drugs; and another act of the ninth year of his reign, For increasing his Majesty's duties upon lustrings and alomodes; and one act made in the eleventh year of his reign, intituled, An act for taking away the duties upon the woollen manufactures, corn, grain, bread, biscuit and meal exported; and all clauses and directions whatsoever contained therein, or in any other act or acts of parliament now in force concerning the said subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money upon merchandize imported, which were granted in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid, shall be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twelve.

III. Provided nevertheless, and be it declared and enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be construed or taken to determine any articles or clauses in any of the last-mentioned acts, hereby enacted to be in force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, which were appointed and intended to be perpetual, or which were continued by any act of parliament for any time which will not expire by or before the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve: but that the same, and every of them, shall continue and remain in force as if this present act had not been made: but such of the said acts, and such clauses in any of them, as would otherwise determine before the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall hereby be revived, and stand, continue, and be in force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and no longer.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several impositions and duties upon wines and vinegar, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of his said late Majesty King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar imported between the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty and five, and the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety and three; which said act, by several subsequent acts of parliament, was continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six; and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making deficiencies, and preserving the public credit, are granted to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall, by virtue of this act, be further continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and no longer; and that the said act so made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, for or concerning the said impositions on wines and vinegar, shall continue and be in full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties upon wine and vinegar, hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, matters, and things in the said act of the first year of the reign of the said King James the Second, contained, had been again repeated in this act, and particularly enacted.

1 Jac. 2. c. 3.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the rates, duties, and impositions upon all sorts of tobacco, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all tobacco and sugar imported between the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty and five, and the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety and three; which said act, as for and concerning the said duties and impositions upon tobacco only, by several subsequent acts of parliament, was continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six; and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making good deficiencies, and preserving the publick credit, are granted to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall, by virtue of this act, be further continued and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and no longer.

Duties on tobacco continued to 1 Aug. 1712.
1 Jac. 2. c. 4.

1 Ann. stat. 2. c. 13.

VI. Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said duty upon tobacco, which shall be imported during the term hereby granted, and all arrears thereof, shall be secured, collected, raised, levied, answered, and paid to her Majesty, in such method, and with such discount and allowances, and according to such rules and directions as are mentioned, referred to, or prescribed as to the duties or impositions upon tobacco, in and by the act made in the parliament holden in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of King William the Third, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine, vinegar, and upon tobacco, and East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and not otherwise.

To be levied as by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 10.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes, granted by an act made in the second year of the reign of King William the Third and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandizes, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety; and which thereby, and by several subsequent acts of parliament, were continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six; and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making good deficiencies, and preserving the publick credit, are granted to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten; shall be further continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and no longer; and that the said act made in the second year of their said late Majesties reign, concerning East India goods and other things therein charged, and all powers, powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue, and be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said respective duties hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the said last-mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, had been again repeated, and particularly enacted; except only as to such part of the said acts concerning the said impositions on wines, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, touching which other provisions or alterations are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being; which other provisions or alterations are to be observed, and to continue during the continuance of this present act; and the said act, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine and vinegar, and upon tobacco, and East India goods and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France; and every article, clause, matter, and thing, therein contained, for the raising, levying, securing, answering, and paying, the impositions and duties on the merchandizes and commodities thereby charged, and which are by this act continued, shall be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the additional and other rates, duties, impositions and charges, upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes granted by an act of parliament made in the fourth year of their said late Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for the prosecuting of the present war against France, which by several subsequent acts of parliament were continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and six, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making good deficiencies, and preserving the publick credit, are granted to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall, by virtue of this act, be further continued, and be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and no longer; and that the said act last-mentioned, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, (except as herein after is excepted and provided) as for and concerning the said rates, duties, and impositions, shall continue and be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve; and shall be applied, practised, and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as if the said last-mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, had been again repeated, and particularly enacted in this present act.

IX. Provided also, That in all cases where any other provision or alteration is made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, in or about any other matter or thing contained in the said act of parliament for the impositions last-mentioned, such other provisions or alterations shall be observed, during the continuance of the term hereby granted; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

X. And it is hereby further enacted, That the several impositions and duties for and upon all whale-fins imported, which by an act of parliament in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass wares, and the whole duties laid on stone and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes, and for granting in lieu thereof new duties on whale fins and Scotch linens, were granted to his said late majesty King William; and by an act of the first year of her Majesty's Majesty's reign, were continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall be, and are hereby continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and no longer; and shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties as are mentioned in the said act for granting the said impositions on whale-fins and Scotch linens; which act, with all the powers, provisos, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred to, shall continue and be in full force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and shall be applied, practised, and put in execution, for raising and levying the said duties on whale-fins, hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, as fully and effectually as if all the clauses, matters, and things, therein contained, concerning the said duties on whale-fins, were repeated, and again enacted in the body of this present act.

XI. And whereas the said subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and the said other duties granted therewith, in the twelfth year of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid; and the said impositions on wines, vinegar, and tobacco, which were first granted to King James the Second, in the first year of his reign; and the said impositions on East India goods, and other goods charged therewith, which were first granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, in the second year of their reign; and the said additional impositions which were first granted to them in the fourth year of their reign; and the said duties on whale-fins imported, which were granted to his said late majesty King William, in the ninth year of his reign, were by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, intitled, An act for making good deficiencies, and preserving the publick credit, continued as aforesaid, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, in the manner therein mentioned; and the said subsidies, impositions, and duties arising by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, are thereby made subject and liable to the satisfaction of the principal and interest monies therein mentioned, great part of which principal monies do still remain unsatisfied, and are (together with all the interest due, and to grow due thereupon) to be paid and discharged in the first place out of the subsidies, impositions, and duties granted or continued by the act last mentioned:

Now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and immediately after the time that all the principal and interest monies, which by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, for making good deficiencies, and preserving the publick credit, are charged upon the several subsidies, duties, and impositions last mentioned, shall be fully paid off and satisfied, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, then the aforesaid subsidies, duties, and impositions last mentioned, to arise by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, for the remainder of the several terms thereby granted, and therein then to come and unexpired (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall from time to time be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer distinctly, for the purposes in this present act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

XVII. And to the end the contents of the wine gallon, whereby the duties hereby granted are to be levied, may be ascertained and known to all her Majesty's subjects, and that all disputes and controversies touching the wine measures, according to which any customs, subsidies, or other duties, are, from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, to be paid or payable to her Majesty, her heirs or successors, may be settled, be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That any round vessel (commonly called a cylinder) having an even bottom, and being seven inches diameter throughout, and six inches deep from the top of the inside to the bottom, or any vessel containing two hundred thirty one cubical inches, and no more, shall be deemed and taken to be a lawful wine

SECT. IV. AND whereas salt carried coastwise is or may be liable to waste, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any merchant or person who, from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, shall ship any English salt, or rock salt, to be carried coastwise, (viz.) from one port of England or Wales, or the port of Berwick upon Tweed, to any port of England or Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, the duties having been paid, or secured to be paid, according to former laws, shall have an allowance made to him, after the rate of three bushels for every forty bushels of English white salt, and after the rate of one bushel and an half for every forty bushels of English rock salt so shipped to be carried coastwise, and proportionably for a greater or less quantity, in consideration of the ordinary waste in the carriage thereof, which allowance shall be made but once for the same salt, although such salt be carried from several ports coastwise, as aforesaid, and the proper officer of the port, where such salt or rock salt shall be first shipped to be carried coastwise, shall not only express the said allowance on the coast cocquet or transire for the same, but also give gratis to the said merchant, or other person there shipping the same, a certificate under hand and seal, of the number of bushels of salt so shipped, and how much the allowance hereby directed to be made at the rates aforesaid doth amount to, which certificate being produced to the officer who first received the duties of the said salt, or took security for the same, the officer last-mentioned shall repay so much money as he received for duties of the said salt, or rock salt, as is to be allowed for waste, as aforesaid ; and if the duties thereof shall not then have been paid in money, then the said officer shall discount the said allowance for waste on the said security.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all white herrings, which shall, from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, be exported from any port or place in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to parts beyond the seas, by any person or persons whatsoever, there shall be the like allowances as are to be made upon the exportation of white herrings from Scotland, to be paid by the officer appointed to collect the duties upon salt in the same port from whence any such herrings shall be exported, within thirty days after a demand thereof, on a debenture to be prepared by the collector of the customs where such herrings shall be entered out for exportation, and verified by the person executing the office of searcher in such port, as to the quantity of herrings actually shipped, and that the same were well cured, and merchantable, and full packed, and that the oath of the exporter or agent be first taken before the principal officers of the said port, before the debenture be allowed, who are hereby required and impowered to give the said oath, That the herrings in such debenture mentioned were cured with salt, for which the duties had been paid, and not drawn back, and that the same is really exported to parts beyond the seas, and not relanded or intended to be relanded in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed; for which debenture no fee or reward shall be taken; and in case the officer hereby directed to pay such debenture, shall not have sufficient money in his hands to pay the same, then upon certificate thereof by him made (which certificate he is hereby required to give the party gratis) the principal commissioners for managing her Majesty's revenue of excise upon salt for the time being, shall be chargeable with the said payment, to be made in course out of the first money in their hands arising out of the duties upon salt; and that it shall and may be lawful for the officers of the said duties on salt, in the several and respective ports of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, and town of Berwick upon Tweed, upon the exportation of any herrings, as aforesaid, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to mark any cask, barrel, or other vessel, wherein any such herrings shall be exported, to the intent it may be known that such herrings have been exported, and allowances obtained on exportation thereof, in case the same, or any part thereof, shall be relanded and reimported.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any such herrings shall, after the same shall be exported, be relanded or reimported, all the said herrings so relanded or reimported shall be forfeited and lost, and twenty shillings per barrel for every barrel thereof, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof.

Exported and relanded, forfeited, and 20s. per barrel.

VIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for every barrel of salted beef or pork, which shall be exported for sale from any port of this kingdom, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to parts beyond the seas, after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, by any person or persons whatsoever, there shall be for each barrel the like allowances as are to be allowed upon exportation of such beef and pork exported from Scotland, which allowance shall be paid by the officer appointed to collect the duties upon salt, in the same port from whence any such beef or pork shall be exported, within thirty days after demand thereof, on a debenture to be prepared by the collector of the customs where such beef or pork shall be entred out for exportation, and verified by the person executing the office of searcher in such port, as to the quantity of beef and pork actually shipped for sale, and that the same is good and merchantable, and that the oath of the exporter or agent be first taken before the principal officers of the said port, before the debenture be allowed, who are hereby required and impowered to give the said oath, That the beef or pork in such debenture mentioned, was salted with salt for which the duties had been paid, and not drawn back, and that the same is really exported to parts beyond the seas for sale, and that any part thereof was not spent, or intended to be spent for the ship's use, and was not relanded, or intended to be relanded; for which debenture no fee or reward shall be taken: and in case the officer hereby directed to pay such debenture, shall not have sufficient money in his hands to pay the same, then upon certificate thereof by him made, (which certificate he is hereby required to give the party gratis) the principal commissioners for managing her Majesty's revenues of excise upon salt for the time being, shall be chargeable with the said payment, to be made in course out of the first money in their hands arising out of the duties upon salt: and that it shall and may be lawful for the officers for the said duties on salt, in the several and respective ports of the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, upon the exportation of any beef or pork, and before the same shall be laid on board for exportation, to mark any cask, barrel, or other vessel wherein any such beef or pork shall be exported, to the intent it may be known that such beef or pork has been exported, Allowances for salted beef or pork exported, &c. 1s. 6d. to be paid per barrel: 3 Geo. 2. c. 20. s. 16. Revised by 5 Geo. 2. c. 6.

exported, and allowances obtained on exportation thereof, in case the same or any part thereof, shall be reloaded or reimported.

Exported and reloaded, forfeited, and 40 s. per barrel.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any beef or pork shall, after the same shall be exported, be reloaded or reimported, all the said beef or pork so reloaded or reimported shall be forfeited and lost, and forty shillings per barrel for every barrel thereof, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, to be recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof.

Allowances for oatmeal and beer alias bigg, exported, &c.

X. And whereas by the aforesaid articles of union, it is provided, That from and after the union there shall be certain allowances for all oatmeal, and grain called beer, exported from Scotland, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all oatmeal, and grain called beer alias bigg, which from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, shall be exported from any port of this kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to parts beyond the seas, by any merchant, or other person or persons whatsoever, there shall be the like premium given upon the exportation thereof, as is to be given upon exportation of oatmeal and beer from Scotland; such merchant or other person first bringing a certificate in writing under his or their hands, containing the quantity of such oatmeal, or beer alias bigg, so shipped, to the collector or other person appointed, or to be appointed for the time being, to collect the duties or rates arising by customs within any such port, and making proof of such certificate by one or more credible person or persons upon their oaths, (which oaths the said collector, or other person, is hereby authorized and required to administer) and giving bond in the sum of ten pounds at least for every ton of oatmeal so shipped, consisting of twenty hundred weight, and for every forty bushels of beer alias bigg, so shipped, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, That the same shall be so exported to parts beyond the seas, and not be reloaded; which premium, every merchant, or other person so shipping off any such oatmeal, or beer alias bigg, and giving certificate and bond, as aforesaid, shall have and receive from such collector, or other person, as aforesaid, in any port respectively where the same shall be so shipped, out of her Majesty's revenue of the customs, and upon certificate returned under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known English merchants upon the place, that such oatmeal, or beer alias bigg, was there landed, or upon proof by credible persons that such oatmeal, or beer alias bigg, was taken by enemies, or perished in the seas; which proof being made, or certificate delivered to the collector, or other person, who took bond, as aforesaid, the said bond shall be delivered up to such merchant, or other person, or his order, to be cancelled, without any fee for the same.

Penalties, &c. how distributed.

XI. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all penalties and forfeitures given by this or any former law relating to the duties of excise upon salt, shall be distributed in manner following; (that is to say) one moiety thereof to the Queen, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the officer or officers who shall seize, sue, or inform for the same, to be recovered by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster.

Persons having exported salt to Ireland, entitled to a drawback.

XII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, and it is hereby declared, That all and every person and persons who have exported any salt or rock salt, out of the kingdom England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, and landed the same in the kingdom of Ireland, although the same was entered in England, on the exportation thereof, for other foreign parts, and afterwards landed in Ireland, such person or persons having so landed the same in Ireland, shall be intitled to a debenture or drawback of the said duty of such salt, notwithstanding the same was entered for other foreign parts: and all suits or prosecutions commenced, or to be commenced, against any person or persons having exported such salt or rock rock salt for foreign parts, and landed the same, as aforesaid, shall cease and determine.

XIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, there shall be no debenture made out or drawback allowed for any salt or rock salt landed in Ireland after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, unless the entry of the same salt at exportation be made for some port in the kingdom of Ireland.

But not henceforth, unless entry at exportation be made for some port in Ireland.

XIV. And whereas white salt and rock salt in the exportation from England to Ireland, are liable to waste, be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of May, upon producing such a certificate as is by law required, from the collector and proper officers of the port or place in Ireland, of the quantity of what white salt and rock salt was there landed, the exporter or proprietor of such white salt and rock salt shall have an allowance of four bushels for every forty bushels of white salt, and of two for every forty bushels of rock salt put on board in England in order to be exported to Ireland, in consideration of the ordinary waste in the carriage thereof; and a debenture or debentures shall be issued out gratis accordingly, by the collector or proper officer of the port or place in England, from whence such white salt or rock salt was exported, and the same shall be allowed or paid to the exporter or proprietor, in like manner as debentures are or shall be payable for salt exported.

Allowances for waste.

XV. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the first year of the reign of the late King William and Queen Mary, of blessed memory, intituled, An act for the encouraging the exportation of corn, it was amongst other things thereby enacted, That every such merchant by the said act described, shipping any malt or barley, rye or wheat, and giving certificate and bond as the said act directs, shall have and receive from the farmers, commissioners, collectors, or other persons appointed or to be appointed for the time being, to collect the duties and rates arising by customs, within any such port where the said corn shall be shipped off, for every quarter of barley or malt, ground or unground, two shillings and six pence; for every quarter of rye, ground or unground, three shillings and six pence; for every quarter of wheat, ground or unground, five shillings: and whereas since the making of the said act there have been divers quantities of malt made of wheat, some part whereof have been exported, and some doubts have arisen touching the bounty-money to be paid upon the exportation thereof, to the discouragement of the exportation of corn: and for clearing thereof, and for preventing future disputes touching the same; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every merchant or other person exporting malt made of wheat, from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, shall have and receive of the said farmers, commissioners, or persons aforesaid, five shillings for every quarter of malt made of wheat, or wheat malt, ground or unground, to be paid by the respective persons in the said recited act mentioned.

1 W. & M. sess. 1. c. 12.

Exporters of malt to have 5s per quarter bounty-money.

XVI. And whereas by the several acts of parliament for laying duties on rock salt, and salt refined from rock salt, the exporters of the same draw back more money from the salt-revenue than they pay to her Majesty; for prevention thereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, no person or persons who shall export rock salt, or salt refined from rock salt, shall have any other or greater allowance on prompt payment and exportation of the same, by way of debenture, than what really and bona fide was before paid for the duty of the said salt; and that no person giving bond and security for the said duty, payable within the time limited by law, and paying the same in twenty eight days after giving the said security, shall be intituled, on exportation from England, Wales, or Berwick, to any other advantage than to such a debenture shall discharge the bond and security only given for the payment of the said duty.

No exporters of rock salt, &c. to have any greater allowance, &c. on exportation than what was before paid for duty, &c.

An act for better securing the duties of East India goods.

9 & 10 W. 3.
c. 44.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King William the Third, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies; it was enacted, That no company or particular person or persons who should have a right, in pursuance of the said act, to trade to the East Indies, or other the parts within the limits of the said act mentioned, should be allowed to trade thither, until sufficient security was first given, (which the commissioners of the customs in England, or any three or more of them for the time being, were thereby authorized and required to take, in the name, and to the use of his said late Majesty, his heirs and successors) That such company or particular persons should cause all the goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities, which at any time or times afterwards, during the continuance of the said act, should be laden by or for them, or any of them, or for their or any of their accounts, in any ship or ships whatsoever bound from the East Indies, or parts within the limits mentioned in the said act, should be brought (without breaking bulk) to some port of England or Wales, and there be unladen and put on land, (the danger of the seas, enemies, pirates, restraints of princes and rulers, and barratry of seamen excepted:) and whereas the said act, and the security to be given in pursuance thereof, have been by experience found not to be sufficient to hinder and prevent the unloading or putting on shore in divers places and countries other than the kingdom of England or dominion of Wales, great quantities of goods brought from the East Indies, or some ports or places within the limits mentioned in the said recited act, to the great loss of her Majesty's customs, and the trade and navigation of this kingdom in general: and whereas some difficulties have arisen touching the acceptance of the security directed by the said act; be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the security to be hereafter given in pursuance of the said act, shall be after the rate of two thousand five hundred pounds for every hundred ton the ships or vessels shall be respectively let for, that shall be sent to the said East Indies, or other parts within the limits in the said act mentioned, and so proportionably for any lesser part than an hundred tons; and that the English company trading to the East Indies shall for each ship or vessel which shall be sent out from Great Britain, and employed by them, or for their account, give security as aforesaid, by their common seal; the condition whereof shall be in the form following, viz.

1500l. security to be given for every hundred ton that ships sent to the East Indies shall be let for.

WHEREAS

WHEREAS in pursuance of an act of parliament made in the ninth year of his late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, the ship whereof captain is master, of the burthen of tons, is, under the regulation of the said act, bound out upon a voyage to the East Indies, or other parts within the limits prescribed by the said act, with a cargo or loading of goods, upon account of the above bound English company, trading to the East Indies: the condition of this obligation is such, That if all the goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities which shall at any time or times hereafter, during the continuance of this present intended voyage, be laden by or for the said company, or any of them, or for their, or any of their accounts in the said ship, from the said East Indies, or parts aforesaid, shall be, without breaking bulk, brought to some port of Great Britain, and there be unladen and put on land (the danger of the seas, enemies, pirates, constraint of princes and rulers, barratry of seamen, and necessary provisions, stores, and merchandizes, for the people and garrison of St. Helena, only for their own proper consumption, excepted) when this obligation shall be void, or else shall remain in full force, effect, and virtue.

Form of the condition.

II. And that besides the several and respective securities to be given by this or the said former act against breaking bulk, all the goods, wares, merchandizes, and commodities which shall be laden in the East Indies, or other the parts within the limits mentioned in the said act, upon any ship or vessel belonging to any of her Majesty's subjects, with intent to be transported out of and from the said East Indies, or other the parts within the limits aforesaid, the same shall be brought to some port of Great Britain, and there shall be unladen and put on shore (necessary provisions, stores, and merchandizes, for the people and garrison of St. Helena, for their own proper consumption only, excepted) and except also where the breaking of bulk or landing of goods in breach of this or the said former act shall happen to be by the danger of the seas, enemies, pirates, restraint of princes or rulers, or barratry of seamen, in pain of forfeiting all such goods which contrary to this act shall be landed elsewhere than in some port of Great Britain, or the value thereof, to be recovered, one moiety thereof to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to the person or persons who shall seize, inform, or sue for the same in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed:

Patent granted 6 Eliz. to the Hamborough company.

Patent 28 Car. 2. to the Countess of Portland for twenty one years.

All white woollen cloth whatever made in Great Britain, &c. may be exported.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the fourteenth and fifteenth years of the reign of King Henry the Eighth, intituled, Touching worsted weavers of Tarmouth and Lynn, it is amongst other things enacted, That no person or persons any time after convey or transport into any of the parts beyond the sea, any manner of clothes or worsteds before the same clothes be shorn, dyed, coloured, and calendred, upon pain of forfeiting the value thereof: and whereas in the sixth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth a patent was granted to the Hamborough company for ever, with liberty to export thirty thousand clothes, though not wrought or dressed, twenty five thousand whereof to be above the value of three pounds, and under the value of six pounds per cloth: and the other five thousand to be above the value of four pounds per cloth: and whereas in the eight and twentieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second another patent was granted to Sir James Hayes and Sir Peter Apſley, knights, in trust for the late countess of Portland, for the term of one and twenty years, to licence the exportation of all manner of woollen clothes, white as well as coloured, though not barbed, rowed, shorn or dressed, without limitation as to price or number, with power to agree and compound with the exporter for the quantum to be paid them for the licence to export the same: and whereas the last mentioned patent expired in or about the month of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seven, since the expiration of which said patent, the officers of her Majesty's customs have put a stop to the exportation of all white clothes; and some doubts have arisen whether the same may be exported, notwithstanding the many good laws that have been made for the encouragement of the woollen manufacture: and whereas there are great quantities of white woollen clothes now ready to be shipped off, and exported into parts beyond the sea, where there is a great demand for the same, and it hath been the wisdom of this nation in all ages to give all due encouragement to the woollen manufacture thereof: For preventing therefore of all doubts that have or may arise concerning the exportation of white woollen cloth, and for the better encouragement of the woollen manufacture of this kingdom, and employment of the poor, be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons whatsoever, to export out of the kingdom of Great Britain or dominion of Wales, any white woollen cloth whatsoever made or manufactured within the said kingdom of Great Britain or dominion of Wales; any law, statute, ordinance, custom, prescription or provision whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

An act for continuing one half-part of the subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods and merchandizes imported, which were granted to the crown in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and for settling a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities, not exceeding eighty thousand pounds per annum, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eight, and other uses therein expressed.

I MOST gracious Sovereign; whereas several subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money, upon wines, goods, and other merchandizes, were given and granted unto his late Majesty King Charles the Second (of blessed memory) for his life, by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, and by the book of rates thereunto annexed; which subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money, upon wines, goods and merchandizes, as well exported as imported, (with some alterations) were by several subsequent acts of parliament granted to continue until the fifth day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten: and whereas by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, (intituled, An act for continuing several subsidies, impositions, and duties, and for making provisions therein mentioned, to raise money by way of loan, for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's necessary and important occasions, and for ascertaining the wine-measure) the said subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money, were enacted to continue, and be payable to your Majesty, for and upon all wines, goods and merchandizes, which should be imported at any time or times between the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve: Now, We your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, having resolved, that a further sum, not exceeding one million two hundred and eighty thousand pounds, be raised by sale of annuities in the manner herein after mentioned, to wit, one million and twenty thousand pounds thereof for the better enabling your Majesty to defray the expence of the present war, and other your Majesty's most necessary and important occasions; and two hundred and sixty thousand pounds, residue thereof, to be applied in such manner as is herein after mentioned, towards making good the payment of the annuities to be purchased upon this act, have, for that end and purpose, cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant unto your Majesty the further subsidies, duties, and sums of money herein after mentioned; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any former or other act or acts of parliament, or otherwise howsoever, already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty, for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, imported or to be imported, there shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, goods,

II. And it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where, by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any act relating thereto, any drawbacks or abatements are to be made of the whole or any part of the duties thereby imposed, upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, there shall be in the like cases proportional drawbacks and abatements made of the whole or part of the duties by this act imposed upon the same wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively; and that the several subsidies and duties by this act granted, during the continuance thereof, shall be raised, collected, levied, secured, and paid, within and throughout the kingdom of Great Britain, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances, and subject to such rules and directions as in and by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts therein referred unto, are prescribed or appointed, for the raising, collecting, levying, securing, and paying the said subsidies and duties granted by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, during the continuance thereof; and that every article, rule, and clause contained in the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or in any act or acts of parliament therein mentioned, or thereby referred unto, for raising, collecting, levying, securing, and paying the said subsidies and duties thereby granted, during the continuance thereof, are and shall be, by force of this act, revived, and shall be used, exercised and put in practice, for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the subsidies and duties granted or imposed by this present act, during the said term of ninety six years, and all arrears thereof from time to time, as fully and effectually as if the same articles, rules, and clauses, and every of them, were again particularly and at large recited and re-enacted in the body of this present act; except only as to such of the said articles, rules, and clauses, touching which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being; which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions shall be observed with respect to the duties hereby granted, during the continuance of this act, in the same manner as they are to be observed with respect to the said subsidies formerly granted as aforesaid.

III. And for the better and more sure payment of all the annuities to be purchased on this act, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies arising from time to time by or for the further subsidies and duties by this act granted or payable (the necessary charges of managing, raising, levying, collecting, answering, paying, and accounting for the same, only excepted) shall from time to time, from and after the commencement thereof, for and during the said term of ninety six years therein granted, be brought and paid by the receiver general, or such person or persons as for the time being shall have the receipt thereof (who are hereby required and enjoined to bring and pay the same as it shall be raised) into the receipt of the Exchequer, for the purposes in this act expressed distinctly and separately from all other monies whatsoever that are or shall be payable by him or them into the said receipt.

IV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and immediately after the time that all the principal and interest monies which by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign are charged upon the aforesaid subsidies of tonnage and poundage thereby granted, shall be satisfied and paid off, or that money shall be reserved in the Exchequer sufficient for that purpose, then one moiety or half part of the aforesaid subsidies of tonnage and poundage, to arise by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, for the remainder of the term thereby granted, and therein then to come and unexpired (except the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, and accounting for the same) shall in like manner from time to time be brought and paid into the receipt of the Exchequer for the purposes in this act expressed distinctly and apart as aforesaid, and the said receiver and receivers general, or other persons who shall have the receipt of the said moiety or half part of the said subsidies and duties by this or the said former act granted, and hereby required to be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer as aforesaid, shall make or cause to be made the payments thereof into the said receipt of the Exchequer, according to the true meaning of this act, weekly, to wit, on Wednesday in every week, if it be not an holy-day, and if it be, then on the next day after that is not an holy-day.

After the principal, &c. charged by 5 Ann. c. 27. are paid off, then the half subsidy to be paid weekly into the Exchequer.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said half subsidies and duties by this act appointed to be paid into the Exchequer weekly for the purposes in this act contained, as aforesaid, and the said sum not exceeding two hundred and sixty thousand pounds hereby directed to be reserved out of the contribution-money as aforesaid, or so much of the same subsidies, duties, and reserved monies as shall be sufficient for answering the full and due payment of all the annuities to be purchased on this act, and all arrearages thereof from time to time incurred, are and shall be, by virtue of this act, liable and appropriated thereunto, and shall not be diverted or divertible to any other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities in this act expressed; and all the monies arising by the said half subsidies, duties, and provisions hereby made, out of which the said annuities to be purchased upon this act are to be satisfied, shall be fairly and duly entred in one or more book or books to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt, and clerk of the pells for that purpose, to which all persons concerned at all seasonable times shall have free access, without fee or charge.

III. And whereas by the said act it is enacted, That for all white herrings which shall from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, be exported from any part or place in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to parts beyond the seas, by any person or persons whatsoever, there shall be the like allowances as are to be made upon the exportation of white herrings from Scotland, upon the oath of the exporter or his agent, taken before the principal officers of the port from whence the same are exported, that such herrings were cured with salt for which the duties have been paid, and not drawn back, and that the same are really exported to parts beyond the seas, and not relanded or intended to be relanded in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed: and whereas many of Her Majesty's subjects cannot have the benefit that was intended for them by the said act, in regard the salt with which the white herrings are salted in many parts of England pass through many hands, and the persons who export such herrings buy the same already cured of persons to whom they are sent to be sold and disposed of at ports far distant from the places where they are cured, and for reason thereof such exporters are incapable of making such oath as by the act is required: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all white herrings which shall from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, be exported from any port or place in the kingdom of England, dominion of Wales, or town of Berwick upon Tweed, to parts beyond the seas, by any person or persons whatsoever, there shall be the allowances made as are directed by the said act to be paid, by the officer appointed to collect the duties upon salt in the same port, at such times, and in such manner, and upon such debenture, and so verified, as in the said act is directed, upon oath of the exporter, or his agent, to be first taken, in manner as in the said act is expressed, That he bought the herrings in such debenture mentioned, and that the same were cured with salt for which the duties had been paid, and not drawn back, to the best of his knowledge and belief, and that the same are really exported to parts beyond the seas, and not relanded, or intended to be relanded, in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, in which debenture shall be inserted the name of the person or persons of whom the said herrings were bought.

An act for continuing the half subsidies therein mentioned, with several impositions and other duties, to raise money by way of loan, for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's necessary and important occasions, and for charging of prize goods and seizures, and for taking off the drawbacks of foreign cordage, and to obviate the clandestine importation of wrought silks.

MOST gracious Sovereign, We your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, duly considering the necessity of making an ample and compleat provision to enable your Majesty to carry on the present war, and to defray your other necessary expences, have for that end and purpose cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty, the several and respective subsidies, impositions, and duties herein after particularly described, for and during the terms herein after expressed, that is to say, Whereas several subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money upon wines, goods, and other merchandizes, were given and granted unto his late majesty King Charles the Second, of blessed memory, for his life, by an act of parliament (made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported) and by the book of rates thereunto annexed, which subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of monies upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, as well exported as imported, (with some alterations) were by several subsequent acts of parliament granted to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and by an act of parliament made in the fifth year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing several subsidies, impositions, and duties, and for making provisions therein mentioned, to raise money by way of loan, for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's necessary and important occasions, and for ascertaining the wine measure, the said subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money last-mentioned, were enacted to continue and be payable to your Majesty, for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes, which should be imported at any time or times between the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve: now we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any former or other act or acts of parliament or otherwise howsoever already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty, for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, imported to be imported, there shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes, which at any time or times from and after the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and before the last day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, one moiety or half part of such and the like several and respective subsidies, duties, and sums of money, as by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign are charged or payable within or during the term thereby granted or limited, for or upon the like imported wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively, except such goods and other merchandizes as by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any law now in force, are exempted from the payment of the subsidies or duties which were first granted in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid.

II. And it is hereby enacted, That in all cases where by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any act relating thereunto, any drawbacks or abatements are to be made of the whole or any part of the duties thereby imposed on any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, there shall be in the like cases proportionable drawbacks and abatements made of the whole or part of the duties by this act imposed upon the same wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively; and that the several subsidies and duties by this act granted, during the continuance thereof, shall be raised, collected, levied, secured, and paid, within and throughout the kingdom of Great Britain, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances, and subject to such rules and directions, as in and by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts therein referred unto, are prescribed or appointed for the raising, collecting, levying, securing, and paying the said subsidies and duties granted by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, during the continuance thereof; and that every article, rule, and clause contained in the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or in any act or acts of parliament therein mentioned, or thereby referred unto, for raising, collecting, levying, securing, and paying, the said subsidies and duties thereby granted, during the continuance thereof, are and shall be, by force of this act, revived, and shall be used, exercised, and put in practice for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the subsidies and duties granted or imposed by this present act, during the continuance thereof, and all arrearages of the same, from time to time, as fully and effectually as if the same articles, rules, and clauses, and every of them, were again particularly and at large recited and re-enacted in the body of this present act, except only as to such of the said articles, rules, and clauses touching which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions shall be observed with respect to the duties hereby granted, during the continuance of this act, in the same manner as they are to be observed with respect to the said subsidies formerly granted, as aforesaid.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several impositions and duties upon wines and vinegar, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King James the Second, (intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar, imported between the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three) which said act, by several subsequent acts of parliament since made, was continued, and is to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve; shall, by virtue of this act, be further continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and no longer; and that the said act so made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, for or concerning the said impositions on wines and vinegar, shall continue and be in full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties upon wine and vinegar, hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, matters, and things in the said act of the first year of the reign of the said King James the Second contained; had been again in this act repeated, and particularly enacted.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the rates, duties, and impositions upon all sorts of tobacco, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all tobacco and sugar imported between the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three: which said act, as for and concerning the said duties and impositions upon tobacco only, by several subsequent acts of parliament since made, was continued, and is to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve; shall by virtue of this act be further continued and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and no longer.

Duties on tobacco continued to 1 Aug. 1714. 1 Jac. 2. c. 4.

V. Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said duty upon tobacco, which shall be imported during the times by this act limited, and all arrears thereof, shall be secured, collected, raised, levied, answered, and paid to her Majesty, in such method, and with such discount and allowances, and according to such rules and directions as are mentioned, referred to, or prescribed as to the duties or impositions upon tobacco, in and by the act made in the parliament holden in the seventh year of the reign of King William the Third of glorious memory, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine, vinegar, and upon tobacco, and East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and not otherwise.

And to be levied, &c. as by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 10.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes, granted by an act made in the second year of the reign of King William the Third and Queen Mary, intituled, *An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and manufactures, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandizes, to be imported after the five and twentieth day of May, one thousand six hundred and ninety, and which thereby, and by several subsequent acts of parliament already made, have continuance until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be further continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and no longer; and that the said act made in the second year of their said late Majesties reign, concerning East India goods and other things therein charged, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue, and be of full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said respective duties hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, and to all intents and purposes, as if the said last-mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, had been again repeated, and particularly enacted; except only as to such part of the said acts concerning the said impositions on wines, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, touching which other provisions or alterations are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being; which other provisions or alterations are to be observed, and to continue during the continuance of this present act, and the said act, intituled, *An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine and vinegar, and upon tobacco, and East India goods and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France; and every article, clause, matter, and thing therein contained, for the raising, levying, securing, answering, and paying the impositions and duties on the merchandizes and commodities thereby charged, and which are by this act continued, shall be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the additional and other rates, duties, impositions, and charges upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes granted by an act of parliament made in the fourth year of their said late Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for prosecuting the present war against France, which by several subsequent acts of parliament already made, have continuance until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall by virtue of this act be further continued, and be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and no longer; and that the said act last-mentioned, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, (except as herein after is excepted and provided) as for and concerning the said rates, duties, and impositions, shall continue and be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and shall be applied, practised, and executed for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as if the said last-mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters and things therein contained, had been again repeated, and particularly enacted in this present act.

VIII. Provided also, That in all cases where any other provision or alteration is made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, in or about any other matter or thing contained in the said act of parliament for the impositions last-mentioned, such other provisions or alterations shall be observed, during the continuance of the term hereby granted; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IX. And it is hereby further enacted, That the several impositions and duties for and upon all whale-fins imported, which by an act of parliament in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, (intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass wares, and the whole duties lately laid on stone and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes, and for granting in lieu thereof new duties on whale-fins and Scotch linen) were granted to his said late majesty King William, and by subsequent acts already passed, have continuance until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be, and are hereby continued to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and no longer; and shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties as are mentioned in the said act for granting the said impositions on whale-fins and Scotch linen; which act, with all the powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred to, shall continue and be in full force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, and shall be applied, practised, and put in execution for raising and levying the said duties on whale-fins, hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, as fully and effectually as if all the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, concerning the said duties on whale-fins, were repeated, and again enacted in the body of this present act.

X. And whereas the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage, and the said other duties granted therewith, in the said twelfth year of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid, as to wines, goods, and merchandizes imported; and the said impositions on wines, vinegar, and tobacco, which were first granted to King James the Second, in the first year of his reign; and the said impositions on East India goods, and other goods charged therewith, which were first granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, in the second year of their reign; and the said additional impositions which were first granted to them in the fourth year of their reign; and the said duties on whale-fins imported, which were granted to his said late Majesty King William, in the ninth year of his reign, were by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, (intituled, An act for continuing several subsidies, impositions, and duties, and for making provisions therein mentioned, to raise money by way of loan for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's necessary and important occasions, and for ascertaining the wine measure) continued, as aforesaid, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, in the manner therein mentioned, and are by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, made subject and liable to the satisfaction of the principal and interest monies therein mentioned, which are to be paid and discharged in the first place out of the subsidies, impositions, and duties granted or continued by the act last mentioned: now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and immediately after the time that all the principal and interest monies, which by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign are charged upon the several subsidies, duties, and impositions last mentioned, shall be fully paid off and satisfied, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, then all the monies which shall from thenceforth arise by one moiety or half part of the said subsidies of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes imported, (which were first comprehended in the said act of the twelfth year of King Charles the Second) and all the monies, which from and after such payment made, or reserving money to discharge all such principal and interest, as aforesaid, shall arise by the said impositions upon wine, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other goods therewith charged, and by the said additional impositions on goods and merchandizes, and by the said duties upon whale-fins, for the remainder of the several terms formerly granted, and therein then to come and unexpired, (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall from time to time be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer distinctly, for the purposes in this present act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

c. 4.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in England in the third year of your Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing duties upon low wines, and upon coffee, tea, chocolate, spices, and pictures; and upon hawkers, pedlars, and petty chapmen; and upon muslins; and for granting new duties upon several of the said commodities; and also upon callicoes, China ware, and drugs; several duties therein mentioned upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures imported, were continued from the last day of April, one thousand seven hundred and six, till the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and a certain duty upon muslins imported, after the rate of fifteen pence for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, was continued from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and six, till the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and by the same act for increasing your Majesty's revenues, several new additional rates and sums therein particularly expressed, were laid upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, which should be imported at any time or times after the first day of February, one thousand seven hundred and four, and before the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and by the same act several further rates and sums therein particularly mentioned, were charged or imposed for and upon all white callicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs, (except drugs for dying) imported from and after the first day of February, one thousand said seven hundred and four, at any time or times before the said twenty fourth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten; the said several duties to be severally ascertained, answered, and paid in the manner therein mentioned; and in the said act there are contained clauses of credit for lending thereupon any sums not exceeding in the whole seven hundred thousand pounds, at an interest not exceeding the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, as by the same may more largely appear: and whereas it is likely that the duties granted by the said act, may and will determine before the loans made thereupon, and all the interest due, or to grow due for the same, will be satisfied: we therefore, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain, in parliament assembled, for preserving the publick credit, have given and granted, and do by this act give and grant unto your Majesty the several rates, duties, and sums of money to be payable for and upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, muslins, white callicoes, porcelain, called China ware, and drugs, (except drugs for dying) herein after mentioned, for the term and purpose herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said duties, which by the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign were continued upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and upon muslins, and the said increased, or new additional rates and duties which were thereby laid upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures; and the said further rates and sums which were thereby charged or imposed for and upon all white callicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs, (except drugs for dying) shall by virtue of this act be continued and be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon the same commodities and merchandizes respectively, which shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, from and after the three and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten, at any time or times within, or during the term of four years from thence next and immediately ensuing, the same rates, duties, and sums of money, and every of them respectively, (over and above all other duties and impositions whatsoever already charged for or upon the same commodities, or any of them respectively, by any other laws or statutes now in force) to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the said penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks, allowances, and repayments, and in such manner and form in all respects as the like rates, duties, and sums of money respectively granted or continued by the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign are hereby, or by any other act or acts, laws or statutes whereunto the said act hath reference, prescribed, enacted, appointed, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, during the continuance thereof respectively.

II. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such of the powers, directions, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, provided, settled, or established by the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts now in force, whereunto the same hath relation, for the better ascertaining, raising, levying, recovering, answering, or paying the said respective duties thereby granted, or for making any drawbacks, repayments, or allowances, out of any of the said several and respective duties upon exportation, shall be revived, and be continued, and be in force and virtue during the continuance of this act, and further, for the recovery of all the arrearages and sums of money which shall become due or payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon this act, in as full

III. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and upon muslins, and the said increased or additional rates by this act continued and imposed upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures; and the said further rates and sums by this act continued, and payable for and upon all white calicoes, porcelan, commonly called China ware, and drugs, (the necessary charges of raising, managing, paying, and accounting for the same excepted) shall be appropriated, paid, and applied, and be subject and liable (over and above the said duties granted upon the like commodities by the said former act) to and for the securing, paying, and satisfying, all the principal and interest monies, which shall from time to time remain unsatisfied, of or for the loans made upon the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, not exceeding the sum of seven hundred thousand pounds before-mentioned, in the same course, order, and manner, as the monies arising by the said former act were thereby prescribed to be applied thereunto, and shall not be diverted or divertible to any other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as by the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign are prescribed, for diverting or misapplying any the monies thereby arising.

IV. And whereas by another act of parliament made in England, in the third year of your Majesty's reign, (intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty a further subsidy on wines and merchandizes imported) certain subsidies of tonnage and poundage, commonly called The two third subsidies, were granted and made payable for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes imported after the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and four, within or during the space of four years from thence next and immediately ensuing; in which act there are contained clauses of credit for lending thereupon, any sums not exceeding in the whole the sum of six hundred thirty six thousand nine hundred fifty four pounds, four shillings, and a halfpenny, at an interest not exceeding the rate of six pounds per centum per annum; and it is likely that the said subsidies granted by the act last mentioned, may and will determine before the loans made thereupon, and all the interest due or to grow due for the same will be satisfied: we therefore, your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for preserving the publick credit, have also given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty the said subsidies of tonnage and poundage, commonly called The two third subsidies, herein after particularly described, for such farther term, and for such purpose, as are herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by this or any other act or acts of parliament or otherwise howsoever already due or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty, for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever imported or to be imported, there shall be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, one other subsidy called Tonnage, for and upon all wines which from and after the seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, at any time or times within, or during the space of three years from thence next and immediately ensuing, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain; that is to say, two third parts of such or the like several and respective duties, as by an act of the ninth year of the reign of the said late Majesty King William the third, of glorious memory, were granted to his Majesty during his life; and by an act in the first year of her Majesty's reign are continued and payable, during her Majesty's life, for and upon upon any kind of wine or wines respectively; and one other subsidy called Poundage, of all manner of goods and merchandizes to be imported or brought into Great Britain, at any time or times from and after the said seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, within or during the said term of three years, by way of merchandize; that is to say, Two third parts of such or the like several and respective duties, as by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign were granted, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign are continued and payable for or upon the same goods and merchandizes respectively (except tobacco and such currants as shall be imported in English built shipping, navigated according to the laws now in force, and sugar from the English plantations, and such goods and other merchandizes as by the two acts last mentioned, or either of them, are exempted from payment of the subsidies thereby granted.)

Except tobacco, currants and sugar, from the English plantations, &c. See 8 Annæ, c. 13. s. 21.

V. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties, commonly called The two third subsidies, by this act granted and continued, as aforesaid, and every of them respectively, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the said penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks, allowances, and re-payments, and in such manner and form in all respects, as the like duties, commonly called The two third subsidies, respectively granted by the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, are thereby, or by any other act or acts, laws or statutes whereunto that act hath reference, prescribed, enacted, or appointed, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, during the continuance thereof respectively; and that all such of the powers, directions, penalties and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, provided, settled, or established by the said subsidy act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts now in force, whereunto that act hath relation, for the better raising, levying, recovering, answering, or paying the said respective duties, commonly called The two third subsidies, thereby granted, or for making any drawbacks, repayments, or allowances, out of any of the said several and respective duties upon exportations, shall be revived, and be continued, and be in force and virtue, during the continuance of this act; and further for the recovery of all the arrearages, and sums of money, which shall become due or payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon this act, in as full and ample manner, to all intents and purposes, as if the said powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, and every of them, were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

VI. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties, commonly called The two third subsidies, by this act continued and payable, (the necessary charges of raising, managing, paying, and accounting for the same, excepted) shall be appropriated, paid, and applied, and be subject and liable (over and above the said duties called The two third subsidies, granted by the said former act) to and for the securing, paying, and satisfying all the principal and interest monies, which shall from time to time remain unsatisfied of or for the said loans, not exceeding six hundred thirty six thousand nine hundred fifty seven pounds, four shillings, and a halfpenny, made upon the said subsidy act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, in the same course, order, and manner, as the monies arising by the act last mentioned were thereby prescribed to be applied thereunto, and shall not be diverted or divertible to any other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as by the said subsidy act of the third year of her Majesty's reign are prescribed, for diverting or misapplying any the monies thereby arising.

and not diverted to any other use.

VII. Provided always, and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when and as the said respective sums of seven hundred thousand pounds, and six hundred thirty six thousand nine hundred fifty seven pounds, four shillings, and a halfpenny, and all the interest thereof due and to grow due, shall be respectively paid off and fully discharged, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, pursuant to the true meaning of this act, then, and from thenceforth, the said duties, chargeable by this act with the said principal and interest, and either of them respectively, for and during the then remainder of the said respective terms hereby granted of and in the same respectively, shall be disposeable for the publick use and service by authority of parliament, and not otherwise; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

VIII. And whereas by an act made in the sixth year of the reign of his said late Majesty King William the Third, (intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty certain duties upon glass wares, stone and earthen bottles, coals and culm, for carrying on the war against France) reciting, That the imposition upon coals exported to foreign parts was so great, that it was almost a prohibition, to the great diminution of his Majesty's customs, and lessening the English navigation on the exportation of coals beyond the seas: for remedy whereof it was thereby enacted, That all coals exported beyond the seas in foreign bottoms, should, during the continuance of that act, only pay ten shillings the chaldron, and English bottoms only three shillings the chaldron, which part of the said act was to determine on or about the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred; and by another act made in the eleventh year of the same King's reign, for continuing several laws therein mentioned, it was enacted, That all coals exported beyond the seas in foreign bottoms, should, from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred, for and during the space of seven years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, only pay ten shillings the chaldron, and in English bottoms only three shillings the chaldron; which several acts, in relation to coals exported, have been found very beneficial and useful to the publick, and fully to have answered the good ends and intent thereof; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all coals exported beyond the seas, from and after the end of this present session of parliament, until the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, from Great Britain in foreign bottoms, shall only pay ten shillings the chaldron; and in British bottoms only three shillings the chaldron; and after those rates for greater or lesser quantities; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding. The said respective duties on coals exported, to be raised, levied, uplifted, and recovered in the same manner, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as any other customs or duties payable to her Majesty upon the exportation of any goods or merchandizes are by any law or statute now in force to be raised, levied, uplifted, or recovered in England or Scotland respectively.

Coals exported in foreign bottoms to pay until 1715, only 10s. per chaldron; in British bottoms only 3s. per chaldron. How duties shall be levied. See 8 Ann. c. 13. f. 5.

All European linens, &c. exempted from duties by this act.

After 29 Sept. 1703, no tobacco of the growth of Europe, to be sold in any ships of war.

X. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all European linens, sisters threads, and tapes or incle, linseed and flax, shall be exempted from the payment of the duties imposed by this act (called The two third subsidies, as aforesaid) during the said term of three years by this act granted of and in the same, as aforesaid; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XII. And for promoting the consumption of tobacco of the growth of her Majesty's plantations in America, the increase of her Majesty's revenue, and for the better encouragement of the said British plantations, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the twenty ninth day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight, it shall not be lawful for any commander of any of her Majesty's ships of war, or purser thereof, to sell, deliver, or cause to be sold or delivered to any of her Majesty's seamen or marines on board of such ship, any tobacco of the growth of Europe, nor any tobacco mixed with tobacco of the said growth.

XIII. And

XIII. And for the better employment of the poor of this kingdom, be it likewise enacted, That all tobacco to be used or consumed on board any of her Majesty's ships of war in any part of Europe, from and after the said twenty ninth day of September, shall be such as is of the growth of the said British plantations which hath paid her Majesty the full duties, and been manufactured in Great Britain; upon pain that every such commander or purser who shall knowingly and wilfully offend herein, shall forfeit their respective places and employments, and three shillings for every pound weight of tobacco, and so in proportion for every greater or lesser quantity so sold and delivered; one moiety thereof to the Queen's majesty, and the other moiety to the informer who shall sue for the same by action or information in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, wherein no assize, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed, and no more than one imparlance.

But only tobacco of the British plantations, manufactured in Great Britain.

ing her Majesty's life, for and upon any kind of wine or wines respectively; and one other subsidy called Poundage, of all manner of goods and merchandizes that should be imported or brought into Great Britain, at any time or times from and after the said seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, within or during the said term of three years, by way of merchandize, that is to say, two third parts of such or the like several and respective duties as by the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign were granted, and by the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign continued, and payable for and upon the same goods and merchandizes respectively (except tobacco, and such currants as should be imported in English built shipping, navigated according to the laws then in force, and sugar from the English plantations, and such goods and other merchandizes, as by the two acts last-mentioned, or either of them, were exempted from payment of the subsidies thereby granted :) now it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said subsidies and duties so granted by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign for the term of three years, as aforesaid, shall be continued upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes imported or brought into Great Britain (except before excepted) at any time or times from and after the expiration of the said term of three years, and shall be paid and payable from thenceforth to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for ever, for the purposes in this act expressed, subject nevertheless to the proviso or condition of redemption herein-after contained and relating thereunto.

XXIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the same subsidies or duties by this act continued, as aforesaid, and every of them respectively, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the said penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks, allowances, and repayments, and in such manner and form, in all respects, as the like subsidies or duties continued by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, are thereby, or by any other act or acts, laws or statutes, whereunto that act hath reference, prescribed, enacted, or appointed to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, during the continuance thereof; and that all such of the powers, directions, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, provided, settled, or established, by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts now in force whereunto that act hath relation, for the better raising, levying, recovering, answering, or paying the respective subsidies or duties thereby continued, or for making any drawbacks, repayments, or allowances, out of any of the said subsidies or duties upon exportation, shall be revived and be continued, and be in force and virtue during the continuance of this act, in as full and ample manner, to all intents and purposes, as if the said powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, and every of them, were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

XXIV. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all European linens, sisters threads, and tapes, or incle, lincled and flax, shall be exempted from the payment of the said duties, called The two third subsidies, during the continuance of the same by virtue of this act.

XXVI. And whereas by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, it was, amongst other things, enacted, That the duties upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and upon muslins, and the increased or new additional rates and duties upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and the further rates and sums charged or imposed for and upon all white callicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs, (except drugs for dying) in the said act mentioned, should be continued, and be paid and payable unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon the same commodities and merchandizes respectively, which should be imported into Great Britain, from and after the twenty third day of June, one thousand seven hundred and ten, at any time or times within or during the term of four years from thence next and immediately ensuing: now it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and muslins, and the said increased or new additional rates and duties upon all coffee, cocoa nuts, chocolate, cocoa paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and the said further rates and sums charged or imposed upon all white callicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs, (except drugs for dying) so continued by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, for the term of four years, as aforesaid, shall be further continued, for and upon the same commodities and merchandizes respectively (except before excepted) which shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, at any time or times from and after the expiration of the said term of four years, and shall be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors for ever, for the purposes in this act expressed, subject nevertheless to the proviso and condition of redemption herein after contained and relating thereunto.

Duties on coffee, tea, &c. continued for ever.

The additional duties repealed by 10 Geo. 1. c. 10. 18 Geo. 2. c. 26. and new ones imposed. Drugs for dying excepted. Subject to a proviso of redemption.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said last-mentioned rates, duties, and sums of money, by this act continued, as aforesaid, and every of them respectively, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such distribution of the said penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks, allowances, and repayments, and in such manner and form in all respects, as the like rates, duties, and sums of money, continued by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, are thereby, or by any other act or acts, laws, and statutes whereunto that act hath reference, prescribed, enacted, or appointed, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, answered, paid, and accounted for, during the continuance thereof, and that all such of the powers, directions, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, provided, settled, or established, by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts now in force, whereunto that act hath relation, for the better ascertaining, raising, levying, recovering, answering, or paying the respective rates, duties, and sums of money upon coffee, cocoa nuts, and other the last-mentioned commodities, thereby continued, or for making any drawbacks, repayments, or allowances out of any of the said rates, duties, and sums of money upon exportation, shall be revived, and be continued and be in force and virtue during the continuance thereof by this act, in as full and ample manner, to all intents and purposes, as if the said powers, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, and every of them, were again repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

Duty on coffee, &c. how to be raised.

XXIX. And whereas several subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other rates and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, were given and granted to his late Majesty King Charles the Second, of blessed memory, for his Majesty, by an act of parliament made in the twelfth year of his reign, intituled, A subsidy granted to the King, of tonnage and poundage, and other sums of money payable upon merchandizes exported and imported, and by the several rates thereunto annexed; which subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, as well exported as imported, (with some alterations) were by several subsequent acts, continued until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and by an act made in the fifth year of her now Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing several subsidies, impositions, and duties, and making provisions therein mentioned, to raise money by way of loan

- for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's necessary and important occasions, and for ascertaining the wine measure, the said subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties and sums of money last-mentioned, were enacted to continue and be payable to her Majesty for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes which should be imported at any time or times between the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve: And whereas by an act made in the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing the half subsidies therein mentioned, with several impositions, and other duties, to raise money by way of loan for the service of the war, and other her Majesty's necessary and important occasions, and for charging of prize goods and seizures, and for taking off the drawbacks of foreign cordage, and to obviate the clandestine importation of wrought silks, it was enacted, amongst other things, That, over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any former or other act or acts of parliament, or otherwise howsoever, then due or payable, or which then ought to be paid to her Majesty for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, imported or to be imported, there should be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes, which at any time or times from and after the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and before the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, should be imported or brought into Great Britain, one moiety or half part of such and the like several and respective subsidies, duties, and sums of money, as by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign were charged or payable within or during the term thereby granted or limited, for or upon the like imported wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively (except such goods and other merchandizes as by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any law in force at the making of the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, were exempted from the payment of the subsidies or duties which were first granted in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid:) now it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said one moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money, granted by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign upon wines, goods, and merchandizes imported, as aforesaid, into Great Britain, (except as in the same act is excepted) shall, from and after the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, be further continued and charged, and shall be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for ever, for the purposes in this act expressed, subject nevertheless to the proviso or condition of redemption herein after contained, and relating thereunto.
- XXX. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, any drawbacks or abatements are to be made of the whole, or any part of the duties thereby imposed on any wines, goods, or merchandizes imported, there shall be in the like cases the like proportional drawbacks and abatements made of the whole or part of the duties by this act imposed upon the same wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively; and that the said moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money by this act granted, shall be raised, collected, levied, secured, and paid within and throughout the whole kingdom of Great Britain, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances, and subject to such rules and directions, as in and by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts therein referred unto, are prescribed or appointed, for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, and paying the said moiety or half part of the same subsidies, duties, and sums of money granted by the same act of the sixth year of her said Majesty's reign; and that every article, rule, and clause contained in the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's

- 5 Ann. c. 27. XXX. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, any drawbacks or abatements are to be made of the whole, or any part of the duties thereby imposed on any wines, goods, or merchandizes imported, there shall be in the like cases the like proportional drawbacks and abatements made of the whole or part of the duties by this act imposed upon the same wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively; and that the said moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money by this act granted, shall be raised, collected, levied, secured, and paid within and throughout the whole kingdom of Great Britain, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances, and subject to such rules and directions, as in and by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any other act or acts therein referred unto, are prescribed or appointed, for the raising, levying, collecting, securing, and paying the said moiety or half part of the same subsidies, duties, and sums of money granted by the same act of the sixth year of her said Majesty's reign; and that every article, rule, and clause contained in the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's
- 6 Ann. c. 19. 12 Car. 2. c. 4. Half subsidies of 6 Ann. continued for ever. 6 Ann. c. 19. Subject to redemption. Same drawbacks, &c. as by the former acts. 6 Ann. c. 19. Former powers for levying the duty continued. 6 Ann. c. 19.

Majesty's reign, or in any act or acts of parliament therein mentioned, or thereby referred unto, for raising, collecting, levying, securing, and paying the said moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes thereby granted, as aforesaid, during the continuance thereof, are and shall be by force of this act revived, and shall be used, exercised, and put in practice, for the raising, levying, collecting, and answering the said moiety or half part of the subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes by this act granted or imposed, as aforesaid, and all arrears of the same, from time to time, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, as fully and effectually, as if the same articles, rules, and clauses, and every of them, were again particularly and at large recited and re-enacted in the body of this present act, excepting only as to such of the said articles, rules, and clauses, touching which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions, are made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, which other provisions, alterations, or exemptions, shall be observed, with respect to the moiety or half part of the subsidies, duties, or sums of money, upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, hereby continued as aforesaid, in the same manner as they are to be observed with respect to the said moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, or sums of money formerly granted, as aforesaid.

XXXI. And whereas the said one moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, together with several other impositions, subsidies, and duties mentioned in the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, were by that act made subject 6 Ann. c. 19. and liable to the securing payment, and satisfaction of certain loans of any sums which should not exceed in the whole seven hundred twenty nine thousand six hundred and sixty seven pounds fifteen shillings, and six pence three farthings, borrowed or authorized to be borrowed thereupon, and such further sums for payment of interest as are therein mentioned or referred unto: now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That immediately from and after the time that all the said loans, not exceeding seven hundred twenty nine thousand six hundred and sixty seven pounds, fifteen shillings, and six pence three farthings, borrowed, or authorized to be borrowed, as aforesaid, and all the interest monies secured, or intended to be secured by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, shall be paid off and discharged in the manner in the same act mentioned, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, out of the monies arising or to arise by the subsidies, duties, and impositions thereby appropriated thereunto, then all the monies which from thenceforth, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, shall or may arise by the said moiety or half part of the subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes by the said former acts granted, and by this act continued, as aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall, from time to time, be paid into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer distinctly for the purposes in this act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

After the loans upon 6 Ann. c. 19. are discharged, remainder to be applied to the purposes of this act.

XXXII. And whereas by another act of the sixth year of her Majesty's 6 Ann. c. 11. reign, intituled, An act for continuing one half part of the subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes imported, which were granted to the crown in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and for settling a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities, not exceeding eighty thousand pounds per annum, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eight, and other uses therein expressed, it was amongst other things enacted, That, over and above all other subsidies, additional duties, impositions, and payments whatsoever, by any former or other act or acts of parliament, or otherwise howsoever, then due

- or payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty, for or upon any wines, goods, or merchandizes whatsoever, imported or to be imported, there should be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes, which at any time or times from and after the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, within or during the term of ninety six years from thence next and immediately ensuing, should be imported or brought into Great Britain, one moiety or half part of such and the like several and respective subsidies and duties, and sums of money, as by the said act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign therein mentioned, are charged or payable within or during the term or time thereby granted or limited for or upon the like imported wines, goods, and merchandizes respectively, except such goods and other merchandizes as by the said last-mentioned act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, or by any law in force, were exempted from the payment of the subsidies or duties which were first granted
- 5 Ann. c. 27. in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid: And whereas a sum not exceeding in the whole the sum of eighty thousand pounds per annum, to arise by and out of the said last-mentioned moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, is by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign appropriated for and during the said term of ninety six years for the payment of annuities to be purchased in pursuance of that act; in which said act it is provided and enacted, That if at the end of any quarter of a year of the term for which the annuities upon that act were to be purchased, the monies arising at the Exchequer of or for the said half subsidies and duties by that act appropriated, (certain contribution money therein mentioned to be reserved, being accepted) should exceed all the monies then due for or upon the same annuities and all arrearages thereof then or at any time or times before that time incurred, that there should be an excess or surplus remaining in the Exchequer, such excess or surplus should be disposible, from time to time, for the publick use and service, and not otherwise: now it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said excess or surplus which shall from time to time arise of and from the last-mentioned moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, after payment and satisfaction, or reserving at the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer, from time to time, sufficient to pay and satisfy the said annuities, not exceeding in the whole the sum of eighty thousand pounds per annum, charged upon the said last-mentioned moiety or half-part of the subsidies, duties, or sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes by the said last-mentioned act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, during the said term of ninety six years, (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, ascertaining, and accounting for the same) and also all arrearages of the said last-mentioned moiety or half part of the said subsidies, duties, and sums of money upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, (not already appropriated, or to be applied by any former act or acts of parliament in that behalf) shall, as the same shall arise, be kept distinct and apart in her Majesty's Exchequer for the purposes in this act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.
- Excess or surplus arising of the annuity act 6 Anne, to be kept apart in the Exchequer for the purposes of this act.
- 6 Ann. c. 11. XXXIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other duties, commonly called by the name of The two third subsidies, which from and after the expiration of the said term of three years formerly granted therein, as aforesaid, shall arise, grow due, or become payable by virtue of this act to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and all the monies which from and after the paying off and discharging all the said loans, not exceeding five hundred thirty six thousand nine hundred fifty seven pounds, four shillings and a halfpenny, and all the interest thereof, shall or may arise during the then remainder of the said term of three years of or for the said subsidies and duties, commonly called The two third subsidies, granted or continued by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign; and the said duties upon

VI. And it is hereby further enacted, That the several impositions and duties, for and upon all whale fins imported, which by an act of parliament in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty, King William the Third, intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass wares, and the whole duties lately laid on stone and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes, and for granting in lieu thereof new duties on whale fins and Scotch linen, were granted to his said late majesty King William, and by subsequent acts already passed, have continuance until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, shall be, and are hereby continued and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon all whale fins to be imported into Great Britain, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, and no longer; and shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties, as are mentioned in the said act for granting the said impositions on whale fins and Scotch linen; which act, with all the powers, provisos, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred to, shall continue and be in full force until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen; and shall be applied, practised, and put in execution for raising and levying the said duties on whale fins hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, as fully and effectually as if all the clauses, matters, and things therein contained concerning the said duties on whale fins were repeated, and again enacted in the body of this present act.

VII. And whereas the said impositions on wines, vinegar, and tobacco, which were first granted to King James the second, in the first year of his reign, and the said impositions on East India goods, and other goods charged thereon, which were first granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary in the second year of their reign, and the said additional impositions which were first granted to them in the fourth year of their reign, and the said duties on whale fins imported, which were granted to his said late majesty King William in the ninth year of his reign, were by several subsequent acts of parliament tinued (with some exceptions and alterations) as aforesaid, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, in the manner therein mentioned, and are thereby made subject and liable (together with such other duties as are therein expressed) to the satisfaction of several principal sums which were borrowed, or authorized to be borrowed upon those acts respectively, and the interest due, and to be due for the same, which principal and interest are to be duly paid off and discharged in the first place; now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and immediately after the time that all the principal and interest monies which by the said former acts, or any of them, are charged and chargeable on the several impositions and duties last particularly mentioned (jointly with other duties) as aforesaid, shall be fully paid off and satisfied, according to the true meaning of the said former acts, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, then all the monies which from thenceforth shall arise by the said impositions upon wines, vinegar, and tobacco, which were first granted to King James the Second in the first year of his reign, and the said impositions on East India goods, and other goods charged therewith, which were first granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, in the second year of their reign, and the said additional impositions which were first granted to them in the fourth year of their reign, and the said duties on whale fins imported, which were granted to his late majesty King William in the ninth year of his reign, for the remainders of the terms formerly granted, and therein then to come and unexpired (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall, from time to time, be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer distinctly for the purposes in this act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

After the principal, &c. of the former acts are discharged, the several duties appropriated for the uses of this act.

VIII. And whereas it is found by experience, That the duties upon the exportation of copper of the produce and growth of Great Britain, and upon brass wire made in Great Britain, have annually produced very inconsiderable sums, and nevertheless do hinder the exportation of such copper wire, to the prejudice of this nation; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no subsidies or other duties shall be due or payable by any act or acts of parliament whatsoever upon the exportation of any such copper or wire, which from and after the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and nine, shall be exported to or for any parts beyond the seas; any law or statute whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

British copper and brass wire to be exported duty-free.

XII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and nine, Jesuits Bark, Sarsaparilla, balsam of Peru and Tulu, and all other drugs of the growth and product of America, may be imported from any of her Majesty's plantations in America, in ships regularly manned and navigated, paying the same duty, and no more, as if they were imported directly from the place of their growth; any law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding.

Drugs of America may be imported from her Majesty's plantations.

An act for ascertaining and directing the payment of the allowances to be made for or upon the exportation from Scotland, of fish, beef, and pork, cured with foreign salt imported before the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven; and for disposing such salt still remaining in the hands of her Majesty's subjects there; and for ascertaining and securing the allowances for fish and flesh exported, and to be exported from Scotland for the future.

How the allowances for the future shall be ascertained.

SECT. X. AND for the better ascertaining and securing all such allowances as by law ought to be made for any fish or flesh exported, or hereafter to be exported from Scotland, which have been or shall be duly salted and cured only with foreign salt imported since the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, or hereafter to be imported into Scotland, and for which her Majesty's duties payable by the act of union have been, or shall have been first duly paid or secured; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such allowances (not being already satisfied) shall be paid by the officer appointed to collect the duties upon salt payable in Scotland, out of the same duties arisen or to arise in the same port from whence any such fish have been or shall be exported, within thirty days after demand thereof, on a debenture to be prepared by the collectors of the customs in the port where such fish or flesh have been or shall be entered out for exportation, and verified by the person executing the office of searcher in such port, as to the quantity of fish or flesh actually shipped, and that the oath of the exporter or agent be first taken before the principal officers of the said port, before the debenture be allowed, who are hereby required and impowered to give the said oath, that the fish in every such debenture mentioned, were caught by her Majesty's subjects, inhabitants of Great Britain, and that the fish and flesh in such debenture mentioned, were really exported to parts beyond the seas for sale, and not intended to be reloaded in Great Britain, and were duly cured only with foreign salt imported into Scotland after the said first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and seven, without any mixture of British or Irish salt, and that her Majesty's duties for such imported salt shall have been duly paid or secured, all which particulars shall be specified in such debentures respectively, for which debenture or debentures no fee or reward shall be taken; and in case the officer hereby directed to pay such debenture, shall not have sufficient money in his hands to pay the same, then such officer and officers shall give a certificate in writing thereof, without fee or charge, to the exporter or agent, to be directed either to the commissioners of the customs, or the commissioners of excise in Scotland, at the option of the said exporter, or his agent, and upon producing such certificates, together with the debenture or debentures so certified, to the commissioners of the customs, or the commissioners of excise for the time being, to whom such certificate shall be directed, shall cause such debenture or debentures so certified, to be paid and satisfied without fee or charge, in course, out of any her Majesty's duties arising upon salt in Scotland, or out of the said revenues of customs and excise in Scotland, or any of them, which are hereby charged therewith, and made liable thereunto, out of the first monies arising by the said revenues respectively, and with preference to all other payments whatsoever to be made out of the same; the charges of raising and managing those revenues, and the fees, salaries, and other charges allowed, or to be allowed by her Majesty, duties shall be raised, &c.

4 Annæ, c. 6.

III. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said several duties by this act imposed within and throughout the said kingdom of Great Britain, for and upon all such coals, culm, and cynders, as aforesaid, shall, during all the time and term by this act granted therein, be raised, levied, collected, and paid in to her Majesty's Exchequer (for the purposes in this act expressed) in such or the like manner and form, and subject to such allowances and repayments, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and according to such rules, methods, and directions, as are prescribed or appointed by any law or statute now in force, for and concerning the duties upon the like coals, culm, and cynders, which have continuance until the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, by virtue of the act of parliament made in the fourth year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing an additional subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and certain duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and additional duties of excise; and for settling and establishing a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and six, and other uses therein mentioned; and that all and every the powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things now in force, contained in the act last mentioned, or in any other acts or statutes thereby referred unto for the governing, managing, raising, levying, securing, collecting, receiving, paying, and accounting for the said duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, which were granted or continued until the said thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, as aforesaid, shall be and are, by force and virtue of this present act, revived, and shall be in full force, and be duly observed, practised, and put in execution, in and for the governing, managing, raising, levying, securing, collecting, receiving, paying, and accounting for the duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, by this act granted, for and during the term hereby granted of and in the same, and all arrearages thereof, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the same powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, were again expressed, and particularly repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

Appropriation of the several duties.

XI. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the said several duties by this act granted, as well for and upon such coals, culm, and cynders, as upon such houses, as aforesaid, shall be liable to, and be charged and chargeable with the yearly fund herein after mentioned, tioned, and all the annuities to be payable out of the same, in pursuance of this act, during the whole term of thirty two years herein after expressed, and all the same duties (except the necessary charges before-mentioned) are and shall be appropriated thereunto, in such manner, that all the monies which shall, from time to time, be or remain due, or in arrear, for or upon the said annuities, or any of them, or for any arrears thereof (if any such be) shall, from time to time, in the first place be paid and satisfied out of the said several and respective duties by this act granted; or some of them, with preference to any other payments that shall or may hereafter be charged upon the same duties, or any of them, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are hereafter in this act contained in that behalf.

XII. And to the end all the monies arising by the said duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, and by the said duties upon houses by this act granted, may be duly and certainly raised and brought into the said receipt of Exchequer for the purposes aforesaid; it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many justices of the peace, commissioners of the customs, receivers general, collectors, surveyors, and other officers, as shall be proper and necessary for managing, governing, levying, collecting, receiving, and paying the respective duties by this act granted, and for keeping and rendring the accounts of the same; and that the said receivers general, collectors, surveyors, and other officers, who are or shall be concerned in the raising, collecting, receiving, and paying the said respective duties hereby granted, or any of them, and keeping, and rendring the several accounts thereof, shall perform their several duties therein, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the said monies, as are prescribed and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament, made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties on salt, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, thereby granted or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies, which were granted or appropriated by the act last mentioned.

The officers for managing the duties liable to the act 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 44.

XXXIX. And whereas a doubt may arise whether coals, culm, or cynders carried from the bridge of Sterling, which is on the firth of Forth, to the town of Dunbar, are liable to the duties by this act imposed, as if they were carried by sea; it is hereby provided, enacted, and declared, That such coal, culm, and cynders, so carried from the bridge of Sterling to the town of Dunbar, to any part betwixt them, shall not, by reason of such carriage, be liable to the duties by this act imposed; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

The said respective duties, for and upon all pepper, raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and snuff, to be paid or secured in the manner herein after-mentioned.

VII. And for the better securing the duties upon pepper by this and other acts of parliament imposed, and to the intent that the same may not be too burdensome on the importers of such pepper, as shall be again exported to parts beyond the seas; it is hereby provided, and further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the seventeenth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, all such pepper as shall be imported into the kingdom of Great Britain, shall, upon entry thereof, be forthwith carried and put into such warehouse or warehouses, as shall for that purpose be provided by and at the charge of the importers of the said pepper, and be approved of by the commissioners of her Majesty's customs for the time being; and half the subsidy which by law is payable for pepper, imported after the said seventeenth day of February, shall be paid down in ready money by the importer or importers thereof, who shall have power to sift or garble the said pepper as hath been usual, and ever practised, to make it merchandise, which said pepper so brought into such warehouse or warehouses, shall not be taken or carried out thence upon any account whatsoever, other than as is herein after-mentioned; that is to say, such of the said pepper as shall be sold to be consumed or spent in Great Britain, shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses, unto the person or persons who shall buy the same of the importer or importers thereof, upon such person or persons paying to her Majesty's use the duties charged or imposed, or to be charged or imposed, by this or any other act or acts of parliament in that behalf, for or upon such pepper so bought (other than and except the before-mentioned half-subsidy;) and such of the said pepper as shall be for exportation to parts beyond the seas, shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses, unto the importer or importers thereof, or such buyer or other person or persons, as such importer or importers shall appoint in that behalf, upon sufficient security to be first given by the importers, or such buyers or other persons, to her Majesty, her heirs and successors (which security the said commissioners of her Majesty's customs are hereby required and impowered to take) that the same, and every part thereof, shall be exported, and not relanded in Great Britain; which said securities shall be discharged without fee or reward, upon certificate returned or produced to the said commissioners of the customs, under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places in parts beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants, then being at such place or places, that such pepper was there landed, or upon proof by credible persons, that such pepper was taken by enemies, or perished in the seas; the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the said commissioners of the customs for the time being.

and if to be consumed in Great Britain, not to be carried out till the whole duty paid: See 8 Geo. 1. c. 15. s. 15, & 16.

If to be exported, security to be given, &c.

VIII. And for preventing all clandestine importing or bringing any pepper into this kingdom of Great Britain, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons, or bodies politick or corporate, from and after the said seventeenth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, shall import or bring any pepper into any port of or in this kingdom of Great Britain other than the port of London; or into the port of London, and shall not make due entries of such pepper so imported or brought in, and bring the same into the said warehouse or warehouses, as aforesaid: the same shall be, and is hereby adjudged, deemed, accounted, and taken to be clandestine running, and unlawful importation thereof; and such person or persons, or bodies politick or corporate, so offending therein, and their abettors, shall not only forfeit and lose all such pepper so clandestinely run as aforesaid, but also the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered and divided, one moiety to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the person or persons that shall seize, sue, or inform for the same, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland.

What shall be deemed clandestine importation of pepper.

IX. And for preventing the clandestine carrying of any of the said pepper out of the said warehouses, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the keeper or keepers of the said warehouse or warehouses (who shall be provided at the charge of the importers) shall keep one or more book or books, wherein he or they shall fairly enter or write down an exact, particular, and true account of all pepper which shall be brought into and carried out of his or their said warehouse or warehouses, and the days and times when the same was so brought in and carried out, and how much thereof was delivered out to be consumed and spent in Great Britain, and how much for exportation, as aforesaid; and shall at the end of every six months transmit in writing an exact account thereof, upon oath, to the commissioners of the customs for the time being, together with an exact account of how much shall be remaining in his or their said warehouse or warehouses respectively; and the said commissioners are hereby impowered and enjoined, within one month after the same shall be transmitted to them as aforesaid, to appoint one or more person or persons to inspect the said book

book or books, warehouse or warehouses, and to examine the said accounts; and if upon examination it shall appear that any of the said pepper was delivered out otherwise than as aforesaid, or before paying the duties of such of the said pepper as shall be sold to be consumed and spent in Great Britain, or giving such security, as aforesaid, for such of the said pepper as shall be delivered out for exportation, as aforesaid, then the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, so offending therein, shall not only forfeit and lose the value of the said pepper so carried out, as aforesaid, and be for ever disabled from any publick employment for the future, but also shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds for every such offence, to be recovered and divided, as aforesaid.

Proprietors may affix a lock on the warehouse, &c.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the proprietor or proprietors of the said pepper, so lodged in any warehouse or warehouses, as aforesaid, to affix one lock to every such warehouse, the key of which shall remain in the custody of such proprietor or proprietors; and that he or they may, in the presence of the said warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, who is and are hereby obliged to attend at all seasonable times for that purpose, view, sort, and deliver out the said pepper, or any part thereof, in manner following; that is to say, Such of the said pepper as shall be sold to be consumed and spent in Great Britain, to the person or persons who shall buy the same, upon paying the duties charged or imposed thereon, as aforesaid, and such of the said pepper as shall be sold for exportation to parts beyond the seas, upon giving such security as is before in that behalf expressed.

Half subsidy only to be paid on importation of pepper, and the other duties on its delivery out of the warehouse for consumption here.

On exportation all other duties discharged.

XI. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said seventeenth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, no other duty shall be taken or demanded upon or at the importation of any pepper into Great Britain, (but the half subsidy before-mentioned); and all other the duties and impositions charged upon or for such pepper as shall be delivered, as aforesaid, out of the warehouse, to be consumed and spent in Great Britain, shall be paid upon such delivery out of the warehouse, as aforesaid, and not otherwise: and that from and after the said seventeenth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, all duties charged or imposed on such of the said pepper, as shall be delivered out of the said warehouse or warehouses to be exported, and shall be exported accordingly (except the half subsidy) shall be discharged, and from thenceforth no drawback or allowance shall be paid or made out of her Majesty's customs, for or on the account of such exportation of any of such pepper; any thing herein, or in any former act or acts of parliament, contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Importers of raisins, &c. to have 12 months for payment, or 10l. per cent. for prompt payment.

XII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the importers of the said raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, or snuff, giving security at the custom-house, shall have twelve months time for payment of the duties by this act imposed thereupon; and in case such importer shall pay ready money, he shall have ten pounds per centum, or after that rate per annum, of the said duty abated to him for prompt payment.

Nutmegs, &c. may be imported from any ports in British ships, &c.
Further provisions relating hereto,
8 Geo. 1. c. 21.

XIII. Provided also, and it is hereby enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons to import into the kingdom of Great Britain, during the continuance of this act, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, or mace, subject to the several duties payable for the same, from any parts beyond the seas in British ships, so as the master, and at least one fourth of the mariners during the continuance of this present war, be her Majesty's subjects of Great Britain, and so as after the end of this war, and during the continuance of this act, the master, and at least three fourths of the mariners be her Majesty's subjects of Great Britain, and so as notice be first given to the commissioners of her Majesty's customs, of the quality and quantity of the said spices, so intended to be imported, and the place in which they intend to import the same, and taking a licence under the hands of the commissioners of the customs customs for the time being, for the landing and importing thereof, as aforesaid; which licence they are hereby authorized and required to grant without any fee or reward, or any other charge to the person demanding the same; any law, custom, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XIV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and snuff, hereby charged or intended to be charged as aforesaid, shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house, in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the said duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon, shall be secured or paid, as this act doth require, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same first signed by the collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively; That all such imported raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and snuff, as shall be so landed and put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; (to wit) one moiety of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, or the value thereof, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

Raisins, &c. landed without entry, &c.
forfeited.

XV. Provided always, and be it further enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said raisins, nutmegs, cloves, mace, cinnamon, and snuff, upon which the said new duties, by this act granted are paid, or secured to be paid, be again exported at any time or times within eighteen months by British merchants, or within nine months by aliens, to be accounted from the respective times of the sight or entry of the said goods inwards, and that due proof be first made, upon oath, That the said raisins, nutmegs, cloves, mace, and cinnamon, or snuff, so exported, be the same for which the said duties are paid, or secured to be paid, as aforesaid; that then, and in every such case, and not otherwise, the same duties so paid, shall, without any delay or reward, be wholly repaid out of any the duties on imported commodities by this act granted, or the security of such of the said duties as shall be secured, shall be vacated (on a debenture or debentures regularly certified and sworn to) as to so much of the said raisins, nutmegs, cloves, mace, and cinnamon, or snuff, as shall be so exported; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Raisins, &c.
exported in due time, duty to be repaid.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said new duties upon raisins, nutmegs, cloves, mace, cinnamon, and snuff, by this act imposed, during the said whole term of thirty two years therein granted, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, and answered, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such other penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such allowance for damage, as the other duties upon the same goods respectively are, by any law or statute now in force, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, or answered, during the continuance thereof respectively.

New duties how to be levied.

XVII. And for preventing the frauds which may be practised in unshipping, to be landed, any pepper, raisins, mace, cinnamon, cloves, nutmegs, snuff, or any other sort of goods whatsoever, subject to the payment of duties, without paying the same, as also to hinder the importation of any sort of prohibited goods into Great Britain; be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any pepper, raisins, mace, cinnamon, cloves, nutmegs, snuff, or any other sort of goods whatsoever, liable to the payment of duties, shall be unshipped, with intention to be laid on land, (customs, and other duties, not being first paid or secured) or if any prohibited goods whatsoever shall be imported into any part of Great Britain, then not only the said uncustomed and prohibited goods shall be forfeited and lost, but also the persons who shall be assisting, or otherwise concerned in the unshipping the said prohibited and uncustomed goods, or to whose hands the same shall knowingly come, after the unshipping thereof, shall forfeit treble the value thereof, together with the vessels and boats, and all the horses, and other cattle and carriages whatsoever, made use of in the landing, removing, carriage, or conveyance of any of the aforesaid goods; one moiety of all which forfeitures and penalties shall be to the use of her Majesty, and the other moiety to him or them that will seize or sue for the same, to be recovered by bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

XVIII. And whereas several merchants and other wholesale traders and dealers in pepper, have or may have, on the eighth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, several stocks or quantities of pepper; it is hereby further enacted, That all and every such merchants, traders, and dealers, having on the said eighth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine, in his, her, or their custody or possession, or in the custody or possession of any other person or persons in trust for him, her, or them, or for his, her, or their use, benefit, or account, any stock or quantity of pepper, as aforesaid, within the realm of Great Britain, being for sale, shall yield and pay unto her Majesty, for every pound of such pepper, one shilling and six pence, to be paid within six months after the said eighth day of February, one thousand seven hundred and nine.

XIX. And to the end the said stocks of pepper may be known, and the duties thereupon duly ascertained and secured; it is hereby enacted, That all and every the said merchants, traders, and dealers in pepper, shall, on or before the eighth day of April, one thousand seven hundred and ten, make a just entry thereof at the custom-house nearest the place where such pepper doth remain, as aforesaid, and permit the proper officers of the customs thereunto to be appointed, at any time before the fifteenth day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ten, to enter into his, her, or their warehouses or other places, where such stocks of pepper are to be found, and to view, weigh, and take account of the same; and if any such merchant, trader, or dealer, shall neglect to make such entry at the custom-house within the time aforesaid, or shall refuse to permit such officer to enter into his, her, or their warehouses or other places (if thereunto required) there to view the said stock, as aforesaid, or any part thereof, or shall hide, remove, or convey away the said stock of pepper, with intent to defraud her Majesty, or shall not pay her Majesty's dues for the same, according to the true meaning of this act; then for every or any such offence the merchant, trader, or dealer respectively, so offending, shall forfeit and lose his, her, or their said stocks of pepper, or the value thereof, to be recovered and distributed as aforesaid.

XX. Provided, That if such persons so chargeable for any stocks of pepper, shall pay her Majesty's duties for the same before the end of the said six months, then he, she, or they, shall be allowed for such prompt payment, after the rate of ten pounds per centum per annum for every sum so advanced, and in case of exportation thereof, or any part thereof, within eighteen months after entry made, as aforesaid, the said duties payable by this act for such stocks of pepper shall be discharged or repaid.

XXI. And it is hereby enacted, That if any dispute shall arise whether any stuff chargeable by this act upon the importation thereof, be of the produce or manufacture of her Majesty's plantations, the onus probandi shall lie upon the owner or claimer thereof.

XXII. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all the said several duties arising by this act upon exciseable liquors in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tyne, shall from time to time be under the management and government of the commissioners of excise in England for the time being; and the said duties upon exciseable liquors to arise in Scotland, shall from time to time be be under the management and government of the commissioners of excise in Scotland for the time being; and that such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported commodities as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs in England for the time being; and such of the said duties on imported commodities as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and that the commissioners of excise in England, and the receiver general of the customs in England for the time being, shall pay all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties (the necessary charges of receiving, levying, managing, paying, and accounting for the same, excepted) into her Majesty's receipt of Exchequer, distinct and apart from all other branches of the publick revenue, weekly; to wit) on Wednesday in every week, if it be not an holiday, and if it be, then on the next day after that is not an holiday, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities herein after mentioned; and that such of the said rates, duties, and sums of money by this act imposed, as shall arise in Scotland, (the necessary charges of receiving, levying, managing, paying, and accounting for the same, excepted) shall from time to time be transmitted and paid by the commissioners of excise, and receiver general of the customs in Scotland, for the time being respectively, into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, distinct and apart, as aforesaid, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities herein after mentioned.

To be paid into the Exchequer distinct, &c.

XXIII. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, that all the said several duties by this act granted, as well for and upon such exciseable liquors, as for and upon such pepper, raisins, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and snuff, to be imported, and the said stocks of pepper, as aforesaid, shall be liable to and charged and chargeable with the yearly fund herein after mentioned, and all the annuities of what kind soever, shall be payable out of the same, in pursuance of this act, during the whole term of thirty two years herein after expressed in that behalf; and all the same rates and duties (except the necessary charges before-mentioned) are and shall be appropriated thereunto in such manner, that all the monies which shall from time to time be or remain due, or in arrear, for or upon the said annuities, or any of them, or for any arrears thereof, (if any such) shall from time to time, in the first place, be paid and satisfied out of the said several and respective rates and duties by this act granted, or some of them, with preference to any other payments, that shall or may hereafter be charged upon the same rates and duties, or any of them, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are hereafter in this act contained in that behalf.

New duties appropriated.

XXIV. And to the end all the monies to arise by this act may be duly and certainly raised and brought into the said receipt of Exchequer for the purposes aforesaid; it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many commissioners of the customs and excise, and other officers, as shall be proper and necessary for the raising and levying the respective duties and sums of money by this act granted or chargeable, and for keeping and rendring the accounts of the same; and that all receivers general, collectors, and other officers, who are or shall be concerned in the raising, collecting, receiving, and paying the said respective duties hereby granted, or any of them, and keeping and rendring the several accounts thereof, shall perform the several duties therein, as to them respectively shall be appointed, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the said monies, as are prescribed, and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late

XXV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty two years, reckoning the first year to begin from the twenty ninth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, the full sum of eighty one thousand pounds per annum, by or out of the monies to arise by the said rates, duties, and sums of money by this act granted, or chargeable, and to be brought into the receipt of Exchequer, as aforesaid, in case the same shall extend thereunto, shall be the whole and entire yearly fund; and in case all the monies arising into the Exchequer, or for the said rates and duties, shall not amount to eighty one thousand pounds per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same will extend, shall be part of the yearly fund for or towards the answering or paying of all the several and respective annuities herein after mentioned; and in case the said rates, duties, and sums of money by this act granted, shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year to be reckoned as aforesaid, the said monies arising into the Exchequer, for or upon account of the same rates and duties, shall not amount to so much as eighty one thousand pounds, or to so much as shall be sufficient to discharge and satisfy all the annuities by this act appointed or intended to be paid within or for the same year respectively, That then and so often, and in every such case, so much as shall be deficient or wanting to make up the said fund for every or any such year, shall be supplied and made good from time to time out of the surplus or remainder of the monies which, for such year respectively, shall arise by the rates and duties granted by an act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for continuing part of the duties on coals, culm, and cynders, and granting new duties upon houses having twenty windows or more, to raise the sum of fifteen hundred thousand pounds, by way of a lottery, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, after all the annuities, charges and payments directed or authorized by that act, until the end of such year respectively, shall be fully satisfied, paid, and discharged, or monies sufficient shall be reserved for that purpose (which surplus or remainder was reserved to be disposed by authority of parliament;) and in default of such surplus or remainder, then the said deficiency shall be supplied or made up from time to time out of the first aid to be granted in parliament, next after such deficiency shall appear, and shall from time to time be transferred thereunto, as soon as such aid shall be granted.

XXVII. And it is hereby enacted, That all the monies arising by the duties hereby granted, and provisions hereby made for payment of the several annuities which shall be payable upon this act, shall be fairly and duly entred in one or more book or books to be kept in the offices of the auditor of the receipt, and clerk of the pells, for that purpose, to which all persons concerned, at all seasonable times, shall have free access, without fee or charge.

LXIII. And for preventing the great charges that the officers of the customs, seizing goods prohibited and uncustomed, are put to, by groundless and vexatious claims entred thereto in the court where such goods are prosecuted; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every person, upon entry of any claim in the court where such prohibited and uncustomed goods are prosecuted, shall, from and after the twentieth day of April, one thousand seven hundred and ten, be obliged to give security in the penalty of thirty pounds to answer and pay the costs occasioned by such claim; and in default of giving such security within the time limited by the course of that court for entering claims, such goods shall be recovered.

C A P. IX.

An act for laying certain duties upon candles, and certain rates upon monies to be given with clerks, and apprentices, towards raising her Majesty's supply, for the year one thousand seven hundred and ten.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, duly considering your Majesty's great occasions for money to defray the expences of the present war, and other necessary services, have for that end and purpose cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty, as well the several duties for and upon all candles made in Great Britain, or imported into the same, as also the several duties or rates upon monies to be given, or agreed to be given, with such clerks, apprentices, or servants, as are herein after mentioned, for and during the respective terms herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all candles which, at any time or times within or during the term of five years, to be reckoned from the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain (over and above all customs, subsidies, and other duties already imposed thereupon) the several and respective duties herein after mentioned; that is to say, for all candles made of wax, or usually called or sold for wax candles (notwithstanding the mixture of any other ingredients therewith) which shall be so imported, the sum of four pence for every pound weight averdupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for all candles made of tallow, and other candles whatsoever (except the wax candles before charged) which shall be so imported, one halfpenny for every pound weight averdupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; the said several duties for and upon all imported candles, to be paid down in ready money by the importers thereof, before the landing of the same respectively; and there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, to and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all candles, which at any time or times, within or during the said term of five years, shall be made within the said kingdom of Great Britain, the several and respective duties herein after mentioned; that is to say, for all candles of wax, or usually called, or sold for wax candles (notwithstanding any mixture as aforesaid) which shall be so made in Great Britain, the sum of four pence for every pound weight averdupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for all candles of tallow, and other candles whatsoever (except the wax candles before charged) which shall be so made in Great Britain, one halfpenny for every pound weight averdupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; the said several duties for the said candles to to be made in Great Britain, to be paid by the makers thereof respectively.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said imported candles shall be landed, or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the said duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon shall be duly paid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively; that all such imported candles of what kind soever, as shall be so landed and put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof, to wit, one moiety of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the candles so imported and forfeited, or the value thereof, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in her Majesty's court of Exchequer in Scotland, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

Now these duties shall be raised.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon imported candles, by this act granted, during the continuance thereof, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, and answered, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the present duties upon candles imported, or any of them, are by any law or statute now in force, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, or answered, during the continuance thereof respectively.

Candles imported to be management of the commissioners of the customs.

IV. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported candles, as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in England for the time being; and such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported candles, as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and that the respective receivers general of the customs in England and Scotland for the time being, shall, from time to time, pay, or cause to be paid, all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties for imported candles (the necessary charges of raising and accounting for the same excepted) into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, distinctly and apart from all other branches of the public revenues, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are to be inflicted by this act, for diverting or misapplying any monies by this act appropriated or appointed for repayment of loans, or satisfaction of interest monies, as is herein after mentioned.

Candles, for which the duty hath been paid, may be exported, &c.

XXIV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, who shall have actually paid her Majesty's duties by this act payable for any quantity of candles whatsoever, and to and for any other person or persons, who shall buy or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of candles from the said person or persons who actually paid her Majesty's duties for the same, to export such candles for any foreign parts, by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantity of candles which shall be intended to be exported as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported, and that the same, or any part thereof, shall not be re-landed or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain; which security the customer or collector of the respective port for such exportation is hereby directed and authorized to take in her Majesty's name, and to her use.

XXV. Provided always, That if after the shipping of any such candles to be exported, as aforesaid, and the giving or tendering such security, as aforesaid, in order to obtain the allowance or drawback herein after mentioned, the candles so shipped to be exported, or any of them, shall be relanded in any part of Great Britain, that then and in every such case, over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to her Majesty's use, all the candles which shall be landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

Such candles relanded, forfeited, &c.

XXVI. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons who shall export any candles to any foreign parts, shall or may make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation, as aforesaid, That the duty of such candles hath been paid or secured according to this act (which oath or affirmation the collector who received the said duty is hereby required and empowered to administer) and thereupon the said collector for the said duty upon candles, shall give to such person or persons gratis a certificate or certificates, expressing the kinds and quantities of such candles, and the duties paid or secured to be paid for the same, pursuant to this act, which certificate being produced to the customer or collector of the port where the said candles shall be exported, and oath or affirmation, as aforesaid, being also made by the exporter before the said customer or collector of the port who is hereby also authorized and required to administer the same, without fee or charge) that the candles so exported are the same mentioned in the said certificate; then the said customer or collector of the port where such candles shall be exported, shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture expressing the true quantity of the candles so exported; which debenture being produced to the collector appointed to receive the said duties upon candles, in such county or place where the said candles were exported, he shall forthwith pay the said duty which shall have been received upon this act, to the persons or agents so exporting the same; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay the same, then the said respective commissioners of excise are hereby required to pay the said debenture out of the duties upon candles arising by this act, or if the duty of such candles exported were only secured, and shall remain unpaid, then the same shall be discharged upon the securities for the same; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Exporters of candles, on oath that the duty has been paid, or secured, and on certificate and debenture, to be repaid the duty, or security discharged, &c.

XXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all fines, penalties, and forfeitures, in relation to the said duties by this act imposed upon candles, shall be sued for, levied, and recovered, or mitigated, by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty, or forfeiture is or may be recovered or mitigated, by any law or laws of excise, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland; and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, and forfeiture, shall be to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them who shall discover, inform, or sue for the same.

Fines, &c. how to be recovered.

1 Jac. 2. c. 3.

MOST gracious sovereign, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain, in parliament assembled, for the better enabling your Majesty to defray the charge of this present war, and to finish the same as successfully as the said war hath hitherto (through the Divine goodness) been carried on, and for other your Majesty's most necessary and important occasions, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty the several and respective subsidies, impositions, and duties herein after particularly described, for and during the terms herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That the several impositions and duties upon wines and vinegar, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of his late majesty King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all wines and vinegar, imported between the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three, which said act by several subsequent acts of parliament since made, was continued, and is to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall by virtue of this act be further continued, and be payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all wines, and vinegar, which shall be imported into Great Britain, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and no longer; and that the said act so made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, for or concerning the said impositions on wines and vinegar, shall continue and be in full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties upon wines and vinegar, hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, matters, and things, in the said act of the first year of the reign of the said King James the Second contained, had been again this act repeated and particularly enacted.

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the rates, duties, and impositions upon all sorts of tobacco, granted by an act made in the first year of the reign of the said late King James the Second, intituled, An act for granting to his Majesty an imposition upon all tobacco and sugar, imported between the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred eighty five, and the twenty fourth day of June, one thousand six hundred ninety three, which said act, as for and concerning the said duties and impositions upon tobacco only, by several subsequent acts of parliament since made, was continued, and is to continue until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall by virtue of this act be further continued and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all tobacco to be imported into Great Britain, from the said last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and no longer.

Impositions on tobacco, further continued to 1 Aug. 1720.
1 Jac. 2. c. 4.
made perpetual by 9 Annæ, c. 21. s. 1, 2, 3.

III. Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said duty upon tobacco, which shall be imported within the times by this act limited, and all arrears thereof, shall be secured, collected, raised, levied, answered, and paid to her Majesty, in such method, and with such discount and allowances, and according to such rules and directions, and under such penalties, as are mentioned, referred to, or prescribed (as to the duties or impositions on tobacco) in and by the act made in the parliament holden in the seventh year of the reign of King William the Third, (of glorious memory) intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine, vinegar, and tobacco, and East India goods and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and not otherwise,

Duties on tobacco to be levied, &c. as by 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 10.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several additional and other rates, impositions, duties, and charges upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes granted by an act made in the second year of the reign of King William the Third and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain impositions upon all East India goods and merchandizes, and upon all wrought silks, and several other goods and merchandizes to be imported after the twenty fifth day of December, one thousand six hundred and ninety, and which thereby, and by several acts of parliament already made, have continuance until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall be further continued and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon the like commodities to be imported into Great Britain, from the said last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and no longer; and that the said act made in the second year of their late Majesties reign concerning East India goods, and other things therein charged, and all powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, shall continue and be of full force and effect until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said respective duties thereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if the said last-mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, had been again repeated and particularly enacted; except only as to such part of the said acts concerning the said impositions on wines, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, touching which other provisions or alterations are made by any act or acts of parliament now in force; which other provisions or alterations are to be observed, and to continue during the continuance of this act, and the said act, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine and vinegar, and upon tobacco and East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and every article, clause, matter, and thing therein contained, for the raising, levying, securing, answering, and paying the impositions and duties on the merchandizes and commodities thereby charged, and which are by this act continued, shall be of full force and effect until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the additional and other rates, duties, impositions, and charges upon the several sorts of goods and merchandizes granted by an act of parliament made in the fourth year of their said late Majesties reign, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties certain additional impositions upon several goods and merchandizes, for prosecuting the present war against France, which by several subsequent acts of parliament already made, have continuance until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall, by virtue of this act, be further continued, and be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, throughout Great Britain, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and no longer; and that the said act last mentioned, and all the powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, (except as herein after is excepted and provided) as for and concerning the said rates, duties, and impositions, shall continue and be in full force and effect, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said duties hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as if the said last-mentioned act, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things, therein mentioned, had been again repeated, and particularly enacted in this present act. Provided also, That in all cases where any other provision or alteration is made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, in or about any other matter or thing contained in the said act of parliament for the impositions last-mentioned, such other provisions or alterations shall be observed, during the continuance of the term hereby granted; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted, That the several impositions and duties, for and upon all whale-fins imported, which by an act of parliament, in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for taking away half the duties imposed on glass wares, and the whole duties lately laid on stone and earthen wares, and tobacco pipes, and for granting, in lieu thereof, new duties on whale-fins and Scotch linen, were granted to his said late majesty King William, and by subsequent acts already passed, have continuance until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, shall be, and are hereby continued and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, upon all whale-fins to be imported into Great Britain, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and no longer; and shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and under such penalties, as are mentioned in the said act for granting the said impositions on whale-fins, and Scotch linen; which act, with all the powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred to, shall continue, and be in full force, until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and shall be applied, practised, and put in execution, for raising and levying the said duties on whale-fins hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, as fully and effectually as if all the clauses, matters, and things therein contained, concerning the said duties on whale-fins, were repeated, and again enacted in the body of this present act.

VII. And whereas the said impositions on wines, vinegar, and tobacco, which were first granted to King James the Second, in the first year of his reign, and the said impositions on East India goods, and other goods charged therewith, which were first granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, in the second year of their reign, and the said additional impositions which were first granted to them, in the fourth year of their reign, and the said duties on whale-fins imported, which were granted to his said late majesty King William, in the ninth year of his reign, were by several subsequent acts of parliament continued, with some exceptions and alterations, as aforesaid, until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, in the manner therein mentioned, and are thereby made subject and liable (together with such other duties as are therein expressed) to the satisfaction of several principal sums which were borrowed, or authorized to be borrowed, upon those acts respectively, and the interest due, and to be due for the same, which principal and interest are to be duly paid off and discharged in the first place: now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and immediately after the time that all the principal and interest monies, which by the said former acts, or any of them, are charged or chargeable on the several impositions and duties last particularly mentioned (jointly with other duties) as aforesaid, shall be fully paid off and satisfied according to the true meaning of the said former acts, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose; then all the monies which from thenceforth shall arise by the said impositions upon wines, vinegar, and tobacco, which were first granted to King James the Second, in the first year of his reign, and the said impositions on East India goods, and other goods charged therewith, which were first granted to their late majesties King William and Queen Mary, in the second year of their reign, and the said additional impositions which were first granted to them in the fourth year of their reign, and the said duties on whale-fins imported, which were granted to his late majesty King William, in the ninth year of his reign, or the remainders of the terms formerly granted, and therein then to come and unexpired (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall from time to time be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer distinctly, for the purposes in this act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose, whatsoever.

After the principal, &c. of the former acts are discharged, the several duties appropriated for the uses of this act.

XV. And whereas by an act of parliament, made in the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing several duties therein mentioned upon coffee, chocolate, spices, pictures, and muslins, and additional duties upon several of the said commodities, and certain duties upon callicoes, China wares, and drugs, and for continuing the duties called the two third subsidies of tonnage and poundage, for preserving the public credit; and for ascertaining the duties of coals exported to foreign parts; and for securing the credit of the bank of England; and for passing several accounts of taxes raised in the county of Monmouth; and for promoting the consumption of such tobacco as shall have paid her Majesty's duties; it is amongst other things enacted, That all coals exported beyond the seas, from and after the end of the then present session of parliament, until the twenty fifth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, from Great Britain in British bottoms, shall only pay three shillings the chaldron, and after that rate for greater or lesser quantities; any former law or statute to the contrary notwithstanding, as by the same act more at large may appear: and whereas the said duty is a great hindrance to the British navigation, and lessens the exportation of coals from Great Britain to parts beyond the seas; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of December, in the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, the said duty of three shillings

No debenture for tobacco to Ireland, till a certificate from the collector, &c. in Ireland, of the landing the same there, by 6 Geo. 1. c. 21. f. 48. 21. per cent. to be allowed

XVI. And whereas by the laws of this realm, every person exporting tobacco, and other foreign goods, from any part of Great Britain, is entitled to a drawback of part of the duties paid or secured at the importation thereof, and it hath been found by experience, that great quantities of such tobacco and other foreign goods, after they have been shipped for exportation, have been privately re-landed in this realm; and the remedies already provided by law, have not been sufficient to obviate a practice so very prejudicial to her Majesty's revenue, and to all fair and honest traders in such goods: for the better prevention whereof for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the seven and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, in case any tobacco, or other foreign goods, contained or specified in any certificate whereupon any such drawback is to be made, or whereupon any debenture is to be made forth for any such drawback, shall not be really and bona fide shipped and exported (the danger of the seas and enemies excepted) or shall be landed again in any part of Great Britain, unless in case of distress to save the goods from perishing, which shall be presently made known to the person or persons which are or shall be appointed by her Majesty to manage her customs, or principal officers of the port: then not only all such tobacco and other certificate goods shall be forfeited and lost, but also the person or persons (being the exporters, or any others) who shall bring back, or cause, or procure to be re-landed such tobacco, and other certificate goods, or any of them, in any part of Great Britain, or be assisting, or otherwise concerned in the unshipping the same, or to whose hands the same shall knowingly come, after the unshipping thereof, or by whose privity, knowledge, or direction the said tobacco and other goods, or any part thereof, shall be so re-landed, shall forfeit double the amount of the said drawback for such goods, together with the vessels and boats, and all the horses or other carriages, and carriages whatsoever, made use of in the landing, removing, carrying, or conveyance of the same; one moiety of all which penalties or forfeitures shall be to the use of her Majesty, and the other moiety to him or them that shall inform, seize, or sue for the same, to be recovered by bill, plaint, or information, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland, at any time or times within five years after the offence shall be committed; wherein no essoin, privilege, or wager of law shall be allowed.

XVII. And it is hereby enacted, That if any officer of the customs shall connive or assist in any fraud relating to such certificate goods, as aforesaid, such officer (over and above any other penalties, to which he is or may be liable by this or any other act) shall forfeit his office, and be rendered incapable of serving her Majesty for the future, and suffer six months imprisonment, without bail or mainprize; and if any master, commander, or other person belonging to any ship or vessel, shall assist in, or connive at the fraudulent landing any such certificate goods as aforesaid, he, she, or they (over and above all other penalties provided by this or any other act or acts now in force) shall, for every such offence, suffer imprisonment by the space of six months, without bail or mainprize.

XVIII. And for preventing the running of tobacco into this kingdom under pretence of exporting the same to Ireland; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no debenture shall be paid or allowed for any tobacco exported from any part of Great Britain to the kingdom of Ireland, until a certificate shall be produced under the hands and seals of the collector, comptroller, and surveyor of the customs of any port in Ireland, or two of them, where such goods shall be landed, testifying the landing thereof, (the danger of the seas, or enemies excepted) any law to the contrary notwithstanding; which certificate the collector, comptroller, and surveyor of the customs, or any two of them, of each port in Ireland, are impowered and required to deliver forthwith, upon the discharge of such tobacco, and not to take above one shilling fee for making out and delivery of such certificate.

for tobacco exported to Ireland in case of waste.

XIX. And as a further security of her Majesty's revenues, both in Great Britain and Ireland; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the master of every ship carrying such certificate goods to Ireland, shall demand and take from the collector of every respective port of Great Britain, a duplicate of his content in writing, certified under the hand and seal of the collector and comptroller of such port, (which said duplicate the collector and comptroller of each port in Great Britain, are hereby required to deliver to every master, without fee or reward) and such master shall be obliged to deliver such duplicate to the officers of the customs in Ireland on his arrival, before he be permitted to land such goods there.

Master carrying certificate goods to Ireland, to take a duplicate of his content from the collector, &c.

No debenture for tobacco exported in any ship under 20 tuns.

XX. And whereas an illegal trade is usually carried on in small vessels or boats; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no debenture shall be made forth, nor any drawback be paid or allowed for any tobacco exported to any place, in any ship or vessel under the burthen of twenty tuns; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXI. And whereas by an exception or clause contained in an act made in the third year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for granting to her Majesty further subsidy on wines and merchandizes imported, it was provided, That such corans as should be imported in English built shipping, navigated according to law, should be exempted from paying the two third subsidy granted by the said act: and whereas by a clause in an act made in the fourth year of her Majesty's reign, for continuing an additional subsidy of tonnage and poundage, it was amongst other things enacted and declared, That the exception contained in the aforesaid act, whereby corans imported in English built shipping, navigated according to law, were exempted from the said duty, should be extended to such corans, after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, should be imported in ships belonging to any of the subjects of the republic of Venice, so that they also should be exempted from payment of the two thirds subsidy granted by the aforesaid act; any thing therein contained to the contrary notwithstanding: and whereas by an act made in the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, for continuing the several duties therein mentioned, the said two third subsidies were continued for three years, from the seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eight, with an exception as to corans imported in English built shipping, according to the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, and no notice is taken of the explanation thereof in the said act of the third year of her Majesty's reign, as to Venetian shipping also, whereby some doubts have arisen, whether corans imported in Venetian shipping ought to be exempted from the continuation of the two thirds subsidy, according to the provision before mentioned in the said act of the fourth year of her Majesty's reign, extending the exemption to them: for preventing which doubts, and in regard it would be very hard to restrain subjects of Venice from importing the goods of their own growth in their own shipping; be it therefore declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said clause in the act of the fourth year of the Queen's reign, for exempting corans imported in Venetian shipping from paying the two thirds subsidy, was intended, and is to be understood, from the time of passing the same act, to be a perpetual clause attending the continuation of that duty, and not limited unto the first grant thereof; any thing in the said act of the sixth, or in any other subsequent act, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

And whereas the laws of this realm do require, That for ships trading to or in her Majesty's plantations, lading sugars and other enumerated commodities there, bonds be given, which are commonly called Plantation bonds, with condition to bring the same goods to Great Britain, or to some other of her Majesty's plantations, or to that effect: now to prevent the discouragement which persons persons trading to and from the said plantations do or may lie under by the said bonds lying out against them, although the conditions thereof are or shall have been performed; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That as to such of the said plantation bonds as have been entred into at any time or times before the eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and are now remaining in the hands of any of her Majesty's officers, in case there shall be no prosecution for some breach or non-performance of the respective conditions thereof before the eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, or if upon such prosecution judgment be not obtained for her Majesty before the eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, then such of the said plantation bonds, so already entred into, shall (for want of such prosecution or judgment) be void; and as to such plantation bonds as shall be entred into after the said eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, in case there shall be no prosecution for some breach or non-performance of the respective conditions thereof, within three years after the dates thereof, or if upon such prosecution as is last-mentioned judgment be not obtained for her Majesty within the space of two years after the same prosecution commenced, then every such plantation bond, which shall hereafter be entred into, as aforesaid (in default of such prosecution to be commenced, and judgment to be obtained within the times before limited) shall also be void: and all the said plantation bonds so made void by this act, shall be delivered up by the officers, having the same in their keeping, to be cancelled, without fee or reward.

XXIV. And whereas by an act made in the eleventh year of the reign of the said late Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for the more effectual employing the poor, by encouraging the manufactures of this kingdom, upon the exportation of wrought silks, and other commodities therein mentioned, security is to be taken in the manner therein exprest: now in regard it may happen some of these goods may be vended in foreign parts, from which no certificate can be produced, as the said act requires, to discharge the security last-mentioned; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That as to such of the securities last-mentioned, as have been entred into at any time or times before the eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and are now remaining in the hands of any of her Majesty's officers, in case there shall be no prosecution for some breach, or non-performance of the respective conditions thereof, before the eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen; or if upon such prosecution judgment be not obtained for her Majesty before the eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, then such of the said securities so already entred into upon exportation of such silks, and other commodities last-mentioned, shall (for want of such prosecution or judgment) be void; and as to such securities as shall be entred into, after the said eight and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, upon exportation of such wrought silks, and other commodities as are last-mentioned, in case there shall be no prosecution for some breach, or non-performance of the respective conditions thereof, within three years after the dates thereof, or if upon such prosecution as is last-mentioned, judgment be not obtained for her Majesty within the space of two years after the same prosecution commenced, then every such security relating to wrought silks, or such other goods as are last-mentioned, which shall hereafter be entred into, as aforesaid, (in default of such prosecution to be commenced, and judgment to be obtained within the times before limited) shall also be void; and all such securities so made void by this act, shall be delivered up by the respective officers, having the same in their keeping, to be cancelled, without fee or reward.

XXV. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer of her Majesty's revenue, having the custody of any of the bonds by this act required to be delivered up to be cancelled, as aforesaid, shall, upon reasonable reasonable demand, refuse or neglect to deliver up such bonds, according to the purport and true meaning of this act, then the officer so offending shall, for every such offence, be, and is hereby made liable to answer to the party grieved, all his damages, together with treble costs of suit.

XXVI. And in regard the subsidy of tonnage and poundage on merchandizes exported is to determine from and after the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, but it is nevertheless necessary, that the respective officers of the customs, as well outwards as inwards, do continue to perform the duties of their respective offices, as well to prevent frauds in relation to the drawbacks upon certificate goods, as to hinder the exportation of goods prohibited to be exported, and for other causes wherein the publick service is or may be concerned; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the fees of the officers of the customs, as well in the port of London as in other ports of Great Britain, which were established or allowed by the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, or by any of the rules annexed thereunto, or by any act or acts of parliament since made, touching any such fees, and which may lawfully be taken by any such officers, or their deputies, from any her Majesty's subjects or strangers, until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, for any procquets, certificates, entries, clearings, bonds, debentures, endorsements, sufferances, transires, lett-passes, warrants, and other matters and things relating to the duties of their respective offices, shall, after the said last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, continue, and be paid and payable for the same, until the said fees, or any of them, shall be altered by the commons of Great Britain in parliament, as fully as if the said fees, or any table or tables thereof formerly allowed, were particularly set down, or referred to in the body of this act; the determination of the said subsidy outwards, or any act or acts of parliament, or other matter or thing to the contrary notwithstanding:

Custom fees allowed by 12 Car. 2. c. 4. continued till altered by parliament.

XXVII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any officer or officers of the customs shall, contrary to his duty, imbezil any goods or merchandizes lodged in any warehouse, in his or their custody or possession, such officer and officers, for every such offence, shall forfeit double the value of the goods so imbezilled, to the parties grieved, with full costs, to be recovered as other penalties by this act are recoverable.

Officer imbezilling any goods, forfeits double the value, with full costs.

An act for the encouragement of learning, by vesting the copies of printed books in the authors or purchasers of such copies, during the times therein mentioned.

WHEREAS printers, booksellers, and other persons have of late frequently taken the liberty of printing, reprinting, and publishing, or causing to be printed, reprinted, and published, books and other writings, without the consent of the authors or proprietors of such books and writings, to their very great detriment, and too often to the ruin of them and their families: for preventing therefore such practices for the future, and for the encouragement of learned men to compose and write useful books; may it please your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the tenth day of April, one thousand seven hundred and ten, the author of any book or books already

After 10 April 1710, the authors of books already printed, who have not transferred their rights, and the booktel-lers, &c. who have purchased copies, shall have the sole right of printing them for the term of 21 years: and the authors of books not printed, to have the sole right of printing for 14 years.

already printed, who hath not transferred to any other the copy or copies of such book or books, share or shares thereof, or the bookseller or booksellers, printer or printers, or other person or persons, who hath or have purchased or acquired the copy or copies of any book or books, in order to print or reprint the same, shall have the sole right and liberty of printing such book and books for the term of one and twenty years, to commence from the said tenth day of April, and no longer; and that the author of any book or books already composed, and not printed and published, or that shall hereafter be composed, and his assignee or assigns, shall have the sole liberty of printing and reprinting such book and books for the term of fourteen years, to commence from the day of the first publishing the same, and no longer; and that if any other bookseller, printer, or other person whatsoever, from and after the tenth day of April, one thousand seven hundred and ten, within the times granted and limited by this act, as aforesaid, shall print, reprint, or import, or cause to be printed, reprinted, or imported, any such book or books, without the consent of the proprietor or proprietors thereof first had and obtained in writing, signed in the presence of two or more credible witnesses; or knowing the same to be so printed or reprinted, without the consent of the proprietors, shall sell, publish, or expose to sale, or cause to be sold, published, or exposed to sale, any such book or books, without such consent first had and obtained, as aforesaid: then such offender or offenders shall forfeit such book or books, and all and every sheet or sheets, being part of such book or books, to the proprietor or proprietors of the copy thereof, who shall forthwith damask, and make waste paper of them; and further, That every such offender or offenders shall forfeit one penny for every sheet which shall be found in his, her, or their custody, either printed or printing, published or exposed to sale, contrary to the true intent and meaning of this act; the one moiety thereof to the Queen's most excellent Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to any person or persons that shall sue for the same, to be recovered in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in which no wager of law, essoin, privilege, or protection, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed.

VI. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That if any person or persons incur the penalties contained in this act, in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, they shall be recoverable by any action before the court of session there.

VII. Provided, That nothing in this act contained do extend, or shall be construed to extend, to prohibit the importation, vending, or selling of any books in Greek, Latin, or any other foreign language, printed beyond the seas; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action or suit shall be commenced or brought against any person or persons whatsoever, for doing, or causing to be done, any thing in pursuance of this act, the defendants in such action may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence; and if upon such action a verdict be given for the defendant, or the plaintiff become nonsuited, or discontinue his action, then the defendant shall have and recover his full costs, for which he shall have the same remedy as a defendant in any case by law hath.

X. Provided nevertheless, That all actions, suits, bills, indictments, or informations for any offence that shall be committed against this act, shall be brought, sued, and commenced, within three months next after such offence committed, or else the same shall be void and of none effect.

by several acts of parliament, since taken away, lessened, or altered: now it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so much of the said subsidy of poundage, and other duties, (first granted by the said act of the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, as aforesaid) on several goods and merchandizes exported, as did remain or had continuance until the first day of August in this present year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, or which by force or virtue of the said act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, For making good deficiencies, and the act of the fifth year of her Majesty's reign, For the union of the two kingdoms of England and Scotland, or by any other act or acts of parliament relating thereunto, were payable or existent on the last day of July, in the said year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, for any goods or merchandizes exported, shall, by force and virtue of this act, be revived, and be further continued, and be paid and payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon the like goods and merchandizes respectively to be exported from Great Britain, from and after the eighth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, at any time or times, within or during the term of thirty two years from thence next ensuing, (other than and except such duties as were formerly granted to be paid upon the exportation of sea coals for parts beyond the seas, instead whereof other duties are imposed by this present act.)

II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said subsidy of poundage, and other duties upon goods and merchandizes exported, hereby revived and continued, during all the term of years therein granted, as aforesaid, and all arrearages of the same, shall and may, from time to time, be raised, received, levied, and recovered, by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances for goods lost or taken at sea, and such other allowances, and in such manner and form, as the like subsidy of poundage and other duties, which continued until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, were or might be raised, received, levied, or recovered, by any law or statute which was in force on the said last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and that so much of the said act of the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and of the order of the commons in parliament assembled, bearing date the seventeenth day of May, one thousand six hundred and forty two, for settling of officers fees, and all such clauses, penalties, forfeitures, matters, and things, contained in the act last-mentioned, or any other act or acts of parliament whatsoever, as on the said last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and ten, were in force, for the raising, receiving, levying, or recovering, or for making allowances out of the said subsidy of poundage and other duties on goods or merchandizes exported, which had continuance until the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall be revived, practised, and put in execution, for raising, receiving, levying, and recovering, or making allowances out of the said subsidy of poundage and other duties hereby imposed on goods and merchandizes to be exported, during the said term of thirty two years, and all arrearages of the same, as fully and effectually as if they were particularly and at large recited and set down in the body of this present act.

III. Provided always, and it is hereby declared, That where the subsidy of poundage, or other duties formerly granted, as aforesaid, on goods or merchandizes exported, have been taken away, in part or in the whole, upon any particular goods or merchandizes so exported, by virtue of any act or acts of parliament, or by any clause or clauses contained in any such act or acts formerly made for taking away or diminishing the same, in all such cases, the subsidy or duty, or such part of the said subsidy or duty so taken away, shall not be revived or continued by virtue of this present act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And

IV. And it is hereby also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for and during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons, natives or foreigners, to buy in open fair or market, and to export and transport from Great Britain into Ireland, or any foreign parts beyond the seas, all sorts of leather, sheep-skins or calve-skins, tanned, tawed, or dressed, paying for each hundred weight of all sorts of leather, sheep-skins and calve-skins, containing one hundred and twelve pounds, and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, the sum of twelve pence, and no more; any former law, statute, or usage to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Leather, &c. may be exported, paying 12d. per C. for 32 years. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 1.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective rates and duties herein after mentioned, (and none other) shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all coals, which at any time or times within or during the term of thirty two years, to commence from the eighth day of March, in the present year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall be exported, or shipped to be exported beyond the seas; (that is to say), For all coals of Wales, or the west of England, which shall be shipped for exportation to Ireland, or the isle of Man, the sum of one shilling for every chalder, (reckoning the chalder to consist of thirty six bushels Winchester measure) and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; for every chalder (like Winchester measure) of coals, which shall be shipped for exportation to any of her Majesty's plantations, the sum of two shillings, and proportionably for any greater or lesser quantity; and for every chalder of coals, (Newcastle measure) which shall be shipped for exportation to any parts beyond the seas, (other than as aforesaid) in foreign built bottoms, twelve shillings, and in English built bottoms, three shillings, and after those rates for greater or lesser quantities; and for such coals which at any time during the said term of thirty two years, shall be so exported, or shipped to be exported, as aforesaid, for Ireland, or the isle of Man, or for the plantations, or other parts beyond the seas, (in case they are such coals as are usually sold by weight) the proportional rates following; videlicet, For such coals to be exported for Ireland, or the isle of Man, eight pence per tun, reckoning the tun to be twenty hundred weight; and for such coals shipped for exportation to the plantations, sixteen pence for every such tun; and for every such tun of such coals which shall be shipped for exportation to any other parts beyond the seas, one third part of the said rates charged thereon, in case they were shipped by Newcastle measure, as aforesaid, and proportionally for greater or lesser quantities: the said respective duties on coals exported to be raised, levied, uplifted, and recovered in the same manner, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and by such rules, ways, and methods, as any other customs or duties, payable to her Majesty upon the exportation of any goods or merchandizes, are by this act, or by any other law or statute now in force, to be raised, levied, uplifted, or recovered in England or Scotland respectively.

VII. And it is hereby provided and declared by the authority aforesaid, That during the term of thirty two years last-mentioned, no duties shall be charged or raised to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for or upon the exportation of any coals to or for any of her Majesty's plantations, by the act for the encouragement of trade, made in the fifteenth year of the reign of the said late King Charles the Second, or for any coals to be exported in foreign bottoms, by an act made in the sixth year of her Majesty's reign in that behalf, or for any coals whatsoever, upon the exportation thereof to parts beyond the seas, other than the several and respective rates and duties by this act imposed upon the same, during the continuance thereof; any other law or statute whatsoever to the contrary notwithstanding.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for and during the term of thirty two years, commencing from the said eighth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ten, and no longer, there shall be raised, levied, uplifted, collected, and paid unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all coals, culm, and cynders, (except charcoal made of wood) which shall be shipped or water-born, and carried from any port or place in Great Britain, to any other port or place within the same, in such manner as is hereinafter expressed; and for all coals (if any such be) which shall be imported into Great Britain from any foreign parts, the several and respective impositions, rates, duties, and sums of money herein-after mentioned (over and above all such duties as are already granted or payable for or in respect of the same coals, culm, and cynders, so water-born, and carried coastwise, and in respect of the said coals so imported, or any of them); that is to say, For all coals which at any time or times, within or during the said term of thirty two years last-mentioned, shall be imported or brought into the said kingdom of Great Britain from any part beyond the sea, (in case they are such coals as are most usually sold by weight) the sum of two shillings for every tun, (reckoning the tun to consist of twenty hundred weight, and every hundred to consist of one hundred and twelve pounds weight of Averdupois) and after that rate for any greater or lesser quantity; and for all coals so imported from any part beyond the sea, being most usually sold by the chalder, or by any other measure whatsoever reducible to the chalder, the sum of three shillings for every chalder, reckoning each chalder to consist of thirty bushels Winchester measure, as aforesaid, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity of such coals so imported, or brought in from any foreign parts; the said duties for foreign coals imported, or brought in as aforesaid, to be paid by the respective importer or importers thereof; and for all sorts of coals from time to time shipped, or water-born in order to be shipped, or laid on board any ship or vessel to be carried by sea, and which shall be carried by sea, in any ship or vessel from any port or place within the said kingdom of Great Britain, and which at any time or times, within or during the same term, shall be imported, brought or landed in any other port or place within the said kingdom of Great Britain, being most usually sold by the chalder, or by any other measure whatsoever reducible to the chalder, the sum of two shillings for every chalder, to be reckoned as aforesaid, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and for all sorts of coals from time to time so shipped, or water-born in order to be shipped, and carried by sea, from any port or place of the kingdom of Great Britain, and which at any time or times during the same term, shall be imported, brought or landed in any other port or place of the same, (in case they are such as are most usually sold by weight) the sum of sixteen pence for every tun, and according to that proportion for more or less; the said several duties for coals so shipped, or water-born to be shipped and carried by sea, as aforesaid, from time to time to be paid at the respective ports and places of importation, or landing of such coals, and to be charged on the respective owners and owners, master or other persons having the charge of every such ship vessel, or of the coals so carried, imported, or brought in the same: and Duty on culm, or all culm whatsoever, which at any time during the same term of thirty years shall be water-born in order to be shipped within the said kingdom of Great Britain, or brought into the same, the sum of four pence, and eight parts of a penny, for every such chalders, as aforesaid, and after that rate to be paid at the respective ports and places of importation or landing of such culm, and to be charged on the respective owner and owners, or master or masters, or other persons having the charge of the ship or vessel, of the culm so carried, imported, or brought in the same: and for all Duty on cynders.

 cynders made of pit-coal, which at any time or times during the same term of thirty two years shall be shipped, or water-born in order to be shipped within the said kingdom of Great Britain, or brought into the same, the sum of two shillings for every such chalders, as aforesaid, and after that rate or a greater or lesser quantity, to be paid at the respective ports and places of importation or landing such cynders, and to be charged upon the respective owner and owners, master and masters, or other persons having the charge of the ship or vessel in which the said cynders shall be carried, imported, or brought.

IX. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said These duties several duties by this act imposed, within and throughout the said kingdom on coals, &c.
 of Great Britain, for and upon such coals, culm, and cynders which shall to be levied as water-born, and carried coastwise, or from one part of Great Britain to by the act any other part of the same, as aforesaid, during all the time and term by 4 Ann. c. 6.
 this act granted therein, and all arrearages thereof, shall and may be raised, levied, collected, and recovered in such or the like manner and form, and subject to such allowances and repayments, and under such penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, and according to such rules, and methods, and directions, as by the act of parliament made in the fourth year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing an additional subsidy of tonnage, and 4 Ann. c. 6.
and certain duties upon coals, culm, and cynders; and additional duties of excise; and for settling and establishing a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and six, and other uses therein mentioned, or by any other law or statute whatsoever are prescribed or appointed for the raising, levying, securing, collecting and recovering the duties upon the like coals, culm, and cynders, which had continuance until the thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten; and that all and every the powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, clauses, matters, and things, which were contained in the said act of the fourth year of her Majesty's reign, or were are in any other acts or statutes thereby referred unto, for the managing, raising, levying, securing, collecting, recovering or accounting for the and duties upon coals, culm, and cynders, which were granted or continued until the said thirtieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and ten, as aforesaid, shall be and are, by force and virtue of this present act, revived, and shall be in full force, and be duly observed, practised, and put in execution, in and for the managing, raising, levying, securing, recovering, and accounting for the duties upon the like coals, culm, and cynders by this act granted, for and during the whole term hereby granted of and in the same, and all arrearages thereof, as fully and effectually, to all ends and purposes, as if the same powers, authorities, rules, directions, penalties, forfeitures, disabilities, clauses, matters and things, were again expressed, and particularly repeated and re-enacted in the body of this present act.

X. And whereas a doubt may arise whether coals, culm or cynders carried Coals carried from the bridge of Sterling, which is on the Firth of Forth, to the town of from Sterling

XII. And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective duties by this act imposed for and upon all candles imported or made, as aforesaid, for and during all the term of years hereby granted, of and in the same, and all arrearages thereof, shall and may, from time to time, be raised, received, levied, recovered, and secured, by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such power of adjudging and mitigating penalties and forfeitures, and with such power of making compositions, and other powers, and subject to such allowances, drawbacks, rules, and directions, and in such methods, manner, and form, as the like duties upon candles granted by an act of the eighth year of her Majesty's reign, whereby certain duties were laid upon candles, towards raising her Majesty's supply for the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, are by that act, or by any law or statute thereby referred unto, prescribed, appointed, or enacted to be raised, received, levied, secured, or recovered, during the continuance thereof; and that the act last-mentioned, and all the clauses, penalties, forfeitures, powers, authorities, rules, directions, matters, and things therein contained, or thereby referred unto, for the raising, receiving, levying, recovering, securing, compounding, paying, or accounting for the said duties upon candles thereby granted, during the continuance thereof, or any arrearages of the same, are and shall be, by force and virtue of this act, continued, practised, practised, and put in execution, for raising, receiving, levying, recovering, securing, compounding, paying, and accounting for the duties upon candles by this act granted, and making allowances out of the same, during the said term of thirty two years hereby granted, and all arrearages thereof, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if they were particularly, and at large repeated in the body of this present act.

XVII. And for the better levying and raising the several duties and sums of money by this act granted, which are to arise upon the exportation or importation of any goods, merchandizes, or commodities whatsoever, or upon such coals, culm, and cynders, as shall be waterborn and carried coastwise, as aforesaid; it is hereby enacted, That such of the same duties and sums of money as shall arise or be due or payable in that part of Great Britain called England, Wales, or the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall, from time to time, be under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs in England for the time being, who shall cause those duties from time to time to be raised, levied, collected, and paid to the receiver or receivers general of the customs in England for the time being; and that such receiver or receivers general in England for the time being, shall pay all the money arising thereby (such additional charges as shall be necessary for receiving, levying, managing, paying, and accounting for the same, excepted) into her Majesty's receipt of Exchequer, distinct and apart from all other branches of the publick revenue, weekly, to wit, on Wednesday in every week, if it be not an holy-day; and if it be, then on the next day after that is not an holy-day, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities herein after-mentioned; and that such of the said duties and sums of money by this act granted, which shall arise, or be due or payable in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, upon the exportation or importation of any goods, merchandizes, or commodities whatsoever, or upon such coals, culm, and cynders, as shall be waterborn or carried coastwise, as aforesaid, shall, from time to time, be under the management and government of the commissioners of the customs in Scotland for the time being, who shall cause those duties, from time to time, to be raised, levied, collected, and paid to the receiver or receivers general of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and that such receiver or receivers general of the customs in Scotland for the time being shall transmit and pay, or cause to be paid, all the monies arising thereby (such additional charges as shall be necessary for receiving, levying, managing, paying, and accounting for the same, excepted) into her Majesty's receipt of Exchequer in England, distinct and apart, as aforesaid, from time to time, as such receiver or receivers general in Scotland shall have received any such monies, as aforesaid, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities herein after-mentioned.

The duties arising by exportation or importation, to be under the management of the commissioners of the customs, &c.

XVIII. And whereas by an act of parliament, made in the fourteenth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for preventing frauds, and regulating abuses in his Majesty's customs, and by the said act of union relating thereunto, it is provided, that every merchant or other person who shall export any goods or merchandizes from any port of this kingdom, capable of a ship or vessel of two hundred tuns, upon an ordinary full sea, to any port or place of the Mediterranean sea, beyond the port of Malaga, in any ship or vessel that hath not two decks, and doth carry less than sixteen pieces of ordnance mounted, together with two men for each gun, and other ammunition proportionable, shall pay for all the wares and merchandizes so exported or imported, an additional duty of one per cent. as is thereby prescribed; and by an act of the sixth year of her now Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for encouraging the dressing and dying of woollen cloths within this kingdom, by laying a duty upon broad cloth exported white, it is enacted, That a duty of five shillings shall be paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for every white white woollen cloth, commonly called broad cloth, which shall be exported out of this kingdom into foreign parts, as by that and several acts may more fully appear: now it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies which at any time or times, within or during the said term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the said eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall arise, or be due or payable, as well of or for the said additional duty of one per cent. for goods to be exported in such ships, as aforesaid, as of or for the said duty on white woollen cloths, formerly granted or imposed, as aforesaid, shall also be under the government and management of the commissioners of the customs for the time being, in England and Scotland respectively, who shall also cause those duties, from time to time, to be raised, levied, collected, and paid to the said respective receiver or receivers general for the time being; and that the said receiver general in England for the time being, shall also pay the monies thereof which he shall receive (necessary charges excepted) into her Majesty's receipt of Exchequer in England, weekly, as aforesaid, for the purposes in this act expressed, under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities herein after-mentioned; and the said receiver general in Scotland for the time being, shall likewise pay or transmit the money which he shall receive of the particular duties last-mentioned (necessary charges, as aforesaid, excepted) into the same receipt of Exchequer in England, from time to time, as he shall have received the same, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities herein after-mentioned.

XIX. And it is hereby enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said subsidy of poundage upon several goods and merchandizes to be exported; and the said duty to arise upon the exportation of leather, sheep-skins, and calve-skins tanned, tawed, or dressed; and the said several duties to arise upon coals to be exported for parts beyond the seas; and the said several duties to arise by coals, culm, and cynders, which shall be waterborn, and carried from one part of Great Britain to any other part of the same; and the money hereby appointed to be brought into the Exchequer of or for the said additional duty of one per cent. on goods exported in such ships, as aforesaid; and the said duty on white woollen cloths; and the said duties upon candles made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; and all other the duties and sums of money by this act granted, shall be liable to, and charged and chargeable with the yearly fund herein after-mentioned, and to and with all the payments, to be made out of the same in pursuance of this act, during the whole term of thirty two years herein after expressed; and all the same subsidies, duties, and sums of money (except the necessary charges for execution of this act) are and shall be appropriated thereunto in such manner, that all the monies which shall, from time to time, be or remain due or in arrear for principal or interest upon this act, shall, from time to time, be paid and satisfied out of the said several and respective duties by this act granted or appointed for the payments thereof, without being diverted to any other use, intent or purpose whatsoever, under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are hereafter in this act contained in that behalf.

XX. And to the end all the monies arising by the said subsidy of poundage upon several goods and merchandizes to be exported; and by the said duty upon leather and such skins to be exported, as aforesaid; and by the said several duties to arise upon coals to be exported from parts beyond the seas; and by the said several duties to arise upon coals, culm, and cynders, to be waterborn, and carried coastwise as aforesaid; and by the said additional duty of one per cent. on goods exported to the Mediterranean sea, as aforesaid; and by the said duty upon white woollen cloths to be exported; and by the said duties upon candles made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; or by any other the duties granted or appropriated and every of them, may be duly, and certainly raised and brought into the said receipt of Exchequer for the purposes aforesaid; it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed and kept, such and so many commissioners of customs and excise, receivers general, collectors, surveyors, and other judicial and ministerial officers, as shall be proper and necessary for managing, governing, adjudging, levying, receiving, collecting, and paying the said respective duties by this act granted or appropriated, and for keeping and rendering the accounts of the same; and that the said receivers general, collectors, surveyors, and other officers, who are or shall be concerned in the raising, collecting, receiving, and paying the same respective duties, or any of them, and keeping and rendering the several accounts thereof, shall perform their several duties therein, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the said monies, as are prescribed, and so be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament, made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late Majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties upon salt, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, thereby granted, or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies which were granted or appropriated by the act last mentioned.

LIII. And whereas a doubt may arise whether all pieces of linen cloth under forty ells exported, are liable to the duty of six pence, by this act or any former act imposed, and hereby revived; it is hereby provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That only forty ells of linen cloth, exported to foreign parts, shall pay six pence, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity of ells; any thing in this or any former act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

40 ells of linen cloth to pay 6 d. on exportation.

LIV. And whereas all the copper ores found within the county of Cornwall, are carried to be melted at such places where coals pay no duty; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the eighth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, all coals that shall be used for melting copper and tin ores within the counties of Cornwall and Devon, for which duties have been first answered, shall, upon proof by oath made before the customer or collector of the said duties (which oath he is hereby empowered to administer) have a drawback for all the duties on the said coals, to be paid by the collector of the duties to such person so making proof, as aforesaid.

Coals for melting copper in Cornwall, &c. to have a drawback of the duty.

LV. And, for the encouragement of the iron manufacture of Great Britain, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the five and twentieth day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, there shall not be allowed any drawback, or re-payment of customs or duties charged upon any iron or steel that hath or shall be imported into Great Britain, and afterwards exported to or for her Majesty's plantations or colonies in America; any clause in any former act to the contrary notwithstanding.

Iron, &c. imported and afterwards exported, to have no drawback.

LIX. And whereas some doubt hath arisen, whether long pepper might not be chargeable with the additional duty of one shilling and six pence per pound, chargeable upon all and all manner of pepper, by virtue of the act made the last session of parliament, for granting to her Majesty new duties of excise upon several imported commodities; for preventing therefore of any disputes concerning the same, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That long pepper shall not be deemed, construed or taken to be charged or chargeable with the said duty of one shilling and six pence per pound; any thing in the said last-mentioned act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Long pepper not chargeable with 1 s. 6 d. per lb.

Hides, &c. imported, not before charged,

to be paid by the importer.

IV. And

Duty on vellum and parchment imported or made in Great Britain. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all vellum and parchment which shall, at any time or times, within or during the said term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, be made in Great Britain, or imported into the same, the several and respective rates and duties herein after expressed; that is to say, for and upon all vellum so imported a duty after the rate of one shilling for every dozen; and for all parchment so imported a duty after the rate of six pence for every dozen, and proportionally for greater or lesser numbers or quantities, to be paid by the importers thereof respectively; and for and upon all vellum which shall be made in Great Britain, as aforesaid, a duty after the rate of one shilling for every dozen; and for all parchment which shall be made in Great Britain, as aforesaid, a duty after the rate of six pence for every dozen, to be paid by the makers thereof respectively.

Duty on skins, &c. imported, to be paid by the importer.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several rates and duties by this act set or imposed upon all or any of the said hides or skins, or pieces of hides or skins, vellum and parchment, or made wares, by this act chargeable, which shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, as aforesaid, shall from time to time be satisfied and paid by the importer or importers of the same in ready money, upon his, her, or their entry or entries made, and before the landing thereof; and that in case any of the same commodities or manufactures shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the said duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon shall be duly paid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported commodities and manufactures by this act chargeable, as aforesaid, as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit, one moiety of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for such commodities or manufactures chargeable by this act, as shall be so imported and forfeited, or the value thereof, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in her Majesty's court of Exchequer in Scotland, by action, bill, suit or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be granted or allowed.

Goods landed before entry, &c. forfeited, or the value.

After duty paid, skins, &c. to be marked.

VI. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the duties hereby granted upon such imported hides or skins shall be paid and satisfied, the officer or officers of the customs of the port or place where the same shall be imported, shall cause every such hide or skin to be marked with such distinct mark as this act directs to be provided and used, to denote the payment of the duty of such imported hides or skins, as aforesaid.

How these duties shall be raised.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties on all such commodities and manufactures chargeable by this act, as shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, during the continuance thereof, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, uplifted, levied, recovered and answered, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as her Majesty's duties, called the subsidies upon poundage goods imported, or any of them, are by any law or statute now in force, to be ascertained, secured, raised, uplifted, levied, recovered and answered, during the continuance thereof respectively.

VIII. And

VIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted, That the values of such the said imported commodities and manufactures chargeable by this act, are to pay duty ad valorem, upon the importation thereof, shall in all cases be taken to be so much as such imported kinds are really worth to be sold at the port of importation, without any abatement for the duties thereon charged by this or any former act; and that the respective customer, collector, or other person or persons, officer or officers of the customs, for the time being, shall receive and levy the said duty, payable ad valorem, upon the oath of the merchant or importer accordingly; and such oath shall and may be administered, and all other matters done for ascertaining the said duties, so payable ad valorem, in the same manner and form as are lawfully used and practised, or ought to be practised, for ascertaining any other the duties payable ad valorem, upon the importation of leather.

IX. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That such the duties imposed by this act for or upon the said commodities or manufactures to be imported, as aforesaid, as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in England for the time being; and such of the duties imposed by this act on the said commodities and manufactures to be imported, as aforesaid, as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and that the respective receivers general of the customs in England and Scotland for the time being shall, from time to time, pay, or cause to be paid, all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties on the said commodities and manufactures to be imported, aforesaid, (the necessary charges of raising and accounting for the same excepted) into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, distinctly and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, and under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities as are to be inflicted by this act, for diverting or misapplying any monies by this act required to be paid into the Exchequer.

XXXIX. And to the end that all and every person and persons, who shall export any hides, or calve-skins, tanned, tawed, or dressed, which shall have been duly marked with such mark or stamp, as aforesaid, denoting the charging of the duty payable by this act for the same, as aforesaid, any hides or calve-skins, being part of the said stock in hand, always excepted) and that all and every person and persons, who shall export any boots, shoes, gloves, or other manufactures, made of any kind of leather chargeable by this act to pay a duty by weight, may respectively, upon the importation of such hides or calve-skins, or any such made wares as are last mentioned, receive such respective allowances as are herein after expressed; be further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the shipping of any such hides or calve-skins, (except before excepted) or any of the made wares last mentioned, for exportation into foreign parts, and upon sufficient security to be first given to the customer or collector of the customs of the port from whence such exportation shall be made, (which security they have hereby power to take, in the name, and to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors) that such hides, calve-skins, and such made wares last before mentioned, so shipped, or any part thereof, shall not be re-landed or brought more again in any port or part of Great Britain, the said customer or collector shall give to the exporter thereof a certificate or debenture in writing of the kinds and quantities and weight of the hides, calve-skins, and such made wares so exported, for which security shall have been given, as aforesaid.

XL. And it is hereby enacted, That upon producing such certificate or debenture for any quantity of such hides or calve-skins so exported, to the collector of the said duties at the port where the said hides or calve-skins shall be exported, in every such case the same collector shall forthwith, out of the Imported goods that pay ad valorem, how to be ascertained.

These duties to be under the government of the commissioners of the customs.

Matters in this section further provided for by 10 Anne, c. 26. f. 3 & 4.

On exportation of hides or calve-skins, or leather manufactures, on security, &c. Customer, &c. to give the exporter a certificate of the kinds, quantities, and weight.

For the drawback on tanned leather exported, see 14 Anne, stat. 2. c. 9. f. 64.

On producing such certificates, collector, &c. to repay two thirds of the duties.

Such repayment to be made, though the mark to denote the charging of the duty, do not appear on such made wares.

Such goods relanded, forfeited, and treble the value.

Goods curried only not entitled to a drawback.

Commissioners of customs to provide stamps for hides, &c. imported.

Commissioners of this duty to provide stamps for hides, &c. tanned, &c. in Great Britain; and stamps to mark stock in hand.

monies in his hands for her Majesty's use of the same duties, and in default thereof, then the commissioners for the same duties shall repay, or cause to be repaid, to the person or persons who shall produce such certificate or debenture from the said customer or collector of the port aforesaid, two thirds of the duties which were before charged for the said hides or calve skins so exported, or shipped to be exported, as aforesaid, (such hides and calve skins as shall have been charged as stock in hand, as aforesaid, always excepted).

XLII. And it is hereby further enacted, That upon producing a certificate or debenture of the said customer or collector of such port, as aforesaid, of any quantity of such boots, shoes, gloves, or such other manufactures as are before described or mentioned, which shall be so shipped to be exported for foreign parts, to the commissioners who shall be appointed for the management of the said duties upon leather, or to the collector of the same duties at the said port of exportation; in every such case the said commissioners, or such collector, shall, out of the monies which shall be in his or their hands of the said duties by this act granted, pay to the person or persons who shall bring such certificate or debenture of the said customer or collector of the port, an allowance after the rate of two thirds of the duty which by this act was chargeable by weight upon the leather of which such boots, shoes, gloves, or other manufactures shall have been made, although the mark or stamp to denote the charging or payment of the duty cannot or do not appear upon such made wares respectively; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That if any hides, calve skins, boots, shoes, gloves, or other manufactures of leather, shipped to be exported, as aforesaid, shall be relanded or put on shore again within Great Britain, the same, and treble the value thereof, shall be forfeited; to wit, one moiety thereof to the Queen's majesty, and the other moiety to such person or persons who will seize, inform, or sue for the same.

XLIII. Provided always, That no wares made of hides or skins shall be entitled, by this act, to any drawback as made wares, in respect only of their being curried or dressed by the currier; any thing in this or any former act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective commissioners of her Majesty's customs in Great Britain, shall, on or before the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, provide such and so many marks or stamps of the same kind with which all the hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins imported, as aforesaid, during the continuance of this act, shall be marked or stamped upon payment of the duties thereof, as aforesaid; and shall cause the said marks or stamps to be distributed amongst the respective officers of the customs for that purpose; and that the respective commissioners to be appointed for managing the said duties upon hides and skins tanned, tawed, or dressed in Great Britain, and the said duties upon vellum and parchment made in Great Britain, shall, on or before the said four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, provide such and so many marks or stamps of one and the same kind, (but differing from the marks or stamps last before mentioned) with which all the hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins tanned, tawed, or dressed in Great Britain, and all the vellum and parchment made in Great Britain, during the continuance of this act, upon the charging of the said respective duties for the same, shall be stamped and marked; and also so many stamps and marks of one other kind with which all the stock of hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, and all vellum and parchment in Great Britain, on the said four and twentieth day of June, upon payment or securing the said duties, as aforesaid, shall be stamped or marked; and shall cause the said respective marks or stamps to be distributed to the respective officers for the several purposes before before mentioned; which officers are hereby enjoined and required, in using the same, to do no hurt or damage, or the least damage that may be, to the hide or skin, or the piece of an hide or skin, or to the vellum or parchment so to be marked; and the said respective commissioners, in providing the said respective marks or stamps, shall take care that they be so contrived, that the impression thereof may be durable, and so as the same may be least liable to be forged or counterfeited; and that the said marks and stamps, or any of them, shall or may be altered or renewed, from time to time, as her Majesty, her heirs or successors, shall think fit; and if any person or persons whatsoever, shall at any time or times hereafter, counterfeit or forge any stamp or mark, to resemble any stamp or mark which shall be provided or made in pursuance of this act, or shall counterfeit or resemble the impression of the same upon any hide or skin, or piece of any hide or skin, or any vellum or parchment, thereby to defraud her Majesty, her heirs or successors, of any of the said duties hereby granted, or shall utter, vend, or sell any hide or skin, or piece of any hide or skin, vellum or parchment, with such counterfeit mark or impression thereupon, knowing such mark or impression to be counterfeited; then every such person so offending, being thereof convicted in due form of law, shall be adjudged a felon, and shall suffer death as in cases of felony, without benefit of clergy.

Officers not to damage the hides, &c. in marking.

Stamps to be durable, &c.

Forging stamps, &c. felony.

XLVIII. And to the end all the rates and duties by this act granted for and upon such hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, made wares, vellum and parchment, as are above-mentioned, may be duly and certainly raised, and the same (except the necessary charges of raising and managing the said duties, and otherwise in execution of this act) may be justly and duly brought into the said receipt of Exchequer, according to the true meaning hereof; it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that, from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many commissioners and officers, as shall be proper and necessary for managing, raising, collecting, and paying the said rates and duties upon hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, vellum and parchment, chargeable by this act, and for keeping and rendering the accounts of the same; and that the respective commissioners and officers concerned therein, shall perform their several duties, in relation to the premises, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies arising by the said rates and duties, as are prescribed, and to be inflicted, by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of five pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect, relating to the duties thereby granted referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies which were granted or appropriated by the act last-mentioned.

From 1 June, 1711, for 4 years, hops imported to pay 3d. per pound weight.

British hops 1d. per pound weight.

Imported hops landed before entry, &c. forfeited, or the value.

MOST gracious Sovereign, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for the better enabling your Majesty to support the publick credit, and for other your Majesty's most necessary occasions, have cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty, such several and respective duties, for and upon all hops to be imported into Great Britain, and for and upon all hops growing or to grow within the same, as are herein after mentioned, for and during the term herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all hops which, at any time or times within or during the term of four years, to be reckoned from the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties imposed upon or payable for the same) the sum of three pence for every pound weight averdupols, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; the said duty for and upon all imported hops to be paid down in ready money by the importers thereof before the landing of the same respectively; and for and upon all hops growing or to grow in Great Britain, which at any time or times within or during the said term of four years, shall be cured and made fit for use, the sum of one penny for every pound weight averdupols, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; the said duty for and upon the said hops of the growth of Great Britain, to be paid by the respective owners or possessors thereof, from time to time, within six months after such hops respectively shall be cured, and shall or ought to be put into bags, as is herein after mentioned and required.

II. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said imported hops shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house, in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the said duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon, shall be duly paid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported hops, of what kind soever, as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and lawfully be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit, one moiety of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform or sue for the hops so imported and forfeited, or the value thereof, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in her Majesty's court of Exchequer in Scotland, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no assize, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon imported hops by this act granted, during the continuance hereof, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, uplifted, levied, recovered, and answered, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the present duties upon hops imported, or any of them, are by any law or statute now in force to be ascertained, secured, raised, uplifted, levied, recovered, or answered, during the continuance hereof respectively.

How these duties shall be levied.

IV. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported hops, as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in England for the time being; and such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported hops as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and that the respective receivers general of the customs in England and Scotland for the time being, shall, from time to time, pay, or cause to be paid, all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties for imported hops (the necessary charges of raising and accounting for the same excepted) into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, distinctly and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are to be inflicted by this act, for diverting or misapplying any monies by this act appropriated or appointed for the purposes herein after mentioned.

Hops imported to be under the management of the commissioners of customs.

XXI. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, who shall have actually paid her Majesty's duties, by this act payable for any quantity of hops whatsoever of British growth, and to and for any other person or persons who shall buy, or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of hops of British growth, from the said person or persons who actually paid her Majesty's duties for the same, to export such hops, being of British growth, for Ireland, by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantity of hops, which shall be intended to be exported, as aforesaid, and every part hereof, shall be shipped and exported, and that the same, or any part hereof, shall not be relanded or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain; which security the customer or collector of the respective ports for such exportation is hereby directed and authorized to take in her Majesty's name, and to her use: provided always, That if after the shipping of any such hops to be exported, as aforesaid, and the giving or tendering such security in order to obtain the allowance or drawback herein after mentioned, the hops so shipped to be exported, or any of them, shall be relanded in any part of Great Britain, then, and in every such case, over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to her Majesty's use, all the hops which shall be so landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

British hops, which have paid the duty, may be exported for Ireland, &c.

XXII. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons who shall export any hops of British growth to or for Ireland, shall or may make oath, that he believes the same hops are all of British growth, without any mixture of foreign hops; that the duty of such hops hath been paid or secured, according to this act, (which oath the collector, who received the said duty, is hereby required and impowered to administer) and thereupon the said collector for the same duties upon hops shall give to such person or persons, gratis, a certificate or certificates, expressing the kinds and quantities of such hops, and the duties paid, or secured to be paid for the same, pursuant to this act; which certificate being produced to the customer or collector of the port where the said hops shall be exported, and oath being also made by the exporter before the said customer or collector of the port, (who is hereby also authorized and required to administer the same without fee or charge) that the hops so exported are the same mentioned in the said certificate, then the said customer or collector shall give to the exporter a debenture, expressing the true quantity of the British hops so exported, which debenture being produced to the collector appointed to receive the said duty upon hops in such county or place where the said hops did pay duty, he shall forthwith repay the said duty which he shall have received upon this act to the persons, or their agents, so exporting the same; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay the same, then the said respective commissioners of excise are hereby required to pay the said debenture out of the duties upon hops, arising by this act; or if the duty on such hops so exported were only secured, and shall remain unpaid, then the said duties shall be discharged upon the securities for the same; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Rebagging foreign hops in British bags, forfeits 10 l. per C.
&c.

XXIII. And it is hereby enacted, That no person whatsoever shall, during the continuance of this act, take any hops of foreign growth out of the bags in which they are imported, and re-bag the same in British bagging, in order to sell, dispose, or export the same as British hops, under the penalty of ten pounds for every hundred weight, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity; and if any person or persons shall endeavour to defraud her Majesty of her duties hereby granted, by using twice, or oftner, the same bag, with the officer's mark thereupon, such person or persons, for every such offence, shall forfeit the sum of forty pounds.

Fines, &c. how recoverable.

XXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all fines, penalties, and forfeitures, in relation to the said duties by this act imposed on hops, except in such cases where other provisions are made by this act, shall and may be sued for, levied, and recovered, or mitigated, by such ways, means, and methods, as any fine, penalty and forfeiture, is or may be recovered or mitigated by any laws of excise now in force, and not by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in Scotland; and that one moiety of every such fine, penalty, and forfeiture (unless in cases otherwise prescribed by this act) shall be to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to him or them that shall discover, inform, or sue for the same.

2, c. 22. f. 6.

XXVII. And in regard the growth of hops, in several parts of Great Britain, is very much increased of late years, it is hereby further provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That none of the duties by this or any former act granted upon any hops whatsoever, (except hops of British growth) shall be repaid or drawn back upon the exportation thereof for Ireland; and that no person or persons whatsoever shall import, or cause to be imported into the said kingdom of Ireland, from Flanders, or any other parts whatsoever, (other than from Great Britain) any hops whatsoever, upon pain of forfeiting all the hops which shall be so imported into Ireland, contrary to the true meaning of this act, or the value of the same, and also of the ship or vessel in which they shall be so imported, with her tackle, apparel, and furniture; that is to say, two third parts thereof to the use of the poor of the parish in Ireland, where such hops shall be seized or discovered, and the other third part thereof to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, or for the value thereof, in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Dublin, in the said kingdom of Ireland. And it is hereby declared, That the importation of any foreign hops into Ireland.

Ireland, (other than from Great Britain) contrary to the tenor and true meaning of this act, is and shall be adjudged a common nuisance.

XXIX. And to the end all the monies arising by the duties on hops hereby granted, (the necessary charges of raising, paying, and accounting for the same, only excepted) may be duly and certainly raised and brought into the said receipt of Exchequer; it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many commissioners and officers as shall be proper and necessary for the raising, paying, and accounting for the said duties; and that the same officers respectively shall perform their several duties therein, as to them shall respectively appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, as for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the said monies, as are prescribed and to be inflicted, by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties upon salt, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, thereby granted or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies which were granted or appropriated by the act last mentioned.

thousand seven hundred and twenty, for ever; and that all and every the act and acts of parliament (which by the said act made in the said eighth year of her said Majesty's reign, were continued to the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and all the powers, provisions, penalties, articles, and clauses in the said acts, every or any of them, mentioned or contained (except as in the said act of the said eighth year of her said Majesty's reign, and herein after, is excepted) as for and concerning the said rates, duties, impositions, and additional impositions, and every or any of them respectively, hereby granted, continued, or made payable) shall continue and be in full force and effect for ever, and shall be severally applied, practised, and executed, for the raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying the said respective rates, duties, impositions, and additional impositions, every or any of them, respectively, by the same respective acts granted, and which are hereby continued, and made payable, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this act, as if the same acts, and every of them, and all and every the clauses, matters, and things in them, and every of them respectively mentioned or contained, had been again repeated, and particularly enacted in this present act.

Duty on tobacco to be levied according to the act 7 W. 3. c. 10.

II. Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said duty upon tobacco, which shall be imported within the times by this act limited, and all arrears thereof, shall be secured, collected, raised, levied, answered, and paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, in such method, and with such discount and allowances, and according to such rules and directions, and under such penalties, as are mentioned, referred to, or prescribed (as to the duties or impositions on tobacco) in and by the act made in the parliament holden in the seventh year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wine, vinegar, and tobacco, and East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, and not otherwise.

Alterations made by any act in being to be observed.

III. Provided also, That in all cases where any other provision or alteration is made by any act or acts of parliament now in being, in or about any other matter or thing contained in the said acts of parliament hereby continued, or any of them, such other provisions or alterations shall be observed for ever; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

After payment of principal and interest charged by the former acts, the surplus to be applied to the uses of this act.

IV. And be it further enacted, That all and every the surplus monies arising in the receipt of the Exchequer, on or for the said duties hereby continued, and such other duties as are mentioned and contained in the former acts, whereby the said duties hereby continued were granted or continued to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, after payment of all such principal money and interest, as by the said former acts are charged thereupon, and which by the said act in the said eighth year of her Majesty's reign are appropriated and applied to the purposes in that act mentioned, shall be, and by virtue of this act are, appropriated and made applicable to the uses and purposes in this act mentioned and contained, and to no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; any thing in the said last-mentioned act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

V. And whereas by the said act made in the said eighth year of her said Majesty's reign, it is enacted, That immediately from and after the time that all principal and interest monies, secured by an act of the first year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making good deficiencies, and for preserving the publick credit, should be fully paid off and satisfied, or that sufficient monies should be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, then all the monies which from thenceforth, until the first day of August, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, should arise, or be due or payable, or be secured or in arrear, of and for the duties upon salt and rock salt therein mentioned (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and account- ing for the same) shall, from time to time, be paid into the receipt of Exchequer, and shall be issued and applied, so far as the same will extend, to and for the payment and satisfaction of the interest which shall, from time to time, grow due for the monies which shall be lent upon, or in pursuance of the said act of the said eighth year of her Majesty's reign, or any of the powers or clauses therein contained, and to none other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding: now it is hereby declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That immediately from and after the time that all the principal and interest monies secured by the said last-mentioned act of the said first year of her said Majesty's reign, shall be fully paid off and satisfied, or that sufficient monies shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose, that all the monies which from thenceforth for ever shall arise, or be due or payable, or be secured, or in arrear, of and for the said duties of salt and rock salt, (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall, from time to time, for ever be paid into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer, and shall be issued and applied for the purposes in this act contained, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; any thing in the said act of the said eighth year of her Majesty's reign, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies that shall come into the receipt of the Exchequer, upon or for all and every the rates, duties, impositions, and additional impositions, which were granted or continued by the said act of the said eighth year of her Majesty's reign, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, to the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twenty, and all arrears thereof, shall be applied and appropriated, and they are hereby appropriated to the uses and purposes of this act, and to no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; any thing in the said act of the said eighth year of her Majesty's reign, to the contrary notwithstanding; and the said rates, duties, impositions, and additional impositions, and every of them respectively, shall be raised, levied, collected, answered, and paid, in such manner and form, and by such ways and means, and subject to, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as is and are contained in the said act of the said eighth year of her Majesty's reign.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several duties upon candles, which by an act made in the said eighth year of her said now Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for laying certain duties upon candles, and certain rates upon monies to be given with clerks, apprentices, and servants, towards raising her Majesty's supply, for the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, were granted to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for the term of five years, to be reckoned from the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall, by virtue of this act, be further continued, and be payable, as well upon all wax candles and candles called or sold for wax candles (notwithstanding the mixture of any other ingredients therewith) as upon all tallow candles, to be imported into, or made in any part of Great Britain, from and after the first day of May, which shall be the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, for ever; and also that the said several rates upon monies to be given with clerks, apprentices, and servants, which were granted to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, by the said last-mentioned act, for the term of five years, to be reckoned from the first day of May, one thousand seven hundred and ten, shall be further continued, and be payable for and upon all monies or other consideration to be given with clerks, apprentices, or servants, as in the said act are mentioned, from and after the first day of May, which shall be the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, for ever; and that the said act last-mentioned, and all powers, provisions, penalties, clauses, and clauses therein contained, as well for and concerning the said duties upon candles, and the said rates upon monies or other consideration

And also the duties upon salt and rock salt, 8 Annæ, c. 13. These duties were repealed 3 Geo. 2. c. 20. and afterwards revived for other uses by 5 Geo. 2. c. 6.

Funds 8 Annæ, c. 13. appropriated to the uses of this act.

Duties upon candles, and upon clerks, apprentices, and servants, 8 Annæ, c. 9. continued for ever.

to be given with clerks, apprentices, and servants; shall continue, and be in full force for ever, and shall be applied, practised, and executed, for raising, levying, collecting, answering, and paying, as well the said duties upon candles, as the said rates upon monies or other consideration to be given with clerks, apprentices, or servants, hereby continued, and all arrears thereof, according to the tenor and intent of this present act, as fully, to all intents and purposes, as if all and every the clauses, powers, matters, and things in the same act contained, had been again in this act repeated and particularly enacted.

After principal, &c. borrowed upon candles, clerks, apprentices, &c. shall be paid off, then the duties to be applied to the uses of this act.

§ Annæ, c. 9.

VIII. And whereas the said duties and impositions on candles, and rates on monies or other consideration to be given with clerks, apprentices, or servants, which were granted by the last-mentioned act, are thereby made subject and liable to the satisfaction of certain principal sums which were borrowed upon the same act, and the interest due and to be due for the same, (which principal and interest are to be duly paid off and discharged in the first place); now it is hereby further declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and immediately after the time that all the principal and interest monies, which by the said last-mentioned act are charged or chargeable on the several duties on candles, and rates on money or other consideration to be given with clerks, apprentices, and servants, shall be fully paid off and satisfied, according to the true meaning of the said last-mentioned act, or that sufficient money shall be reserved in the Exchequer for that purpose; then all the monies which from thenceforth shall arise by the said impositions on candles, and monies or other consideration to be given with clerks, apprentices, or servants, which were granted by the said last-mentioned act, aforesaid, (except the necessary charges of raising, levying, collecting, and accounting for the same) shall, from time to time, be paid into the receipt of the Exchequer distinctly, for the purposes in this act expressed, and for no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

Commissioners of the customs to keep apart the monies arising by this act; and the commissioners of the excise;

IX. And for the better securing the payment of the said interest monies or annuities, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, upon and for all the said debts, deficiencies, and sums of money, intended to be provided for by this act; and that all persons and corporations, concerned and to be concerned therein, their executors, administrators, successors, and assigns respectively, may have, receive, and enjoy certain annuities or yearly payments, to be computed after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, for the several and respective monies to them respectively due, and to grow due, according to the true meaning of this act, and such special benefit of trade, and other advantages as are hereafter in this act expressed, subject nevertheless to such power of redemption as in this act is provided in that behalf; be it therefore enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective receivers general of the customs in England and Scotland for the time being, at their respective offices, from time to time, shall separate and keep apart, all and every sum and sums of money arising by such part of the several rates and duties, impositions, and additional impositions, and sums of money, hereby granted, continued, or appropriated, for the purposes in this act mentioned, as is or shall be under the care or management of the respective commissioners of the customs for the time being, as the same shall from time to time, arise or be paid into the respective offices of the receiver general of the customs, by the collectors of the same, or by any other person or persons whatsoever; and in like manner that the respective commissioners and governors of the revenue or receipt of excise in England and Scotland for the time being, at their respective head offices, from time to time, shall separate and keep apart all and every sum and sums of money arising by such or such part of the several rates, duties, and sums of money hereby granted, continued, or appropriated, for the purposes in this act mentioned, as is or shall be under the care or management of the said commissioners and governors of the revenue, or receipt of excise, for the time being.

being, as the same shall, from time to time, arise or be paid into the said offices of excise by the receivers or collectors of the same, or by any other person or persons whatsoever; and also that the commissioners for marking and stamping of vellum, parchment, and paper, or for managing the duties thereupon for the time being, shall, at their head office, cause to be separated and kept apart in like manner, all and every the monies arising by the rates upon monies or other consideration to be given with clerks, apprentices, or servants, hereby granted, continued, or appropriated, for the purposes in this act mentioned, which is under the care or management of the said commissioners or managers last-mentioned, for the time being, as the same shall, from time to time, arise or be paid into the said office of the said stamps by the receivers or collectors of the same, or by any other person or persons whatsoever; and as well the said receivers general of the customs, and the said commissioners and governors of the said revenue or receipt of excise in England, as the said commissioners for marking vellum, parchment, and paper, or for managing the duties thereupon, for the time being respectively, are hereby required and strictly enjoined, from time to time, for ever, to pay weekly, to wit, on Wednesday in every week, if it be not a holyday, and if it be, then the next day after that is not a holyday, all and every the monies arising by such or such parts of the several and respective duties, rates, impositions, additional impositions, and sums of money, hereby granted, continued, or appropriated, as is or shall be under the care or management of the said commissioners, governors, or managers respectively, into the receipt of the Exchequer of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, distinct and apart from all other monies whatsoever; and the receivers general of the customs and excise of Scotland for the time being respectively, are hereby required and strictly enjoined, from time to time, to transmit and pay into the said receipt of the Exchequer in England, distinct and apart, as aforesaid, all the monies which shall arise in Scotland, as aforesaid, for the purposes in this act expressed.

The money to be paid weekly into the Exchequer.

X. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be, from time to time, for ever, provided and kept in the Exchequer, (that is to say) in the office of the auditor of the receipt, several books, in which all the monies which ought to be paid in weekly, or otherwise, as aforesaid, and which shall be brought into the same receipt, shall be entred apart and distinct from all other monies paid or payable to her Majesty, her heirs or successors, upon any account whatsoever.

Books for entry to be kept in the Exchequer.

XI. And be it further enacted, That if the said receivers general of the customs, commissioners, or governors of the revenue or receipt of the excise, or the said commissioners for marking of vellum, parchment, and paper, or for managing the duties thereupon, for the time being respectively, shall refuse or neglect to pay, or cause to be paid into the Exchequer, all or any of the sums appointed to be paid by them severally, as aforesaid, in such manner as they are respectively required by this act, or shall divert or misapply any part of the same, then they, and every of them so offending, shall forfeit their several offices and places, and shall be incapable to serve her Majesty, her heirs or successors, in any office or place of profit or trust whatsoever; and shall be liable to pay double the value of all and every sum and sums of money so diverted or misapplied, with full costs of suit, to any person or persons, body politick or corporate, who shall be intitled to any annuity or payment out of the fund by this act settled, and will sue for the same forfeiture by action of debt, or of the case, bill, suit, or information, founded upon this act, in any court of record of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, wherein no essoin, protection, privilege of parliament, or other privilege whatsoever, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be granted or allowed.

Commissioners, &c. not paying or misapplying the monies, forfeit their places, &c.

XII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the head offices of the customs and excise, and the chief office for the marking of vellum, vellum, parchment, and paper, shall for ever be severally and respectively continued, with a sufficient number of commissioners, and a comptroller in each and every of them, for performing and executing such matters and things as are by this act enjoined to be done or performed by such commissioners and comptrollers respectively, according to the true meaning hereof.

Head offices of the customs, excise, &c. continued for ever.

Comptrollers in the respective offices to keep distinct accounts of the monies arising by this act.

XIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective comptrollers in the said respective offices for the time being, shall keep perfect and distinct accounts, in books fairly written, of all the monies which shall arise of or for the said several and respective impositions, additional impositions, duties, rates, and sums of money, by this act granted, continued, or appropriated, as the same shall from time to time arise, or be raised; to which books all persons concerned shall have free access, at all reasonable times, without fee or charge; and if any such comptroller or comptrollers, as aforesaid, shall neglect his or their duty therein, then he or they so offending shall forfeit his or their office or offices, and places, and be rendered incapable, as aforesaid, and shall also forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds to any person or persons, body politick or corporate, entitled to any annuity or payment by this act, and that will sue for the same, as aforesaid, together with full costs of suit, to be recovered as aforesaid.

Collector, &c. detaining the monies, to be dismissed, &c.

XIV. And be it further enacted, That if any collector or receiver of any the impositions, additional impositions, duties, rates, or sums of money, by this act granted, continued, or appropriated, shall detain all or any part of the monies by him collected or received, contrary to his duty, then he or they, for such offence, shall be dismissed from his or their employment, and be charged with interest for the monies so by him or them detained, after the rate of twelve pounds per centum per annum, and be liable to answer treble damages to all and every person and persons, bodies politick or corporate, that shall be grieved by such detention, and who will sue for the same, in manner as aforesaid: and if any collector or receiver of any of the said impositions, additional impositions, duties, rates, or sums of money, hereby granted, continued, or appropriated, shall divert or misapply all or any part of the monies by him or them collected or received, contrary to the true meaning of this act, then he or they, for every or any such offence, shall be dismissed from his employment, and rendered incapable to serve her Majesty, her heirs and successors, as aforesaid, and shall moreover forfeit double the sum or sums so by him or them diverted or misapplied, to any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, who shall be entitled to any annuity or payment out of the fund by this act settled, and will sue for the same, as aforesaid.

Directions in 1 W. & M. sess. 2. c. 1. revived.

XV. And to the end the sums by this act appropriated, may not be diverted or applied to any other purposes than are hereby directed or intended, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the rules and directions appointed and enacted in one act made in the first year of the reign of their said late majesties King William and Queen Mary, intituled, An act for granting to their Majesties an aid of two shillings in the pound for one year, for the speedy payment of money thereby granted into the receipt of Exchequer, by the collectors and receivers, and for the distribution and application thereof, and keeping distinct accounts of the same, and all other provisions, pains, penalties, and forfeitures thereby enacted, in case of diversion or misapplication of any money thereby appropriated, are hereby revived and enacted to be in force, and shall be applied, executed, and put in ure, for and concerning the distribution and application of the said sums hereby appropriated, as fully, amply, and effectually, as if the same were particularly repeated and re-enacted.

XIX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, for ever, reckoning the first year to begin from the five and twentieth day of December, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, the full annual sum of five hundred sixty eight eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings, or such proportionable part thereof as shall be due, as is herein-after mentioned, by or out of the monies to arise by the said several duties, as well upon salt and rock salt, as upon wine, vinegar, tobacco, East India goods, raw silks, and other goods and merchandizes imported, granted, continued, or appropriated, and every of them, and to be brought into the receipt of Exchequer, in case the same payments shall extend thereto; and in case the said weekly or other payments shall not amount to five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings per annum, or such proportionable part thereof as shall be due, as herein-after is mentioned, then the said weekly monies, or other payments, so far as the same will extend, shall be part of the yearly fund for and towards the answering and paying the several and respective annuities, or yearly payments, in this act hereafter expressed.

XXI. And be it further enacted, That all the sums of money arising by the said rates, duties, impositions, additional impositions, and sums of money, by this act granted, continued, or appropriated, as aforesaid, which shall, from time to time, be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient to make up and complete the said yearly fund of five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings, or such proportionable part thereof, to be due, as herein-after is mentioned, shall be appropriated, set apart, and applied, and the same are hereby appropriated for and towards the raising and making good the said yearly fund of five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings, or such proportionable part of the same, and shall be issued and paid out of the said receipt of Exchequer by the respective officers of the same, as herein-after is mentioned, without fee or charge, and without any further or other warrant to be sued for, had, or obtained from her Majesty, her heirs and successors, in that behalf, and shall be applied to and for the uses and purposes in and by this act expressed and intended, and to no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever; and that the respective officers in the Exchequer, who shall make any delay in issuing or paying the said money to the said uses by this act intended, or shall be guilty of diverting or misapplying any of the said monies to any other use or purpose, contrary to this act, for any such offence, shall be adjudged from their respective offices and places, and be rendered incapable to serve her Majesty, her heirs and successors, in any office or employment of trust or profit whatsoever, and also shall be liable to pay double the value of any sum or sums so delayed to be paid, or so diverted or misapplied, as aforesaid, to any corporation, or other person or persons that shall be grieved thereby, and who will sue for the same, to be recovered as aforesaid.

XXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case the said duties arising or appropriated by this act shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient in the produce of the same, as that within any one year, to be reckoned from and after the five and twentieth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, the said weekly or other payments upon the same rates or duties shall not amount to so much as shall be sufficient to discharge and satisfy the said yearly sum of five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings, or such proportionable part thereof as aforesaid, by this act appointed, or intended to be paid within or for the same year respectively; that then and so often, and in every such case, it is hereby declared and enacted, That every such deficiency and deficiencies shall be provided for, answered, and made good by or out of the next aids to be raised and granted by parliament, and shall be appropriated and applied for and towards making good the deficiency which shall so happen of the said yearly sum of five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings,

Deficiency to be made good by parliament.

Surplus to be applied towards discharging principal.

shillings, or such proportionable part thereof, as aforesaid, and to no other use, intent, or purpose whatsoever.

XXIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That in case there shall be any surplus or remainder of the monies arising by the rates and duties, and sums of money granted or appropriated by this act, at the end of any one year after all the said annuities, charges, and payments, directed or authorized by this act, shall be fully satisfied, paid, and discharged, or money sufficient shall be reserved for that purpose, such surplus or remainder shall be applied, from time to time, for and towards paying and discharging the principal money of the said capital stock of the said intended company, so far as the same will, from time to time, extend; and that the said yearly sum of five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings, or such proportionable part thereof as is intended by this act to be provided for, shall be, from time to time, lessened and abated in proportion to such part of the said principal or capital stock of the said company, which shall be so paid off; that is to say, that out of the yearly sum of five hundred sixty eight thousand two hundred seventy nine pounds, and ten shillings, to be annually payable to the said company by virtue of this act, and according to the true meaning thereof, there shall be deducted so much money yearly and every year, as shall be after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum for the principal sum, which shall be so paid off and discharged, or which the capital stock of the said company shall really and bona fide consist of, for the time being, less than the said principal or capital stock, or sum of nine millions four hundred seventy one thousand three hundred and twenty five pounds; such deduction and deductions to begin and be made from such respective time and times as such principal money shall be so paid off and discharged, or the said capital stock so lessened, as aforesaid: it being the true intent and meaning of this act, that the annuity so to be paid, by virtue of this act, unto the said intended company or corporation to be erected in pursuance of this act, shall be after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum for every hundred pounds, which the principal or capital stock of the said company or corporation shall, for the time being, consist of, and proportionably for a lesser sum than one hundred pounds, and not any further or other sum or sums in respect of the said annuity.

On one year's notice, after 25 Dec. 1716, and repayment, annuities to cease. Explained by 10 Ann. c. 30.

XXIV. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and enacted, That, at any time, upon one year's notice, after the five and twentieth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, upon repayment by parliament of the principal sum, of which the capital stock of the said intended company shall, for the time being, consist, unto the respective contributors of the same, or to such person or persons as by, from, or under them, shall be entitled to the said annuity or shares of the said yearly fund or capital stock, in respect of the same, and of all arrears of the said annuities or yearly payments, or upon payment out of such surplus money, as aforesaid, of all the said principal or capital stock of the said intended company, and all arrears of the said annuity payable to them, as aforesaid, then and from thenceforth all and every the impositions, and additional impositions, duties, rates, and sums of money, hereby granted, continued, or appropriated, shall and may be disposed of by parliament; and also the said yearly fund charged thereupon, and the said annuities issuing out of the same, shall absolutely cease and determine; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLVI. And whereas it is of the greatest consequence to the honour and welfare of this kingdom, and for the increase of the strength and riches thereof, and for the vending the product and manufacture, goods and merchandizes of, or brought into this kingdom, and employment of the poor, that a trade should be carried on to the South Seas, and other parts of America, within the limits herein after mentioned; which cannot so securely and successfully be begun and carried carried on, as by a corporation with a joint stock, exclusive of all others: now, for the better encouragement of all and every the person and persons, bodies politick or corporate, who shall be or become members of the said company or corporation, to be erected, as aforesaid; and to the end and intent that a trade to the South Seas, and other parts of America within the limits hereinafter mentioned, may be carried on and promoted, for the advantage and honour of this kingdom; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the corporation to be erected in pursuance of this act, and their successors, shall have and be entitled unto, and they are hereby entitled unto and vested, from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, for ever, in the sole trade and traffick into, unto, and from all the kingdoms, lands, countries, territories, islands, cities, towns, ports, havens, creeks, and places of America, on the east side thereof from the river of Aranoco, to the southernmost part of the Terra del Fuego; and on the west side thereof, from the said southernmost part of the said Terra del Fuego, through the South Seas, to the northernmost part of America; and into, unto, and from all countries, islands, and places within the said limits, which are reputed to belong to the crown of Spain, or which shall hereafter be found out or discovered within the said limits, not exceeding three hundred leagues from the continent of America, between the southernmost part of Terra del Fuego, and the northernmost part of America on the west side thereof, (except the kingdom of Brazil, and such other places on the said east side of America, as are now in the actual possession of the crown of Portugal, and the country of Surinam in the possession of the states general of the United Provinces); it not being intended that the sole trade to any part of the east side of America, now in the actual possession of the crown of Portugal, or the states general, shall be granted or construed to be granted by this act; but that it may be and remain lawful for all and every, or any the subjects of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, to trade and traffick to any part of the east side of America, now in the actual possession of the crown of Portugal, or the states general, (but to no other part of America within the limits aforesaid) as fully and freely, in all respects, as they might or could do if this act had not been made; any clause, proviso, power, privilege, matter or thing, herein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

The limits of the company's charter in the South Seas in America:

XLVII. And be it further enacted, That the said company to be erected in pursuance of this act, and their successors for ever, and all and every person and persons, who from time to time shall be licensed by the said corporation, to be erected in pursuance of this act, to trade in the stead of them, shall and lawfully may, for ever, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, or by such factors, agents or servants, as they shall think fit to intrust, and to and for no other person or persons whatsoever, freely to traffick and use the trade of merchandize, into, unto, and from the said South Seas, and other the parts within the limits aforesaid, (except as aforesaid) and into, unto, and from all or any the kingdoms, lands, territories, islands, cities, towns, forts, havens, creeks, and places of America, or any of them, within the limits aforesaid, (except before excepted) where any trade or traffick of merchandize is or may be used or had, and to and from every of them.

None else to traffick within their limits.

XLIX. And to the end the said South Seas, or the kingdoms, islands, havens, forts, cities, towns and places within the limits aforesaid, or any of them, shall not, after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, be visited, frequented, or haunted by any other of the subjects of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, contrary to the true meaning of this act; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any of the subjects of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, of what degree or quality soever they be, other than the said company or corporation, or their factors, agents or servants, or other persons by them licensed thereunto, according to the true meaning of this act, shall directly or indirectly visit or frequent, trade, traffick, or adventure, into, unto, or from the said South Seas, or other the parts within the limits aforesaid, contrary to the true meaning of this act, or shall hire, freight, or fit out any ship or ships, or lade or put on board any ship or ships any goods or merchandizes whatsoever, with intent to haunt, frequent, traffick, or adventure into, unto, or from the said South Seas, or other parts within the limits aforesaid, contrary to the true meaning of this act, every such offender and offenders shall incur the forfeiture and loss of all ships and vessels which shall be employed in such trade, with the guns, tackle, apparel, and furniture thereunto belonging, as also all the goods and merchandizes laden thereupon, and all the proceed and effects of the same, and also double the value thereof, viz. one fourth part thereof to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, one other fourth part thereof to such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, and the other two fourth parts thereof to the use of the company or corporation to be erected in pursuance of this act; such forfeiture and penalty to be recovered, with full costs of suit, in any of her Majesty's courts of record, in manner as aforesaid.

Other persons frequenting the South Seas, forfeit ship and lading, &c.

Company to be sole owners of all ships taken as prize within their limits.

Seamen assisting to be rewarded as her Majesty by charter shall appoint.

Company may seize by force of arms, British ships trading in the South Seas.

Persons born on board any ship, or in any place belonging to the company, to be natural-born subjects.

LII. And be it further enacted, That the said company to be erected in pursuance of this act, shall and may have, hold, receive, take, and enjoy, to their own use, and for the benefit of the members of such company, in proportion to their stock, all and every such ships or vessels, and all their guns, ammunition, tackle, apparel, and furniture, and all such goods, merchandizes, and bullion, treasure and other things, which shall be taken as prize by the ships, factors, agents or servants, of or belonging to, or employed or licensed by the said company, within the limits aforesaid, or by such of the ships of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, as she or they shall think fit to grant or allow for convoys, or otherwise, for the defence, security, or carrying on the said trade, without any account to be rendered thereof to her Majesty, her heirs or successors, or any other person or persons whatsoever; save only that the officers and seamen, who shall be actually on board any of the said ships of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, which shall take, or be assisting to the taking any such ships or vessels, goods or merchandizes, as prize, shall have, or be entitled to such part and share thereof, as her Majesty, her heirs or successors, shall think fit and direct in and by the charter of incorporation to be granted to the said company, and no other or greater part or share whatsoever; any thing herein contained, or any law, usage, or custom to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding: and that it shall and may be lawful for the said company, and their successors, and the agents, factors, servants, and other persons to be employed or licensed by them to trade, as aforesaid, to seize by force of arms, or otherwise, the persons, ships, goods, merchandize, or other effects, of or belonging to any of the subjects of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, who shall haunt, frequent, traffick, trade, or adventure into the said South Seas, or other the parts or limits aforesaid, (except before excepted) contrary to the true meaning of this act; and to keep and detain to the use and uses of the said company, and their successors, for the benefit of the members thereof, in proportion to their stock, the ships, goods, merchandize, and other effects so seized, without any account to be rendered thereof, as aforesaid, and to bring or send into Great Britain the persons of such of the subjects of her Majesty, her heirs or successors, as shall be so seized, in order to their being prosecuted for such offence according to law.

LIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all such persons as shall be born on board any of the ships of war, or other ships to be employed in or about the said trade, or who shall be born in any the lands, territories, countries, islands, forts, cities, towns or places, which shall be discovered or possessed by the said company, as aforesaid, or any of their dependencies, shall be, and be judged, deemed, and taken to be born within the allegiance of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and shall be deemed, deemed, and shall have and enjoy all the privileges of the natural-born subjects of her Majesty, her heirs and successors.

LIV. And forasmuch as the said trade does in a great measure depend upon the timely dispatch from Great Britain, of the ships which shall be employed therein; be it further enacted, That no ship or ships which shall belong to, or be hired, freighted, or employed by the said company to be erected, as aforesaid, or such persons as shall be licensed by them to trade within the limits aforesaid, shall be, and be liable to be stopped or detained by any embargo, or other restraint whatsoever, unless such ship or ships be particularly mentioned or named in such embargo, or order for restraint.

No embargo on company's ships, unless particularly mentioned.

LVI. Provided always, and it is hereby further enacted and declared, That upon any importation of any goods or merchandizes by the said company to be erected by virtue of this act, and in all other cases where security is or shall be required to be given by the said company to the crown, it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners, and officers of the customs for the time being, and all other person and persons, who are to take such security for the crown, and they are hereby required, from time to time, to take such security, by accepting and taking one or more bond or bonds, under the common seal of the said company, as well for all such of the customs and duties chargeable and to be charged upon the goods and merchandizes to be imported, as are bondable, and upon which bonds have been usually given, as for all such other matters and things for which security is to be given to the crown by the said company, as aforesaid; any law, statute, or usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

Officers of the customs, &c. to take the company's bonds for customs, &c.

LVIII. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That it shall not be lawful for the company to be erected by virtue of this act, or their successors, agents, or factors, or any person or persons licensed by them, to proceed, sail, navigate, or go into any the limits before-mentioned, beyond the southernmost part of Terra del Fuego, except only through the straits of Magellan, or round Terra del Fuego, nor to go from thence into any part of the East Indies, nor return to Great Britain, or any other port or place in Europe, Asia, Africa, or America, by any other way except through the said straits of Magellan, or by Terra del Fuego aforesaid, under the penalties and forfeitures to be sued for and recovered, as is herein-after mentioned; and also that it shall not be lawful for the said company, or their successors, agents, or factors, or any person or persons licensed by them, to trade, traffick, or adventure in any goods, wares, commodities, or merchandizes whatever, of the growth, product, or manufacture of the East Indies, Persia, Arabia, or any other the countries, ports, or places within the limits granted to, or now vested in the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, and not hereby granted or intended to be granted to the corporation to be erected by virtue of this act, or with any ships or vessels coming from the countries or places aforesaid, (such East India goods, wares, commodities, or merchandize, as shall be actually exported from Great Britain, and also gold, silver, and wrought plate, goods and commodities that are the produce, growth, or manufactures of the West Indies, or continent of America, only excepted) under the penalties and forfeitures to be sued for and recovered as is herein-after mentioned; and further, that it shall not be lawful for the said company intended to be erected, as aforesaid, or their successors, agents, or factors, or any person or persons licensed by them, to send, employ, or use any ship, vessel, boat, or bark whatsoever, within the said South Seas, from Terra del Fuego, to the northernmost part of America, above three hundred leagues to the westward of, and distant from the lands, countries, and shores of Chili, Pera, Mexico, Callifornia, or any other the lands and shores of southern or northern America, contained between the said Terra del Fuego and the said northernmost part of America; upon pain and penalty that all such ships, vessels, boats, and barks whatsoever, going in or returning from the South Seas, otherwise than as aforesaid, or sent, employed, or used,

Company not to sail beyond the southernmost part of Terra del Fuego, or into the Indies, &c. except through the straits of Magellan, or round Terra del Fuego: Not to trade in East India goods, &c.

nor to send ships in the South Seas above 300 leagues to the westward of Chili, &c.

goods, &c.

used, failing, proceeding, or being, contrary to the true intent and meaning hereof, and all the goods, wares, and merchandizes on board them, together with their guns, tackle, apparel, and furniture, and likewise all the goods, wares, commodities, and merchandizes of the East Indies, Persia, China, or other the limits aforesaid, so traded in as aforesaid, (except as before excepted) shall and may be seized and forfeited, and double the value thereof shall also be forfeited by the owners, masters, or employers thereof, or traders therein; one third part of all which forfeitures to be to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other two third parts thereof to the said united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies; to be recovered with full costs of suit in any of her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information.

raised, levied, collected and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for the several and respective things herein after mentioned, which shall be ingrossed, printed or written, the several and respective rates, duties, charges and sums of money herein after expressed, in manner following; that is to say,

For every skin, or piece of vellum or parchment, or sheet or piece of paper, upon which shall be ingrossed or written any certificate or debenture for drawing back any customs or duties, or any part of any customs or duties, for or in respect of the re-shipping or exporting of any goods or merchandizes, which at any time or times, within or during the term of two and thirty years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eleven, shall be exported, or shipped to be exported from Great Britain, for any parts beyond the seas, to be paid by the person for whose benefit, or at whose instance such debenture or certificate shall be obtained, the sum of eight pence.

For every piece of vellum or parchment, or sheet or piece of paper, upon which shall be ingrossed or written any note or bill of lading, which shall be signed for any goods or merchandizes to be exported at any time or times within or during the term last mentioned, the sum of four pence.

For every almanack or kalendar for any one particular year, or for any time less than a year, which shall (within or during the same term) be printed on one side only of any one sheet or piece of paper only, the sum of one penny.

For every other almanack or kalendar, for any one particular year, which shall be printed within or during the said term, the sum of two pence.

Provided always, and be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid,
That if any almanack or kalendar shall, during the term last mentioned, be made to serve for several years, that then the respective rates aforesaid shall be paid for every such year.

For every piece of vellum or parchment, or sheet or piece of paper, on which shall, at any time or times within or during the term last mentioned, be ingrossed or written any licence for retailing of wine, the sum of four shillings.

For every piece of vellum or parchment, or sheet or piece of paper, on which shall (during the same term) be ingrossed or written any licence for selling of ale, beer, or other exciseable liquors by retail, the sum of one shilling.

XXV. And

XXV. And it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all vellum, parchment and paper, upon which any such certificate, debenture, bill or note of lading, almanack or licence, as aforesaid, shall, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, be ingrossed, written or printed, shall, before such ingrossing, writing, or printing, be brought to the head office for stamping or marking of vellum, parchment and paper; and the said commissioners, by themselves, or by their officers employed under them, shall, and they are hereby empowered and required, forthwith, upon demand to them made by any person or persons, from time to time, to stamp or mark, as this act directs, any quantities or parcels of vellum, parchment or paper; he or they paying to the receiver general of the stamp duties for the time being, or to his deputy or clerk, the respective duties payable for the same by this act, without any other fee or reward, and without delay; which stamp or mark, to be put thereupon in pursuance of this act, shall be a sufficient discharge for the several and respective duties hereby payable for the said vellum, parchment or paper, which shall be so stamped or marked.

to be levied.

XL. And it is hereby enacted, That the duties upon such cards and dice imported shall be levied and brought into the Exchequer, in such manner and form, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as any her Majesty's customs or duties on subsidy goods inwards, are, by any laws now in force, to be levied and brought into the said Exchequer.

Makers concealing, to forfeit 20l.

XLIII. And it is hereby enacted, That every maker of cards and dice, who shall endeavour to defraud her Majesty by any concealment, shall, for every such offence, forfeit the sum of twenty pounds: and that all the penalties and forfeitures imposed by this act, in relation to the said duties on cards and dice, shall be divided, to wit, one moiety thereof to the Queen's majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety thereof to such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same; and shall and may be recovered in the same manner and form, as any penalties or forfeitures by this act imposed, for any offence relating to the said duties on stamp vellum, parchment and paper, are to be recovered: and that all the monies arising by the said duties on cards and dice (the necessary charges of raising the same excepted) shall, from time to time, be brought into the receipt of Exchequer, for the purposes in this act expressed.

XLIV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the eleventh day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, for and during the term of thirty-two years thence next ensuing, there shall be paid to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, the sum of nine shillings for every tun of rock salt which shall be put on board any ship or vessel in any part of Great Britain, and exported to Ireland, or entered out for such exportation, over and above the present duties payable for the same, and so in proportion for every greater or lesser quantity; and the same shall be paid by the exporter thereof upon entry out for such exportation, to the proper officer of the port where such rock salt shall be put on board, or entered out, and before any cocket shall be allowed or granted for the same; and the said officer, shall sign a certificate or receipt for such sum of money as shall for such quantity of rock salt therein specified be paid for by such exporter.

XLV. And

XLV. And for better securing her Majesty's said duty last mentioned, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no drawback shall be allowed or paid to such exporter or his assigns, for duties formerly granted on rock salt, which, from and after the said eleventh day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, shall be landed in Ireland, unless such certificate or receipt herein before mentioned, for payment of the duty hereby granted, shall be first produced and delivered up to the proper officer authorized to pay or allow such drawback; any act or acts to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

Drawbacks
for Ireland.

XLVI. Provided always, That in case any ship or vessel carrying rock salt to Ireland, shall either be lost at sea, or taken by the enemy, upon due proof made thereof upon oath, and producing the certificate or receipt before mentioned, that the duty hereby granted on such rock salt was actually paid upon entry out of the same in Great Britain, the officer who signed the said certificate or receipt, and received the said money, shall repay the same without fee or reward.

Proviso for ships lost, &c:

and by another act of this session of parliament, intituled, An act for laying certain duties upon hides and skins tanned, tawed, or dressed, and upon vellum and parchment, for the term of thirty two years, for prosecuting the war, and other her Majesty's most necessary occasions, several rates and duties for and upon such hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, vellum and parchment, as are therein mentioned, are granted or made payable to your Majesty, your heirs and successors, for the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, with such other duties as in the same act are expressed, and all the monies arising by virtue of the act last-mentioned, (the necessary charges of raising, collecting, levying, paying, and accounting for the same, only excepted) are thereby required to be also paid, from time to time, into the receipt of your Majesty's Exchequer, in the manner and form, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are thereby prescribed, as by the two acts last mentioned, relation being thereunto severally had, may more fully appear: and whereas it is intended, That the said weekly sum of seven hundred pounds, to arise out of the said revenue of the post office, and all the said duties upon hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, vellum, and parchment, granted by the two acts last-mentioned, and the revenue to arise by licensing coaches and chairs, and the said new duties to arise by stamped vellum, parchment, and paper, and upon cards and dice, and upon the exportation of rock salt for Ireland, shall all together be made a fund or security, for raising any sum not exceeding two millions, towards your Majesty's supply, for the service of the war, and other your Majesty's most necessary occasions, by such methods, and in such manner and form as are herein after mentioned: now we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for and towards the raising the said sum of two millions, do further most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty two years, reckoning the first year to begin from the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, the full sum of one hundred eighty six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds, by or out of the monies to arise as well of or for the said weekly sum of seven hundred pounds, out of the revenues of the general post office, and of or for all the said duties, rates, and sums of money upon hides, and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, vellum and parchment, by virtue of the said other acts, or either of them, and by or out of the monies of the said revenue on licences for hackney coaches and chairs, and of the said new duties upon stampd vellum, parchment and paper, and upon cards and dice, and upon the exportation of rock salt for Ireland, by this act granted, and by or out of the monies to arise by all the said branches, every or any of them, and to be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, from time to time, in case the same shall extend to the said sum of one hundred eighty six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds, shall be computed and reckoned to be a yearly fund; and in case all the monies arising into the Exchequer of or for all the duties, revenues, and branches charged as aforesaid, shall not amount to one hundred eighty six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same shall extend, shall be part of the said yearly fund of one hundred eighty six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds per annum, for and towards the answering and paying of all and every the principal sums herein after mentioned, amounting in the whole to the sum of two millions six hundred and two thousand two hundred pounds principal money, together with interest for the same, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, as herein after is also mentioned; and in case the said monies by this act appointed, as aforesaid, shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year, to be reckoned as aforesaid, the said monies arising into the Exchequer, for all the duties, revenues, and branches charged, as aforesaid, shall not amount to so much as one hundred eighty six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds, that then, and so often, and in every such case, so much as shall be wanting to make up the said fund or sum of one hundred eighty six thousand six hundred and seventy pounds for every or any such year, shall be supplied and made good, from time to time, out of the first aid or supply to be granted in parliament next after such deficiency shall appear, and shall, from time to time, be transferred thereunto, as soon as the same shall be granted; and for want of such aid or supply, then such deficiency shall be supplied and made good by and out of any publick money which shall be in the said receipt of Exchequer, not appropriated to any particular use or uses by act of parliament; and the commissioners of the treasury now being, or the lord high treasurer, or the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, are hereby strictly enjoined and required to make up such deficiency accordingly out of such unappropriated publick money, without any further or other warrant or authority for the same.

XC. And whereas in an act passed in this present session of parliament, intituled, 9 Annæ, c. 6.

An act for reviving, continuing, and appropriating certain duties upon several commodities to be exported; and certain duties upon coals to be waterborn and carried coastwise; and for granting further duties upon candles, for two and thirty years; to raise one million five hundred thousand pounds, by way of a lottery, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eleven; and for suppressing such unlawful lotteries, and such insurance offices, as are therein mentioned; some doubt may arise what duty is charged upon coals exported from the west of Scotland to Ireland, or the Isle of Man; be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That the said coals shall be charged with the same duty, and no more, as coals exported from the west of England to Ireland, and the Isle of Man, are and stand charged by virtue of the said act.

Coals carried from the west of Scotland to Ireland, &c. to pay as coals from the west of England to Ireland, &c.

An act to dissolve the present, and prevent the future combination of coal-owners, lightermen, masters of ships, and others, to advance the price of coals, in prejudice of the navigation, trade, and manufactures of this kingdom, and for the further encouragement of the coal-trade.

ECT. VI. AND whereas the exporting coals to parts beyond the seas, in British ships, tends very much to the improvement and increase of the British navigation: to the end therefore that all reasonable encouragement may be given to such exportation, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any ship master, whose ship is laden with coals, and has entred into bond to deliver the said coals in some port of Great Britain, may, upon producing his coast cocquet, and making oath of the true quantity of coals aboard his ship (such quantity not being more than is expressed in the said cocquet) before the proper officer of the customs, in any port of Great Britain, pay the custom or oversea duty on such coals, and shall, on such payment, receive a certificate, signed and sealed by the customer and comptroller of such port, for such duty so paid; which certificate, being given into the custom house of the port where such coals were laid on board, shall discharge the coast bond given by such ship master, in the same manner as if the said coals had been landed in some port of Great Britain.

An act to repeal the act of the seventh year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for naturalizing foreign protestants; (except what relates to the children of her Majesty's natural-born subjects born out of her Majesty's allegiance.)

7 Annæ, c. 5.

Repealed, except the children of natural-born subjects, born out of the Queen's allegiance.

This repeal not to prejudice any persons naturalized before 4 Feb. 1711.

WHEREAS an act of parliament was made and passed in the seventh year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for naturalizing foreign protestants: and whereas divers mischiefs and inconveniencies have been found by experience to follow from the same, to the discouragement of the natural-born subjects of this kingdom, and to the detriment of the trade and wealth thereof; be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the before-mentioned act, and all the matters and things therein contained, (except so much of the said act by which the children of all natural-born subjects born out of the allegiance of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, are to be deemed, adjudged, and taken to be natural-born subjects of this kingdom) shall be, and is hereby repealed, annulled, and made void, to all intents and purposes whatsoever; provided nevertheless, That such repeal shall not in any sort prejudice or impeach the naturalization of any persons who have been or shall be naturalized at any time before the fourth day of February, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eleven, pursuant to the directions of the before-mentioned act. 4 Geo. 2. c. 21.

An act for laying several duties upon all sope and paper made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; and upon chequered and striped linens imported; and upon certain silks, calicoes, linens, and stuffs, printed, painted, or stained; and upon several kinds of stamp vellum, parchment, and paper; and upon certain printed papers, pamphlets, and advertisements; for raising the sum of eight hundred thousand pounds by way of lottery towards her Majesty's supply; and for licensing an additional number of hackney chairs; and for charging certain stocks of cards and dice; and for better securing her Majesty's duties to arise in the office for the stamp duties by licenses for marriages and otherwise; and for relief of persons who have not claimed their lottery tickets in due time, or have lost Exchequer bills, or lottery tickets; and for borrowing money upon stock (part of the capital of the South Sea company) for the use of the publick.

SECT. II. AND be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any of the said imported sope shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon, shall be duly paid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, that all such imported sope, of what kind soever, as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized or recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit, one moiety of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the sope so imported and forfeited, or the value thereof, in any her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in her Majesty's court of session, court of justiciary, or court of Exchequer in Scotland respectively, by action, suit, bill, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law, shall be allowed.

One moiety to the crown, the other to the seisor, &c.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon imported sope, by this act granted, during the continuance thereof, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, and answered, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the present duties upon sope imported, or any of them, are by any law or statute now in force to be ascertained, secured, levied, raised, recovered and answered, during the continuance thereof respectively.

How these duties shall be raised.

IV. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported sope, as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in England for the time being; and such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported sope as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in Scotland for the time being; and that the respective receivers general of the customs in England and Scotland for the time being, shall, from time to time, pay, or cause to be paid, all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties for imported sope (the necessary charges of raising and accounting for the same excepted) into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, distinctly and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are to be inflicted by this act, for diverting or misapplying any monies by this act appropriated or appointed for any the purposes herein after mentioned.

Sope that hath paid the duty may be exported on security, &c.

XXII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, who shall have actually paid her Majesty's duties by this act payable for any quantities of sope whatsoever, and to and for any other person or persons, who shall buy, or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of sope from the said person or persons who actually paid her Majesty's duties for the same, to export such sope for any foreign parts, by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantities of sope which shall be intended to be exported, as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported, and that the same, or any part thereof, shall not be re-landed or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain, which security the customer or collector of the respective port for such exportation, is hereby directed and authorized to take in her Majesty's name, and to her use.

Such sope re-landed, forfeited.

XXIII. Provided always, That if after the shipping any such sope to be exported, as aforesaid, and the giving or tendring such security, as aforesaid, in order to obtain the allowance or drawback herein after-mentioned, the sope so shipped to be exported, or any part thereof, shall be re-landed in any part of Great Britain, that then, and in every such case, (over and above the penalty of the bond which shall be levied and recovered to her Majesty's use) all the sope which shall be landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

On oath that the duty has been paid, and on debenture from the collector, &c. collector to repay the duties.

XXIV. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons who shall export any sope to any foreign parts, shall or may make proof, upon oath, or by such affirmation respectively, as aforesaid, that the duty of such sope hath been paid or secured, according to this act (which oath or affirmation the collector who received the said duty is hereby required and impowered to administer) and thereupon the said customer or collector of the said port of exportation shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture, expressing the true kinds and quantities of the sope so exported; and the exportation thereof being certified by the searcher upon the said debenture, the collector appointed to receive the said duties upon sope in such county or place where the said sope was exported, (upon producing the said debenture so certified to him) shall forthwith pay the duties which shall have been received upon this act for the sope so exported to the persons or agents so exporting the same; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay any such debenture, then the respective commissioners for the said duties of sope are hereby required to pay, or cause to be paid, the said debenture out of any duties upon sope arising by this act; or if the duty of such sope so exported were only secured, and shall remain unpaid, then the same shall be discharged upon the securities for the same; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Duty on paper, &c. imposed for 32 years, from 24

XXXII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all paper, of what kind soever, and all pastboards, pastboards, mildboards, and scale-boards, and all books, prints, and maps, which, at any time or times within or during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the four and twentieth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties imposed upon or payable for the same) the several and respective rates and duties herein after expressed; (that is to say) and levy the same duties so payable ad valorem, upon the oath of the merchant or importer accordingly; and such oath shall and may be administered, and all other matters done for ascertaining the said duties of such paper, and of such books, prints, and maps so payable ad valorem, in the same manner and form as are lawfully used and practised for ascertaining any duties payable ad valorem, upon any other commodities imported.

Landed before entry, &c. forfeited.

XXXV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several rates and duties by this act set or imposed upon all or any the said sorts of paper, and upon all or any the said pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards, and the said books, prints, and maps, to be imported and brought into Great Britain, shall, from time to time, be satisfied and paid in ready money, upon the entry or entries made, and before the landing thereof; and that in case any of the said imported paper, or any the said pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards, books, prints, or maps, shall be landed or put on shore out of any ship or vessel, before due entry be made thereof at the custom-house in the port or place where the same shall be imported, and before the said duties by this act charged or chargeable thereupon, shall be duly paid, or without a warrant for the landing or delivering the same, first signed by the commissioners, collectors, or other proper officer or officers of the customs respectively, That all such paper, and all the said pastboards, mildboards, and scaleboards, books, prints, and maps, as shall be so landed or put on shore, or taken out of any ship or vessel, contrary to the true meaning hereof, or the value of the same, shall be forfeited, and shall and may be seized and recovered of the importer or proprietor thereof; to wit, one moiety of the same to the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety of the same to the use of such person or persons as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, of the value thereof, in any her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, for any such offences committed in England, Wales, or Berwick upon Tweed, or in her Majesty's court of session, court of justiciary, or court of exchequer in Scotland, for any such offences committed in Scotland, by action, bill, suit, or information, wherein no essoin, protection, or wager of law shall be allowed.

How these duties shall be raised.

XXXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon the said imported paper and boards, and upon the said imported books, prints, and maps, during the continuance thereof, shall be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, and answered, for the uses and purposes in this act expressed, by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the present duties upon such paper, boards, or such books, prints, or maps respectively, or any of them, are by any law or statute now in force, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, and answered, during the continuance thereof respectively.

These duties to be managed by the commissioners of the customs.

XXXVII. And be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That such of the duties imposed by this act upon the said paper and boards, and upon the said books, prints, and maps, as shall arise in England, Wales, and the town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in England, for the time being; and such of the duties imposed by this act upon imported paper and boards, or such books, prints, or maps, as aforesaid, as shall arise in Scotland, shall be under the management of the commissioners and officers of the customs in Scotland, for the time being; and that the respective receivers general of the customs in England and Scotland, for the time being, shall, from time to time, pay, or cause to be paid, all the monies that they respectively shall receive of the said duties for the said paper and boards, and for such books, prints, and maps imported, as aforesaid, (the necessary charges of raising and accounting for the same excepted) into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, distinctly and apart from all other branches of the publick revenues, for the purposes in this act expressed, and under the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, as are to be inflicted by this act, for diverting or misapplying any money by this act appropriated or appointed for any the purposes herein after mentioned.

XL. And be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a ream of paper chargeable by this act, whether the same be imported or made in Great Britain, shall be understood to consist of twenty quires, and each quire of four and twenty sheets; and that all sorts of paper of the respective dimensions and value of the paper chargeable by this act, under the respective denominations aforesaid, with the respective rates and duties hereby granted, shall be charged and chargeable with the same respective rates and duties, although the same denominations (by which they are now usually known) should be altered, or by whatsoever other name or names the same, or any of them, now are, or during the said term shall or may be called or known.

24 sheets each.

LVII. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, who shall have actually paid her Majesty's duties by this act payable for any quantity of paper, pastboard, mildboard, and scaleboard whatsoever, made in Great Britain, or imported into the same, or for any such printed, painted, or stained paper, as aforesaid, and to and for any other person or persons who shall buy, or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of paper, or any other the goods last-mentioned, from the said person or persons who actually paid her Majesty's duties for the same, to export such paper, pastboard, mildboard, or scaleboard, or printed, painted, or stained paper, for any foreign parts, by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantities of such commodities which shall be intended to be exported, as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported; and that the same, or any part thereof, shall not be reloaded or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain: which security the customer or collector of the respective port of such exportation, is hereby directed and authorized to take, in her Majesty's name, and to her use.

Paper, &c. that hath paid the duty, may be exported, on

LVIII. Provided always, That if after the shipping any such paper, or other the commodities last-mentioned, to be exported, as aforesaid, and the giving or tendring such security, as aforesaid, in order to obtain the allowance or drawback herein after mentioned, the paper or other commodities shipped to be exported, or any part thereof, shall be reloaded in any part of Great Britain, that then, and in every such case, (over and above the penalties of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to her Majesty's use) all the paper and commodities which shall be so landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

Paper, &c. reloaded, forfeited, or the value.

LIX. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons, who shall export any paper, or any pastboard, mildboard, or scaleboard, or any such printed, painted, or stained paper, as aforesaid, to any foreign parts, shall or may make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation respectively, as aforesaid, that the duties thereof have been paid or secured, according to this act (which oath or affirmation the collector who received the said duties hereby required and impowered to administer) and thereupon the said customer or collector of the said port of exportation, shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture, expressing the true quantities and kinds of such commodities so exported, and the exportation thereof being certified by the collector upon the said debenture, the collector appointed to receive the said duties upon paper in such county or place where the same were exported upon producing the said debenture so certified to him) shall forthwith pay the duties which shall have been received upon this act, for the paper, pastboard, mildboard, and scaleboard so exported, to the persons or agents exporting the same; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay any such debenture, then the said respective commissioners for the

the said duties of paper, are hereby required to pay, or cause to be paid, the said debenture out of any duties upon paper arising by this act; or if the duty of such commodities aforesaid so exported, were only secured, and shall remain unpaid, then the same shall be discharged, upon the security for the same; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Printed linens imported to pay 15l. per cent. ad valorem from 20 July, 1712, for 32 years. Explained by 12 Anna, stat. 2. c. 19. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 1.

LXVI. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, to and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all chequered and striped linens, and upon all linens printed, painted, stained, or dyed, after the manufacture, or in the thread or yarn before the manufacture, in any foreign parts, which at any time or times, within or during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, and may lawfully be used or worn there (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties, imposed upon or payable for the same) a duty after the rate of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, to be paid by the importers respectively.

LXVII. And it is hereby enacted, That the said duty upon such imported linens chargeable by this act, shall, from time to time, be managed, ascertained, paid, secured, raised, levied, and brought into the Exchequer, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, as the above-said duties upon imported paper are by this act to be managed, ascertained, paid, secured, raised, levied, and brought in, as aforesaid; and that all the provisions, penalties, forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things, contained in this act, for managing, ascertaining, paying, securing, raising, levying, and bringing in the said duties upon paper imported, or any of them, shall be applied, practised, and put in execution, for managing, ascertaining, paying, raising, securing, levying, and bringing in the said duties upon the importation of such linen, as aforesaid, as fully and effectually as if the same were again repeated in this present act.

After duty paid, printed linens imported, to be stamped.

LXVIII. And moreover it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the said duties hereby granted upon the said chequered, striped, printed, painted, stained, and dyed linens imported, as aforesaid, from time to time, shall be paid to her Majesty's use, the respective commissioners, officer and officers of the customs of the port or place where the same shall be imported, shall cause every piece and parcel thereof to be marked or stamped with a distinct seal or mark, to be provided and used in this act directs, to denote the payment of the duties for the same.

These goods having paid the duty, may be exported, on security, &c.

XCIV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, who shall have actually paid her Majesty's duties by this act payable for any of the said imported linens, or for any silks, calicoes, linens, or stuffs, to be printed, painted, stained, or dyed, as aforesaid, in Great Britain, and to and for any other person or persons, who shall buy, or be lawfully entitled to any such imported linens, or any such goods, printed, painted, stained, or dyed, as aforesaid, in Great Britain, from the person or persons who actually paid her Majesty's duties payable by this act for the same, to export any such goods for which the duty was so paid for any foreign parts, by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof, that the particular quantities so intended to be exported, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported, and not to be reloaded or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain, which security the customer or collector of the port of exportation shall take in her Majesty's name, and to her use.

If reloaded, forfeited.

XCV. Provided always, That if after the shipping of any such goods and the giving or rendering such security, as aforesaid, in order to obtain allowance or drawback herein after mentioned, the same, or any part thereof, shall be relanded in any part of Great Britain, that then, and in every such case, (over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to her Majesty's use) all the said goods, which shall be so landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

XCVI. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons who shall export any such chequered, striped, printed, painted, stained, or dyed goods, as aforesaid, to or for any foreign parts, shall and may make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation respectively, as aforesaid, that the duties thereof have been paid or secured according to this act, (which oath or affirmation, the customer or collector of the port of exportation is hereby required and impowered to administer) and thereupon the said customer or collector of the said port of exportation shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture, expressing the true kinds and quantities of the chequered and striped linens, and of the said printed, painted, stained, and dyed goods so exported; and the exportation thereof being certified by the searcher upon the said debenture, the collector appointed to receive the said duties upon such chequered and striped linens, printed, painted, stained, and dyed goods, in the county or place where such exportation was made, (upon producing the said debenture so certified to him) shall forthwith pay the duties which shall have been received upon this act for the goods so exported, to the persons or agents so exporting the same; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay any such debenture, then the respective commissioners for the said duties on chequered and striped linens, printed, painted, stained, and dyed goods, are hereby required to pay, or cause to be paid, the said debenture out of any the duties upon chequered and striped linens, printed, painted, stained, and dyed goods, arising by this act; or if the duty of the goods so exported were only secured, and shall remain unpaid, then the same shall be discharged upon the security for the same; any thing in this act contained notwithstanding.

On oath that the duty has been paid,

XCVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the respective commissioners of the customs in Great Britain shall, on or before the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, provide, or cause to be provided, such and so many seals or stamps, with which all the said imported linens, during the continuance of this act, shall be marked, upon payment of the duties thereof, as aforesaid, and shall cause the same to be delivered to the proper officers of the customs for that purpose; and that the respective commissioners to be appointed for managing the said duties upon silks, calicoes, linens, and stuffs, to be printed, painted, stained, or dyed, in Great Britain, shall, on or before the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, provide proper seals or stamps, of another kind, for marking such of the said silks, calicoes, linens, and stuffs, to be printed, painted, stained, or dyed, in Great Britain, as aforesaid, during the continuance of this act, as are to be stamped and marked, for and in order to the charging of the respective duties for the same; and also so many seals or stamps, of a third kind, with which all the said stocks or quantities of chequered and striped linens, and of such printed, painted, stained, or dyed goods, as aforesaid, on the said twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, upon paying or securing the said half duties for the same, are to be marked or stamped, and shall cause the said respective seals or stamps to be distributed to the respective officers for the several purposes before mentioned; which officers are hereby enjoined and required, in using the same, to do no hurt or damage, or the least damage that may be, to the goods to be so marked or stamped; and the said respective commissioners, in providing the said respective seals or stamps, shall take care that they be so contrived, that the impression thereof may be durable, and so as the same may be least liable to be forged or counterfeited; and that the said stamps, or any of them, shall or may be altered or renewed, from time to time, as her Majesty, her heirs or successors, shall think fit; and if any person or persons whatsoever, shall, at any time or times hereafter, counterfeit or forge any stamp or seal to resemble any stamp or seal which shall be provided or made in pursuance of this act, or shall counterfeit or resemble the impression of the same upon any of the said commodities chargeable by this act, thereby to defraud her Majesty, her heirs or successors, of any the said duties hereby granted, then every such person so offending, being thereof convicted in due form of law, shall be judged a felon, and shall suffer death as in cases of felony, without benefit of clergy; and if any person or persons shall, at any time or times, during the continuance of this act, sell any printed, painted, stained, or dyed silks, callicoes, lincens, or other stuffs, as aforesaid, with a counterfeit stamp thereupon, knowing the same to be counterfeited, and with an intent to defraud her Majesty, her heirs or successors, all and every such offender and offenders, their aiders, abettors, and assistants, (being duly convicted, as aforesaid) shall, for every such offence, forfeit and lose to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, the sum of one hundred pounds, and shall be adjudged to stand in the pillory in some publick place for the space of two hours.

CXCIX. And for the more easy collecting the duties, and preventing disputes that may arise from the difference of the breadths of callicoes which are or shall be printed, painted, or stained; be it enacted and declared, That all such callicoes which are or shall be printed, painted, or stained, and which shall be within one eighth part of a yard of yard broad, or not exceeding one eighth part of a yard of yard broad, shall pay as yard broad, and no more nor less; any thing in this act to the contrary notwithstanding.

CXXIII. And it is hereby enacted, That if any person or persons shall be sued, molested, or prosecuted for any thing done by virtue or in pursuance of this act, such person and persons shall and may plead the general issue; and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if afterwards a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff shall discontinue his action, or be nonsuited, or judgment shall be given against him upon demurrer, or otherwise, then such defendant or defendants shall have treble costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff.

CXXIV. And to the end all the said rates and duties upon sope, paper, chequered and striped lincens, and upon printed, painted, stained, or dyed goods, and upon stamped vellum, parchment, and paper, or otherwise howsoever before granted by this act, may be duly and certainly raised, and the same (except the necessary charges of executing this act) may be justly and duly brought into the said receipt of Exchequer, according to the true meaning hereof; it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many commissioners and officers as shall be proper and necessary for managing, raising, collecting, and paying the said several rates and duties herein before granted, and for keeping and rendering the accounts of the same, and that the respective commissioners and officers concerned therein, shall perform their several duties, in relation to the premises, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies arising by the said rates and duties, as are prescribed and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum, not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties thereby granted or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies, which were granted or appropriated by the act last mentioned.

CXXV. And

CXXV. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty-two years, reckoning the first year to begin from the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, the full sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds, by or out of the monies to arise by the several duties, rates, and sums of money, by this act herein before granted or appropriated, or any of them, and to be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, as aforesaid, (in case the same shall extend thereunto) shall be computed and reckoned to be a yearly fund; and in case all the monies arising into the Exchequer for the same duties, rates, and sums of money, so granted or appropriated, shall not amount to the sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds per annum, then the monies so arising (so far as the same shall extend) shall be part of the yearly fund for and towards the answering and paying off all and every the principal sums herein after mentioned, amounting in the whole to the sum of two millions three hundred forty one thousand seven hundred and forty pounds, principal money, together with interest for the same, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, as herein after is mentioned; and in case the same duties, rates, and sums of money by this act granted or appropriated; shall at any time or times appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year, to be reckoned as aforesaid, the said monies arising in the Exchequer, for or upon account of the same duties, shall not amount to as much as one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds, that then and so often, and in every such case, so much as shall be wanting to make up the said fund or sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds, for every or any such year, shall be supplied and made good, from time to time, out of the first aid or supply to be granted in parliament, next after such deficiency shall appear, and shall, from time to time, be transferred thereunto, as soon as the same shall be granted; and in case no such aid or supply shall be granted, then by and out of any publick money which shall be in the said receipt of Exchequer, not appropriated to any particular use or uses by act of parliament; and the lord high treasurer now being, or the lord high treasurer, or commissioners of the treasury for the time being, are hereby strictly enjoined and required to make up such deficiency accordingly, out of such unappropriated publick money, without any further or other warrant or authority for the same.

168,003 l. to be the yearly fund for clearing off the principal sum of 2,341,740 l. with interest 6 l. per cent.

or out of any publick monies in the Exchequer unappropriated.

CLXVII. And whereas by an act made in the third year of the reign of King Edward the Fourth, playing cards and dice are prohibited to be imported into England or Wales; be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, that the said act, and all matters therein contained, relating to playing cards or dice, shall and do stand and be in full force and effect, and so shall be construed, deemed, and adjudged, as to every part of the kingdom of Great Britain; any thing in any other act, touching the said duties on cards and dice, to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

Act 3 Edw. 4. c. 4. to be in force.

CLXXXII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That no commissioner, officer, or other person concerned or employed in the charging, collecting, receiving, or managing any of the duties granted by this act, shall, by word, message, or writing, or in any other manner, endeavour to persuade any elector to give, or dissuade any elector from giving his vote for his choice of any person to be knight of the shire, commissioner, citizen, burgess, or baron, for any county, city, borough, or cinque port; and every officer or other person offending therein, shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds; one moiety thereof to the informer, the other moiety thereof to the use of the poor of the parish or place where such offence shall be committed; to be recovered by any person that shall sue for the same, by action of debt, bill, plaint, or information, in any of Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the court of Exchequer in that part of Great Britain called Scotland, in which no essoin, protection, privilege,

Anno decimo

A N N Æ Reginae.

C A P. XXVI.

An act for laying additional duties on hides and skins, vellum and parchment, and new duties on starch, coffee, tea, drugs, gilt and silver wire, and policies of insurance, to secure a yearly fund for satisfaction of orders to the contributors of a further sum of one million eight hundred thousand pounds towards her Majesty's supply; and for the better securing the duties on candles; and for obviating doubts concerning certain payments in Scotland; and for suppressing unlawful lotteries, and other devices of the same kind; and concerning cake dope; and for relief of Mary Ravenall, in relation to an annuity of eighteen pounds per annum; and concerning prize cocoa nuts brought from America; and certain tickets which were intended to be subscribed into the stock of the South Sea company; and for appropriating the monies granted in this session of parliament.

New duties on leather, &c. imported, for 32 years, from 1 Aug. 1712. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. f. 1.

MOST gracious Sovereign; We your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain, in parliament assembled, being fully resolved to furnish such supplies as may be necessary for defraying the expences of the present war, and other your Majesty's extraordinary and important occasions, have, for those ends and purposes, cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant to your Majesty the several and respective additional rates and new duties for and upon all such skins and hides, and pieces of skins and hides, made wares, vellum, and parchment, starch, coffee, tea, drugs, gilt and silver wire, policies of assurance, and such other matters and things as are herein after more particularly described and mentioned, for and during such several and respective term and terms of years, and in such manner and form as are herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon such skins and hides, and pieces of skins and hides, and for and upon such made wares, herein after particularly described and mentioned, as shall at any time or times within or during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties, by any act or acts of parliament or law whatsoever imposed upon or payable for the same) the several and respective additional rates or new duties herein after expressed; that is to say,

For and upon all deer skins, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, being dressed in oil or allom, or otherwise perfectly dressed, the sum of three pence for every pound weight averduois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity.

Loshee, buffalo, &c.

For and upon all loshee, buffalo, elk, or any other hides, dressed in oil, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, the sum of three pence for every such pound weight, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity.

For and upon all Russia hides, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, the sum of one penny for every such pound weight, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity.

Russia hides.

For and upon all other tanned hides and tanned calve skins, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid (not before in this act specially charged) the sum of two pence for every pound weight, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity.

Calve skins.

For and upon all hides of horses, mares, and geldings, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, being dressed in allom and salt, or meal, or otherwise tawed, the sum of one shilling per hide, and after that rate for a greater or lesser number or quantity.

Horse hides.

For and upon all hides of steers, cows, or any other hides of what kind soever, (those of horses, mares, and geldings excepted) which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, being dressed in allom and salt, or meal, or otherwise tawed, the sum of one shilling and six pence for every hide, and after that rate for a greater or lesser number or quantity.

Hides of steers, &c.

For and upon all calve skins and kips, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, being dressed in allom and salt, or meal, or otherwise tawed, the sum of one penny half-penny for every pound weight averdupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity.

Calve skins, &c.

For and upon all slink calve skins, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, dressed in allom and salt, or otherwise, with the hair on, the sum of one penny for every pound weight averdupois; and for all slink calve skins which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, dressed in allom and salt, or otherwise, without the hair, and for all dogs skins dressed, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, the sum of one half-penny for every such pound weight, and after those rates for any greater or lesser quantities.

Slinks.

Dogs skins.

For all skins commonly called cordivants, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, the sum of four shillings for every dozen, and after that rate for any greater or lesser number or quantity.

Cordivants.

For and upon all other goat skins (not usually called cordivants) which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, being dressed in oil, or with allom, salt, meal, or otherwise dressed, the sum of four shillings for every dozen, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity.

Goat skins.

For and upon all kid skins, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, being dressed or undressed, or not perfectly dressed, the sum of six pence for every dozen, and after that rate for any greater or lesser number or quantity: and if any of the said kid skins shall be dressed after the importation thereof, it is hereby declared, that no further duties are to be paid for the same by this act upon the dressing or perfect dressing them, or any of them in Great Britain.

Kid skins.

For and upon all sheep skins and lamb skins, which shall be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, the respective rates following; that is to say, For all imported sheep skins dressed in oil, one shilling and six pence per dozen; for all imported lamb skins dressed in oil, one shilling per dozen; for all imported sheep skins and lamb skins tanned, nine pence per dozen; and for and upon all imported sheep skins and lamb skins dressed in allom and salt, or meal, or otherwise tawed, six pence per dozen, and in proportion to those rates for a greater or lesser number, numbers or quantities of such sheep skins and lamb skins respectively.

Hides, &c. imported not before charged.

and so proportionably for a greater or lesser quantity, to be affirmed upon the oath of the importer thereof; the said several and respective rates and duties for and upon all such hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, and made wares, to be imported or brought in, as aforesaid, within or during the term before mentioned, to be paid by the importers thereof respectively.

Duty on vellum and parchment imported or made in Great Britain.
Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 1.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all vellum and parchment which shall, at any time or times within or during the said term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, be made in Great Britain, or imported into the same (over and above all other duties by any act or acts of parliament or law whatsoever imposed upon or payable for the same) the several and respective additional rates or new duties herein after expressed; that is to say, for and upon all vellum so imported, an additional rate of three shillings for every dozen; and for all parchment so imported, an additional rate of two shillings for every dozen, and proportionally for greater or lesser numbers or quantities, to be paid by the importers thereof respectively; and for and upon all vellum which shall be made in Great Britain, as aforesaid, an additional duty after the rate of two shillings for every dozen; and for all parchment which shall be made in Great Britain, as aforesaid, an additional duty after the rate of one shilling for every dozen, to be paid by the makers thereof respectively.

9 Annæ, c. 11.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the several and respective additional or new rates and duties by this act imposed or chargeable for and upon all or any such hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, made wares, vellum, and parchment, as aforesaid, for and during the said term of years hereby granted, of and in the same, shall and may, from time to time, be ascertained, raised, received, levied, recovered, and secured, by such ways, means, and methods, and by the same or different stamps and marks, and under such pains of death, and other penalties and forfeitures, and with such powers of adjudging the said duties, and adjudging and mitigating the said penalties and forfeitures, or any of them, and other powers, and subject to proportional allowances, drawbacks, and repayments, and to such rules and directions, and in such methods, manner, and form, as the respective duties upon the like hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, made wares, vellum, and parchment, granted by an act in the ninth year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for laying certain duties upon hides and skins tanned, tawed, or dressed, and upon vellum and parchment, for the term of thirty two years, for prosecuting the war, and other her Majesty's most necessary occasions, are by that act, or any law or statute thereby referred unto, prescribed, appointed, or enacted, during the continuance thereof, to be ascertained, raised, received, levied, secured, or recovered; and that the act last-mentioned, and all the clauses, pains of death, penalties, forfeitures, powers, authorities, rules, directions, matters, and things, therein contained, or thereby referred unto, for the raising, receiving, levying, recovering, securing, paying, or accounting for the said duties thereby granted, or any arrearages of the same, or any way relating to the said duties, pains, penalties, or forfeitures, by that act chargeable, by force and virtue of this present act, be continued, practised, and put in execution for raising, receiving, levying, recovering, securing, paying, and accounting for the duties upon hides and skins, and pieces of hides and skins, made wares, vellum, and parchment, by this act granted, and all arrearages thereof, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if they were particularly and at large repeated in the body of this present act.

9 Annæ, c. 11. s. 39.

V. And whereas some doubts have arisen upon the said act of the ninth year of her Majesty's reign, whether a debenture could be given in pursuance of the said act by the customer or collector of the customs for two thirds of the duties upon hides and calves skins shipped for exportation, unless the marks or stamps denoting the charging the duty payable by that act did appear to them thereupon; and it being often found inconvenient that the exporters should be obliged to open their bails or packs of leather at the port of exportation; it is hereby provided and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon oath made by the exporter, unless such exporter be a known quaker, and if he be, then upon the solemn affirmation of such quaker (which oath or affirmation the customer or collector is hereby impowered to administer) that all the hides or skins contained in such bails or packs respectively, were marked with the marks or stamps denoting the charging of the duties payable by this act and the said former act, or either of them, and expressing particularly how much the duty so denoted to have been paid or charged by the said former act for such hides or skins doth amount unto, exclusive of the duty upon the stock in hand; and also how much the duties so denoted to have been paid or charged by this act for such hides or skins doth amount unto, and expressing the weight of the hides and calve skins so exported or shipped for exportation, in such oath or affirmation; then, and in every such case, it shall and may be lawful for the customer or collector (such security being given as the said act requires) to make forth a debenture for the two third parts of the said duties payable by the said former act and this present act, or either of them, for the hides and calve skins already exported, or shipped to be exported, for which no drawback hath already been paid, and for the like hides and calve skins which shall hereafter be exported, or shipped to be exported, and for which a drawback ought to be made, according to the true meaning of this or the said former act; and every such debenture being verified by the certificate of the searcher, attesting the shipping of such hides and skins, shall be satisfied according to this and the said former act, as fully as if the marks or stamps on the said hides and skins had been seen by the proper officer of the customs; any thing in this or the said former act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

On oath of the exporter, that the hides have been marked, &c.

Debentures to be made out for a drawback of two thirds of the duty.

Hides dressed or curried to have a drawback on exportation of one penny per lb.

9 Annæ, c. 11.

By 12 Annæ, stat. 2. c. 9. s. 64. a further drawback is allowed.

Duties on starch, from 1 Aug. 1712, for 32 years, imported, 2 d. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 1.

Made in Great Britain, 1 d.

VI. And whereas by the said act made last session of parliament, intituled, An act for laying certain duties upon hides, and skins tanned, tawed, or dressed, and upon vellum and parchment, for the term of thirty two years, or prosecuting the war, and other her Majesty's most necessary occasions, there is provision made in the said act, that a drawback be allowed upon all tanned or rough hides and calve skins, upon their exportation, but no allowance made for a drawback on hides or calve skins that are dressed or curried: for remedy whereof, be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all hides or calve skins that are or shall be dressed, or curried, shall be entitled to a drawback upon their exportation, of one penny per pound weight, as they shall weigh at the custom-house, to be paid and allowed in the same manner, and under such cautions, rules, and security, as the drawback upon rough tanned hides and calve skins is to be paid or allowed.

VII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all starch which, at any time or times within or during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, (over and above all customs, subsidies, and duties already imposed thereupon) the sum of two pence for every pound weight, consisting of sixteen ounces avordupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, to be paid down in ready money by the importers thereof, from time to time, before the landing of the same; and for and upon all starch of what kind soever, which at any time or times within or during the same term of thirty two years, shall be made within the said kingdom of Great Britain, the sum of one penny for every such pound

10 Ann. c. 19.

Starch that hath paid the duty, may be exported on security, &c.

Such starch re-landed, forfeited.

On oath that the duty hath been paid, and on debenture from the customer, &c.

Collector to repay the duties.

New duties on coffee, tea, and drugs, (except dying drugs, and turpentine of British plan-pound weight avordupois, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity: the same to be paid by the makers thereof respectively.

VIII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon imported starch shall be raised, levied, recovered, answered, and paid, and be brought into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer in England, (to and for the uses and purposes in this act expressed) by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and with such allowances, and in such manner and form, as the duties upon imported soap, granted by one other act of the present session of parliament, or by any laws and statutes therein referred unto, are to be raised, levied, recovered, answered, and paid.

XXV. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any person or persons, who shall have actually paid her Majesty's duties by this act payable for any quantities of starch whatsoever, and to and for any other person or persons, who shall buy, or be lawfully entitled to any such quantity of starch from the said person or persons who actually paid her Majesty's duties for the same, to export such starch for any foreign parts, by way of merchandize, giving sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantities of starch, which shall be intended to be exported, as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall be shipped and exported, and that the same, or any part thereof, shall not be re-landed or brought again into any part or parts of Great Britain, which security the customer or collector of the respective port for such exportation, is hereby directed and authorized to take, in her Majesty's name, and to her use.

XXVI. Provided always, That if after the shipping any such starch to be exported, as aforesaid, and the giving or tendering such security, as aforesaid, in order to obtain the allowance or drawback herein-after mentioned, the starch so shipped to be exported, or any part thereof, shall be re-landed in any part of Great Britain, that then and in every such case (over and above the penalty of the bond, which shall be levied and recovered to her Majesty's use) all the starch which shall be landed, or the value thereof, shall be forfeited.

XXVII. And it is also hereby enacted, That any person or persons, who shall export any starch to any foreign parts, shall or may make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation respectively, as aforesaid, That the duty of such starch hath been paid or secured, according to this act (which oath or affirmation the customer or collector of the port of exportation is hereby empowered to administer) and thereupon the said customer or collector of the said port of exportation, shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture, expressing the true kinds and quantities of the starch so exported, and the exportation thereof being certified by the searcher upon the said debenture, the collector appointed to receive the said duties upon starch in such county or place where the said starch was exported (upon producing the said debenture so certified to him) shall forthwith pay the duties which shall have been received upon this act, for the starch so exported, to the persons or agents so exporting the same; and if such collector shall not have money in his hands to pay any such debenture, then the respective commissioners for the said duties of starch are hereby required to pay, or cause to be paid, the said debenture out of any duties upon starch arising by this act; or if the duty of such starch so exported, were only secured and shall remain unpaid, then the same shall be discharged upon the securities for the same; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

XXXII. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, answered, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all coffee, tea, and drugs of what kind soever, (dying drugs imported from any foreign parts, and turpentine imported from the British plantations, excepted) which at any time or times within or during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the sixteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties imposed upon or payable for the same, or any of them) the several new rates, duties, and sums of money following; that is to say, for all coffee imported, as aforesaid, twelve pence for every pound weight avordupois; and proportionally for greater or lesser quantities: for all kinds of tea imported from any place or places within the limits of the charter granted to the East India company, two shillings for every such pound weight; and for all kinds of tea imported from any other place or places, five shillings for every such pound weight; and proportionally for greater or lesser quantities of tea: and for all kinds of drugs imported (except as aforesaid) within or during the term last-mentioned, a duty after the rate of twenty pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value of the same: which said duties upon coffee, tea, and drugs, chargeable by this act, as aforesaid, shall be paid by the respective importers thereof from time to time.

tations) for 32 years, from 16 June, 1712. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 1.

By 10 Geo. 1. c. 10. & 18 Geo. 2. c. 26. these duties are repealed, and new ones imposed. By 11 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 9. this duty of 20 l. per cent. on drugs is determined.

12 Car. 2. c. 4.

XXXIII. And it is hereby declared and enacted, That the values of such of the said drugs chargeable by this act, as had any particular valuation set thereupon in the book of rates, annexed to the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, shall be valued according to the gross valuations contained in the said book, for the payment of the said duty, after the rate of twenty per centum by this act charged thereupon, without any abatement in respect of the clause contained in the said book for drugs imported in English built shipping; and that all such unrated drugs as shall be brought from any places within the limits of the charter granted to the East India company, shall be valued by the price thereof upon sale at the candle, for the payment of the duty by this act granted, in the same manner, and with such allowances, as are prescribed by the laws now in force for payment of the other duties upon unrated goods brought from places within those limits; and that the values of all other the drugs chargeable by this act, shall, in all cases, be taken to be so much as such imported kinds are really worth to be sold at the port of importation, without any abatement for the duties thereupon charged by this or any former acts; and that the respective customer, collector, or other person or persons, officer or officers of the customs for the time being, shall receive and levy the same duties of the said drugs so payable ad valorem, upon the oath of the merchant or importer accordingly; and such oath shall and may be administered, and all other matters done for ascertaining the said duties of such drugs as are last-mentioned, in the same manner and form as is lawfully used and practised for ascertaining any duties payable ad valorem by the oath of the importer upon any other commodities imported.

Coffee and tea imported after 16 June, 1712, to be warehoused,

XXXIV. And for the better securing the duties upon coffee imported from any foreign parts, and all such tea as shall be imported from any places within the limits of the charter granted to the East India company, by this and other acts of parliament imposed; and to the intent the same may not be too burthensome on the importers of such coffee and tea as shall again be imported to parts beyond the seas; it is hereby provided and further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the sixteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, during the continuance of the said duties on coffee and tea hereby granted, all such coffee as shall be imported to the kingdom of Great Britain from any foreign parts, and all such tea as shall be imported from any places within the limits of the said charter granted to the East India company, shall, upon entry thereof, be forthwith carried and put into such warehouse or warehouses as shall for that purpose be provided, by and at the charge of the importers of such coffee and tea, and be approved of by the commissioners of her Majesty's customs for the time being, and so much of the duties of the same coffee and tea as (in case and so much of the duty as would not be drawn back on exportation to be paid down, and if to be consumed in Great Britain, the remaining duty to be paid on delivery out:

If to be exported, security to be given, &c.

of exportation) would remain, and not be drawn back by any former laws now in force, shall be paid down in ready money by the importer or importers thereof, who shall have power to garble such coffee, as hath been usual, to make it merchantable; which said coffee and tea so brought into such warehouse or warehouses shall not be taken or carried out thence upon any account whatsoever, other than as is herein-after mentioned; that is to say, such of the said coffee and tea as shall be sold to be consumed in Great Britain, shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses, upon payment of her Majesty's duties payable by this or any other act or acts for the same coffee and tea (other than and except so much as was before paid down, as aforesaid); and such of the said coffee and tea as shall be for exportation to parts beyond the seas, shall be delivered out of such warehouse or warehouses unto the importers, or such buyers, or other person or persons as such importers shall appoint in that behalf, upon sufficient security to be first given to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, (which security the said commissioners of the customs, or such officers of the customs as they shall appoint, are hereby required and impowered to take) that the same, and every part thereof, shall be exported, and not relanded in Great Britain; which said securities shall be discharged without fee or reward, upon certificate returned or produced to the commissioners of the customs, or such officers, as aforesaid, under the common seal of the chief magistrate in any place or places in parts beyond the seas, or under the hands and seals of two known British merchants then being at such place or places, that such coffee or tea was there landed, or upon proof, by credible persons, that such coffee or tea was taken by enemies, or perished in the seas; the examination and proof thereof being left to the judgment of the said commissioners of the customs for the time being.

XXXV. And for preventing all clandestine importing or bringing of coffee or such tea, as aforesaid, into this kingdom of Great Britain; be it further enacted, That if any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, from and after the said sixteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, during the continuance of the said duties upon coffee and tea, shall import or bring any coffee, or such tea as is to be secured in such warehouses, as aforesaid, into Great Britain, and shall not make due entries thereof, and bring the same into the said warehouse or warehouses, as aforesaid, the same shall be and is hereby adjudged to be clandestine running, and unlawful importation thereof; and such person and persons, or bodies politick or corporate, offending therein, and their abettors, shall forfeit all the coffee and tea so clandestinely run, and the sum of five hundred pounds, to be recovered and divided; one moiety thereof to the Queen, and the other moiety, together with full costs of suit, to the person or persons that shall seize, inform, or sue for the same in any of her Majesty's courts aforesaid.

XXXVI. And for preventing the clandestine carrying any the said coffee or tea out of the said warehouses; be it enacted, That the keeper or keepers of the said warehouse and warehouses (who shall be appointed by the commissioners of the customs, and be at the charge of the importers) shall keep one or more book or books, wherein he or they shall fairly enter or write down an exact, particular and true account of all coffee and tea which shall be brought into, and carried out of his or their said warehouse and warehouses, and the days and times when the same was so brought in and carried out, and how much thereof was delivered out to be consumed and spent in Great Britain, and how much for exportation, as aforesaid, and shall at the end of every six months transmit in writing an exact account thereof, upon oath, to the commissioners of the customs for the time being, together with an exact account of how much shall be remaining in his or their said warehouse or warehouses respectively; and the said commissioners are hereby impowered and enjoined, within one month after the same shall be transmitted to them, as aforesaid, to appoint one or more person or persons to inspect the said book or books, warehouse or warehouses, and to examine the same accounts; and if upon examination it shall appear that any of the said coffee or tea was delivered out otherwise than as aforesaid, or before payment of her Majesty's duties for such of the said coffee or tea as shall be sold to be consumed in Great Britain, or giving such security, as aforesaid, for such of the said coffee or tea as shall be delivered out for exportation, as aforesaid, then the warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers offending therein, shall not only be disabled to hold or enjoy any publick employment, but also shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds for every such offence, to be recovered and divided, to wit, one moiety thereof to the Queen's majesty, and the other moiety thereof, with full costs of suit, to the person or persons who shall seize, sue, or inform for the same in any the courts aforesaid.

XXXVII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the proprietor or proprietors of the coffee and tea, so lodged in any warehouse or warehouses, to affix one lock to every such warehouse, the key of which shall remain in the custody of such proprietor or proprietors; and that he or they may, in the presence of the said warehouse-keeper or warehouse-keepers, (who is and are hereby obliged to attend at all reasonable times for that purpose) view, sort, and receive out the said coffee and tea, or any part thereof, in manner following; that is to say, such of the said coffee or tea as shall be sold to be consumed in Great Britain, upon paying the remainder of all the duties imposed thereon, as aforesaid; and such of the said coffee or tea as shall be sold for exportation, upon giving such security as is before in that behalf expressed.

Proprietors may affix locks on warehouses, &c.

XXXVIII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That from and after the said sixteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, all the duties and impositions (so much as is to be paid down in ready money, as aforesaid, excepted) for the said coffee or tea delivered out of the said warehouses to be consumed in Great Britain, shall be paid upon such delivery out of the warehouse, and not otherwise; and that from and after the said sixteenth day of June, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, all duties imposed upon such of the said coffee or tea as shall be delivered for exportation, and exported accordingly, (except so much as was paid down in ready money, as aforesaid) shall be discharged; and from thenceforth no drawback or allowance shall be paid or made out of her Majesty's customs for or on account of the exportation of any such coffee or tea; any thing herein, or in any former act or acts of parliament, to the contrary notwithstanding.

All the duties to be paid on its delivery out for consumption here.

On exportation the duties to be discharged, except, &c.

XXXIX. Provided always, That if any importers of coffee or tea shall pay down all her Majesty's duties for the same, upon the importation, and before the landing thereof, then such importers shall not be obliged to secure the same in a warehouse or warehouses, as aforesaid.

Importers, on paying down all the duties, not obliged to warehouse their coffee, &c.

XL. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties hereby granted upon imported tea and drugs (except such tea as shall be imported from any places within the limits of the charter granted to the East India company) chargeable by this act, shall be raised, levied, recovered, answered, and paid, (to and for the uses and purposes in this act expressed) by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such allowances, as the other duties upon the same goods respectively are by any law or statute now in force, to be ascertained, secured, raised, levied, recovered, and answered, during the continuance thereof respectively.

Duties on imported tea and drugs how to be levied.

XLI. Provided always, and be it further enacted and declared, That in case any of the said tea and drugs hereby charged, (and except as before excepted) upon which the said new duties by this act granted, shall, upon the importation thereof, be duly paid or secured to be paid, be again exported at any time or times within eighteen months by British merchants, or within nine months by aliens, to be accounted from the respective times of the

New duties on tea and drugs to be repaid on exportation. These 18 and 19 months enlarged to three years by 7 Geo. 1. stat. 1, c. 21. s. 10.

the importation of the said goods inwards, and that proof be first made upon oath, that the said tea or drugs (except as before excepted) so exported, be the same for which the said duties are paid, or secured to be paid, as aforesaid, that then, and in every such case, and not otherwise, the same duties so paid shall, without any delay or reward, be wholly repaid out of any the duties upon tea and drugs by this act granted, or the security for such of the said duties as shall be secured shall be vacated (on a debenture or debentures regularly certified and sworn to) as to so much of the said tea and drugs as shall be so exported; any thing in this act contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

8 Ann. c. 7. s. 7.

Stones, dirt, &c. found among pepper or coffee, to be destroyed.

XLV. And whereas, upon the garbling and cleaning of pepper, great quantities of stones, dirt, and trash have been found, and now remaining in the warehouses appointed by the commissioners of the customs for the receiving of pepper, by virtue of the act of the ninth of the Queen, and more of the same may probably be found among the pepper to be imported, and the same being of no use either to the importers or buyers; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the commissioners of her Majesty's customs for the time being shall have hereby, at the request of the importers or buyers, power to cause such stones, dirt, or other trash, to be destroyed, from time to time, in such manner as they shall think fit, so as no prejudice doth or shall arise to the revenue thereby; and the said commissioners shall have the like power, with respect to any stones, dirt, or trash, that may be found amongst coffee to be lodged in warehouses, in pursuance of this act; and the respective warehouse-keepers shall be discharged in their respective books, of so much pepper or coffee as shall be so destroyed, as aforesaid.

Duties on gilt and silver wire imported or made in Great Britain, for 32 years, from 1 July, 1712. Made perpetual by 3 Geo. 1. c. 7. s. 1.

XLVI. And moreover be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, answered, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all gilt and silver wire, which at any time or times within or during the term of thirty two years, to be reckoned from the first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, (over and above all customs, subsidies, and duties already imposed thereupon) the duties following; that is to say, for all gilt wire imported, as aforesaid, a duty after the rate of one shilling for every ounce Troy; and for all silver wire imported, as aforesaid, nine pence for every such ounce; and proportionally for greater or lesser quantities, to be paid down in ready money by the importer thereof, from time to time, before the landing of the same: and for and upon all gilt and silver wire, which at any time or times, within or during the same term, shall be made in Great Britain, the duties following; that is to say, for all gilt wire so made in Great Britain, a duty after the rate of eight pence for every ounce Troy; and for all silver wire so made in Great Britain, a duty after the rate of six pence for every ounce Troy; and proportionally for greater or lesser quantities, to be paid by the makers thereof respectively.

10 Ann. c. 19.

XLVII. And be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said duties upon gilt and silver wire imported, shall be raised, levied, recovered, and paid, and be brought into the said Exchequer (to and for the uses and purposes in the said act expressed) by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and with such allowances, and in such manner and form, as the duties upon imported sope, granted by one other act of this session of parliament, and the duties on starch, granted by this act, or any of them, are prescribed and appointed to be raised, levied, recovered, answered, and paid.

On exportation of gold thread, &c. made after 1 July, and on debenture from the customer, &c.

LXII. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in case any person or persons whatsoever shall, at any time or times after the first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, during the continuance of the said duties on gilt and silver wire, export, by way of merchandize, for any foreign parts, any gold or silver thread, or any any gold or silver lace or fringe, made of plate wire spun upon silk, and shall give sufficient security before the shipping thereof for exportation, that the particular quantities of such thread, or of such lace or fringe, intended to be exported, as aforesaid, and every part thereof, shall not be reloaded or brought again into Great Britain, and shall make proof upon oath, or by such affirmation, as aforesaid, that the said gold and silver thread, or the said gold and silver lace or fringe, was actually made after the said first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, (which securities shall be taken in her Majesty's name, and to her use; and the said oaths and affirmations shall be administered by the customer or collector of the respective port for such exportation); that then, and in every such case, the said customer or collector shall give to the exporter thereof a debenture, expressing the true kinds and quantities of such gold or silver thread, and gold and silver lace or fringe, so exported or shipped to be exported, and the exportation or shipping thereof being certified by the searcher upon the said debenture, the collector or receiver for the said duties upon wire (upon producing the said debentures so certified to him) shall forthwith pay a drawback or allowance, after the rate of five shillings for every pound weight averdupois of such silver thread, lace, or fringe, and after the rate of six shillings and eight pence for every pound weight averdupois of such gold lace, thread, or fringe, out of the monies of the said duties on wire then in the hands of such receiver or collector, without fee or reward; and if such receiver or collector shall not have money in his hands to pay any such debenture, then the respective commissioners of the said duties upon wire are hereby required to pay, or cause to be paid, the said debenture out of any the duties on gilt or silver wire arising by this act; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

LXVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, during the continuance of the said duties upon gilt and silver wire by this act granted, no gold or silver thread, lace, fringe, or other work made thereof, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, upon pain of being forfeited, and upon the further penalty of one hundred pounds to be paid by the importer for every parcel so imported; and that one moiety of such forfeitures shall be to the Queen, her heirs and successors, and the other moiety (besides full costs of suit) to him or them that shall seize, inform, or sue for the same in any of her Majesty's courts aforesaid.

During this act no gold lace, &c. to be imported.

LXXVI. Provided also, and it is hereby further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person or persons shall at any time or times be sued or prosecuted for any thing by him or them done or executed in pursuance of this act, or of any matter or thing in this act contained, or in pursuance of the said former act, (intituled, An act for laying certain duties upon hides and skins tanned, tawed, or dressed, and upon vellum and parchment, for the term of thirty two years; for prosecuting the war, and other her Majesty's most necessary occasions) or if any person or persons now is, or hereafter shall be sued or prosecuted for any matter or thing by him or them done in pursuance of an act of the eighth year of her Majesty's reign, for laying certain duties on candles, and certain rates upon monies to be given with clerks and apprentices, or in pursuance of an act of the ninth year of her Majesty's reign, for granting further duties on candles, and other duties therein mentioned, such person or persons shall and may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence for his or their defence; and if upon the trial a verdict shall pass for the defendant or defendants, or the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall become nonsuited, then such defendant or defendants shall have treble costs to him or them awarded against such plaintiff or plaintiffs.

Persons sued upon this act, or the leather or candle acts, may plead the general issue. 9 Annæ, c. 11.

8 Annæ, c. 9.

9 Annæ, c. 6.

LXXVII. And to the end all the said rates and duties upon skins and hides, and pieces of skins and hides, made wares, vellum and parchment, starch, coffee, tea, drugs, gilt and silver wire, policies of assurance, and any other duties before by this act granted, may be duly and certainly raised, and the same (except the necessary charges of executing this act) may be justly and duly brought into the said receipt of Exchequer, according to the true meaning hereof, it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many commissioners and officers as shall be proper and necessary for managing, raising, collecting, and paying the said several rates and duties herein before granted, and for keeping and rendering the accounts of the same; and that the respective commissioners and officers concerned therein shall perform their several duties in relation to the premises, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect therein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies arising by the same rates and duties, as are prescribed and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act for raising a sum, not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties thereby granted or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, and misapplying any part of the monies which were granted or appropriated by the act last-mentioned.

Deficiency to be made good out of the first aid to be granted in parliament.

LXXVIII. And whereas it is intended that the said several rates and duties upon bides and skins, and pieces of bides and skins, made wares, vellum, and parchment, and upon starch, coffee, tea, and drugs, and upon gilt and silver wire, and the said duties upon policies of assurance, and all such sum and sums of money as shall arise or be brought into the receipt of her Majesty's Exchequer, by, upon, or for all and every or any the rates and duties granted by this act, shall all together be made a fund or security for raising any sum not exceeding eighteen hundred thousand pounds, towards your Majesty's supply, by such methods, and in such manner and form as are herein-after mentioned: now, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, for and towards the raising the said sum of eighteen hundred thousand pounds, do further most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That yearly and every year, during the term of thirty two years, reckoning the first year to begin from the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, the full sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds, by or out of the monies to arise by or for the said several rates and duties herein before granted, or any of them, and to be brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, from time to time, in case the same shall extend to the said sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds, shall be computed, and reckoned to be a yearly fund; and in case all the monies arising into the Exchequer of or for all the rates, duties, and sums of money charged, as aforesaid, shall not amount to one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds per annum, then the monies so arising, so far as the same shall extend, shall be part of the said yearly fund of one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds per annum, for and towards the answering and paying off all and every the principal sums herein-after mentioned, amounting in the whole to the sum of two millions three hundred forty one thousand nine hundred and ninety pounds, principal money, together with interest for the same after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, as herein-after is also mentioned; and in case the said monies by this act appointed or appropriated, as aforesaid, shall, at any time or times, appear to be so deficient or low in the produce of the same, as that within any one year, to be reckoned as aforesaid, the said monies arising into the Exchequer, for all the rates, duties, and sums of money charged, as aforesaid, shall not amount to so much as one hundred sixty eight thousand and three pounds, that then, and so often, and in every such case, so much as shall be wanting to make up the said fund or sum of one hundred sixty eight thousand thousand and three pounds, for every or any such year, shall be supplied and made good, from time to time, by and out of the first aid or supply to be granted in parliament next after such deficiency shall appear, and shall, from time to time, be transferred thereunto as soon as the same shall be granted.

C A P. XXVIII.

An act for continuing the trade and corporation capacity of the united East India company, although their fund should be redeemed.

WHEREAS in and by an act made in the ninth year of the reign of our late sovereign lord King William the Third, of glorious memory, intituled, An act for raising a sum not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, it is, amongst other things, enacted, That the sum of one hundred and sixty thousand pounds per annum, arising by the several duties upon salt, and upon stampd vellum, parchment, and paper, in the said act mentioned, should be applied for the paying of annuities of eight pounds per centum per annum, to such persons or corporations as should subscribe and pay the sum of two millions of money, upon the terms of the said act; and that the persons and corporations, who should so subscribe and pay the said monies, should have the sole trade to the East Indies, and the other places mentioned in the said act, subject nevertheless to a proviso or condition of being redeemed by parliament at any time upon three years notice after the nine and twentieth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, upon repayment of the said two millions, and of the arrears of the said annuities of eight pounds per centum, in the manner directed by the said act: and it was by the said act likewise provided, That his said late Majesty might constitute a corporation to trade with joint stock to the said East Indies, with such powers and authorities, and under such limitations, as in the said act are for that purpose set forth; and his said late Majesty did, in pursuance of the said act, by his letters patents, under the great seal of England, bearing date the fifth day of September, in the tenth year of his reign, constitute a corporation or body politic, by the name of The English company trading to the East Indies, with such benefit of trade, powers, privileges, and advantages, and subject to such restrictions, conditions, and agreements, as are in the said letters patents set forth: and whereas, in and by one her act made in the sixth year of her present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for assuring to the English company trading to the East Indies, on account of the united stock, a longer time in the fund and trade therein mentioned; and for raising thereby the sum of one million two hundred thousand pounds, for carrying on the war, and other her Majesty's occasions, it was enacted, That upon payment to her Majesty of the sum of one million two hundred thousand pounds, at the times, and upon the terms in the said act mentioned, they the said English company trading to the East Indies, now called The United Company of Merchants of England trading to the East Indies, should have such other time and interest in the said fund and trade to the East Indies, as in the said-mentioned act is particularly set forth, but subject to the proviso or condition of redemption in the said last-mentioned act, and herein set forth; that is to say, it was thereby declared and enacted, That at any time upon three years notice, after the five and twentieth day of March, which shall be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and twenty six, upon the expiration of the said three years, and upon repayment by parliament, as well of the said sum of two millions then before advanced, as of the said sum of one million two hundred thousand

An act for better ascertaining and securing the payments to be made to her Majesty for goods and merchandizes to be imported from the East Indies, and other places within the limits of the charter granted to the East India company.

WHEREAS the united company of merchants of England trading to the East Indies, do yearly import great quantities of goods, the species and quantities whereof cannot be known, nor due entries made, so as to ascertain the customs, without having them first landed and examined; to bring the contents thereof into a method fit for the computation of the customs and other duties payable for the same; for which reason it hath been the constant practice of all companies trading to the East Indies to enter and land their goods and merchandizes by bills at sight, or sufferance, and to give security for payment of the customs, and other duties thereof, at two six months time from the importation: and whereas some doubts have lately arisen concerning the legality of the said practice; be it therefore enacted and declared by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful for the said company, and their successors, from time to time, to enter such goods as are or shall be imported by them at the custom-house by bills at sight, or sufferance, and to give security under their common seal for the payment of the customs, and other duties laid or to be laid upon all such goods as are rated in the book of rates, and upon coffee, which is to be ascertained by the oath of the importer, videlicet, for the payment of one half part thereof at the end of six calendar months next after the time within which the report of the master or purser of the ship, in which they shall be imported, shall or ought to have been made, and for the payment of the other half part thereof, at the end of twelve calendar months next after the time within which such report shall or ought to be made, as aforesaid; and the commissioners and principal officers of the customs are hereby authorized and required to grant to the said company such bills at sight, or sufferance, and take such security, as aforesaid, and to make them such allowances and deductions as are to be made to other merchants, paying their customs and other duties at or before the landing of their goods.

East India company may enter the goods they import, by bills at sight, and give security for payment of the customs, &c.

II. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That this act, or any thing therein contained, shall not extend, or be construed to extend, to alter the method or manner of paying the duties of fifteen per cent. on muslins and calicoes, or the duties upon any other goods, which are to be ascertained by sale at the candle.

An act for continuing the trade to the South Seas, granted by an act of the last session of parliament, although the capital stock of the said corporation should be redeemed.

9 Annæ, c. 21.

WHEREAS by an act of parliament made in the ninth year of her Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for making good deficiencies, and satisfying the publick debts; and for erecting a corporation to carry on a trade to the South Seas, and for the encouragement of the fishery; and for liberty to trade in unwrought iron with the subjects of Spain; and to repeal the acts for registering seamen; it is provided and enacted, That at any time upon one year's notice after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, upon repayment by parliament of the principal sum of which the capital stock of the company, which was intended to be established by virtue of the said act, should, for the time being, consist, and of all arrears of the annuities or yearly payments therein mentioned, or by payment thereof by and out of the surplus monies of the fund settled by the said act for payment of the said annuities to the said company, then all the impositions and duties thereby granted or appropriated, should or might be disposed of by parliament, and the yearly fund therein mentioned, and the annuities issuing out of the same, shall absolutely cease and determine; and her Majesty, by letters patent under the great seal of Great Britain, bearing date the eighth day of September, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, grounded on the said act of parliament, hath incorporated all and every the person and persons, natives and foreigners, bodies politick and corporate, who then were or should be interested in, or entitled unto any the bills, tickets, debentures, certificates, or other publick debts, deficiencies, or sum of money, intended to be provided for by that act, and all and every person and persons, bodies politick and corporate, who, as executors, administrators, successors, or assigns, or by any other lawful title derived, or to be derived from, by, or under the original proprietors, at any time or times, should have and be entitled to any part, share, or interest of or in the yearly fund, by the first act settled, so long as they respectively should have any part, share, or interest therein, to be one body politick and corporate, by the name of The Governor and Company of Merchants of Great Britain, trading to the South Seas and other parts of America, and for encouraging the fishery; and by that name to have perpetual succession, with such powers, privileges, and advantages, as in the said charter are mentioned, subject nevertheless to the condition or power of redemption in the said act expressed, as by the said act of parliament and charter may respectively appear: and whereas some doubts have arisen, or may arise, concerning the power of redemption intended by the said act and charter, which might tend to discourage the said company in expending such large sums of money as are necessary to be expended for making new settlements within the limits of their charter, and settling a trade there, for the future benefit of Great Britain: for explanation whereof be it therefore enacted and declared by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That at any time, upon one year's notice, after the five and twentieth day of December, one thousand seven hundred and sixteen, upon repayment by parliament of the said principal sum, of which the capital stock of the said company shall for the time being consist, and of all arrears of the annuities and yearly payments aforesaid, or by payment

An act for the better encouragement of the making of sail-cloth in Great Britain.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WHEREAS the making of sail-cloth in Great Britain is of great use and benefit to the nation, being set up in several parts of this united kingdom, employing many thousands of the poor, and is brought to great perfection; but by the duties on hemp and flax imported, and drawback on foreign made sail-cloth exported, the makers of British sail-cloth have not a sufficient encouragement for so useful and beneficial a manufacture; therefore, we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, have given and granted to your Majesty such additional except canvas of the product of Ireland.

After 21 July, 1713, a further duty of 1 d. per ell, laid on foreign sail-cloth, &c. imported for seven years;

Out of the said duty shall be allowed a reward of 1 d. per ell for sail-cloth made in Great Britain, which within the said time shall be exported.

The exporter to make oath that it was made in Great Britain, is actually exported, &c.

Penalty of re-landing sail-cloth for which such reward has been given.

tional duty upon foreign sail-cloth to be imported, as is herein-after mentioned; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the one and twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, over and above all subsidies, duties, impositions, and payments, already due and payable, or which ought to be paid to her Majesty, for or upon such foreign made sails and sail-cloth, or canvas usually entred as Hollands Duck or Vitry canvas, which shall be fit and proper to be made use of for making of sails for navigating ships and vessels, and which shall be imported into Great Britain by way of merchandize, except such canvas as is of the product and manufacture of Ireland, there shall be raised and levied, collected and paid unto her Majesty, her heirs and successors, a further duty of one penny per ell, and after that rate for greater or lesser quantities, during the term of seven years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, and no longer; the same to be raised, levied, collected, and recovered, by such ways, means, and methods, and subject to such penalties and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as any subsidy payable to her Majesty, for any other goods or merchandizes imported, or to be imported, may by any law or laws now in force be raised, levied, collected, and recovered.

II. And whereas hemp and flax imported draws back nothing of the duties paid for the same, when wrought up into British sail-cloth; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That out of the said additional duty of one penny per ell, a reward or recompence of one penny be given and paid for every ell of British made sail-cloth or canvas, fit for or made into sails, which from and after the one and twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and thirteen, and within the said term of seven years, or at any time before the end of the then next session of parliament, shall be exported out of Great Britain by way of merchandize: provided always, That the exporter of such British made sail-cloth shall always, before he receives any such reward, make oath (which the proper officers of the customs have hereby power to administer) that such sail-cloth was made in Great Britain, is actually exported, or shipped to be exported, without any intention to be re-landed in any part of Great Britain, and that no former reward upon this act was made for the same sail-cloth.

III. And it is hereby enacted, That if any British made sail-cloth, for which such reward shall be given, shall be re-landed in Great Britain, the same shall be forfeited; and every person concerned in bringing back or re-landing the same, shall forfeit two shillings for every ell so brought back or re-landed; one moiety of which forfeitures shall be to her Majesty, and the other moiety thereof to such as will seize, inform, or sue for the same, or the value thereof; to be recovered by action, bill, suit, or information, in any her Majesty's courts of record at Westminster, or in the Exchequer at Edinburgh, wherein no essoin, protection, wager of law, or more than one imparlance, shall be allowed. This act is continued for seven years by 10 Geo. c. 17. s. 4. and by 20 Geo. 2. c. 45. to 1 June, 1754, &c.

An act for making perpetual the act made in the thirteenth and fourteenth years of the reign of the late King Charles the Second, intituled, An act for the better relief of the poor of this kingdom; and that persons bound apprentices to, or being hired servants with persons coming with certificates, shall not gain settlements by such services or apprenticeships: and for making perpetual the act made in the sixth year of her present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the importation of cochineal from any ports in Spain, during the present war, and six months longer: and for reviving a clause in an act made in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of the late King William, intituled, An act for settling the trade to Africa, for allowing foreign copper bars imported, to be exported.

ECT. AND whereas cochineal being of the growth of the Spanish West Indies, is of principal use in dying of clothes, and other the woollen manufactures of this kingdom, scarlets, purples, and other colours called rain colours, to the great improvement thereof, and employing of great numbers of her Majesty's subjects, in finishing and perfecting such woollen manufacture: and whereas before the act passed in the sixth year of her present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the importation of cochineal from any ports in Spain, during the present war, and six months longer, cochineal could not be imported into this kingdom, but from the places of its growth, although the same was then, and is now sold at cheaper rates in several parts of Europe, and used as well in dying the said manufactures of this kingdom abroad, as also foreign manufactures, at lower prizes than her Majesty's subjects can, to the encouragement of foreign woollen manufactures, and the great prejudice of those of this kingdom, and impoverishment of many of her Majesty's subjects employed therein, the said act should not be further continued; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said act, made in the sixth year of her present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for the importation of cochineal from any ports in Spain, during the present war, and six months longer, shall be and is hereby made perpetual; any act or acts of parliament to the contrary notwithstanding.

IV. And whereas in an act made in the ninth and tenth years of the reign of the late King William, intituled, An act to settle the trade to Africa, a clause is enacted in the words following; viz. And whereas by an act of parliament made in the fifth and sixth years of the reign of his present Majesty, and the late Queen Mary, amongst other things, it was enacted, That no other copper than that is made of English ore only, should be exported; which proving very pre-udicial to the trade of England, by enabling foreigners to export copper much cheaper than it can be carried from England; be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for any of his Majesty's subjects to export from England all such copper bars, as hath or shall be imported into England from foreign parts, and upon exportation shall draw back all duties, vacate the securities, saving the half of the old subsidy, as is usual in other commodities; which clause being expired; and forasmuch as the copper manufacture of this kingdom is brought to such perfection, that there is more made than be expended here and in the plantations; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said clause, and every matter and thing therein contained, shall be, and is hereby immediately, from and after the time of expiration thereof, revived in full force, and shall be and is hereby continued

7 & 8 W. 3.
c. 10.

WHEREAS by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of the late King William the Third, intituled, An act for continuing several duties granted by former acts upon wines and vinegar, and upon tobacco and East India goods, and other merchandizes imported, for carrying on the war against France, the methods prescribed for collecting the impost duty upon tobacco, granted by an act passed in the first year of the reign of King James the Second, are altered, and, among other things, it is enacted, That on any payment of the said duty for tobacco to be consumed here, there be an allowance of eight pounds per cent. for the merchant's encouragement, in consideration of waste and shrinkage in the cellars, and an allowance of four pounds per cent. in consideration of waste that may arise on any tobacco exported within the time allowed by law, to be struck off only from the entries, and not to be paid where the whole quantity entered shall happen to be exported; both which acts are since continued, and are now in force: and whereas by law there are several other duties payable on the importation of tobacco, but no provision is made thereby for giving any allowance out of the same, in consideration of waste or shrinkage, as aforesaid; and it being reasonable that the manner of collecting the several duties upon tobacco should be in one uniform method, and that the same allowance for waste and shrinkage on the consumption here, should be granted to the exporters, for the preservation and improvement of that most beneficial trade, which, for many years past, hath greatly declined; be it enacted and declared by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, during the term of five years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, there shall, for the better encouragement of the said consumption and export trade, be an allowance of eight pounds per cent. made to the merchant at importation, out of all the duties payable upon tobacco, instead of the aforesaid eight pounds and four pounds per cent. which by the before recited acts are to be allowed only out of the impost duty, and which said allowance of eight pounds per cent. out of all the said duties, shall not be deducted from the merchants on exportation; any law or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

After 1 June, 1714, for five years, 8l. per cent. allowed out of all the duties on tobacco.

Not to be deducted on exportation.

II. And whereas by the act of tonnage and poundage, made in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and by the book of rates thereunto annexed, an additional duty of one penny per pound was made payable for all tobacco of the English plantations; upon giving security for payment of the same at nine months after the importation: and whereas by the said act made in the first year of the reign of the late King James the Second, a duty of impost of three pence per pound was laid on the same tobacco, and sixpence per pound on all tobacco of foreign plantations, the method of collecting which impost duty was altered by the said act made in the seventh year of the reign of the late King William the Third, and thereby the payment thereof was to be at the end of eighteen months, with certain discounts at different rates for prompt payment within the respective times thereby limited: and whereas by an act made in the ninth year of the reign of his said late majesty King William the Third, a further subsidy of one penny per pound was laid on all tobacco of the English plantations, payable in three months from the importation, upon security: and whereas by one other act made in the second year of her Majesty's reign, a duty of one third part of one penny per pound was made payable on the same tobacco, and the importer to have nine months for the payment thereof, on sufficient security; all which acts before mentioned are, by several subsequent acts, since continued, and are now in force: and whereas the payment of the said several duties, at the different times, as before mentioned, according to the respective acts of parliament, has by experience been found prejudicial and burthensome to trade, and a loss to the revenue: for prevention whereof for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, during the term of five years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, all the said several and respective duties on tobacco, granted by the aforementioned acts of parliament, and since continued, shall be due and payable, during the term aforesaid, at the end of eighteen months, to commence at the end of thirty days after the master's report of the ship, or to commence from the merchant's entry of the goods within those thirty days, which shall first happen, and the bond or bonds to be given for the same, shall be made payable at the end of eighteen months accordingly; by statute or law to the contrary notwithstanding.

fifteen months of the said eighteen months, to commence at the end of the said thirty days after the master's report of the ship, he shall, in lieu of all former discounts made for prompt payment, out of all the said duties have an allowance made of ten pounds per cent. per ann. for the said fifteen months, or proportionably for so many intire months of the said fifteen months as shall then remain unexpired, but not to be allowed any discount after the end of fifteen months, nor for any less time than a month; and in case after the importer or proprietor shall have given security, as aforesaid, (which at his election may be in one or more bond or bonds) to pay the said several duties in eighteen months, and shall be desirous to discharge his bond or bonds, or any part thereof, in ready money, sooner than fifteen months, he shall be abated upon the bond or bonds for such prompt payment, so much as the said discount shall amount to, in proportion to such time, but not to be allowed any discount after the end of fifteen months.

Not to take away 8l. per cent. for shrinkage, nor 5l. in the hundred out of the subsidies.

IV. Provided also, That nothing in this act contained is intended to take away the said allowance of eighteen pounds per cent. to be made out of the several duties for the merchants encouragement, and in consideration of waste and shrinkage; nor the allowance of five in the hundred out of the several subsidies, and the said additional duty, by virtue of the respective act of tonnage and poundage, and other acts before recited.

V. And whereas several merchants and other persons concerned in the importation of tobacco of the English plantations, are frequently under difficulties, and unable to give good and sufficient security for the payment of the several duties imposed thereon: and whereas putting the same into proper warehouses may not only be an ease and convenience to the importers thereof, but also a security to her Majesty's revenue; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid,

On paying down the duty of 1 d. per lb. tobacco may be warehoused at merchant's charge. 12 Car. 2. c. 4.

That from and after the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, during the term of five years, and from thence to the end of the then next session of parliament, in case any person importing any of the said tobacco, shall pay down in ready money the subsidy of one penny per pound due and payable to her Majesty by the act of the twelfth year of the reign of his late majesty King Charles the Second, or by any act or acts continuing the same, and shall then desire to have the said tobacco put into warehouses, under the Queen's and the merchant's locks, for the security of the remainder of the duties, the merchant or his servants shall have free access into the said warehouses, at all seasonable times; and the custom-house officers are hereby required to attend, without fee or reward: and it shall and may be lawful for the commissioners or principal officers of the customs, to permit and cause the said tobacco to be lodged and put into warehouses (to be provided by and at the charge of the merchants, and to be first approved by the said commissioners or officers) upon the merchant's giving his own bond for payment of the duties at the end of fifteen months; and if the importer or importers of such tobacco, as has been so lodged in the warehouses, shall not, within the said time of fifteen months, offer good and sufficient security for payment of the duties at the end of the said eighteen months, or by debentures on exportation of such tobacco, or payment of the several duties for which his own bond hath been given, discharge his or their obligations, or any part thereof, but that the tobacco, or any part thereof, shall continue and be still remaining in the said warehouses, for want of the payment of the duties due thereon; in such case it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, or principal officers of the customs for the time being, and who are hereby required and impowered, to cause the said tobacco so remaining to be publicly sold by inch of candle, first giving the proprietor or proprietors fourteen days notice, or leaving the same in writing at the place of his or their last abode, the product thereof after such sale, first to be applied towards payment of the customs and charges that have been expended thereon, and the overplus, if any, to be rendered received and paid to the proprietor, or other person lawfully authorized to receive the same.

VI. Provided always, That in case any tobacco put into the said warehouses, and so locked up, as aforesaid, shall be burnt or destroyed by fire, during the time it remains in the said warehouses, the proprietors or owners of such tobacco shall be allowed the duties paid, and the bond shall be discharged for so much thereof as shall have been so burnt or destroyed.

Tobacco burnt in the warehouses, duties to be allowed, and bond discharged.

VII. And whereas divers great quantities of tobacco of the English plantations have been imported for some time, but by reason of the deadness of the tobacco trade, occasioned by the length of the late war, the importers or proprietors thereof have not entered the said tobacco, and paid or secured the duties for the same, as the law requires; for relief therefore of the said importers or proprietors of the said tobacco in this special case, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the time of importation of all such tobaccos, which are already imported, and not entered, shall be reckoned to be from the second day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, in like manner as if the masters of the said ships or vessels had made report of their several landings on that day; and the importers or proprietors of such tobacco shall pay or secure the duties, and have and enjoy the several allowances and discounts, and be entitled to draw back the duties, as fully and in like manner as if the said tobacco had been imported, and the masters of the ships had made their respective reports of their landings, on the said second day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; any law, usage, or custom, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

time of importation to be reckoned from 2 June, 1714.

VIII. And whereas it hath been found by experience, that her Majesty's revenue suffers great prejudice, as well by allowances for damaged tobacco, as by the obtaining a drawback by debenture on the reshipping the same, as if such tobacco had been sound and good, and paid the duties at importation; for preventing the like abuses for the future, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, within or during the term of five years thence next ensuing, or at any time before the end of the then next session of parliament, no merchant or other person whatsoever shall have any allowance or abatement for the subsidies or other duties made him, for any sort of tobacco imported, or to be imported, under pretence of such tobacco being corrupt or unmerchantable: but in case any merchant or other person shall refuse to make entry of such damaged tobacco, and to pay and secure the whole duties due and payable for the same, then he or they shall have liberty to separate from his or their tobacco, so much thereof as they shall refuse to pay custom for; and the principal officers of her Majesty's customs, any two or more of them, shall cause all such corrupt tobacco to be weighed and publicly burnt, or otherwise destroyed as not wholesome and fit for use; and the owner or importer thereof shall be discharged from paying or securing any subsidy, or other duties for the same, to her Majesty; any law, custom, or usage, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

Merchant refusing to pay the duties, such tobacco to be destroyed, &c.

IX. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every owner or importer of such damaged and corrupt tobacco shall, as a compensation for freight and other charges, and for that the cutting off, and separating the same, may deface the remainder of the tobacco, have an allowance of twenty-five pounds weight of tobacco, free of all duties, for every one hundred pounds of such corrupt and damaged tobacco separated, to be burnt or destroyed, as aforesaid, and so in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity; which allowance of twenty-five pounds for every one hundred pounds of tobacco so to be made, as aforesaid, shall be by certificate; and the officers are hereby required to make, pass, and pay such certificate without fee or reward, the tobacco mentioned in such certificate not to be placed to the merchant's export account, so as such allowance

Owner to be allowed 25 lb. for every 100 lb.

The allowance to be by certificate, and not to be placed to the export account, &c.

ance of twenty-five pounds of tobacco for every one hundred pounds of damaged tobacco so separated or destroyed, does not exceed the quantity of one hundred and fifty pounds of tobacco upon or for any hoghead of Arancoco tobacco, or the quantity of two hundred pounds of tobacco upon or for any hoghead of sweet-scented tobacco.

Not to hinder former allowances, not exceeding 40 lb. on any one hoghead.

X. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this act contained shall be construed to forbid or hinder the merchants or importers having an allowance made them for damaged tobacco, in such manner as hath been usual, so as such allowance doth not exceed forty pounds weight of tobacco upon any one hoghead; and for the more ready dispatch of business, such small damages, not exceeding forty pounds weight on any one hoghead, shall be viewed, and the allowance made in the scale; any thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Goods in warehouses unentered to be sold at publick sale. Altered by 12 Geo. 1. c. 28. f. 19.

XI. And whereas it frequently happens that divers goods and merchandizes are brought into her Majesty's storehouses for want of being entred, and because the duties of tonnage and poundage, and other duties, are not paid and secured as the law directs, which goods do remain there divers years, and often so long, until they are perished, and become of no value, whereby the Queen hath lost the custom due on the importation of the said goods; for prevention whereof for the future, be it likewise enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, the commissioners of the customs for the time being shall, in all cases where the goods are or shall be brought into her Majesty's storehouses for security of the customs, and other duties due thereon, as soon as conveniently they can, cause all goods so brought into her Majesty's storehouses, as aforesaid, which shall have remained there for the space of twelve months, the duties and other duties not paid, compounded for, or otherwise secured as the law directs, to be publickly sold by auction or inch of candle; and after such sale, the produce thereof is first to be applied to or towards the payment of the freight, primage, and charges of warehouse-room, and other charges that shall arise thereon, next the customs and duties, and the overplus to be paid to the proprietor, or other persons authorized to receive the same.

8 Ann. c. 13.

XII. And whereas an act passed in the eighth year of her Majesty's reign for continuing several impositions, additional impositions, and duties upon goods imported, to raise money by way of loan for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and ten, and for better preventing frauds in drawbacks upon certificate goods, and for other purposes therein mentioned; in which act there were several regulations enacted to be complied with, in order to intitle the exporters of tobacco to their debentures; which new regulations, being made to commence from the twenty seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, by which time the same could not be known in Scotland, several parcels of tobacco, through ignorance, were exported from thence without regard to the regulations laid down in the said act, the debentures of which tobacco have been refused to be made forth and allowed to the merchants upon that account; be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That for all tobacco exported from Scotland, after the twenty-seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten, and before the sixteenth day of April following, the barons of the Exchequer in Scotland shall cause the debentures to be made forth and allowed to the merchants, according to the laws in force before the said twenty-seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ten; any thing in the aforesaid act to the contrary notwithstanding.

For all tobacco exported from Scotland between 27 March and 16 April, 1710, Exchequer there to make out debentures.

Deputations in force, notwithstanding the death, &c. of commissioners.

XIII. And whereas there has been some doubt whether the deputations or authorities granted to collectors, surveyors, or other inferior officers of the customs, do remain in force upon the death or removal of any of the commissioners of the customs, by whom the deputations were granted; be it enacted and declared by the authority aforesaid, That all such collectors, surveyors, or other inferior officers officers of the customs, who are or have been, or shall be hereafter deputed or appointed, as aforesaid, shall be deemed to remain and continue in their respective offices and employments, notwithstanding the death or removal of any of the commissioners of the customs, who deputed and appointed such officers, until the deputations of such officers respectively shall be by the said commissioners, or any superior authority, revoked, annulled, or made void. STAT. II. CAP. IX.

An act for laying additional duties on sope and paper, and upon certain linens, silks, calicoes, and stuffs, and upon starch, and exported coals, and upon stamped vellum, parchment, and paper, for raising one million four hundred thousand pounds by way of a lottery, for her Majesty's supply; and for allowances on exporting made wares of leather, sheep skins, and lamb skins, and for distribution of four thousand pounds due to the officers and seamen for gun-money; and to adjust the property of tickets in former lotteries; and touching certain shares of stock in the capital of the South Sea company; and for appropriating the monies granted to her Majesty.

MAY it please your most excellent Majesty; we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being desirous that such supplies as are necessary for defraying your Majesty's publick expences, may be effectually raised, have therefore cheerfully and unanimously given and granted, and do by this act give and grant unto your Majesty the several and respective rates and duties for and upon all sope made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; and for and upon all paper made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; and for and upon all chequered and striped linens to be imported into Great Britain; and for and upon certain silks, calicoes, and other enumerated goods, which shall be printed, painted, stained, or dyed in Great Britain; and for and upon all starch made in Great Britain; and for and upon all coals exported for foreign parts; and for and upon such stamped vellum, parchment, and paper, and other things hereafter in this act more particularly described or mentioned, for and during such term or terms of years, and in such manner and form, as are herein after expressed; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That there shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid, unto and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all sope of what kind soever, which at any time or times, within or during the term of two and thirty years, to be reckoned from the second day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, or made within the same, the several and respective additional or new duties herein after described or mentioned (over and above all customs, subsidies, rates, and duties chargeable upon such sope, or any part thereof, by any other act or acts of parliament now in force); that is to say, For every pound weight, consisting of sixteen ounces overduois, of such sope so to be imported or brought into the said kingdom, within or during the term aforesaid, one penny, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, to be paid down in ready money by the importers thereof, from

And it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the several duties by this act imposed, upon sope, paper of all sorts, pastboards, millboards, scaleboards, chequered and striped linens, and upon printed, painted, stained, and dyed silks, calicoes, linens and stuffs, during the said term or terms of years, therein by this act granted, in all cases whatsoever (except where other provision or direction is specially made or given by this act) shall be raised, levied, ascertained, secured, collected, answered and paid, by such ways, means and methods, and under such pains, penalties, and forfeitures, and with the like discounts, allowances, exemptions and drawbacks, and in such manner and form as the duties imposed on the same commodities respectively, by an act made in the tenth year of her Majesty's reign, for laying several duties upon sope, paper, chequered and striped linens, and upon certain silks, calicoes, linens, and stuffs, printed, painted, or stained, (amongst other things thereby charged) for and during the respective terms thereby granted, towards raising the sum of one million eight hundred thousand pounds therein mentioned, or by any act or acts of parliament thereby referred unto, or by any other act of this sessions of parliament are to be raised, levied, ascertained, secured, collected, answered and paid respectively; and that the said duty by this act imposed upon starch, during all the said term of two and thirty years therein by this act granted, shall be raised, levied, ascertained, secured, collected, answered and paid, by such ways, means, and methods, and under such pains, penalties, and forfeitures, and with the like discounts, allowances, exemptions, and drawbacks, and in such manner and form, as the duties imposed by another act of the tenth year of her Majesty's reign, upon starch, (amongst other things thereby charged) for and during the term thereby granted, towards raising another sum of one million eight hundred thousand pounds therein mentioned, or by any act or acts of parliament thereby referred unto, are to be raised, levied, ascertained, secured, collected, answered, and paid respectively, except in such case or cases, touching which other directions are given by this act; and that the said duties by this act imposed upon coals exported to any foreign parts, (except before excepted) during the said term of years by this act granted of and in the same, shall be raised, levied, ascertained, secured, collected, answered, and paid, by such ways, means, and methods, and under such pains, penalties, and forfeitures, and in such manner and form, as the present duties upon exportation of coals, or any other customable goods, to any foreign parts, by any law or statute now in force, during the continuance thereof, are to be raised, levied, ascertained, secured, collected, answered, and paid.

XIII. And for better securing the duties by this act chargeable upon such of the commodities, as by the first mentioned act of the tenth year of her Majesty's reign are directed to be marked or stamped; and to the end the duties arising thereupon by this act may be better distinguished, and applied to the separate use by this act intended, be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That such proper stamps or seals shall, on or before the said second day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, be provided and distributed by the said respective commissioners, as may serve to denote the payment or charging of the several duties by this and the said former act chargeable on the same commodities respectively; and that the said stamps or seals by this act directed to be provided, shall be used and applied accordingly, and shall and may, from time to time, be renewed or altered by the said respective commissioners, as often as there shall be a necessary occasion for renewing the same.

XIV. And

XIV. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the powers, authorities, rules, directions, pains of death, and other pains, penalties, and forfeitures, clauses, matters, and things whatsoever, contained in the said several acts of the tenth year of her Majesty's reign, for raising, receiving, levying, recovering, securing, and paying the duties on such commodities before mentioned, as are by this act charged with new or additional duties thereupon, or touching the marks or stamps thereby directed to be continued, practised, and put in execution, for raising, receiving, levying, recovering, securing, and paying the same new or additional duties, by this act charged upon the same commodities respectively, and all arrearsages thereof, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if they were particularly and at large repeated in the body of this present act, except in such cases only where any alteration therein is specially made by this act.

All the powers in 10 Ann. to be in force. 10 Ann. c. 19, & 26.

XV. And whereas great quantities of silks, calicoes, and linens, that are printed, painted, stained, or dyed in Great Britain, are frequently shipped off in order to be exported, as is pretended, for which the exporter doth receive a very great drawback; and notwithstanding the law already made to prevent the re-landing of them, yet very great quantities are frequently re-landed, to the great lessening of her Majesty's revenue, and prejudice of the fair trader; to prevent which evil practices for the future, and to secure the duties upon the said goods, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the said second day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, all and every person and persons that shall export any silks, calicoes, or linens, that are printed, painted, stained, or dyed, for which a drawback is to be allowed, such person or persons, (before he or they shall ship the said goods) in order to obtain the drawback for the same, shall be obliged to give notice to the proper officer or officers to be appointed for that purpose by the respective commissioners of the customs, when and where he will pack up the said goods in order to be exported; and the said commissioners of the customs are hereby impowered and directed to cause such officer to take care to see that such seal or seals, stamps or marks, be taken off from every piece so intended to be exported; and the said officer or officers shall take an account of the kinds and quantities of the goods so intended to be exported, and make a return thereof to the officer that shall be appointed by such commissioners to receive the same, without any fee or reward for so doing.

Persons exporting silks, &c. to give notice to the proper officer of packing the said goods, who is to take care that the seals be taken off from every piece, &c.

XXIX. And to the end all the said additional, or new duties upon soap and paper, and upon certain linens, silks, calicoes, and stuffs, and upon starch and exported coals, and upon stamp vellum, parchment, and paper, before granted by this act, may be certainly and duly raised, and the same (except the necessary charges of executing this act) may be justly and duly brought into the receipt of the Exchequer, according to the true meaning thereof; it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from time to time, during the continuance of this act, there shall be appointed such and so many commissioners and officers, as shall be proper and necessary for the managing, raising, collecting, and paying the same duties, and for keeping and rendering the accounts of the same; and that the commissioners and officers concerned therein, shall perform their several duties, in relation to the premises, as to them respectively shall appertain, under such and the like penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, for any offence or neglect herein, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies arising by the same duties, or any of them, as are prescribed, and to be inflicted by virtue of an act of parliament made and passed in the ninth year of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An Act for raising a sum, not exceeding two millions, upon a fund for payment of annuities, after the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum, and for settling the trade to the East Indies, for the like offence or neglect relating to the duties thereby granted or referred unto, or for detaining, diverting, or misapplying any part of the monies, which were granted or appropriated by the act last-mentioned.

9 Ann. c. 11.
10 Ann. c. 26.

Tanned leather manufactured, to draw back 1d. ob. per lb. on exportation.

LXIV. And whereas, by an act passed in the ninth year of her Majesty's reign, certain duties are laid on tanned leather; and by another act passed in the tenth year of her Majesty's reign, further duties are laid thereon; and by the said acts only two thirds of the respective duties are to be drawn back or allowed upon the exportation of boots, shoes, gloves, or other manufactures, which by experience is found to be a discouragement to the manufacturers employed therein; for remedy whereof, be it declared and enacted by the authority aforesaid, That, from and after the second day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, there shall, in lieu of the said two thirds of the said duties, be paid and allowed to the exporter or exporters, for all tanned leather, which shall be manufactured and actually made into goods or wares, by him or them exported, on a proper debenture to be made for that purpose, and security given for the same, as by the said acts are prescribed, the sum of one penny halfpenny for every pound weight thereof, and so in proportion for every greater or lesser quantity; which drawback of one penny halfpenny per pound shall be paid out of the respective duties granted by the said acts of the ninth and of the tenth years of her Majesty's reign; any law to the contrary notwithstanding.

as are of the town where the goods were found; so that if any sue for those goods, and after prove that they were his, or perished within his keeping, within a year and a day, they shall be restored to him without delay, and if not, they shall remain to the King, or to such others to whom wreck belongeth; and he that otherwise doth, and thereof be attainted, shall be awarded to prison, and make fine at the King's will: and whereas by another act made in the fourth year of the reign of the said Edward the First, intituled, De officio Coronatoris, concerning the wreck of the sea, it is enacted, That wheresoever it be found, if any lay hands of it, he shall be attached by sufficient pledges, and the price of the wreck shall be valued, and delivered to the town: and whereas great complaints have been made by several merchants, as well her Majesty's subjects as foreigners, trading to and from this kingdom, that many ships of trade, after all their dangers at sea escaped, have unfortunately, near home, run on shore, and been stranded on the coasts thereof; and that such ships have been barbarously plundered by her Majesty's subjects, and their cargoes embezilled, and when any part thereof has been saved, it has been swallowed up by exorbitant demands for salvage, to the great loss of her Majesty's revenue, and to the much greater damage of her Majesty's trading subjects: for remedy whereof, be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the sheriffs, justices of the peace of every county, or county of a city or town, and also all mayors, bailiffs, and other head officers of corporations and port towns near adjoining to the sea, and all constables, headboroughs, tything-men, and officers of the customs in all and every such places, shall, upon application made to them, or any of them, by or on the behalf of any commander or chief officer of any ship or vessel of any of her Majesty's subjects, or others, being in danger of being stranded or run on shore, or being stranded or run on shore, are hereby impowered and required to command the constables of the several ports within her Majesty's dominions, nearest to the sea coasts where any such ship or vessel shall be in danger, as aforesaid, to summon and call together as many men as shall be thought necessary to the assistance and for the preservation of such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, and their cargoes; and that if there shall be any ship or vessel, either man of war or merchants ship, belonging to her Majesty, or any of her subjects, riding at anchor near the place where such ship or vessel is in distress or danger, as aforesaid, the officers of the customs, and constables above mentioned, or any of them, are hereby impowered and required to demand of the superior officers of such ship or vessel so riding at anchor, as aforesaid, assistance by their boats, and such hands as they can conveniently spare, for the said service and preservation of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid; and that in case such superior officer of such ship or vessel riding at anchor, as aforesaid, shall refuse or neglect to give such assistance, he shall forfeit for the same the sum of one hundred pounds, to be recovered by the superior officer of the said ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, together with their costs of suit, in any of her Majesty's courts of record, by action, debt, bill, plaint, or information, wherein no essoin, wager of law, or protection shall be allowed.

II. And for the encouragement of such persons as shall give their assistance to such ships or vessels so in distress, as aforesaid, be it further enacted, That the said collectors of the customs, and the master or commanding officer of any ships or vessels, and all others who shall act or be employed in the preserving of any such ship or vessel in distress, as aforesaid, or their cargoes, shall, within thirty days after the service performed, be paid a reasonable reward for the same, by the commander, master, or other superior officer, mariners or owners of the ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or by the merchant, whose ship, vessel, or goods shall be so saved, as aforesaid; and in default thereof, the said ship, vessel, or goods so saved, as aforesaid, shall remain in the custody of such officer of the customs, or his deputy.

deputy, until such time that all charges shall be paid, and until the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, and the said master or other officer of the ship or vessel, and all others so employed as aforesaid, shall be reasonably gratified for their said assistance and trouble, or good security given for that purpose, to the satisfaction of the several parties that are to receive the same; and that in case after such salvage, the commander or other superior officer, mariners or owners of such ship or vessel so saved, as aforesaid, or merchant whose goods shall be so saved, as aforesaid, shall disagree with the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, touching the monies reserved by any of the persons so employed, as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the commander of such ship or vessel so saved, or the owner of the goods, or the merchant interested therein, and also for the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, to nominate three of the neighbouring justices of the peace, who shall thereupon adjust the quantum of the monies or gratuities to be paid to the several persons acting or being employed in the salvage of the said ship, vessel, or goods; and such adjustments shall be binding to all parties, and shall be recoverable in an action at law to be brought in any of her Majesty's courts of record, by the respective persons to whom the same shall be allotted by the said justices of peace; and in case it shall happen, that no person shall appear to make his claim to all or any the goods that shall be saved, that then and in such case, the chief officer of the customs of the nearest port to the place where the said ship or vessel was so in distress, as aforesaid, shall apply to three of the nearest justices of the peace, who shall put in or some other responsible person in possession of the said goods, such justices of peace taking an account in writing of the said goods, to be signed by such officer of the customs; and if the said goods shall not be legally claimed within the space of twelve months next ensuing, by the rightful owner thereof, then publick sale shall be made thereof, and if perishable goods, forthwith to be sold, and after all charges deducted, the residue of the monies arising by such sale, with a fair and just account of the whole, shall be transmitted to her Majesty's Exchequer, there to remain for the benefit of the rightful owner when appearing, who upon affidavit, or other proof, made of his or their right or property thereto, to the satisfaction of one of the barons of the coise of the Exchequer, shall upon his order receive the same out of the Exchequer.

Goods not claimed in 12 months, to be sold, and the monies transmitted into the Exchequer, &c.

III. And it is hereby also enacted, That if any person or persons whatever, besides those empowered by the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, and the constables, as aforesaid, shall enter, or endeavour to enter, on board any such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, without the leave or consent of the commander, or other superior officer of the said ship, or the said officer of the customs, or his deputy, or of the said constable, or some or one of them employed for the service and preservation of the said ship or vessel, as aforesaid; or in case any person shall molest him, them, or any of them, in the saving of the said ship, vessel, or goods, or shall endeavour to impede or hinder the saving of any such ship, vessel, or goods, when any such goods are saved, shall take out or deface the marks of such goods, before the same shall be taken down in a book or books for that purpose, provided by the commander or ruling officer, and the first officer of the customs, as aforesaid, such person or persons shall, within the space of twenty days, make double satisfaction to the party grieved, at the discretion of the two next justices of peace, or in default thereof, shall by such justices of peace be sent to the next house of correction, where he shall continue to be employed in hard labour by the space of twelve months then next ensuing; and that it shall be lawful for any commander or superior officer of the said ship or vessel so in distress as aforesaid, or for the said officer of the customs, or constables on board the same ship or vessel, to repel by force such person or persons as shall, without such leave or consent from the commander or superior officer, or the said officer of the customs, or his deputy,

IV. And it is hereby likewise enacted, That in case any goods shall be found upon any person or persons, that were stolen or carried off from any such ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, he, she, or they, on whom such goods shall be found, shall immediately, upon demand, deliver the same to the owner thereof, or to such person by such owner authorized to receive the same; or in default thereof, shall be liable to pay treble the value of such goods, to be recovered by such owner in an action at law to be brought for the same.

V. And it is hereby moreover enacted, That if any person or persons shall make, or be assisting in the making any hole in the bottom, side, or any other part of any ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or shall steal any pump belonging to any ship or vessel so in distress, as aforesaid, or shall be aiding or abetting in the stealing such pump, as aforesaid, or shall wilfully do any thing tending to the immediate loss or destruction of such ship or vessel, such person or persons shall be, and are hereby made guilty of felony, without any benefit of his, her, or their clergy.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any action, suit, or information, shall be commenced or prosecuted against any person or persons, for any thing that he or they shall do, or cause to be done, in pursuance of this act, and executing any of the powers and authorities, or any of the orders or directions therein mentioned, all and every person and persons so sued in any court whatsoever, shall and may plead the general issue, and give this act and the special matter in evidence; and if in any such suit the plaintiff or prosecutor shall become nonsuit, or forbear prosecution, or discontinue the suit, or if a verdict shall pass against him, or judgment be given against him upon a demurrer, then in any of the said cases the defendant or defendants shall recover full costs, for which he and they shall have the like remedy as where costs by law are awarded; and this act shall be taken and allowed in all courts within this kingdom as a publick act, and all judges and justices are hereby required to take notice thereof as such without special pleading of the same.

VII. Provided nevertheless, If any officer of the customs, or his deputy, so impowered, as above, shall, by fraud or wilful neglect, abuse the trust hereby reposed in him, as aforesaid, and shall be convicted thereof in due form of law, such officer, or his deputy, shall respectively forfeit treble damages to the party grieved, to be recovered in any action or suit to be brought in any court of record, and shall from thenceforth be fully disabled and rendered incapable of the same, or any other employment relating to the said customs.

VIII. And it is hereby further enacted, That this act, and the several clauses herein contained, shall take effect from and after the first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and that for the better observing of the same, this act shall be read four times in the year in all the parish churches and chapels of every sea-port town, and upon the sea-coast in this kingdom, upon the Sundays next before Michaelmas-day, Christmas-day, Lady-day, and Midsummer-day, in the morning, immediately after the prayers, and before the sermon.

IX. Provided always, and it is hereby enacted, That neither this act, nor any thing herein contained, shall any ways extend to deprive, or any ways prejudice her royal Majesty, her heirs or successors, or any claiming under them, or any of them, or any patentee or grantee of the crown, or any lord or lords of any manor or manors, or other person whatsoever, or in relation to any right which they, or any of them respectively have, or shall have, or lawfully may claim to any wreck or wrecks, or any goods that are or shall be flotsam, jetsam, or lagan, but that such respective rights shall shall be enjoyed in as full, ample, and beneficial a manner, in every respect, as if this act had never been made.

X. Provided, That this act shall continue in force for the space of three years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament, and no longer. Made perpetual by 4 Geo. I. c. 12.

STAT. II. CAP. XIX.

An act to explain a clause in an act of parliament of the tenth year of her Majesty's reign, for laying several duties upon all sops and paper made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; and upon chequered and striped linens imported; and upon certain silks, callicoes, linens and stuffs, printed, painted, or stained; and upon several kinds of stamp vellum, parchment, and paper; and upon certain printed pamphlets and advertisements; for raising the sum of eighteen hundred thousand pounds by way of a lottery; and for other purposes in the said act mentioned, so far as the said act relates to lawns, canvases, buckrams, barras, and Silesia neckcloths.

WHEREAS in and by an act passed in the tenth year of her present Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for laying several duties upon all sops and paper made in Great Britain, or imported into the same; and upon chequered and striped linens imported; and upon certain silks, callicoes, linens and stuffs, printed, painted, or stained; and upon several kinds of stamp vellum, parchment, and paper; and upon certain printed papers, pamphlets and advertisements; for raising the sum of eighteen hundred thousand pounds by way of a lottery, towards her Majesty's supply; and for licensing an additional number of hackney chairs; and for charging certain stocks of cards and dice; and for better securing her Majesty's duties to arise in the office for the stamp-duties by licences for marriages and otherwise; and for relief of persons who have not claimed their lottery tickets in due time, or have lost Exchequer bills, or lottery tickets; and for borrowing money upon stock (part of the capital of the South Sea Company) for the use of the publick: it was enacted, That there should be raised, levied, collected and paid, to and for the use of her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for and upon all chequered and striped linens, and upon linens printed, painted, stained or dyed, after the manufacture, or in the thread and yarn before the manufacture, in any foreign parts, which at any one or times, within or during the term of thirty-two years, to be reckoned from the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, should be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, and might lawfully be used or worn there (over and above all other customs, subsidies and duties imposed upon, or payable for the same) a duty of fifteen pounds for every one hundred pounds of the true and real value thereof, to be paid by the importers respectively; and also, that all and every printers, painters, stainers, dyers, wipers, mercers, upholders, traders and dealers respectively, having on the said twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, in his, her, or their custody or possession, or in the custody or possession of any other person or persons, his, her or their use, benefit or account, any stock or quantity of such chequered or striped linens, or of such printed, painted, stained or dyed silks, callicoes, linens, or such stuffs, as aforesaid, being for sale, either wholesale or retail, should yield and pay to her Majesty for the same, so much money as one part of the rates and duties by the said act imposed on the like respective commodities, after the commencement of the said act, should amount unto; the said

An act to explain part of an act made in the seventh year of her Majesty's reign, (for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England, and for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nine) so far as the same relates to unwrought inle imported into this kingdom.

7 Ann. c. 7.

WHEREAS by an act made in the seventh year of the reign of her present Majesty, intituled, An act for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England, and for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and nine, it is expressly enacted and provided, That all European linens, sisters thread and tapes, or incles (among other things) shall be exempted from the payment of the duties called the two third subsidies, for all times to come during the continuance of the same: and whereas some doubts and disputes have arisen between the commissioners of her Majesty's customs and the merchants and other importers of the said tapes and incles, by means of the uncertainty whether the exception of the tape or inle, mentioned in the said act, be only of tapes that are wrought inle, so that all wrought inle is thereby exempted from the payment of the aforesaid duties, though manufactured abroad in parts beyond the seas, and unwrought incles, which employ great numbers of poor in manufacturing the same, is construed to be liable to, and is charged with the said duties, contrary to the true intent and meaning of the said law, as appears evidently, in that the bringing in and importing wrought inle is prejudicial to Great Britain, and the poor subjects and manufacturers thereof; be it therefore enacted and declared by the Queen's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the said provision and exception in the said act above mentioned, in relation to tapes or incles, shall extend and be construed to exempt European unwrought inle, commonly called or known by the name of short spinnal, as well as wrought inle, from the payment of the said duties of the two third subsidies, which shall be entred at any of her Majesty's custom-houses within the kingdom of Great Britain, after the twentieth day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; any law, custom or usage to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding.

to own with thankfulness to Almighty God) that the religion, laws, and liberties of this realm will be continued, and that they your said subjects, and their posterity may, through his divine goodness, enjoy a long tranquillity under your Majesty's auspicious reign, have therefore freely and unanimously resolved to give and grant, and do by this act give and grant to you our most gracious sovereign lord King George, the several rates, duties, impositions and charges herein after mentioned, during your Majesty's life; and do most humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted: and be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That from and after the first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, for and during the term of the natural life of his majesty king George, (whom God long preserve) the said rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, granted to his said late majesty king Charles the second, by the said act made in the twelfth year of his reign, (intituled, A grant of certain impositions upon beer, ale, and other liquors, for the increase of his Majesty's revenue, during his life;) and which were granted to their late Majesties king William and queen Mary, by the said act made in the second year of their reign, for their lives, and the life of the survivor of them, and which were continued to her said late majesty queen Anne, by the said act of the first year of her reign, for her life, (other than and except the said duty of six pence for every barrel of vinegar-beer before-mentioned to have been formerly excepted) and also the said duty of six pence, part of the said duty of eight shillings, for every barrel of vinegar, vinegar-beer, or liquor preparing for vinegar, which shall be brewed or made of any English or foreign materials by any person or persons whatsoever for sale, and so in proportion for a greater or lesser quantity, imposed by the said act of the tenth year of the reign of his said late Majesty king William the Third, shall be raised, levied, collected, and paid to our said sovereign lord king George, in the same manner and form, and by such rules, ways, means, and methods, and under such penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and with such allowances as are mentioned and expressed in the before mentioned acts, or any of them, relating to the said duties of excise, or any of them, or by any other law now in force relating to the revenue of excise; and all and every the said laws relating to the revenue of excise shall be of full force and effect, to all intents and purposes, for the levying, receiving, ascertaining, and recovering the said duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors hereby granted or continued, in the like manner as if the same were repeated and enacted in the body of this present act.

9 W. 3. c. 23.

II. And be it also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, granted by the said act made in the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty king William, for his life, and continued to her said late Majesty queen Anne, by the said act of the first year of her reign, for her life, shall, from and after the said first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen, during the life of our said sovereign lord king George, be raised, levied, collected, paid, and satisfied unto his Majesty, by the same ways, means, and methods, and under the same penalties, forfeitures, and disabilities, and by the same rules and directions, and with the same allowances and drawbacks, as are prescribed in or by the said act of the ninth year of the reign of his said late Majesty king William, or in any other act or acts of parliament now in force in that behalf; and that the said act of the ninth year of his said late Majesty's reign, and other acts touching the said further subsidies of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes last mentioned, and all and every the articles, rules, and clauses therein contained, or thereby referred unto, so far as the same relate to the raising, levying, collecting, or making allowances, or drawbacks out of the same subsidies and other duties, shall be of full force and effect, to all intents and purposes, during the life of our said sovereign lord king George, as if the same were particularly and at large repeated and set down in the body of this act.

III. And it is hereby enacted and declared, That the said hereditary rates and duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, and the said duties of excise upon beer, ale, and other liquors, hereby granted to his Majesty for the term of his life, and the said further subsidy of tunnage and poundage, and other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes, hereby also granted to his Majesty for the term of his life, and the said revenue of the general letter-office, or post-office, or office of post-master general, and the small branches of his Majesty's revenues herein after expressed; that is to say, The monies arising by fines for writs of covenant, and writs of entry, payable in the alienation-office, the post-fines, the revenue of the wine-licences, sheriffs proffers and compositions in the exchequer, seizures of uncustomed and prohibited goods, the revenue arising to his Majesty by rents of lands, or for fines of leases of the same, or any of them, and all other branches and revenues, which were settled or appointed for the support of her said late Majesty's household, and the honour and dignity of the crown, during her Majesty's life, as aforesaid, (except the duty of four and an half per centum in specie in Barbadoes and the Leeward Islands in America; and except the revenue of the duchy of Cornwall, which is by law vested in his royal highness the prince, as duke of Cornwall; and except the revenues of the first-fruits and tenths of the clergy; and except such revenues, rents, and hereditaments, as have been granted or passed to any person or persons, bodies politick or corporate, by or in pursuance of any act or acts of parliament in that behalf; and except all charges on the said revenues, or any of them, made by any act or acts of parliament whatsoever) shall be for the support of his Majesty's household, and of the honour and dignity of his crown; nevertheless the said hereditary duties of excise, and the said duties of excise granted for his Majesty's life, as aforesaid, and the said revenues of the general letter-office, or post-office, or office of post-master general, shall respectively be liable to the respective incumbrances and charges hereafter in this act specified concerning the same.

These duties granted for the civil list.

An act for charging and continuing the duties on malt, mum, cyder and perry, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and fifteen; and for making forth duplicates of Exchequer-bills, and lottery-tickets, lost, burnt, or destroyed; and for enlarging the time for adjusting claims in several lotteries; and for making forth new orders in lieu of certain lottery-orders obliterated or defective; and for continuing certain duties on hops, until the first day of August, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen.

Duties on hops granted by 9 Ann. c. 12. continued till 1 Aug. 1715. Made perpetual by 1 Geo. 1. stat. 2. c. 12. sect. 5.

SECT. AND whereas by an act of the ninth year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An act for laying a duty upon hops, a duty of three pence for every pound weight Averdupoiz is laid upon all hops, which at any time or times within or during the term of four years, to be reckoned from the first day of June, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, shall be imported or brought into the kingdom of Great Britain, (over and above all other customs, subsidies, and duties imposed upon or payable for the same) and for and upon all hops growing or to grow in Great Britain, which at any time or times, within or during the said term of four years, shall be cured and made fit for use, the sum of one penny for every pound weight Averdupoiz, and after that rate for a greater or lesser quantity, which act is thought convenient to be further continued: be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said act, and every clause, article, matter, and thing therein contained, shall continue and be of force from the thirty-first day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, until the first day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as if the same were herein particularly and at large repeated and re-enacted.

STAT. II. CAP. VI.

An act for making perpetual an act of the seventh and eighth years of the reign of his late majesty King William the Third, intituled, An act that the solemn affirmation and declaration of the people called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an oath in the usual form; and for explaining and enforcing the said act in relation to the payment of tithes and church rates; and for appointing the form of an affirmation to be taken by the said people called Quakers, instead of the oath of abjuration.

7 & 8 W. 3. c. 34.

WHEREAS an act made in the seventh and eighth years of his late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act that the solemn affirmation and declaration of the people called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an oath in the usual form, was made to continue for seven years, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament; which act would have expired at the end of the next session of parliament after the two and twentieth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and two; which session began the ninth day of November in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and three, and ended the third day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and four; but by another act of parliament made in the thirteenth year of his said late Majesty's reign, intituled, An act for continuing an act, intituled, An act that the solemn affirmation and declaration of the people called Quakers, shall be accepted instead of an oath in the usual form, was continued for the term of eleven years after the determination of the said act, and from thence to the end of the next session of parliament: and whereas the said several acts will expire at the end of the next session of parliament after the third day of April, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen: now for the further avoiding of the inconveniencies in the said first recited act mentioned, to the people called Quakers, and their families, be it enacted by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by authority of the same, That the said first recited act, and all the clauses and powers therein contained, shall continue and be in force for ever, as to all oaths by law required, or hereafter to be required, other than and except as in the said first recited act is excepted.

The act 7 & 8 W. 3. made perpetual.

IV. Provided always, That so much of this act as relates to the affirmations to be made by the people called Quakers, shall be extended to that part of Great Britain called Scotland for ever, and to the plantations belonging to the crown of Great Britain for five years, and to the end of the next session of parliament after the said five years, and no longer.

This act, as to the affirmation, to extend to Scotland for ever, and to the plantations for five years, and thence to the end of the next session of parliament.

STAT. II. CAP. XII.

An act for enlarging the fund of the governor and company of the bank of England, relating to Exchequer bills; and for settling an additional revenue of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum upon his Majesty during his life, for the service of the civil government; and for establishing a certain fund of fifty four thousand six hundred pounds per annum, in order to raise a sum not exceeding nine hundred and ten thousand pounds for the service of the publick, by sale of annuities, after the rate of six pounds per centum per annum, redeemable by parliament; and for satisfying an arrear for work and materials at Blenheim, incurred whilst that building was carried on at the expence of her late majesty Queen Anne, of blessed memory; and for other purposes therein mentioned.

MOST gracious Sovereign, Whereas in pursuance of an act of parliament made in the seventh year of the reign of her late majesty Queen Anne, (of blessed memory) for enlarging the capital stock of the bank of England, several bills, commonly called Exchequer bills, were made forth, amounting in principal money to two millions and five hundred thousand pounds, for her Majesty's supply; and in pursuance of another act made in the said seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign (amongst other things) for circulating a further sum in Exchequer bills; and of certain clauses contained in an act of the eighth year of her reign in that behalf, there were issued for her Majesty's supply more such bills, amounting to the further sum of four hundred thousand pounds in principal money; and pursuant to another act made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, (amongst other things) for circulating a further sum in Exchequer bills, there were issued for her Majesty's supply more such bills, amounting in principal money to twelve hundred thousand pounds; and it was provided by the said acts respectively, That all the said bills should bear an interest after the rate of two pence per centum per diem,

7 Ann. c. 8.

8 Ann. c. 13.

(saving the said interest upon such of the said bills as should at any time or times be in the Exchequer, or in the hands or power of any receiver or collector of any taxes, aids, or revenues payable to her Majesty, her heirs or successors, during such time and times respectively as such bills should be or remain in the Exchequer, or in such hands or power, as aforesaid) and that the governor and company of the bank of England should have an allowance, after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, for circulating all the said bills in the manner by the said acts respectively prescribed, abating the same allowance proportionably as the bills should be cancelled: and whereas by an act made in the ninth year of her said late Majesty's reign, for better enabling the said governor and company, and their successors, to exchange for ready money, upon demand, any of the bills made forth upon the said several acts of the seventh and eighth years of her said late Majesty's reign, it was enacted, That the full sum of forty five thousand pounds per annum should be paid to and for the use of the said governor and company, and their successors, by the several ways and means therein specified, for and during such time only as in that act was expressed; and by the said act made in the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, for better enabling the said governor and company, and their successors, to circulate all Exchequer bills, made forth and to be made forth on that and the former acts, by exchanging the same, from time to time, for ready money, upon demand, it was enacted, That the entire yearly sum of eight thousand pounds (over and above the said yearly sum of forty five thousand pounds) should be paid to and for the use of the said governor and company, and their successors, by quarterly payments; and that the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, together with the said yearly sum of forty five thousand pounds, should continue and be paid and payable to the said governor and company, and their successors, until such time as no more than nineteen hundred thousand pounds of all the bills issued and to be issued, in pursuance of that and the said former acts (taken all together) should be standing out uncanceled in the whole: and whereas for making good as well the said interest, after the rate of two pence per centum per diem, and the said allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, upon all the bills issued and to be issued, as aforesaid, as also the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds, until the subsidies, duties, surplus monies, remains and arrears, composing the general fund and security by the said former acts, or some of them, intended to be established, or so many of them as should be sufficient for those purposes, should have taken effect; it was by the said several acts of the seventh, eighth, and twelfth years of her said late Majesty's reign, or some of them, enacted, That the lord treasurer, or three or more of the commissioners of the treasury for the time being, should make out, or cause to be made out, other Exchequer bills, for so much as should be computed to be due at the respective quarter days therein mentioned (over and above what should have been applied out of the subsidies, duties, and sums of money aforesaid, for the said interest, and for such allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, and for the said yearly sum of eight thousand pounds respectively) and that such quarterly bills should bear the like interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said governor and company should have the like allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, for circulating thereof: and whereas in and by the said first mentioned act of the seventh year of her said late Majesty's reign, certain duties were granted, continued, or made payable to her Majesty, her heirs and successors for ever, that is to say, the duties called the two thirds of a subsidy of tonnage and poundage therein mentioned, which were to take effect, and did take effect by that act, from the seventh day of March, one thousand seven hundred and eleven, certain duties upon coffee, cocoa-nuts, chocolate, cocoa-paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, pictures, and muslins, and certain increased duties upon coffee, cocoa-nuts, chocolate, cocoa-paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and certain further rates or duties upon all white callicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs; all which were to take effect, and did take effect by the act last mentioned, from the twenty third day of June, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and one half of another subsidy of tonnage and poundage therein mentioned, which was to take effect, and did take effect by the same act, from and after the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fourteen; and by the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign, all the said duties so granted, continued, or made payable for ever, together with the surplus which should from time to time arise of or from the other half of the subsidy of tonnage and poundage last mentioned (over and above eighty thousand pounds per annum, formerly charged thereupon for payment of annuities) and divers arrears and other sums of money or revenues, more largely described in the said first mentioned act of the seventh year of her Majesty's reign, are made a general fund or security, and appropriated as well for satisfying and paying, from time to time, all the monies which should be due or payable for interest, after the rate of two pence per centum per diem, and for the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, for all the bills made out, or to be made out, upon the said act of the twelfth year, or any the former acts before mentioned, and all the monies which should grow due upon the said yearly sums of forty five thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, as also for or towards raising such a yearly sum as is after mentioned, for paying off and cancelling all the said bills: and by the said act of the twelfth year of her Majesty's reign, it was enacted, That after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, from time to time, so much as should be grown due, or demandable for the said interest of two pence per centum per diem, and allowance of three pounds per centum per annum, then the monies which should, from time to time, be grown due to the said governor and company, and their successors, upon their said other yearly allowances of eight thousand pounds, and forty five thousand pounds, from the respective times therein mentioned, should quarterly be paid out of the monies arising by the said duties and revenues; and that after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, so much as should, from time to time, be incurred and grown due, for and upon the said interest, after the rate of two pence per centum per diem, and the said several allowances after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, eight thousand pounds per annum, and forty five thousand pounds per annum, (which were always to be preferred in point of payment) the full and entire yearly sum of two hundred and seventy thousand nine hundred ninety nine pounds seven shillings, (comprehending therein the yearly sum of two hundred thousand pounds mentioned in the said former acts, or some of them) or so much of the said yearly sum of two hundred and seventy thousand nine hundred ninety nine pounds seven shillings, as the remainder of the said fund should from time to time produce for that purpose, should be, and is thereby appropriated for paying off all the principal money contained and to be contained in all and every the Exchequer bills, made forth, and to be made forth, by or in pursuance of that and the said former acts, or any of them, and for cancelling the same, until all the said bills shall be discharged and cancelled; and by the same act it was provided and enacted, That from and after the complete paying off and discharging all the principal and interest which should be due on the said Exchequer bills issued and to be issued in pursuance of that and the said other acts, and cancelling all the same bills, and full satisfaction made of all arrearages (if any should be then due) as well of the said allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, as also of the said yearly sums of forty five thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, or either of them, then, and not till then, the several subsidies, duties and revenues, settled or appropriated, as well for payment of the said interest of two pence per centum per diem, and the said allowance after the rate of three pounds per centum per annum, and the said yearly sums of forty five thousand pounds, and eight thousand pounds, as also for raising the said yearly sum of two hundred and seventy thousand nine hundred ninety nine pounds and seven shillings, and every of them, should be understood to be redeemed by parliament, and should not be issued, paid, or applied to any use, intent, or purpose whatsoever, without the authority of parliament; as in and by the several acts above recited or mentioned (amongst divers other clauses, matters and things therein contained) relation being thereunto respectively had, may more fully appear: and whereas all the bills which were issued upon the said several acts (including the quarterly bills before mentioned) did amount in the whole to four millions millions six hundred seventy six thousand eight hundred and twelve pounds and ten shillings; and since the said duties or revenues have taken effect, as many of the bills so issued, as amounted to one hundred and fifteen thousand seven hundred eighty seven pounds and ten shillings, have been (pursuant to the said act of the twelfth year of her late Majesty's reign) paid off and cancelled, so that the bills made forth upon the said several acts which are standing out, or do remain uncanceled or undischarged, upon the eleventh day of July, one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, do amount to the sum of four millions five hundred sixty-one thousand and twenty-five pounds, or thereabouts: and whereas we your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, being justly sensible of the inestimable blessings which your subjects do enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious government, and the good prospect of continuing those blessings to your said subjects, and their posterities, under your Majesty and your royal offspring, are desirous that a sufficient provision may be settled by the most easy and effectual ways and means, for enabling your Majesty to support the dignity of the crown, and to make an honourable provision for your royal family, and have therefore resolved, that there be granted to your Majesty, during your life, (which God long preserve) an additional revenue of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds per annum, which, together with the neat produce of the branches, settled for the uses of your Majesty's civil government by the late act of parliament in that behalf, may make up the clear yearly sum of seven hundred thousand pounds, for the service of your Majesty's household and family, and other your necessary expences and occasions: and your said commons of Great Britain are also desirous, That a sum not exceeding nine hundred and ten thousand pounds may be raised, (by the like easy and effectual ways and means) as part of the necessary supply by them granted for the service of your Majesty's navy and forces, and other your Majesty's publick occasions: and your Majesty's said commons finding, that upon enlarging or augmenting the said present fund and security of the said governor and company of the bank of England, by such additional revenues and incomes as are herein after granted, continued, and appropriated, and making such enlarged or augmented fund and security liable, in the first place, to satisfy all monies which shall from time to time be incurred and grown due, as well for and upon the said interest of two pence per centum per diem, as the said allowance of three pounds per centum per annum; and in the next place, to satisfy all monies which shall from time to time be incurred and grown due for and upon the said other allowances of forty-five thousand pounds per annum, and eight thousand pounds per annum, (the said interest and several allowances being always to be preferred in payment, as aforesaid, according to the tenor and true meaning of this and the said former acts) they the said governor and company of the bank of England are willing, for accommodating your Majesty's affairs, that out of the residue or remainder of such enlarged or augmented fund, the yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, by quarterly payments, shall and may be taken and applied for the service of your Majesty's household and family, and other your necessary expences and occasions; and that after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, such monies as shall from time to time be incurred and grown due, for or upon the said yearly sum of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, then the further yearly sum of fifty-four thousand six hundred pounds, by like quarterly payments, shall and may be taken and applied out of the said residue or remainder of the said enlarged or augmented fund, in order to raise any sum or sums of money, not exceeding nine hundred and ten thousand pounds, for such publick services, as aforesaid; and that after paying, or reserving sufficient to pay, so much as shall, from time to time, be incurred and grown due for or upon the said yearly sums of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, and fifty-four thousand six hundred pounds, and either of them, out of the said residue or remainder of such enlarged or augmented fund, then the aforesaid yearly sum of two hundred and seventy thousand nine hundred ninety-nine pounds and seven shillings, or so much thereof as the said residue or remainder of such enlarged or augmented fund shall, from time to time, produce for that purpose, shall and may be appropriated for paying off all the principal money contained in all and every the said Exchequer-bills remaining, and which shall from time to time remain uncanceled or undischarged, and for cancelling the same, until all the said bills shall be cancelled and discharged. Provided always, That in case at any time or times there shall happen to be any deficiency or deficiencies to make good the payments of the original fund of one hundred thousand pounds per annum of the said governor and company, specified in the said first mentioned act of the seventh year of her late Majesty's reign, and of their yearly annuity of one hundred and six thousand five hundred and one pounds thirteen shillings and five pence, in the same act specified, or either of them, then and so often, all and every such deficiency and deficiencies shall and may, from time to time, be satisfied and made good out of the said residue or remainder of such enlarged or augmented fund, as aforesaid, with preference to any issues thereafter to be made for cancelling any of the said Exchequer-bills: now for the making up, settling and establishing a good, sure, and complete fund, sufficient to answer all the ends and purposes by this act intended, by making all the payments which shall, from time to time, be incurred or grown due (in the order and course hereby prescribed) as well for and upon the said interest, and several allowances before mentioned, as for and upon the said yearly sums of one hundred and twenty thousand pounds, and fifty-four thousand six hundred pounds, and by making good such deficiencies as shall or may happen, as aforesaid, and by producing a yearly sum to be applied quarterly, for or towards the cancelling and discharging the said bills; we your Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, do humbly beseech your Majesty that it may be enacted and declared; and be it enacted and declared, by the King's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the aforesaid duties, called the two thirds of a subsidy of tonnage and poundage, and the said duties upon coffee, cocoa-nuts, chocolate, cocoa-paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, pictures, and muslins, and the said increased duties upon coffee, cocoa-nuts, chocolate, cocoa-paste, tea, nutmegs, cinnamon, cloves, mace, and pictures, and the said further rates or duties upon all white calicoes, porcelain, commonly called China ware, and drugs, and the aforesaid half subsidy of tonnage and poundage, which were all granted to her said late Majesty, her heirs and successors for ever, by the said first mentioned act of the seventh year of her reign, and the excess or surplus, which shall from time to time arise by the said other moiety or half of the said subsidy of tonnage and poundage, which was granted for the term of ninety six years, from the last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, and charged with eighty thousand pounds per annum, for payment of annuities, and all other revenues, remains and arrears whatsoever, which by the said act of the twelfth year of her said late Majesty's reign were appropriated for payment of interest and allowances relating to the Exchequer bills, or towards cancelling the same, subject to such redemption as was thereby prescribed, shall be, and shall be deemed and taken, and are hereby enacted and declared to be part of the general fund and security by this act established and intended to be established, for all the uses and purposes in this act expressed, and shall be subject to such redemption as in this act is prescribed, and not otherwise; and no former acts, or any of them, or any clause, matter or thing in them, contrary to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding.

II. And to the end there may be no failure or defect in the said general fund hereby intended to be established, his Majesty's said dutiful and loyal subjects, the commons of Great Britain in parliament assembled, have given and granted, and by this act do give and grant to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, the several additional revenues and incomes herein after more particularly expressed, and do most humbly beseech his Majesty, that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, in manner following, that is to say, Whereas by an act of parliament of the sixth year of her said late Majesty's reign, intituled, 6 Ann. c. 11. for continuing one half part of the subsidies of tonnage and poundage, and other

The two thirds subsidy, the duties on coffee, &c. and the one half subsidy, 7 Ann. c. 7. shall be part of the general fund for the uses of this act.

Duties on wines and merchandizes.

Other duties upon wines, goods, and merchandizes imported, which were granted to the crown in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, and for settling a fund thereby, and by other ways and means, for payment of annuities, not exceeding eighty thousand pounds per annum, to be sold for raising a further supply to her Majesty, for the service of the year one thousand seven hundred and eight, and other uses therein expressed, it was enacted, That there should be raised and levied, for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes, which at any time or times, from and after the said last day of July, one thousand seven hundred and twelve, within or during the term of ninety six years, from thence next and immediately ensuing, should be imported or brought into Great Britain, one moiety or half-part of the subsidies, duties, and sums of money therein mentioned, or thereby referred to; (except as therein is excepted): now it is hereby enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be raised, levied, collected and paid to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, for and upon all wines, goods, and merchandizes, which at any time or times, from and after the determination of the said term of ninety six years, shall be imported or brought into Great Britain, the like moiety or half-part of the like subsidies, duties, and sums of money (except as in and by the said act of the sixth year of her late Majesty's reign, or any other act or acts of parliament in relation to the said half-subsidy, is excepted) and shall be collected, levied, and paid, by such ways and means, and under such penalties and forfeitures, and subject to such drawbacks and allowances, and in such manner and form, as by the said act of the sixth year of her Majesty's reign, or any other act relating thereunto, is prescribed, for raising and levying the said half-subsidy, during the term aforesaid; and that all the monies which, after the determination of the said term of ninety six years, shall arise, of or for the said moiety or half-part of the said subsidy and duties hereby intended to be continued, and all the arrears of the said half-subsidy which shall or may arise by virtue of the grant thereof, during the term aforesaid, after all the annuities and payments charged thereupon shall be fully paid off and determined, or money sufficient shall be reserved for that purpose (the necessary charges of management always excepted) shall be brought and paid, from time to time, into the receipt of the Exchequer, for the purposes in this act expressed, and subject to such redemption as is hereby prescribed concerning the same.

quer, for the purposes in this act expressed, and subject to such redemption as is hereby prescribed concerning the same.

IV. And it is hereby also enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all the monies which, from and after the said feast day of Saint Michael the Archangel, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and fifteen, shall arise by the duties which in and by an act of parliament made and passed in the five and twentieth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, (of blessed memory) intituled, An act for the encouragement of the Greenland and Eastland trades, and for the better securing the plantation trade, were granted to his Majesty, his heirs and successors for ever, commonly called The plantation duties, (the necessary charges of raising and paying the same excepted) shall also be brought and paid, from time to time, into the said receipt of Exchequer, for the purposes in this act expressed, and be liable to such redemption as is herein-after prescribed in that behalf.

Plantation duties,
